Street goods to remain

by DOUG TRUAX

Charlevoix merchants, sharply divided over the practice of placing merchandise and furniture on Bridge Street sidewalks, debated the issue at City Council's work session Monday night.

Hearing no concensus, council decided to drop the issue indefinitely and turned aside two proposed ordinances which would have controlled sidewalk merchandising.

The Charlevoix Merchants Association, a division of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, pressed council last week to enforce the current ordinance which bans all merchandise and street furniture from U.S. 31 (Bridge Street). If the current law was enforced, City Attorney Jeffery VanTreese explained, the only exception would be newspaper stands which are protected by the first amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The Merchants Association told last week's council meeting that once the ordinance was enforced, it would support the reinstatement of tables and chairs outside various retaurants.

Jeanine Wallace, owner of Shop of the Gulls, was one who spoke for the Merchants Association at Monday's meeting. "I've had complaints all summer from resorters asking what has happened to our town. I think it (the merchandise on the streets) does look tacky," she said. Wallace added that the outdoor furniture was different and added a favorable ambiance to the town.

Diane Pace of Magpie agreed. "I don't think the merchandise looks good," she said, adding that the street eateries added a "festive" mood to the city.

David Hand, owner of Bridge Street Hardware, said his merchandise was displayed on private property, not public right-of-way, and had "probably been out in front of that store for 75 years." Hand said the outdoor display was necessary for him to display large, bulky items.

"In the dead of winter, when people come down the hill, Jim Miller's merchandise (at Staley Hardware) and my merchandise are the only sign this town is alive other than the stop light," Hand added.

He said there were two issues confronting council, the public safety one and the issue of good taste. "I hope you are not going to get into regulating what is good taste," he said.

CITY ATTORNEY VanTreese had prepared drafts of two city ordinances – one designed to take ef-

Five vie for mayor's job

by DOUG TRUAX

City votes will have their choice of five candidates in the race for mayor during the primary election Tuesday, August 5. The top two vote getters will then square off in November's general election.

There are no challengers for the three council seats up for election this term so the offices will not appear on the primary ballot. Running in November will be William J. Haggard, First Ward; William Bellows, Second Ward; and Shirley J. Roloff, Third Ward. Bellows and Roloff are incumbents. Haggard is seeking to replace Councilman Ray Wood who has elected not to run again.

Candidates for the mayor's office include: Paul O. Burlew, Ralph A. McRae, Thomas G. Meggison, F. Earl Muma, and Samuel C. Supernaw. Incumbent mayor Hal Hill has decided not to run again.

Here are the candidates and their views on some of the major issues confronting Charlevoix.

PAUL O. BURLEW, 63, and his wife, Katie, own Accents by Burlew on Bridge Street. He retired from Technicolor in Costa Mesa, Calif. and moved to Charlevoix in 1980. Burlew has run unsuccessfully for the council seat in the Third Ward.

Burlew says the major concern for the city is "taking care of items for year-round residents because the focus has been on one thing and one thing only – tourists."

He points to such problems as the disrepair of the streets and sidewalks, which he calls "deplorable," as an example.

"I totally agree with Hal Hill's statement that you can pass all the ordinances in the world, but it doesn't do a bit of good if they are not enforced," Burlew adds.

He is also in agreement with those who would like to remove the merchandise from Bridge Street, and he says all goods should be banned. "I can't see how you can honestly be discriminatory in what you allow. Either everybody can use it, or nobody."

Burlew says one of his major concerns is the control of expenditures. "Council should exercise its responsibility which is overseeing the budget," he notes. He would like council to hold the line on expenditures or even to reduce current spending. "A lot of people in this town are paying fantastically high taxes," he says.

He would also give attention to some of the "little things" in the administration of the city, including the water and sewage rates.

RALPH A. MCRAE has lived in Charlevoix since 1946. He would not give his age, saying only that he was "over 49." McRae served two years on City Council and was instrumental in initiating the Housing Commission and later served as its president. He was a leader in the effort to institute the city's current home rule charter and has recently been working on the establishment of a nursing home in Charlevoix.

McRae said the most important issue facing Charlevoix was that "people are getting tired of continually higher taxes." Although the millage rates have remained the same in recent years, McRae says, the assessments continue to rise.

"I think that when assessments go up, millage should go down," he states. "The only way to control the budget is to control the money that comes in."

He also advocates a moratorium on condominium growth in downtown Charlevoix and on lake frontage. He recently commissioned a study of the number of condominiums in Charlevoix and their assessed values and taxes. The study showed Charlevoix had considerably more condominiums than similar communities in northern Michigan.

McRae said that if elected he will attempt to get the Chicago and Belvedere clubs assessed at 50 percent of their true cash value. The land associations are currently undervalued, he charges.

Another priority for the candidate would be the establishment of a mayor's advisory committee to "listen to department and commission heads, invite outside municipal experts, study old and current problems."

"I'd like to make the city look like one whole family," McRae says. "I would like to have everyone satisfied with the administration of the city."

McRae added that he would attempt to have all city appointees live within the city limits unless given a special provision to live elsewhere. "I think we have qualified people living in town," he says.

Two commission seats contested

by PEG OHLE

There are only two Primary contests for seats on the Charlevoix County of Commissioners, both of them between Republicans.

Theodore "Bud Heeres is challenging incumbent Lee Moerland for the District 6 (City of Charlevoix) seat, and Lee Arnold is challenging incumbent Don Smith for the District 5 seat. District 5 is made up of western Eveline, Marion, Norwood, Charlevoix, St. James, and Peaine Townships.

The Heeres-Moerland campaign is the more active of the two.

Heeres is basing his campaign largely on rising property taxes.

He cites figures showing that the State Equalized Value of property in Charlevoix County was $301,734,668 in 1980 and rose to $437,407,025 in 1986, an increase of 44.96 percent.

The millage rate for determining property taxes to support county government also rose during this period, Heeres notes; from 4.55 in 1980 to 4.70 in 1985.

These increases in both State Equalized Valuations and millage rates resulted in a 49.72 percent increase in taxes to be paid by county residents to support county government, Heeres' figures show.

Commenting on this increasing tax bill, Heeres said, "It's time we look into and evaluate existing programs and scrutinize future programs and try to keep them cost-effective. We can't do much about programs mandated by the state, but the commissioners ought to keep a hand on programs to see they are not being carried away. In the case of the Child Care program, I don't think they were watching it closely

Annual Petunia Auction arrives

Bargain hunters prepare. One of the north country's biggest, and certainly its most unique, auction is nearing.

The event is the fifth annual Petunia Auction in East Park on Saturday, August 2 from 1-3:30 p.m. Registration is at noon. Proceeds from the auction are used to buy petunias for planting in Charlevoix. Additional funds are being sought this year to replace the petunia watering truck.

A truly massive and unique lot of goods will hit the auction block. Buyers will find everything from a 1,000 cc Kawasaki motorcycle to an antique wheelchair. There will be a pair of well-housebroken plaster lion cubs and a not-so-housebroken English setter puppy (real).

In between those extremes bidders will get a chance at such unusual items as: a 15-foot sloop, enough office furniture to start a small office, several bed and breakfast offerings, fishing charter cruises, sailboat cruises with gourmet dinners, golf outings, a plane ride, and on and on.

If you are not in the market for items of this sort, you might want to consider the piece de resistance of the auction – round trip airfare for two to London, England from Detroit Metro airport. This trip, provided compliments of the Automobile Club of Michigan, will be auctioned at approximately 3 p.m.

The days preceding the Petunia Auction is also featuring many items in special silent auctions at various local businesses. Bidders can write in their offer and update it as often as necessary. The silent auction will close prior to the bidding on the live auction on Saturday.

Also new to the petunia fundraiser is a raffle for a 1986 Ford Mustang along with cash prizes of $1,000, $500, and $100. Tickets for this special raffle are $100 each and entitle the purchaser and one guest to a sunset cruise on the Star of Charlevoix. The winner of the raffle will be drawn during the cruise on Sept. 1 from 7-9 p.m. The cruise will feature hors-d'oeuvres and a cash bar.

Donations to the Petunia Auction are being accepted through Friday, Aug. 1. Call Paul Burlew at 547-5675 if you have items to donate or to have picked up.

The Coast Guard Wives Club will conduct a yard sale in East Park in conjunction with the auction beginning at noon.

Mayoral race crowded

THOMAS G. MEGGISON, 37, is a lifelong resident of Charlevoix. He has no previous political experience, but is a Charlevoix volunteer fireman and a member of various civic organizations. He currently works for a local contractor.

"I would like to see parking as the number one priority," Meggison says. The problem should be addressed by council, the Downtown Development Authority and the mayor, working together, he adds.

Traffic congestion is a major problem, he says, and several approaches should be tried including regulation of the bridge every hour rather than every half hour and having the bridge tender control the green light after the bridge is down to clear traffic.

Meggison also says he would like to "see if the school and city council couldn't work together on a program for drug and alcohol problem at the school.

"I feel they have a very serious problem up there (at the school)," Meggison adds.

With a growing lake fishery, the city should also address the need for a bigger landing site and a fish cleaning station at Ferry Beach, he points out.

"I would also like to see the Winter Festival come back," he says, adding that the city needs more year-round recreation for young people.

He is supportive of the police department. "I think we have an excellent police force. The city should help get behind them rather than criticize them," Meggison says. He believes the police force could use additional summer help.

He would favor a reduction in the pace of building condominiums on Round Lake. "We've got enough condos. I can't see how the city council could let the Edgewater Inn build on Round Lake." Meggison said he had no objection to building away from the lakes.

F. EARL MUMA, 53, is currently a city councilman from the Third Ward. He has served on council for eight years and made a previous unsuccessful bid for the mayor's office. He is president of the 8th and 9th district of the Michigan Municipal League. Muma, who has lived in Charlevoix since 1952, is employed as the county's emergency services director.

Muma says the new Charlevoix Industrial Park is one of the city's finest accomplishments. "It is a real nice feather in the hat of anybody on council now," he says. He believes the city should continue to encourage business, particularly local business, to locate there.

Another priority for the city, Muma believes, is the development of the Ferry Beach property. He says that project will be accomplished provided the tax increment financing is upheld in the courts or the legislature. "The Ferry Avenue beach is an important part of the city," Muma says.

He advocates doing a study of the city owned landing ramp at Ferry Beach in an effort to relieve some of the traffic jams occurring there.

Muma is complimentary of the job done by Hal Hill and says he would like to continue in that vein. "The only power the mayor has is the people that are behind him," he notes.

The priority of the Downtown Development Authority should be parking and nothing else, he says. "East Park is a nice looking place," he states in reference to DDA plans for the park. "Why mess it up? Why—mutilate it?"

On the issue of growth and development, Muma says each building project has to be looked at on its own merits. "In some cases there are too many variances; in other cases they are properly to be considered by the Board of Appeals."

He has high praise for the recent city electrical study. "It is the first study done which has really saved money for the city," he says.

Muma believes the city may eventually have to hold the line on wage increases, limiting them to increases in the cost of living.

SAMUEL C. SUPERNAW, 43, has been a self-employed accountant in Charlevoix since 1971. He is a native of the city and has spent all but 10 of his years here. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1961 and from Michigan State University in 1966. Supernaw served as mayor from 1978-81 and served on council for three years in the early '70s.

Supernaw believes the city's major emphasis should continue to be on the industrial park which he calls a "tremendous advancement."

"I'm 100 percent behind trying to get more industrial development," he adds.

Supernaw does not favor limits on condominium development. "Each one is an individual project—if council wants it, fine. I don't think it (condo development) is a problem."

On the current controversy over street goods and furniture, he believes it is not a problem. "If it helps business and they're taxpayers, let's keep them happy," Supernaw comments.

The mayor's role in city budget issues, he notes, should be to work with the city manager and treasurer to keep expenditures down. "That's what you pay them for," he says. Supernaw adds that he has not heard citizen comment that the city budget is out of line. He also believes current services are adequate and that utility rates are reasonable.

"I would like to see the city continue to be the community I have enjoyed all these years," Supernaw concludes.

New grill aims at ultimate in outdoor cooking

by DOUG TRUAX

Charles Eisendrath ceremoniously lies the salmon, which has been butterfly cut and still has head and tail attached, on his well-seasoned grill. It rests on a bed of fresh dill weed and has been sprinkled with Hungarian paprika.

Then, with an almost smug delight, he lights the bit of paper and twigs underneath the grate and sits down to detail the wonders of his inaehine.

That's it, he says. No charcoal. No waiting for twenty minutes for the coals to get to temperature.

Simplicity itself.

WHAT EISENDRATH is demonstrating is The Grillery, a device he invented for backyard barbecuing. It is, perhaps, the ultimate grill. Stainless steel, well thought out, Eisendrath's grill is an attempt to reinvent backyard cooking.

You are not going to find it at K-Mart, however, and, if you have to ask, this stainless steel wonder will set you back 525 bucks.

But consider what this baby can do. For one thing, the owner is freed forever from the evils of charcoal. Eisendrath explains: "Charcoal, when you really think of it, is a massively silly idea," he says, pointing out its drawbacks. It takes a long time to get started. It is smelly and full of chemicals and various adulterations. And so on. "When I found out that Henry Ford invented charcoal to get rid of various industrial byproducts, that did it," he adds.

IN PLACE OF charcoal, Eisendrath has substituted good old-fashioned, ever-present wood. Nearly any wood will do, he says, but the fruitwoods are particularly nice as are oak, maple, nutwoods, and the like.

Eisendrath's grill is able to burn wood, and to cook on it almost immediately, because the cooking surface can be raised a full 16 inches above the fire. This allows the chef to grill delicate dishes like salmon without burning them or, as with many Weber-type grills, smoking them.

"With a Weber, you can adjust the heat, but you have to smoke everything," Eisendrath says. "Salmon tastes like ham."

His Grillery also has another distinctive feature. The grill surface is actually several "V-channels" which carry the juices from the meat back into a basting pan where they can be reused. This arrangement also avoids flareups and charring of the meat.

WHO IS THIS messia of backyard woodburning? Some frustrated engineer perhaps? Actually, Eisendrath is one of the more unlikely people on earth to have invented such a mechanical device and to be hawking its wonders.

In real life, he is a professor of journalism at the University of Michigan where he directs the graduate program. Prior to joining the U-M faculty he was a foreign correspondent and bureau chief for Time.

A summer resident on Lake Charlevoix's South Arm, Eisendrath takes up his capitalist-inventor role only in the summer and then with a good bit of amusement in the role.

THE DESIGN, he explains, had to be simple "because if it got too complieated I couldn't do it." Although he professes to be a mechanical illiterate, he was also as green as willow wood when it came to running a business. "I don't pretend to have known anything about business before," he states with satisfaction. "I think capitalism as a hobby is a great idea."

So far his company, Grillworks, Inc., has produced some 300 grills and has doubled its business each of the last several years. If it gets too big, he says, he will sell the business. But for now it is a pleasant diversion in the summers from the book he is writing on the French press.

When September rolls around, the orders dry up and it is time to return to work in Ann Arbor.

Eisendrath says this is the 11th model of The Grillery, although like the original Volkswagen, you might not notice the changes. "Unlike most things in the world, it is getting heavier and better," he adds.

And, without much advertising or fanfare, it is gradually gaining a following. James Beard conducted an outdoor cooking class on the grill and was enthused with its performance. "Not for a long time has something so brilliantly thought-out and well-constructed been offered to the American public," Beard wrote.

It has been reviewed by the Washington Post, Food and Wine, New York Magazine and in the recent issue of Bon Apetit.

A Texan became so enamoured of the grill he wanted several immediately. Eisendrath recalls, except that he couldn't remember how many ranches he had. He finally settled on four. One of them was to be double-sized (what else for a Texan) and another was to be airlifted to his salmon camp in Iceland.

NEIMAN-MARCUS carried the grill for a time — at $950 — and flew the professor to southern California and drove him around in a limo to demonstrate its qualities to the beautiful people. Charles remembers they had a devil of a time finding wood at the Beverly Hills store but finally came up with some "Beverly Hills wood."

When not leading the life of a budding capitalist, Eisendrath enjoys summer life on a 140 acre farm directly east of Holy Island. He fishes often with his sons Ben, 17, who supplies much of the salmon for the grill, and Mark, 14. Julia, his wife, says she takes advantage of his natural enthusiasm for the grill and lets him prepare much of the food. Her cherry preserves, however, are a key ingredient in the canard aux cerises (duck in cherries) which is grilled butterflied like the salmon and basted with the warm sauce.

The South Arm farm was inherited from his parents who bought the place in 1943. Eisendrath traces his family's days in Charlevoix to the 1870s and says his grandmother had a place on Miehigan Avenue for many years.

"My father wanted a place to get away from the in-laws," he says, " and his idea was to get a body of water between the inlaws and himself." Hence the move to the east side of the lake.

Local trail riding becomes victim of insurance crisis

by AUDREY DIEBEL COLLINS

Northern Michigan is midway through its legendary nine-week summer season, the time when businessmen will tell you, the bulk of the year's income is put in the bank.

"If you don't make it in July and August, you don't make it," is the axiom in this resort economy, so it's rare indeed to find a successful summer resort-oriented business that chooses not to operate during the peak of the season.

All the predictions for a boom year in tourism seem to be coming true, but in spite of eager customers, Windmill Farm has kept its gate barred, interrupting a ten-year success story for the family campground and riding trail.

Owner Ken Swan made the move angrily, due to the rising cost of liability insurance.

"For every $11 that comes in here for a 75-minute trail ride, $9.50 goes for insurance," Swan says. "Then leaves no room in the budget for staff, hay, grain, veterinarians..."

"The insurance companies are asking us to give them all our profits and more," he says.

Swan points with pride to his spotless accident record, believing it should count for something when his premiums are considered.

"Insurance companies don't know anything about the businesses they're insuring," he says. "All they know is, if you're a hacker, if you rent a horse by the hour, you're in the highest risk group. That's all that county - not your safety record."

Swan says he checked with more than 60 insurance companies in Michigan, and found that three months of coverage would cost him between $8-$12,000. That reflects a 300 to 800 percent increase from last year's premiums.

Liability insurance became an issue in Michigan two years ago, according to Swan. That's when the first big jumps in premiums occurred, and that's when Swan started calling his legislators. He has written letters, appeared at hearings, presented written testimony for a house subcommittee. Government is beginning to address the issue, he says, but it's too little, too late for Windmill Farm in the summer of '86.

Swan is not alone in his dilemma. He says 70 small campgrounds in the state closed last year, and twice that number were expecting to shut down this year due to the liability issue and the stiffened operating requirements that are a partial result of the country's litigious mood.

"We have a beautiful business here," Swan says. "It's amazing to see kids interact with 1,200 pounds of meat on the hoof. We've had riding programs for Camp McSauba, Charlevoix Youth Activities, the Belvedere and Chicago Clubs, for handicapped children, Girl Scouts.... We get more than 1,500 riders every summer.

"The things families counted on being able to do are no longer available because of the liability insurance cost," he says.

"The state stands to lose millions in tourist dollars, because people are flocking here and there are fewer things for them to do."

Swan will survive this year because he is diversified; he also operates a computer programming business. But he is not a happy camper. And he knows a lot of would-be campers who aren't happy either, and won't be until the liability insurance issue is settled.

That won't be in time to salvage the annual polo matches held for a Charlevoix County charity each summer. Swan says premiums for charity benefits of that type increased more than 500 percent; more than sponsors were prepared to pay this year.

Next year he hopes will be another story. Swan says Windmill Farm will be opening cross country ski trails this winter, and has every assurance that he will be back in full swing for camping, horseback riding, and polo matches next summer.

Big Rock procedures criticized

Operation of the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant for the past year and a half has been satisfactory, according to a federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) performance report, but the utility's management was told to improve procedures during refueling outages.

NRC officials were blunt in their criticism of outage procedures in 1985, listing several violations in connection with the outage. The category was given a "3" rating, which calls for increased NRC and licensee attention to the problem.

The other two category ratings are "1," which says reduced NRC attention may be appropriate, and "2," which suggests normal levels of NRC attention.

"This violation combined ... seven identified violations stemming from three separate examples during the 1985 outage of supervisory personnel, repairmen and operators circumventing or ignoring administrative requirements and not exercising sufficient care and attention to detail to ensure plant safety," the NRC Systematic Assessment of Licensee Performance (SALP) report read.

"Contributing to the situation was the lack of component identification throughout the facility, the absence of a single point supervisory contact to direct the activities of travel repair crews, inadequate management involvement in directing maintenance activities during the outage and evidence of a lackadaisical attitude on the part of certain operators toward adherence to procedural requirements."

The report went on to say that in some instances the wrong components were being worked on and, in other instances, there was simply inattention to detail. The loading of fuel itself, however, was handled satisfactorily.

The SALP report noted the lack of identification of components throughout the plant, the retirement of several key, older operators and supervisors in the plant, and a major reorganization of plant staff within the maintenance and operations department just prior to the outage.

"Any time that we rate an area as a three, it is a cause for some concern," said NRC spokesman Jan Strasma. "There is a need for improvement in that area.

"It is also true that when there is a decline in a category (Big Rock dropped from 1 to 2 in two categories) it is an indicator to the utility's management that they need to address that particular area to restore past performance.

Our Compliments To The Chef. And All The Staff Who Keep Meals On Wheels Rolling.

About two decades ago, a group of some very enterprising people first opened the doors to what has ever since been a favorite local eatery.

In that time, not a whole lot has changed in the way they run things.

The menu's simple. But the food is always hot, fresh and wholesome.

A lot of the staff works for free. And most provide their own cars and gasoline so the operators can still offer home delivery.

And, as it's always been over the years, they've never once made a red cent to show for it all.

But they did manage to make firm believers out of us.

They're Meals on Wheels, after all.

So while it is not surprising that they are not in business to make a profit, they still have to pay their bills like everyone else to stay in business.

Otherwise, hundreds of homebound senior citizens and hundreds more less-fortunate people might go hungry every day.

So when they fed us the facts on their cash-flow problem, we gave them the line of credit they needed to keep things rolling.

Not just because we're bankers.

But because, more importantly, we're part of the community.

You see, at First of America Bank we think non-profit organizations like Meals on Wheels, who make sure that those in need do not go hungry, are something everyone will eventually profit from some day.

New crisis number

by Edith Gilbert

QUOTE FROM MY YAWNING vacationing houseguest. "Oh, dear." Stretch, stretch. "Now I have to get up so I can go to the beach and lie down!"

POOR PETER PACE. We stopped by the Grey Gables the other night and he was still shaking.

It seems he pulled into a marina to fill his boat up with gas, and instead of filling the tank, the inexperienced attendant put the nozzle into the rod holder for the fishing pole of his downrigger equipment! Three gallons later, Peter realized that all the gasolene was going into the bilge. On top of that, everyone on the boat smokes. Zowee! Lucky they weren't all blown into the hereafter.

SPEAKING OF CRISIS, now's a good time to mention a new counseling service that's available to all of us. Too often we think all's well in our golfing, sailing, tennis and vacation world of fudge and beaches. But once in awhile someone is hurting. When you notice that a friend needs help, be a friend and give them this number. 1-800-442-7315. This new Crisis Intervention Center in Traverse City is open 24 hours a day. It's confidential and it's FREE.

WHAT A RELIEF dealing with a professional team that knows their job. By golly, that's how I felt after meeting with the new staff at the Perry Hotel in Petoskey.

Now, people who tell me proudly they never leave Charlevoix don't have to read this. But for those doers, who are involved in varied activities, they will be delighted to know - because this has been a real need in our community - that we are going to have a genuine functioning, service oriented facility nearby. A nice, big place for special events, banquets, luncheon, dinner meetings, and receptions and dances; a place, where they have platforms, podiums and staff to shift things around, including extra chairs and tables, and where one can move on from one room to another before and after a program. The team I was dealing with consisted of Alan Lowles, certified hotel administrator from Rochester, N.Y. who is the new general manager, Jon Wheeler, the dining room manager, and Steve Pellegrom, chef.

WE'RE MAKING PLANS for the Art and Antique Auction, to take place on Thursday, August 7, for the benefit of the Crooked Tree Arts Council. We've decided hors d'ouevres and viewing will take place from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. The auction will begin at 7:30 and probably will last until 9:30 or 10 p.m. Mr. Ernest Dumouchelle from Detroit will again be the auctioneer this year. Admission is $3.50.

Tim Moore of Radio Station KHQ has consented to be on hand to interview early arrivals on the porch at the Perry Hotel. In addition, the radio station will be offering tempting items for listeners to bid on from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. that day. Neat things like a weekend apartment in downtown Detroit at the Millender Center donated by the Paul Keiswetters, a helicopter ride donated by the Arthur Kleinpells, sailboat rides, etc. etc. Tune in FM 105.9 and AM 1270 on your radio dial.

In the lobby, there'll be a lot of "ohing" and "ahing" over the chef's ice sculpture, too, before the auction. And we expect a number of people to stay for a special light dinner treat after the auction.

It's not too late for people who would like to make a tax deductible contribution to call 347-4337 for pick up.

Getting back to the Perry Hotel, the new management has exciting plans in the works for major physical changes starting in September, beginning with phase 1. Now aren't we lucky to have all this available 20 minutes from Charlevoix?

Watering the water

By Bob Clock

Since columnist Edith Gilbert beat me to the punch with my favorite Kit Carson story last week, I am going to have to tell my second favorite Kit-Carson story before she beats me again.

I heard this one just a few days ago from Berniece Wexstaff of Bay Shore who called to say that she was back from Florida and still going strong at 88.

Berniece said that once long ago there were one two socialists living in Charlevoix who never hesitated to express their economic philosophy whenever they could pull together an audience. One was a hearty imbiber and dirt poor, but the other somehow managed to acquire a little property.

One day word spread throughout town that the wealthy socialist had sold one of his holdings. When Kit Carson heard of the transaction, he high-tailed it down to the socialist's place of business.

"I want my share," Kit demanded.

"Share of what?" asked the socialist, somewhat befuddled.

Kit asked him if it was true that under socialism all property is held in common. The socialist agreed that that was the general idea.

"Well, I hear you just sold a piece of property," Kit explained. "And I came down here to get my share of the proceeds."

Berniece didn't say how the socialist squirmed out of that one, but I'll wager he wasn't so voluble on his favorite subject thereafter — at least not when Kit Carson was within earshot.

Charlevoix has been home to some wonderfully warm and witty people over the years — and Kit Carson certainly was one of the best.

I RECEIVED an anonymous letter the other day raising some valid points relative to the maintenance of East Park.

The writer objected to what appears to be 24-hour sprinkling of some sections of the park — a situation which puts the park off limits to everyone except ducks.

The correspondent suggested that the lawns be watered at night only, so that the park would be dry and usable during the daytime. The writer also contended that "many sprains or broken bones have occurred from slipping on wet grass" and hinted strongly that the city is setting itself up for a lawsuit if one of the victims ever decides to sue.

The writer also commiserated with boaters who have to contend not only with high water but wet grass before reaching terra firma.

"One boater couldn't figure out why Charlevoix watered the water. While they were here the one sprinkler in the park near 7-Eleven had not been moved in days," my unknown informant claimed.

"Isn't the park intended for people to sit in and enjoy (like years past) or is it just to look at while running by?" While walking during the evenings we have heard more people, tourists and locals, wondering about this water problem," my friend wrote.

I, for one, have always been proud of the way the city maintains East Park.

But perhaps we could do with a little less of a good thing.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by BRUCE E. HAMILTON
Community Church of God

Once there were four neighbors who lived side by side. Their names were: Fred SOMEBODY, Thomas EVERYBODY, Peter ANYBODY, and Joe NOBODY and it was very difficult to understand them as well as the things they did.

The way they lived was a shame, and EVERYBODY knew it. For example SOMEBODY talked about his neighbors, and EVERYBODY was afraid to do anything because SOMEBODY might find out. NOBODY should have told EVERYBODY there was nothing to worry about. But ANYBODY knew that EVERYBODY was talking about SOMEBODY too, so he was just getting what he deserved.

Really, it wasn't a very pleasant neighborhood. I don't think you would have enjoyed living there. There was the time when ANYBODY'S house caught fire. EVERYBODY thought SOMEBODY had called the fire department. SOMEBODY thought EVERYBODY had done it, so it turned out that NOBODY finally called the firemen ... and ANYBODY suffered quite a loss.

All four neighbors belonged to the church. EVERYBODY fished on Sunday. ANYBODY wanted to worship, but wasn't very friendly and was afraid that SOMEBODY wouldn't speak to him. So NOBODY went to church. NOBODY was the only decent one of the four. NOBODY, was faithful. NOBODY sang in the choir. NOBODY took up the offering. In fact, everything that was needed in church NOBODY did it.

A fifth neighbor came to live in the neighborhood. He was an unbeliever. EVERYBODY thought SOMEBODY should try to win him. ANYBODY at least could have made an effort, and in the end, who do you suppose finally won him? That's right ... NOBODY ...

It came to pass that all four died. Where did they end up? EVERYBODY stood before the Judgement Seat and had no defense. ANYBODY could have pled the case, but they thought SOMEBODY could save them. He didn't! Which of the four finally got to heaven? you guessed it ... NOBODY!

Letters to the Editor:

Charlevoix needs more condos, not less

Dear Editor:

I read with great interest candidate Ralph McRae's survey on condominiums in Charlevoix and feel compelled to respond to certain statements, facts and conclusions made or drawn by him and make some comments of my own.

Mr. McRae's survey reveals that there are 388 condos currently built with 115 more under construction or planned, but fails to differentiate between resort condos (LaCroft Dunes, LeHavre, etc.) hotel condos (Weathervane, Foster Boat Works, Edgewater Inn, etc.) or residential condos (Chez Charlevoix, etc.).

The word "condominium" denotes a type of ownership, so that instead of one owner, several persons have a percentage ownership of the property (usually based on square footage owned). It could be construed that complexes such as the Pine River Place and South Side Apartments could be individually (condominiumized) owned by the tenants rather than by the government (and our tax dollars) with all the benefits derived from private ownership. Today, even office complexes are being condominiumized.

The point being that the concept has been used universally for years for many types of properties and most likely be used even more in the future.

I feel that Charlevoix has been, is now and will continue to be a "resort town. "It is my understanding that back in the 1920s and 1930s we had approximately 1,600 hotel or tourist rooms available in Charlevoix. If we want to liken today with yesteryear, we could stand to build an additional 1,000 or so resort-hotel condos. Personally, I prefer the owner-occupied version whereby the owners tend to become active in the community.

I must address Mr. McRae's statement regarding "the walling off of Round Lake" by condos. As I drive down East Dixon Avenue, I am hard pressed to get a glimpse of Round Lake and, likewise, as I travel down Michigan Avenue, I can rarely see Lake Michigan. In my estimation, anything other than government owned, dedicated parks, will "wall off" the lake. But then I don't see much of Lake Michigan as I drive on Park Avenue within our city limits... so who's fooling who?

It is my opinion that the much ballyhooed condo development will be as in the past, dictated by the marketplace just like everything else in our free enterprise, capitalistic society that we fortunately espouse. It will also be limited by the number of suitable sites that remain (density, utilities, parking, etc.) available to develop.

I was impressed by the dollar figures that Mr. McRae's survey revealed, as well as the percentages contributed towards our city school and county taxes. While the condominiums are truly assessed at 50 percent of true cash value, their owners pay into the tax base willingly while demanding very little of the systems. I sometimes wonder if our schools, services, etc. would be as good as they are without us "locals" paying much, much more in property taxes if we were not so fortunate to have this windfall.

I would conclude from Mr. McRae's survey given that we are a "resort" town and we need more of those condominium owners in our town - not a moratorium on them as suggested. While "anti-condo" is a politically popular position, there are still many more who do want to become part of the community and enjoy it on an ongoing basis.

Pay cuts will mean poor quality workers

Dear Editor:

The recent report in the Courier (July 16) from Mr. Moerland's committee relative to the cuts in employee pay schedule seem to indicate an interest in saving the county taxpayers money. Will the quoted starting salary of $3.35 per hour result in high quality workers? More likely it will assure the necessity of hiring poor quality workers, the better qualified will be elsewhere.

The same level of concern for taxpayers does not seem to spread to the intake of tax money, especially in some areas, e.g. the land associations, as reported in Mr. Ralph McRae's report in the same July 16 issue of the Courier.

A further look into figures compiled by Mr. McRae reveal:

1. The 64 LaCroft Condo units (515 feet of water frontage) paying $170,565 in taxes.

2. The 89 Belvedere Club units (over 4500 feet of water front) pay $155,275 in taxes.

And what of the townships of Boyne Valley and Peaine who were involved (in 1984) in appeals to the state tax tribunal regarding their

It just doesn't appear that there is impartial interest in the tax monies of the citizens of our county.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Grubaugh

Hubbard - Grubaugh

A bridal arch bedecked with arrangements of white daisies surrounded by potted mums under a canopy of sycamore trees in Mill Pond Park at Saline was the setting for the recent wedding of Kimberly Hubbard of Belleville and Gregory S. Grubaugh, also of Belleville.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Gary Hubbard of Belleville and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Grubaugh of Charlevoix.

The bridal couple had arrived at Mill Pond Park via horse-drawn carriage.

The bride approached the bridal arch with her father across an arched bridge over a brook with white bows marking the way on Saturday, June 14.

The Rev. J.B. Cagle of the Calvary Baptist Church in Wayne officiated at the double ring ceremony in the presence of families and friends.

For her wedding, the bride chose a gown of French lace over taffeta fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and cathedral length train accented with seedpearls. A veil of bridal illusion fell from a matching French lace hat. She carried cascading bouquet of white silk roses and pastel yellow and green silk flowers and trailing stephanotis.

Tracey Rowlett of Belleville as maid of honor wore a seafoam green gown. Bridesmaids were Jennifer Hubbard of Belleville, sister of the bride, Mrs. David Knapp of Troy and Pamela Grubaugh of Flint, sisters of the bridegroom, who wore gowns of maize identical to the honor attendant's. They carried bouquets of pastel silk flowers to match their gowns.

Kristy Hubbard of Belleville, sister of the bride, and Melissa Knapp of Troy, niece of the bridegroom, as flower girls, wore colonial style gowns and carried wicker baskets of pastel silk flowers.

Corey Knapp of Troy, nephew of the bridegroom, in white tie and tails, was ringbearer.

Edwin Mann of Marquette and Charlevoix assisted the bridegroom as best man. David Knapp of Troy, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Steven Shultz of Lake City and James Yuhas of Lincoln Park were groomsmen. Mr. Knapp and Mr. Schultz also seated the 75 guests.

Following the ceremony, the couple traveled by horse-drawn carriage to the site of the reception, the American Legion post home at Saline. The reception was hosted by the bride's parents and the bridal couple.

The bride is a 1983 graduate of Belleville High School and is employed at Heritage Hospital in Taylor as a data processing operator. The bridegroom, a 1977 graduate of the Charlevoix High School and the Davenport School of Paramedics, is employed by the Taylor Ambulance Company of Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Gregory

Couple celebrates 50th

Clifton and Amelia Gregory will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on Saturday, August 2, with an open house at their home on US-31 South.

The party will be hosted by the Gregory's two daughters, Sandra, who lives at home, and Clarice Thorlund, who lives in Greenville.

Clifton Gregory and Amelia Scott were married on July 25, 1936 at the Charlevoix Congregational Church. Clifton Gregory worked both in Charlevoix and in Traverse City as a plumber.

All friends and relatives are invited to stop by to congratulate the Gregorys.

Boyne plans auction

Dreams could come true for many northern Michigan people who attend the Boyne City Historical Society auction this coming Saturday evening.

To be held beginning at 6 p.m. on the lawn of Stafford's One Water Street restaurant overlooking Lake Charlevoix, the auction features vacations, entertainment, dining, antiques, artwork, a leather cape, and even wills for him and her.

Refreshments will be available at the auction, and admission will be free.

All proceeds from the auction will go toward the building fund for an Historical Society Museum in Boyne City.

AN INFORMATIVE LETTER TO THE VOTERS OF THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX

DEAR FRIENDS AND VOTERS:
I am not a politician...but, I am a trained Manager who has many years of experience with major corporations for which I have managed departments with larger budgets and more personnel than the City of Charlevoix.

I do not intend to try to give INTELLIGENT VOTERS a snow job by extolling all of my past or present organizational affiliations, years of education, virtues, accomplishments, etc., but, I do wish to share this wealth of knowledge.

I will not make promises of all the things I will do when elected Mayor, since it is a known fact that the Mayor seldom has an opportunity to vote. The six member Council approves/disapproves all issues and establishes codes and policies. However, I WILL PROMISE to fulfill the responsibilities of Mayor to the best of my ability, and, to be available to discuss any problem or recommendation pertinent to the WELFARE of CHARLEVOIX."

fect immediately and another for enactment next summer. The second ordinance provided for the licensing of tables, chairs, and newsracks. Both prohibited street merchandise except for sidewalk sale days.

Under the ordinances all tables, chairs and newsracks would have to provide a clear space for pedestrians of at least six feet.

Karl Gilewicz, owner of Karl's Bakery argued that the city did not need any more ordinances. "There is not enough manpower to enforce the laws currently on the books," he said. "Business is already paying for enough license fees."

Among those supporting the removal of all items from Bridge Street was merchant Jim Mabee of the Clothing Company. "I feel that the buildings were built for people to come inside," he said. "I agree the city is becoming very trashy. It is getting junkier and junkier every year."

Mabee said that although he enjoyed the tables, he didn't believe the city could discriminate against one type of use.

MOST OF COUNCIL was satisfied with the status quo, with councilmen F. Earl Muma and Shirley Roloff proposing to take the issue up again in the winter. Mayor Hal Hill said that enforcing the current laws would require wiping the streets clean of all merchandise which he didn't think most people wanted.

He said the merchants were "asking the council to do something you can't even agree on yourselves."

Councilmen Norman Probert and Robert Timms indicated some limits must be placed on the extent of street goods. "I have a feeling that some businesses are moving tables and chairs farther and farther into the street," Probert said. "Some businesses," he added, "do an outstanding job."

Timms urged the adoption of a six foot minimum allowanec for pedestrian traffic.

IN OTHER ACTION council:

–Approved a no wake zone for waters in Charlevoix from the end of the pierheads on the west to 300 feet beyond the old railroad bridge on the east. The no wake zone, enacted as an emergency ordinance because of the high water problems, would include all of the Pine River Channel and Round Lake. The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department had asked for the ordinance to replace the six mile per hour speed limit which it said was difficult to enforce.

–Authorized the placement of a peace pole at Michigan Beach during a ceremony on "Hiroshima Remembrance Day," Sunday, August 3 at 4 p.m.

The pole planted Sunday will bear the inscription "May peace prevail on earth" in Russian, Chinese and English, representing the superpowers, and Japanese, repesenting the Hiroshima victims.

Alumni band gathering a success

You can't go home again, author Thomas Wolfe once wrote. Obviously he had never heard of Charlevoix and its Venetian Festival...nor had he met up with the enthusiastic alumni of the Charlevoix High School band program and its equally enthusiastic former director, Gary Stutzman, aided by Evelyn Wujcik who has ably stepped in this year to save the summer band concerts.

Venetian weekend those alumni proved Wolfe's observation wrong as they gathered from Charlevoix and surrounding areas, up north, down state, and out-of-state to reminisce, rehearse...a little...relax...a lot, and relish the enjoyment of playing music together again.

Dedicating their concert to longtime esteemed band director, Clarence Odmark; led by a favorite successor to "Odie," Gary Stutzman; and the majority sight-reading the music and playing borrowed instruments, 33 alumni and city band members, including Mr. Odmark's daughter, Julie, met on the stage in East Park Saturday night to provide a colossal-sized audience a spirited concert of old favorites.

"Stutz", Evelyn, and the band members wish to thank especially Mr. Gary Waldo, band director of Gaylord High School's band. He allowed the out-of-town alumni, who were unable to travel with instruments, and others who no longer have them, to use the Gaylord High School band instruments. Without his assistance, many would have been unable to participate.

Mildred R. Starnaman

Graveside services for Mrs. Mildred R. Starnaman, 80, of Ellsworth, were held Thursday at Deep Dale Memorial Park in Lansing. Dr. Richard Cole officiated.

Mrs. Starnaman died Monday, July 21 at Meadowbrook Medical Care Facility.

Born at Vanderbilt Sept. 13, 1905, the former Mildred Rutan graduated from Ypsilanti Teachers College, now Eastern Michigan University, and taught for many years in the Detroit School System. On March 4, 1932, she married Clarence Starnaman. They always made their home in the Detroit area. Mr. Starnaman preceded her in death in 1952. In 1970 Mrs. Starnaman went to Florida to live until 1980 when she came to Ellsworth to be near her daughter.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Donald (Elsie) Lemond of Ellsworth; seven grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the Meadowbrook Medical Care Facility at Bellaire.

The Hastings Funeral Home of Ellsworth was in charge of arrangements.

Madeline F. Telgenhof

Miss Telgenhof died Friday, July 25, at the Cottage-Belmont Nursing Center in Harper Woods.

Born in Central Lake on March 31, 1904, Miss Telgenhof was a graduate of what is now Central Michigan University. She taught in the East Detroit School System for 45 years, retiring in 1970. She was a member of the First Reformed Church in Detroit.

Funeral services for Miss Madeline F. Telgenhof, 82, of Harper Woods, were held Monday at the Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth. The Rev. Wayne Lemmen of Traverse City, retired pastor of the Belltower Reformed Church, officiated. Interment was in the Atwood Cemetery.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Florence Chester of St. Clair Shores and Mrs. Robert (Arlene) Smalley of Ellsworth and several nieces and nephews.

Grange hosts state campout

The Barnard Grange hosted the July campout of the Michigan State Grange Campers at the Grange Hall recently. Among those who attended were 35 Grange camping patrons who were joined for part of the festivities by Grange members from Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

Greeting the guests when they arrived on Friday were Kenneth Brecker, Wagon master from downstate, and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Warner of the Barnard Grange.

The highlight of the meeting was the conferring of the sixth degree of the order on 32 members, including some from Charlevoix and Emmet counties in an impressive ceremony Sunday afternoon at the Charlevoix High School cafeteria conducted by Michigan State Grange officers. Arrangements of seasonal flowers furnished by area members formed a setting for the ceremony.

Members of the Barnard Grange - Catherine Stebe, a state officer, and Charles Dhaseleer and William Parsons, as flagbearers - participated in the ceremony.

On Friday evening, 56 members attended a dinner at 218 Bridge Street restaurant. They then returned to the Barnard Grange Hall for a social meeting.

On Saturday, William Stevens and Norman Empey of the Barnard Grange prepared and served a pancake breakfast to the visitors. This was followed by a hayride arranged by the Tom Wielands. Following a potluck supper Saturday evening, the Michigan State Grange Campers held their regular meeting and then gathered at the Grange Hall for a social hour and dancing with music by area musicians.

Ruby Evans, state chaplain, conducted a church service at the Grange hall for members on Sunday morning. More than 100 Grangers including campers and area members attended a picnic at the Barnard Grange at 1 p.m. The ceremony at the high school cafeteria was followed by a gathering at the campsite and preparation for the return trip to their respective home on Monday morning.

The August campout will be held at Three Rivers.

The amusement park offered strongmen a chance to ring the bell and impress a girlfriend ... but no teddy bear.

The Harbor Lites Square Dance Club of Harbor Springs took the top prize among the more than 80 entries in the annual Grand Venetian Street Parade Saturday, Claudia Kenifeck, executive director of the sponsoring Chamber of Commerce, has announced.

Others among the top eight entries were: North Country Kids Children Apparel, second place; antique Imperial Oil truck, third; Charlevoix Area Buffs, fourth; Woodwright Shop Sauna, fifth followed by Bill Price's horse and antique buggy; Charlevoix Kentucky Fried Chicken and the dancing chickens and Charlevoix Children's House, a wagonload of children.

Bill Supernaw announced the floats as they passed the judges. Also in the parade were numerous queens and their courts representing their respective communities, eight bands and, this being an election year, politicians.

Judges were Jon Hartwell of Horton Bay, Dave Knight and Barb Kluczynski.

Only the strong of stomach dared challenge the Scrambler.

The view of Charlevoix was great from this ride, if a bit topsy-turvy.

Budget Rent A Car wins tourney

The 11th annual Venetian fastpitch tournament played here over the weekend, saw Budget Rent A Car of Petoskey successfully defend its title with an 8-1 win over Apex Polishing of Grand Rapids. Budget's record, however, was tarnished when Apex Polishing of Grand Rapids came through the loser's bracket to edge Budget 3-1 and send the Petoskey team into the loss column and force a play-off game.

In the title game, Revo Lato allowed only eight hits as he led Budget to victory. Dave Veltkamp, who took the loss, gave up eight hits.

In the game, Budget jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first inning and added three runs in the third before Apex scored a single run in the fourth. Budget added three more runs in the fourth inning. With the mercy rule in effect, the game ended at five innings.

In the game that sent Budget Rent A Car to the loser's bracket, Apex Polishing took advantage of the 12 hits allowed by Ed Kullik to score three runs. In winning, Rich Rowhorst gave up five hits.

Budget had come through the winner's bracket by shutting out Cheboygan Knights of Columbus 1-0; defeating Johnson Control of Owosso 6-4; Rebman-Borg-Warner of Ann Arbor 6-5 and Little Caesar's 5-1 before losing to Apex Polishing 3-1.

Apex had been shut out by Redman-Borg-Warner 12-0 in their opening game. The Grand Rapids team then came back to defeat Cheboygan K.C. 7-6; Akron Merchants 4-1; Rebman-Borg-Warner 9-0; Johnson Control 3-2 and Little Caesar 4-0 before going against Budget Rent A Car and defeating the Petoskey team 3-1.

In other games, Abie's Bar of Eaton Rapids lost to Akron Merchants 3-2; Little Caesar's of Petoskey defeated Par-T-Pac of Boyne City 3-0; High Kicker Saloon of Pontiac won over Akron Merchants 2-1 and Little Caesar's edged the High Kicker Saloon 2-1 before losing to Budget 5-1.

In other games in the loser's bracket, Abie's Bar defeated Par-T-Pac 3-1; Johnson Control defeated Abie's Bar 6-1 and Johnson Control defeated the High Kicker Saloon 6-4 before losing to Apex Polishing 3-2.

Kwikie shutout maintains league lead

Women's League

Kwikie Printing continued its league lead with a 9-0 shutout over Hoskins in play Tuesday night. In the second game, Jerry's Meats defeated Town House 10-2.

Chris Lehman pitched the shutout allowing four hits and added a grand slam home run as Kwikie chalked up another win. Linda Ballentine gave up 12 hits.

Sally Erber gave up five hits as Jerry's Meats won over Town House. Teri Wilson, who took the loss, allowed 12 hits.

Kwikie Printing secured the Women's League title Thursday night by defeating Jerry's Meats 12-4. The second game saw Wojan's defeat Hoskins 7-1.

Going into Thursday's game, Jerry's Meats had a chance to move into a first place tie with the printers. However, Vicki Flowers came through to pitch Kwikie to a 12-4 win, allowing only 11 hits. Shelly Erber gave up 13 hits.

Meda Kehrer held Hoskins to seven hits as she pitched Wojan's to a 7-1 victory. She allowed seven hits. Linda Ballentine, who took the loss, gave up 14.

The league was scheduled to close out its season Tuesday night.

John MacEldowny (pictured left) shortstop for Apex Polishing, was named the Most Valuable Player in the tournament. He is pictured with (from left) Jim Buchanan of Little Caesar's, outstanding outfielder; Reno Lado, outstanding pitcher and Jeff Babnich outstanding infielder, both of the championship team.

North Country, McLelland post wins

Men's League

North Country Sanitation edged Paul Bunyan Lanes 5-4 and McLelland Home Furnishings defeated Glen's Market 6-2 in mild upsets Monday night.

Dave Farnsworth gave up eight hits as he pitched North Country to victory. Dan Gillespie, who took the loss, allowed 11 hits.

Bill Gauthier, who allowed 11 hits, chalked up his second win of the season. Howard Zoet, as the losing pitcher, gave up 13 hits.

Glen's Market defeated North Country Sanitation 9-6 in a game Wednesday that went nine innings. In other action, Rich's Topside Cafe shut out McLelland 5-0 and Paul Bunyan Lanes won over Pine Hill Nursery 13-7.

The Glen's Market-North Country game was tied 6-6 in the sixth inning, sending it into extra innings. In the eighth inning Akron Dishong hit a double to bring in two runs to break the tie and added one more for the three-run victory.

Howard Zoet, the winning pitcher, allowed 17 hits. Dave Farnsworth gave up 17 hits.

McLelland Home Furnishing got three hits off Phil Skeel but were unable to bring in a run as Skeel posted a shutout.

Major league all-stars lose to North Emmet

The Charlevoix major league all-stars closed out their season last week when they dropped their first game in the tournament at Petoskey to North Emmet by a score of 8-7.

In the meeting, North Emmet jumped to a 4-0 lead in the first inning but the stubborn Charlevoix nine snapped back in the fourth inning to tie the score 5-5. However, home runs by their opponent in the bottom of the fourth and in the fifth innings gave North Emmet a 9-5 advantage.

In the top of the sixth, Charlevoix scored two runs and had the tying run on second when the final out came.

Gary Gerlach took the loss giving up 11 hits. Willie Brewer, as the winning pitcher, allowed only five hits.

TIME FOR A CHANGE
VOTE FOR BUD HEERES
REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER
6TH DISTRICT, CITY OF CHARLEVOIX

WE seek YOUR vote for BUD HEERES FOR COMMISSIONER FOR THE FOLLOWING REASONS AND CONCERNS:

1 BUD will work for FAIRNESS AND IMPARTIALITY to county employees on wage scale.
See July 16, 1986 Courier, page 1 article for schedule recently enacted by the commitment

2 BUD knows MORALE in the staff and employees is very important and needs to be a constant concern to a commissioner. Bud will seek to enhance, rather than upset such a balance.

3 FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY: Regarding 1984 Equalization Assessment appeals to the Tax Tribunal in Lansing by Boyne Valley and Peaine Township

A. Board of Commissioners spent over $30,000 on attorney fees and

B. Board of Commissioners spent an estimated cost of $50,000+ for those fees and the time and expenses of the eleven (11) Commissioners and Equalization Staff attending 4 days of hearing in Lansing to fight the appeal of the two townships.

IS THIS "No nonsense Government"?

4 CONFLICT OF INTEREST: The opposition is first the representative of the Belvedere Club and then secondly, he is a Commissioner.

In 1979 said opponent represented the Belvedere Club in an appeal to the State Tax Tribunal in Lansing to attack the lowering of the Belvedere Club tax assessment. At that time he was a Commissioner. WE FEEL THIS IS CONFLICT OF INTEREST.

A look at values of other properties as compared with Belvedere Club

LaCroft Condo - 2.62 acres - only 517' Lakefront - tax $170.565

Belvedere - 95 + acres - over 3500' Lakefront - tax $155.175

Yachting Notes

by A. NONY MOUSE

A typical late July sailing week - takes more time to drive across town to the boat and return to the club after the race than it does to sail the race. Wednesday races, Friday at the Club (boat loads of thanks to the Prices for hosting), Saturday getting set for the Venetian Highlights and Sunday - just writing the column and waiting for the results of Ladies Day on Lake Charlevoix.

Sort of confused by the Wednesday night results as handed to me... First Fleet shows Mint Julep as winner by 1 second, but I happened to see his nice start with Jib and Main, 15 minutes before Fleet 1! Not to be outdone, the Second Fleet shows Babe in 2nd place, and while Babe started with a couple 525's and a P-30, they weren't Bandit and Merry Hell, staunch (and on time) starters with Fleet 2!

Can't leave the Third Fleet out of the mess - Blasen III was flying a white (infringement acknowledged) flag, yet is scored with second place! CYC charges two positions for that, so even a win would be scored a 3rd. Will try to get all resolved and bring you up to date on both results and standing by next week. My compliments to the Jib and Main Fleet who correctly obeyed the blue (five minute) and red (start) signals after the four-minute (rather than five gap between the white and blue flags. It was a valid start as the 10-minute signal is only advisory - had the gap between the blue and red been other than five minutes, it would not have been a proper start.

Skippers: to avoid creating problems like the above - start with your fleet (as registered). If you decide not to fly a chute, so be it - but that does not entitle you to start or sail with Jib and Main. You are scored DNS when you don't start with your class. Advise Phil (Race Committee) at the finish line if acknowledging an infringement or if you're filing a protest (not necessary if it is acknowledged).

To those interested in sailing classes - sorry, CYC will be unable to conduct those popular sessions this summer, but we'll be back in a big way next year. A non-profit corporation has been formed to help cover all the expenses necessary to provide the new dock, equipment and facilities needed to put on that program and we'll soon be asking for your support through tax deductible donations. Plans include at least three intensive (one week) and one longer term (but only twice a week) summer sessions. These will be in addition to our spring racing clinic and perhaps one pre-season basic sail training course. Your support and input will be appreciated.

CYC Women's Classic: 1st Plastic Fantastic; 2nd Slapshot; 3rd Flying Machine; 4th Flash; 5th Babe; 6th Nelli-Secondus; 7th Deuce Coupe; and 8th Mr. Breeze (Shouldn't that be M. Breeze?)

LTYC Regatta, this weekend; one of the years it doesn't fall on Venetian Weekend - check with Irish Boat Shop or LTYC to see if they have last minute openings, if you're not already registered.

the End of the Mouses' Tale.

Venetian boat parade winners announced

The sailboat, "Corinthian", whose theme was "Christmas in July", won first place in the paid entry division of the Venetian Boat Parade held Saturday night under ideal weather conditions reported Claudia Kenifeck, executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the 56th annual Venetian Festival.

A total of 27 boats were entered in the three categories, paid entry, non-paid entry and classic.

The "Corinthian", owned by Dennis Vanlerberghe and Doug Pratt of Dimondale, was decorated by the Vanlerberghe, Pratt and Rysberg families.

"Emerald Sea", owned by Darryl and Gloria Rad of Cadillac, took second place with their entry titled "Rock Around the Christmas Tree." The boat was decorated by Emerald Tree employees families and friends.

The houseboat, "French Dip", owned by Joe and Chris Etienne, of Charlevoix, featured the "Statue of Liberty Crown at High Tide." Entered by Kentucky Fried Chicken of Charlevoix placed third. It also featured the dancing chickens.

Prizes of $200, $100 and $50 were awarded to the three top boats among the five entered in this category.

"Big Shooter," a power boat owned by Eldon Johnson of Charlevoix and decorated by family and friends, won first place among the non-fee decorated boats; "Uhuru", owned by Joel Stoppel of Haslett and decorated by the Stoppel clan, placed second and Frank Ochs's "Apothecary", also a sailboat, placed third among the three boats in this category.

The winner in the classic division was a boat named "Lynne" owned by Jack Malpeli.

RESOLUTION TO VACATE A PART OF STREET OR ALLEY

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Charlevoix has the power and authority to vacate, discontinue, and abolish streets and alleys or any part thereof pursuant to MCLA 102.3, MSA 5.1808; and

WHEREAS, The City Council of the City of Charlevoix, after due investigation and consideration, has determined that the nature and extent of the public use and of the public interest to be subserved is such as to warrant the vacation of a part of a public street or alley as described below, and

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Charlevoix is heretofore considered the public interest, present and future, in vacating and abandoning the part of the alley or street described below and have deemed that the same shall be a public improvement; and

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED

By the Council of the City of Charlevoix that all that part of an alley or street described in the attached Exhibit "A" incorporated herein by reference and further colored in red and indicated by the words "to be vacated" on the drawing attached hereto and marked Exhibit "A", which drawing for greater certainty is hereby made a part of this Resolution, is no longer required for the public use and the public interest will be subserved by such vacation; and

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED that the City Council shall meet and hear objections, if any, as to said vacation of the part of the alley or street so described on September 2, 1986, and that Notice of such meeting with a copy of said Resolution shall be published for not less than four (4) weeks before the aforesaid time appointed for such meeting; and

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED that objections to said proposed vacation of the part of the alley or street described in Exhibit "A" may be filed with the Charlevoix City Clerk in writing, and if such objection shall be filed, said alley or street, or any part thereof, shall not be vacated or discontinued except by concurring vote of two-thirds (2/3) of the Councilmembers elect.

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED that the City of Charlevoix shall reserve an easement on all such parts of the alley or street described in attached Exhibit A, for public utility purposes within the right of way so described.

RESOLVED this 21st day of July, 1986, A.D.

ORDINANCE 465

An Ordinance to amend the Code of the City of Charlevoix by amending Title IX, Chapter 116, Sections 9.201 et seq. of the Charlevoix City Code.

The City of Charlevoix Ordains

That Title IX, Chapter 116 of the Charlevoix City Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

Chapter 116 BICYCLES AND SKATEBOARDS

9.201 Definitions. For the purposes of this Chapter certain terms or words shall be defined as follows:

(1) The word "bicycle" shall mean and include a device propelled by human power upon which a person may ride, having either two (2) or three (3) wheels in a tandem or tricycle arrangement.

(2) The word "operate" or any form or tense thereof shall mean and refer to the use, putting into action, or causing to function of the bicycle by a person mounted thereon.

(3) The word "sidewalk" shall mean that portion of the street right of way designed for the pedestrian travel.

(4) The word "skateboard" shall mean and include any device propelled by human power consisting of a platform mounted on wheels upon which a person may stand, sit or kneel and which has no mechanism or other device with which to steer or to control the movement or direction of the platform.

9.202 Prohibited Operation. No bicycle or skateboard shall be operated upon any sidewalk in the City of Charlevoix, adjacent to Bridge Street (US 31) between the highway bridge on the North and Hurlbut Street on the South. Bicycles may be walked on the sidewalk in this area and skateboards may be carried in this area.

No bicycle or skateboard shall be secured to a sign post, meter post, street light post or tree by a chain, cable or other such device, nor shall the owner or operator of a bicycle or skateboard leave or permit a bicycle or skateboard to be left unattended on said sidewalk in such manner as shall interfere with the free flow of pedestrian traffic.

9.203 Penalty. Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this Chapter shall be subject to the penalties specified for a violation of the Charlevoix City Code in Title I, Chapter 1, Section 1-12 of said Code.

9.204 Juvenile Arrest Procedure.

(1) In the event that a police officer witnesses a violation hereunder by a minor person, such police officer shall on a first offense confiscate said minor person's bicycle or skateboard, the return of which after a period of twenty four (24) hours shall be conditioned on the minor person being accompanied to the police department by a parent or legally appointed guardian.

(2) Subsequent arrest and prosecution of minors under the age of seventeen (17) years for violation of this Chapter shall be in accordance with Section 14 and the other provisions of Chapter XIIA (MSA Sec. 27.3178 (5.98 1 et seq.) of Act 288 of the Public Acts of 1939, State of Michigan, as amended.

(3) In all other instances, enforcement of a violation hereunder shall be by providing such person with a notice to appear on a standardized form approved by the police department.

9.205 This Ordinance is hereby given effect immediately in pursuant to Charlevoix City Charter Section 5.4 as a result of the numbers and uses of skateboards upon City sidewalks and streets effecting public safety and welfare.

This Ordinance was adopted by the following yea and nay vote:

Heeres, 63, recently retired after 17 years as transportation supervisor for the Charlevoix School system. Previous to that service, he had worked as a mechanic for the Charlevoix Oil Company and for Brown Motors.

Heeres was born in Charlevoix County and has lived and worked in the City of Charlevoix for 40 years. He and his wife, the former Marian Potter, have two grown sons and two grown daughters. He is also a veteran, having served in the Navy during World War II.

This is Heeres' first campaign for public office. His slogan is "This Bud Will Work for You".

Moerland, a 21-year veteran on the County Board, who is now serving his second term as chairman, stresses "fair, reasonable government".

"When people have need for services, those services should be provided at reasonable cost", he says about the costs of government.

"We have none of the five lowest millage rates in the state. We have no control over the State Equalized Valuation. That is governed by the market value of property. It is nothing we create on our own in the county building. It is state law.

"We have no voted millage for county operations. We have been fortunate in some years in not having to levy the whole 4.70 mills that were allocated for county government, but now we've had to go back to that figure. And the taxpayer has the opportunity of voting millage allocations for his school district, the Intermediate School District, his township, and county government.

"I feel fortunate in being on the County Board of Commissioners to offer the guidance and knowledge that I've gained over the years, both from the private sector by reason of my employment and service in city and county government", Moerland says of his bid for re-election.

Moerland is 58 and has lived in the Charlevoix area for 34 years. He has been employed by the Belvedere Club for 27 years and presently serves as warden and assistant secretary for the Club.

Moerland first entered local politics in 1956, when he was elected to the Charlevoix City Council, on which he served for four years.

Presently, in addition to serving on the County Board, Moerland is chairman of the 10-county Northwest Council of Governments, a state-appointed commission that fosters employment and job training; is a founder and member of the three-person Economic Development Corporation, whose objective is to attract businesses and increase steady employment in the area; and is a member of the District Health Department No. 3 Board.

Moerland also serves the Charlevoix Ambulance Service as a volunteer Licensed Emergency Medical Technician.

Candidate Lee Arnold, has lived in the Charlevoix area for 13 years and now makes his home in Ironton. He has been critical of the services offered by some county departments, particularly the bus system, and believes that some departments, especially equalization, are overstaffed. For some time, his major concern has been the Charlevoix Garbage Service Landfill, which is located near Ironton.

This is Arnold's first try for elected office, although he has served on the Eveline Township Zoning Board.

Smith, 39, grew up in the Charlevoix area and was first elected to the County Board in 1982. Before that, he served for six years on the Charlevoix Township Board and for three years on the Charlevoix County Planning Commission.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS
February 1986 Synopsis of Minutes

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners met in regular sessions on February 12 and 26, 1986, with all members in attendance.

In addition to correspondence and other routine items, the Board held a public hearing to review the Sma-Cities grant application submitted by the Antrim Charlevoix Community Growth Alliance and heard an interim report from the County Road Commission.

The Board adopted resolutions amending the County recreation plan, requesting proposals for a new public safety communications system, re-activating the Tax Limitation Advisory Committee, allocating funds for a barrier free feasibility study and retaining a consultant for work on a new County map.

Copies of the complete minutes of the Board are on file in the office of the County Clerk and are available for public inspection during regular business hours.

June 1986 Synopsis of Minutes

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners met in regular sessions on June 11 and 23. Commissioner Breakey was excused on June 11, all other members were present at both sessions.

In addition to correspondence and other routine items, the Board heard the Sheriff's bi-monthly status report, the Building Authority's report on possible purchase of a house by the Northern Michigan Mental Health Agency and awarded two retired patrol cars to the high bidder.

Resolutions adopted included appreciation to members of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, and Michigan State Police, who received National Sheriff's Association medals of valor or merit, authorization for the Equalization Department to increase assessing rates, waiving the residency requirement for the new Youth Oversight Director. The Board also adopted the necessary ordinances allowing the County to assume mechanical and plumbing inspection duties, effective August 1, 1986.

Copies of the complete minutes of the Board are on file in the office of the County Clerk and are available for public inspection during regular business hours.

Passengers escape plane crash

Three men escaped injury Friday afternoon when their twin-engine Piper crashed at the Charlevoix airport as it came in for a landing on the fog-shrouded field.

The plane, piloted by Darrell Edward Finney, 60, of Muncie, Ind., with two passengers aboard, approached the airport as a fogbank rolled in, forcing the pilot to retract the landing gear and make another approach. As he circled the airport, the fog lifted and he came in to land. However, he neglected to lower the landing gear and the plane slid to a stop after being badly damaged, according to City Police Chief Jack R. Mol who investigated the accident.

Finney and his passengers, Bruce William Upton of Gainesville, Fla., and Joel Leigh Altman of East Lansing were uninjured.

The damaged plane was jacked up and the landing gear lowered so it could be towed from the runway, Mol said.

Free physicals offered

Physical examinations for all Charlevoix Public School students in the seventh through twelfth grades who will be participating in athletics or cheerleading during the 1986-87 school year have been scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, August 4 and 5, K. Dale Burge, athletic director, has announced.

On those dates, free physical examinations will be conducted at 7:30 p.m. by Charlevoix area physicians.

At the same time the Dental Association of Charlevoix will be participating in the examinations by having mouthguards fitted for all athletes who need them. There will be a minimal charge of $3 to cover the cost of materials only.

Examinations for girls will be given at 7:30 p.m. Monday, August 4.

Examinations for the boys will be given at the same time, 7:30 p.m., Tuesday August 5.

All exams will take place in the study hall area of the high school building on East Garfield.

All students are encouraged to take advantage of the free physicals. Those who do not must make their own appointments at doctors' offices as physical examinations are required by the Michigan High School Athletic Association before students may participate in any sport.

Coaches will be on hand to assist the students.

Lake Expo planned

Lake Expo 1986 offers a fun and fascinating afternoon exploring the northland's lake environments.

On Saturday, August 2, the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council is sponsoring the second Annual Lake Expo from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the University of Michigan Biological Station at Douglas Lake. The Expo is free, including refreshments, and the public is invited and urged to attend.

Activities include trips in the station's pontoon boat to collect water samples, measure water clarity and see how oxygen and temperature vary at different lake depths. Watershed Council Water Resource Specialist Rob McLennan, Board member Bob Wagner, and water experts from the University of Michigan will host the boat trips and assist with water sampling and testing.

The public may collect microscopic animals and plants to study through a microscope on shore. Volunteers will be on hand to provide information and assistance.

Three entertaining and educational films will be shown, alternating every half hour. Each film will appeal to the entire family.

There will also be demonstrations of the Peeper Beeper, the device used to detect septic system effluent seeping into a lake. Bob Wagner and Diane Rekowski, who have used the Peeper Beeper to assess northern Michigan lakes, will conduct the demonstrations. And visitors will have the chance to examine nutrient-sensitive algae that grows at the source of lake pollutants, along with several other hands-on water quality demonstrations.

Lake Expo attendants will also have the opportunity to net fish and plants for closer examination.

Moerland upset, McRae tops mayoral race

Ralph McRae outpolled the four other mayoral contenders in the Tuesday's primary, taking 39.7 percent of the vote. He will face second place finisher Samuel C. Supernaw in the November general election.

McRae received 306 votes to 176 for Supernaw. Other contenders were F. Earl Muma with 120 votes, Thomas G. Meggison with 102 and Paul O. Burlew with 66.

In a major upset, first-time candidate Bud Heeres defeated I. Lee Moerland, incumbent county commissioner from District 6 (City of Charlevoix) and chairman of the county commission.

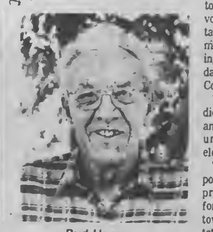
Heeres received 290 votes to 239 for Moerland. Moerland, a 21-year veteran on the County Board of Commissioners, is now serving his second term as chairman.

"A lot of people felt it was time for a change," Heeres said after the election. "I'm quite elated, the shock of it hasn't hit me yet."

He added that "any public office should have new blood every now and then to keep it on its toes."

IN DISTRICT 5, incumbent County Commissioner Donald R. Smith easily defeated challenger Lee R. Arnold in the Republican primary. District 5 is composed of western Eveline, Marion, Norwood, Charlevoix, St. James and Peaine townships.

Ralph McRae



Bud Heeres

With all but the two Beaver Island precincts (St. James and Peaine townships) reporting, Smith had 231 votes to 93 for Arnold. One of the portable vote counters on Beaver Island malfunctioned and ballots were being flown to the mainland Wednesday morning for tabulation at the County Building.

There were no Democratic candidates on the ballot in Districts 5 and 6, so Smith and Heeres will run unopposed in the November election.

The fixed millage renewal proposal passed easily, 1269 to 871. The proposal limits taxes from 1987-90 for Charlevoix County and the townships and school districts. The total tax is limited to 15 mills.

Voters also approved the renewal of the county transit system with a funding of one-quarter of a mill for three years (1986-88). Funding for the transit system expired in 1985.

MCRAE CREDITED his win to local support and good organization. He said he was surprised the other candidates did as well as they did without running much of a campaign.

McRae, a former councilman and former president of the Housing Commission, said his general background in city affairs also helped. He ran a campaign which called for a moratorium on condominium construction on the Charlevoix waterfront. He also questioned the assessments for Charlevoix's land associations.

Allen Muma given Medal of Valor

by FRAN MARTIN

Sheriff's Marine Officer Allen Muma and Island Airways pilot Mark Welke received commendations last week from Sheriff George T. Lasater for the rescue of four Beaver Island residents from the waters of Lake Michigan on July 2.

Muma, 24, received a medal of valor, a campaign ribbon and a letter of commendation for his efforts. It was the first medal of valor ever awarded by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and Sheriff Lasater said Muma has been nominated for a similar award from the National Sheriffs' Association.

Muma took the department's 18-foot Boston Whaler into a stormy Lake Michigan to rescue the four victims after their tug had sunk.

"In a letter of commendation to Muma, Lasater stated, "Without your quick action and expertise in handling a small patrol boat in six to 10 foot waves, I'm sure we would not have been able to save the entire crew of the fishing boat the 'Hazel W.'"

Welke, a pilot for Island Airways, first sited the men after their boat had sunk and radioed for assistance. Sheriff Lasater presented him with a letter and certificate of appreciation which said, "Your quick action and willingness to get involved was instrumental in the rescue." He noted that Muma's report stated that "without your assistance in circling the men, he would have had a difficult time locating them due to the six to 10 foot waves."

The four island residents were en route to Beaver Island from Charlevoix when the seas became rough and they attempted to return to port. Waves up to 10 or 12 feet, swamped the boat which was loaded with lumber.

It sank before the crew could give its location after broadcasting the words "Mayday! Mayday!" on the boat's radio.

The men were in the stormy water for more than an hour before being taken aboard the patrol boat by Muma and returned to the U.S. Coast Gurad station at Charlevoix where they were given hot coffee and blankets but refused further treatment.

The men were Michael Martin, 32; his stepson, Robert McPhearson, 14; his brother, James Martin, about 40; and Clifford Napont, 50, all of St. James.

The fish tug, which was owned by Earnie Martin, another brother, was loaded with lumber Michael Martin purchased in Charlevoix to build a house on the island.

Auctioneers found willing buyers in East Park Saturday during the Petunia Auction.

by DOUG TRUAX

"I'd do it again if there were people out there," Allen Muma said, reflecting on the events which earned him the first medal of valor ever given by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department. "But I might look for a little bigger boat."

Muma piloted the Sheriff's Department 18-foot Boston Whaler into heavy seas on the evening of July 2, not knowing exactly what to expect. He recalled that he was at the Sheriff's Department when the call came in from Island Airways that a boat was down and there were men in the water.

Muma sped to the U.S. Coast Guard Station on the Pine River Channel and discovered that the Coast Guard's 44-foot rescue boat was north of Harbor Springs on another mission.

He got a quick compass reading, hopped in his patrol boat and headed

Petunia auction raises over $13,000

The annual petunia auction, which this year set its sights at doubling last year's income, brought in over $13,000 on Saturday. Coupled with some $10,000 expected from the raffle of a 1986 Mustang, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc officials said the purchase of a new watering truck for the petunias is virtually assured.

Over half of the 200 raffle tickets have been sold at $100 each.

The biggest item in the auction — two round trip tickets to London and week's lodging — was sold to Paul and Katie Burlew for $2,700. A companion offering — three days at the Scottish country home of Sir Peter and Lady Bairsto near St. Andrew's golf course (not including air fare) — was bought by Alyce Lesser for $700.

Perhaps the most unusual item, and the one which drew the greatest crowd interest, was a vasectomy offered by Dr. F. James Steward. Also included in the package was a champagne color cruise for two aboard Dr. Stewart's sailboat, presumably to celebrate the event. Carl Miller, father of eight and auctioneer for the event, was the happy high bidder.

Other items included in the auction were a Kawasaki 1,000 cc motorcycle which went for $1,300; a 15-foot Cape Cod sloop with Johnson motor that brought $1,400; and a 15-foot Slickcraft power boat with mercury 120 h.p. engine for $2,175.

Auction bidders also purchased a variety of boating trips, lodging packages, antiques and artworks.

Proceeds from the auction go to pay for the four miles of petunias which Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc. and the citizens of Charlevoix plant each year.

The additional funds were needed to pay for a replacement of the custom-designed truck which Dale and Marilyn Boss use to water the petunias each day of the summer. The 24-year old vehicle has developed a variety of mechanical problems.

Tickets for the Mustang raffle are going fast, sponsors say. Anyone wanting to reserve tickets should contact Darrell Linder or Bruce MacArthur at 547-4708 or 547-6960, respectively. Tickets are also available from the Chamber of Commerce or from board members of KCB.

Group proposes west side U.S. 31 extension

by PEG OHLE

In the early 1970's, the Charlevoix County Planning Department was busily engaged in promoting a four-lane freeway through northwest Michigan. At that time, the State Highway Department was asking for public input in its paperwork laying out the route of the needed highway.

Now, US-131 will soon be a four-lane highway as far north as Cadillac, and is scheduled to continue to Manton by 1992, and to Kalkaska "10 to 12 years later". Where it goes from there is presently being considered by an organization called the "US-131 Area Development Corporation".

Richard Goldfogle, chairman of this group, talked to the Charlevoix Rotary Club last week, exalting members to join with others in pushing for a continuance of the highway north of Kalkaska.

"There is no road on the western part of the State that goes all the way north", Goldfogle told his listeners. "There is no straight shot from Chicago and other places south for tourists to come to northwest Michigan. There is no simple way for us to get our processed food products and other necessities and no simple way for us to ship our agricultural products to market. Our forestry industry is growing. We have to ship Christmas trees, maple syrup, and timber products by truck now that there are no railroads. We need a four-lane highway for our economic development.

"Where the freeway goes from Kalkaska is up to the governments and people of Antrim, Charlevoix, and Emmet Counties. If they don't do anything, the road will probably go east from Kalkaska via M-72 to join I-75, then north".

Adding that "the squeaky wheel gets the grease", Goldfogle suggested that local residents attend hearings to let their ideas for highway extension be known.

A quick look at the map would indicate that rebuilding Highway US-131 north of Kalkaska in a line almost parallel to the present highway would probably best serve the three counties and several cities, passing near Mancelona, the outskirts of Boyne Falls, East Jordan, Boyne City, Petoskey, and Pellston, connecting with I-75 outside Mackinaw City. It could bypass the congested areas of Petoskey and communities north of there, but provide easy on and off access.

The US-131 Area Development Corporation will keep the local chambers of commerce and other interested organizations informed of meetings and the progress being made in extending the freeway northward.

Of special concern at this time is the fact that federal legislation considered vital to State Highway funding will expire September 30, and Congress has not yet taken action. Senators Levin and Reigle should be advised of their northwest Michigan constitutents' interest in the matter, and Congressman Davis should be reminded to do his part.

With the population of Antrim, Charlevoix, and Emmet Counties expected to increase by 21,000 (about the present population of Charlevoix County) in the next 10 years, the need for a freeway becomes even greater, the group argues.

Charlevoix Yesterday

In the days before the streets of Charlevoix were paved, this horse-drawn water wagon was used to settle the dust stirred up by wheels and hooves. After the streets were paved, the wagon continued to be used to provide water for washing down the new surface. Art Krulik, who loaned the picture to the Courier, thinks the man in the picture might be Leo Allaad.

Rescue attempt recalled out for the big lake. "I made a high speed run through Round Lake," he said. "When I saw the waves over the pierheads, it looked real bad." Muma said he was able to see the Island Airways plane circling the scene after eight or 10 minutes. Soon afterwards he came on an oil drum and boat debris.

"I saw a bunch of lumber and saw heads bobbing," Muma recalled. His greatest worry was getting the boat into the lumber without shearing a prop or swamping it in the high seas. "The waves were shooting the lumber like little missles," he said.

Muma doesn't recall how, but he was able to hoist the men over the three-foot boat railing and into the boat. He took off his jacket, shirt and life jacket and gave them to the men to keep them warm. Hypothermia, loss of body heat, was his greatest worry at that time, Muma said.

Two of the men were shivering heavily, but Muma said "the little guy was doing real good."

With a small boat rated for five people, his next problem was getting it back to shore in one piece.

"The worst part of the trip was taking them back in," he said. Darkness had fallen but the Coast Guard's 22-foot boat had found Muma and was escorting him back to port. The men all huddled around the center console as Muma raced for shore. "All I was worried about was getting through those two concrete piers," Muma said.

"A few times I was worried about bringing the Sheriff back a boat that was busted."

Ironton Congregational Church celebrates centennial

Town was once bustling industrial center

by PEG OHLE

When members and friends of the Ironton Congregational Church gather for worship services at 10 a.m. Sunday morning, August 10, it will be to celebrate the church's 100th anniversary.

Recalling the days when Ironton was a bustling industrial and lumbering community and the Ironton Congregational Church was a hub of local activities, many churchgoers will dress in gowns and suits of by-gone times and share their memories of the past.

Church records show that the church was organized on September 12, 1886 in the offices of the Ironton Hotel, with nine men and women listed as charter members: Mrs. S. C. Adams, Miss Eliza Cherrie, Mr. R. M. Cherrie, Mr. Augustus Munson, Mrs. Augustus Munson, Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell. The church was organized as a mission church under the direction of the Charlevoix Congregational Church, of which the Reverend C. F. Van Auken was then minister.

The names of the Cherries and Mrs. Adams on the church roster are of special significance because their families were owners and operators of the Ironton Iron Furnace, the largest employer of men in the area.

The late Hilda Alexander of Ironton, a long time church member, writes in her short history of Ironton, "They (the Iron Furnace), employed about fifty men, not counting the laborers in the woods or on the barges and docks. Some were white and some were Indians. The furnace made pig iron from iron ore that was brought in by boat from Escanaba, and perhaps other places.

"They lumbered off all the hardwood south of the furnace past Holy Island. Small cars on tracks were loaded with four foot slab wood taken to the dock along the water's edge, and then loaded on barges that took it to the company dock. From there it was piled on flat cars and taken to the woodyard, south of the present location of our church, and left to dry for nearly a year before it was taken to the kilns to be burned into charcoal that would produce the intense heat needed to melt the raw iron ore to make pig iron".

It was into this atmosphere of rough-and-tumble furnace men, dockwallopers, and lumber jacks that the Ironton Congregational Church was born. But the needs of these men and their families were many and the town of Ironton expanded to meet these needs. Mrs. Alexander describes the layout of the town in the early 1880's:

"The town consisted of several streets on the hill and by the lake, with wooden sidewalks. They had a church, a company store that sold dry goods, clothing, and groceries, and also a Company Post Office". (The church to which Mrs. Alexander refers was a Methodist Church, which was formed earlier than the Congregational Church. It has not operated for many years).

However, all this industry was relatively short-lived. As Mrs. Alexander reports, "Everything was working line until the presidential year of 1893, which resulted in a panic from labor troubles and strikes that began to get nationwide attention in the business world, and also with the laborers. In fact, that political campaign went down in our country's history as America's dirtiest election.

Mr. Cherrie was a staunch Republican and said that if the Democrats won the election, he would shut the furnace down and get out of business. And that is what happened. Grover Cleveland won over his opponent James Blaine of Maine. Mr. Cherrie kept his word, and when the election returns came though, he closed the furnace, took what he wanted, blew the rest all up with dynamite, and returned to Chicago".

Letters to the Editor:

Drivers say footrace crowd mobbed vehicle

Dear Editor:

It is with much thought and consideration we have taken before we write this letter to the Charlevoix Courier.

On Saturday, July 26, a footrace was being run on Division Street in the city of Charlevoix. People were standing in the street watching the races. These adults were not permitting local traffic to pass. Upon checking with the sheriff's dept. and the city police we were informed this street was not closed to traffic.

We made one pass going to an appointment and made another pass down the street one hour later when people started to yell and throw bananas and oranges at our car.

Approximately 10 minutes later I returned to Division Street on my way to work in Petoskey, only to be mobbed by these so-called athletes or sport-minded people. These people jumped on my truck and lay in the road blocking my way. My husband was going to town and saw what was happening to he tried to come to the rescue only to be mobbed himself.

Adults jumped on the trunk lid of the car and broke a $100 power antenna. While another individual and committee person spit on my arm and threw a shoe at our car, some even kicked the car.

We won't go into names because you know who you are. My husband and myself actually thought we were back in the sixties and the riots of Detroit.

I ask these people that were a part of this type of action: "Do you call yourself sport people of today.". I really wondered what you people do to other people when you lose a race.

How many times do we all comment on John McEnroes actions on the tennis courts. Well, in Charlevoix we also have one in our town who spits and throws shoes at cars and he says he's on the committee.

In closing we would like to thank you for the space to air our feelings, but we would also like to say we sure have changed our feelings towards these runners and some elected city and township people that were a part of Saturday's actions.

Rudeness by drivers 'sorry blot' on footrace

Dear Editor:

Those of us who have chosen to write and sign this letter had decided to do so even before Mr. and Mrs. Ron Stoneham registered their complaint with the Petoskey News-Review and the Charlevoix Courier. However, since they have chosen to use the newspaper as a public forum, we would like to respond in like fashion and set the record straight.

As the Venetian Festival grows larger each year, so, too, do many of the events connected with it, such as the street parade, the fast-pitch tournament, the boat parade, and the footraces. The latter, in fact, have become so popular that entries this year came from many states, many other Michigan communities, and included a world class runner in the person of Pat Porter. The 5-kilometer and 10-kilometer have been immensely successful due to the efforts of Pete Spieles and the many adults and youth who have contributed to the running program of Charlevoix High School.

Seeing that the footraces were growing each year, the number of entries steadily increasing, the race has been re-located from its former downtown site, where runners had to run on streets within the city, to the elementary school-North Point area. This move was made to facilitate the race and to keep the runners from impeding pedestrian and auto traffic in the "valley" area.

This year an unpleasant, and totally unnecessary, incident occurred. A car with a man and woman as occupants (it turned out later they were Ron and Marla Stoneham) came down Division Street, traveling west, amidst the foot runners. No one in authority stopped them... as perhaps should have happened... so that was not the Stonehams' fault. However the race is marked for the runners... and for anyone else to see.

Admittedly, both runners and onlookers shouted at the Stonehams that a race was in progress... shouted not in anger, but simply to inform them although that fact should have been obvious. The runners parted and ran around on either side of the car, and the car moved on. The incident could have, and should have, ended here.

Shortly after this a truck approached the nearly five-deep crowd standing at the finish line near the elementary school. The truck disrupted the spectators, actually pushing through them and posing a danger, and the driver loudly and repeatedly honked the horn until the crowd gave way. Imagine our surprise to find Mrs. Marla Stoneham driving the truck and her husband behind her in a second vehicle! Loud shouts from the crowd did not deter her determined efforts to proceed through, which she eventually did, her husband following in the car. Mrs. Stoneham hollered that she had to "get to work."

Knowing this and knowing that the Stonehams reside on Carson Avenue, one might wonder why - having just passed through the street, having been informed that a race was in progress, and knowing that the street had much pedestrian-spectator traffic - we repeat, one might wonder why Mrs. Stoneham did not elect to avoid the race area by going down Meech Street to U.S. 31 where she could have traveled either north or south to her place of work and, incidentally, in much less time. If time were a factor, one might select an alternative route to one which was heavily used at the time.

One might almost think the return trip with two vehicles, was a deliberate effort on the part of the Stonehams to disrupt the race. The Stoneham's maintain the street was not closed to traffic; even so, most people would avoid a congested street in the interest of time.

To our knowledge, one young man threw his shirt; one, an orange peel; and one, a thong; yes, a shoe, if you will, but hardly a brogan. The young man who threw the thong identified himself to Mr. Stoneham and pointed out to him a deputy standing nearby in the event Mr. Stoneham wished to pursue the matter. We do not know of anyone throwing "bananas and oranges" as the Stonehams cite in their letter.

With so many of our youth today into drugs and alcohol, we, in Charlevoix, having publically admitted to a problem in this area, it seems refreshing to find young people willing to work and train long hours to attain a goal, to exercise, to expend effort on healthy, worthwhile endeavors. Running surely requires hard work and dedication. What a sorry blot on our Venetian footraces that the runners faced, not applause at the finish line, not acclamation, but extreme rudeness on the part of persons who should know better.

We are thankful no one was injured, but the incident clearly ruined the atmosphere and, for many, the image of Charlevoix hospitality.

Thank you for letting us tell our side of the story.

Knudtson deserves thanks

Dear Editor:

In our fair town there is a man who has to rank No. 1 on the long list of people that make Charlevoix - the Beautiful. His name is Jerry Knudtson. Tirelessly year after year he has succeeded in making our rolling East Park a vision of grandure.

I've seen a small bit of the world and spoken with those who have seen much more. We all agree Charlevoix is tops for beauty. But, without the faithful efforts of a man like Jerry, with his young helpers over the years, I'm not sure our claim to such beauty would stand.

I understand Mr. Knudtson will be retiring in the near future. I'm sure I'm not alone in the hopes that he was a wonderful, well-deserved rest. It won't be an easy task to find a replacement who will give our grand town the same loving care.

Stranded motorist says Chamber fails to help

Dear Editor

On Monday, July 28, at 11:45 a.m. my car broke down on Bridge Street hill. I coasted down to the "No Parking From Here to Corner" sign by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce building.

It was raining and the traffic very heavy, when I picked up my 14-month old baby and went to the Chamber building.

I thought they would let me use the phone to make a local call to my husband for help, as I didn't want to leave my car for fear it would be towed away.

When I asked to used the phone and explained my circumstances and that I was parked illegally, they acted very unconcerned and told me to go down the street and use the phone at Wharf Side Market - with my baby in the rain!

I have lived in this town all my life and I just thought I'd write to tell the tax paying citizens of Charlevoix and others just how friendly and helpful our Chamber of Commerce employees are to the people who live here year around.

Mrs. Lisa Kleiber
Charlevoix

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce sent Mrs. Keliber the following Response:

Dear Mrs. Kleiber:

Thank you for taking the time to write to the Chamber of Commerce regarding your misfortune July 28, 1986.

We instruct our office employees to be kind and courteous to everyone that enters our doors. The staff has also been instructed not to let anyone utilize our phone system. You can imagine what our phone bill would be if everyone needing a telephone was allowed to use ours.

Unfortunatley, there was a definite miscommunication between our staff and you and your situation. Please accept our apology; we try very hard to accommodate the needs of everyone we encounter. Our business revolves around satisfying the needs of all-kinds of people, tourists and locals alike.

Pompous attitude in letter deserves response

Dear Editor:

This letter is in response to the tourist from Ontario, Canada who was outraged because she received a parking ticket while shopping in Charlevoix. I could hardly believe anyone could have the audacity to complain about such a trivial matter and felt that her pompous attitude deserved some response.

The writer seemed to imply that because she had spent $200 in Charlevoix one afternoon she should somehow be exempt from obeying the parking rules. If she would like to use a formula of money put into the city to determine who should be subject to parking tickets then indeed every local resident would be exempt as well.

As tourists as well as all residents are aware, traffic and parking may become major headaches for all concerned during the summer months in Charlevoix. Therefore, some form of regulation, often in the form of parking tickets, is needed. I see no form of "trickery" present in this system as the writer referred to in her letter. The parking rules are clearly posted for all to read. Also, the issuance of parking tickets is hardly restricted to the Charlevoix area.

May I suggest that the writer not take her nominal parking fine so seriously. Instead, she should be glad she is able to vacation in Charlevoix. Had she been shopping in Detroit, she probably could not have found a parking space, could not have been sure that her car would be there when she returned and if she overstayed her time at the meter would have to pay a hefty $25 fine.

May I conclude by saying that my husband and I look forward to the time we spend in Charlevoix during the year. We will continue to shop and park downtown, even if it means risking having to "plead quilty" to a parking violation!

Clockwise

Carnival atmasphere

By Bob Clock

I am relieved the city council has come down in favor of the "European look" insofar as the use of Charlevoix's downtown sidewalks is concerned.

Some merchants and townspeople feel the sidewalks should be for walking - period. And for many years that was their main use.

Then little by little, merchandise displays began appearing outside places of business. Next came the little cafe tables for lunchers and diners. This summer the whole downtown business district seems to have moved outdoors, giving Charlevoix a carnival atmosphere even when there's no carnival in town.

And our visitors seem to love it.

I have never seen Charlevoix so crowded so late at night.

I walked downtown Sunday shortly before 11 p.m. to mail a letter and there were still literally hundreds of people on the street. Some shops were trying to close -- if the shoppers would let them.

Last week, one merchant was standing in front of his wide-open shop at 10:30 p.m.

"How come you aren't home in bed?" I asked.

"I'm not going home until they go home," he answered, motioning toward the crowds on the sidewalk. "I did $30 dollars worth of business in the last 20 minutes. I can sleep in February."

Of course, Charlevoix's new ambiance carries with it a new responsibility on the part of the merchants who use the sidewalks:

Outdoor sales areas must be kept clean and free of litter, or the charm will soon be gone. Fortunately, most merchants are doing a good job in this respect.

In Japan, where outdoor merchandising is a way of life, many shop owners hose down and scrub their sidewalks first thing in the morning, making them clean and cool for the day's traffic.

I predict that the number of downtown visitors will continue to increase as word of the city's new "open door" policy spreads. Charlevoix certainly is gaining a reputation as a fun place to visit long after neighboring communities have bedded down for the night.

ANOTHER COUNTY heard from on the care and feeding of East Park:

Last week we passed along an anonymous complaint that the city is doing such a good job of watering East Park that the lawn is often slippery and seldom usable.

However, groundskeeper Jerry Knudtson called to say that the Bridge Street oasis has become more of "commercial fairgrounds" than a city park, what with all of the scheduled activities, including the Hobbycraft Show, the Venetian Festival and the Waterfront Art Fair, which is on tap for this coming weekend.

He says it is difficult to keep the lawn alive and well with all the booths and foot traffic, particularly the vast unshaded areas that take the brunt of a blistering summer sun.

Knudtson says it is only by frequent and copious waterings that he is able to keep the lawn lush and green throughout the summer.

And Knudtson, a long-time city employee, certainly knows whereof he speaks.

If watering will keep East Park the jewel of downtown Charlevoix, so be it. Sprinklers are a small inconvenience compared to the alternative.

Schedules explained

Dear Editor:

The Pere Marquette Railroad timetable printed in a recent issue of the Charlevoix Courier was most interesting. There was no date given but I would guess it was about 1910, give or take five years.

It was a summer only schedule and a little difficult to read with the southbound schedule at the top and the northbound schedule on the bottom of what looked like just one schedule. Ten trains a day each way from Charlevoix to Petoskey certainly gave people lots of choices. Two station stops for Charlevoix also made it very convenient whether you lived on the southside or the northside of town.

Seven of the ten trains were called "The Dummy." It consisted of a small steam engine and two coaches. It would make one round-trip from Bay View to Bellaire each morning and then spend the rest of the day going back and forth between Bay View and the Belvedere.

On the southbound run after all the passengers were off at the Belvedere, the train would continue south to about where the M-66 crossing used to be. There was a wye on the east side of the main line and at that point the the "Dummy" would be turned there to begin its northbound run. The schedule gives them 19 minutes from the Belvedere to do this.

The 9:40 a.m. and 3:25 p.m. southbound and the 3:40 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. northbound trains at Charlevoix were through passenger trains to and from Grand Rapids. They also carried mail and express. The 9:15 p.m. southbound and the 6:55 a.m. northbound trains at Charlevoix were the Resort Special. It ran overnight to and from Detroit and Chicago and had Pullman sleeping cars.

The Resort Special operated until 1967 although it was weekends only the last few years. The "Dummy" was discontinued in 1921 or 1922. All passenger train service to Charlevoix ended in 1962.

Six stars for 218 Bridge

Dear Editor:

Charlevoix, you're lucky! Lucky to have a really top-notch restaurant - the new "Bridge." We call it that because we can't remember "256" of "221" or "218" or whatever that street number is.

Anyhow, the new "Bridge" is really new in many ways. We tried it Tuesday noon last week and enjoyed a delicious fruit salad in a serrated melon shell served with tasty hot rolls.

"This is worth another try," we said.

Since then, we've experienced, and are able to recommend, for dinner, Veal Oscar, Chicken and Shrimp Dijou and Fresh Whitefish with Sauce of the Day. All really superior from the standpoint of taste and the exceptional presentation.

Add to this the attractiveness of the surroundings, white tablecloths and napkins, cleanliness, the "best view in town" and a first-rate staff that is more than eager to please, and you see why we say, "Charlevoix, you're lucky."

Lucky, too, that you can brag about another local chef who could easily make in it the big time.

After 27 years of visiting Charlevoix, this place is the best.

On a comparative basis, we have to rate it a full "six stars."

Bill and Dottie Yeck
Dayton, Ohio

P.S. We checked the name. Yes, we're talking about the 218 Bridge Street Restaurant.

The Deuce's visit

by Edith Gilbert

WE ASKED OUR readers to let us know the faraway places they have noticed people wearing Charlevoix T-shirts. Michael Sullivan is the first person to respond. He recalls seeing a young lady in Cambridge, Mass., at the head of the Charles Rowing Regatta, wearing a Charlevoix sweatshirt. He struck up a conversation and learned the pretty miss has a sister living in Petoskey. He also noticed someone wearing a Charlevoix sweatshirt in Faneuil Hall, Boston. So far we've scored in Cambridge, Boston, Los Angeles and London. Any more?

SPEAKING OF T-SHIRTS, why was Chris Begrow wearing a Fujimo T-shirt while working in his air conditioned office in Philadelphia last Monday? To wish the owner of the Fujimo, Jerry Schostak, of Southfield, good luck, of course, and it worked.

The 50-foot ocean racer, Fujimo, as most of you read, won the Class A Port Huron to Mackinac Race. Chris had been captain of the boat for three years, which helped pay for his college education. In those days, he used to report by phone to Jerry every morning at 7:15.

So at 7:15 a.m. the day of the race last week, Chris called his former boss and told him he was wearing the Fujimo T-shirt and hat to support the go-get-em spirit of the present crew. It's this kind of esprit de corps that can make the difference between winning and loosing an event, right?

A FOOTNOTE to Henry Ford's Biographers - with all the recent interest in Henry Ford, thanks to Robert Lacey's popular new book on the industrialist, I'm reminded that in 1970 he and Christina were unexpected visitors at the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair.

The Fords were guests of my friend, Nate Cummings, president of what is now called Sara Lee Corp. Cummings, always a strong supporter of the arts, had loaned an original Henri Matisse to the fair from his private collection. Arriving at the park by boat, it was pure chance that Nate Cummings' cabin cruiser docked directly in front of a young artist who worked as a designer in the Ford plant in Dearborn. You should have seen Ken Dowd's face when I introduced him to his boss Henry Ford II! "Don't expect this kind of reception every year," I warned the talented young man.

The Fords toured the Art Fair for over an hour and talked very pleasantly to a number of artists and delighted volunteers. I must confess that Christina's peek-a-boo shirt caused almost as much of a stir as did the Matisse!

EAST JORDAN CERTAINLY can be proud of the little jewel of a park they have on Lake Charlevoix called Elm Pointe. It's the scene for the annual Portside Arts Fair, which gets better every year.

This year, however, was extra special. A new exhibition gallery has just been opened and dedicated to Cygrid Riley "in recognition and gratitude for her vision, dedication and tireless energy." What is really meant by this accolade is that Cyg fought like a tigress to keep the city from selling the waterfront estate, with a trout stream, in order to put in a new sewer system in East Jordan.

It's fun to walk around the gallery and see paintings hanging on the walls by familiar local artists. People who've won purchase prizes, like Dan Tollas and Elaine Retherford. This year Glen McCune won the purchase prize for a very large and beautiful winterscene of ducks gently being dusted by a light snowfall.

But most thrilling for me was to see the sculpture by my former art-teacher, Walter Midener. Titled "Three Moods," he has carved three tall, slender women from one beautiful piece of walnut. Each figure revolves, so that they can face each other or turn their backs on each other. The flowing forms are 48-inches tall and only 8-inches wide. It's a remarkable achievement of unity and division of space.

Finally, if you've never been to Elm Pointe, do yourself a favor; take a picnic supper, a bathing suit, a fishing pole if you like, a palette and paint brush, a frisbee or a guitar. If you are thinking of proposing marriage to a girl, take her to Elm Pointe. If you are thinking of giving a wedding, think of Elm Pointe. If you're in a nostalgic mood, browse in the museum among local memorabilia. It is located between Ironton and East Jordan on M-66. The hours are from 1-4 p.m. every day, seven days a week all summer until Labor Day. After that is its only open on weekends.

The 28th Annual Waterfront Art Fair is Saturday, August 9, from 10 a.m. until dusk. Many renown artists from throughout the country will be returning once again to the waterfront in East Park for this annual event. The Art Fair Committee will be selling this year's commemorative T-shirt on Saturday only. Be sure to get yours because supplies are limited.

Also on Saturday August 9, the First Congregational Church on the corner of State Street and Park Avenue, is sponsoring a Mini-Bazaar from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

For all the young adults in the area ages 13-20, a great way to end the summer is by attending the Make a Miracle Happen super teen dance and cruise aboard the Star of Charlevoix, Wednesday August 13 from 11 p.m.-1 a.m. Tickets are $10 per person, with all proceeds going to "Jerry's Kids" and the Muscular Dystrophy campaign. Music will be provided by WKHQ and door prizes will be given away.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by BRUCE E. HAMILTON
Community Church of God

You won't find the name of B.R. Lakin inscribed among the theologians and scholars of our day. But when it came to having a burden for souls and enthusiasm for his heavenly Father's word, there are few like that country preacher from West Virginia.

Brother Lakin once said, "If you want to know what God looks like, what His power is, look at the flowers - you see His wisdom. Look at the stars - you see His glory. Look at the ocean - you see His power. But look at Calvary and you see His heart. If you want to know Him, come to Calvary. When you see Jesus dying on that cross you see the heart of God."

You told me, Charlevoix, that my first summer here would be priceless and you were right. Look at the petunia lined streets, smell the roses, be dazzled with the brilliant marigolds. How wise is our God to bless us with such wonders. Look at the lakes that surround us. Their power relaxes us, assures us, amazes us.

With all that we have been blessed with, one thing remains unchanged. At the heart of all that wisdom, at the center of all that power, is God's all consuming love for us wrapped up in Jesus Christ. We are rich in so many ways but without the love of God that is ours in Jesus, it is all meaningless.

The summer is moving right along. Before you know it, the wind off the lake will remind us of winter's coming chill. For real life refreshment from the heat or warmth against the cold, nothing compares with seeing the heart of God reveal in Jesus and making Jesus your own.

Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Supernaw

Supernaws celebrate 50th

Mr. and Mrs. Rex F. Supernaw will observe their golden wedding anniversary at an open house to which relatives and friends are invited at the American Legion post home on Sunday, August 17.

The couple and their sons-in-law and daughters who are hosting the event, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnson of Rochester and Mr. and Mrs. James Meyer of Utica, will greet guests from 2 until 5 p.m.

Mr. Supernaw and former Irene Martin were married at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix August 25, 1936. Their attendants were his brother and sister, Charles Supernaw, now of Rochester, and Mrs. Ralph (Renabelle) Shapton of Charlevoix who will attend the event.

The couple had made their home in Rochester and, during the years of World War II, in Franklin, Mass., until 1973 when they returned here to make their home.

Mr. Supernaw was born at Atwood in Antrim County, moved to Charlevoix as a child, and graduated from Charelvoix High School. He graduated from Michigan Technological University in 1934 as a chemical engineer and was employed at National Twist Drill Co. in Rochester and its affiliate in the east from 1934 until his retirement in 1971.

Mrs. Supernaw attended Charlevoix High School and, during the years they lived in Rochester, was a volunteer at St. Andrew's Catholic School. Both were members of St. Andrew's Church in Rochester and St. Mary's Church here.

The couple has two daughters, Mrs. (Marie) Johnson of Rochester and Mrs. (Martha) Meyer of Utica and three grandchildren, Michael Voccia of Rochester who, until recently, spent the summers with them in Charlevoix, and James and Kara of Utica.

Salad luncheon planned

The Episcopal Church Women of Christ Episcopal Church will host their annual chicken salad luncheon during the Waterfront Art Fair on Saturday, Aug. 9, Barbara Rogers, chairperson, has announced.

The luncheon will be served at the church on the corner of Clinton and State Streets, one block west of the fair, from 11:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m.

The luncheon will feature chicken salad, peas, bran muffins, watermelon, cookies and a choice of beverage. Tickets will be $3.50.

Obituaries

Mary E. Bowden

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary E. Bowden, 39, were held Wednesday, July 30, at St. Mary's Church. The Rev. Casimir Zawacki officiated. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mrs. Bowden died Monday, July 28, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Born in Charlevoix June 29, 1947, the former Mary E. Moore graduated from the Charlevoix High School in 1965. She received a Licensed Practical Nurse degree from Northwestern Michigan College in 1978. She had been employed at the Charlevoix Area Hospital since that time. The former Mrs. Mary Hough was married to William D. Bowden at Bridgeport on March 17, 1979. She had lived in Norwood Township since 1973.

She was a member of St. Mary's Church, Michigan Licensed Practical Nurses Association and the Charlevoix Camera Club.

Surviving are her husband, William D. Bowden; two sons, Mitch E. Hough and Jerome S. Bowden, at home; two daughters, Marlo E. and Lea A. Hough, also at home; her mother Mrs. Johanna Belfy of Charlevoix; a sister, Teresa M. Moore of Clearwater, Fla., and two brotehrs, Donald W. Moore of Riverside, Calif. and Gary G. Moore of Charlevoix.

The family suggests memorials to the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The Winchester Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

William H. Poole

A memorial service for a former Charlevoix resident, William H. Poole, 57, was held at the Ashton United Methodist Church on Saturday, July 26. The Rev. Douglas Kokx officiated.

Mr. Poole died Wednesday, July 23, at the Reed City Hospital.

Born in Charlevoix Aug. 24, 1928, Mr. Poole was the son of Elmer and Margaret (Simpson) Poole. He attended the Charlevoix Schools. He served in the U.S. Army from 1946-49. An electrician by trade, he had lived in Ashton for the past 27 years. He was a member of the Ashton United Methodist Church.

Surviving are his wife, Helen; two daughters, Mrs. Joey (Brenda) Holmes of Gaylord and Pamela Poole of Grand Rapids; five sisters, Mrs. Calvin (Wilma) Kuebler of Harbor Springs, Mrs. Bill (Margaret) Bushor of Wayne, Mrs. Lenoard (Nancy) Niswander of Petoskey and Mrs. Jack (Joan) McKenny and Mrs. Ivan (Elaine) Whitley, both of Charlevoix; and three brothers, Wally of Muskegon, Louie of Boyne City and Elmer of Charlevoix.

The family suggests memorials to the Ashton United Methodist Church.

Recycling center established

GTP Industries, a recycling industry in Traverse City, has set up a recycling drop-off site at the Central Lake Township Waste Collection Station in Central Lake.

According to a report by GTP, the Central Lake Township Board contributed funds to purchase a trailer and insurance to enable participation in recycling by its citizens.

GTP processes clear, green, and amber glass; tin cans; newspapers; office paper; cardboard; oil; and aluminum.

Church of God story confusion explained

by PEG OHLE

A recent story about a new minister in town seems to have caused some confusion.

On July 16, we reported that the Reverend William Elders, Jr. had accepted a call to the Charlevoix Church of God, located on East Upright Street. The headline read, "New pastor named at Church of God".

However, there is another Church of God in Charlevoix, the Community Church of God, located on West Hurlbut Street, of which the Reverend Bruce Hamilton is minister.

To put the record straight: the Reverend Mr. Hamilton is still at the Community Church of God and the Reverend Mr. Elders is at the Charlevoix Church of God.

As explained, headquarters of the Community Church of God are in Anderson, Indiana, and the headquarters of the Charlevoix Church of God are in Cleveland, Tennessee.

We apologize to both churches.

Sailor of Quarter Named

Grant Waldron, HS3, has been named Sailor of the Quarter aboard the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite for the third quarter of the current fiscal year.

The selection of Sailor of the Quarter is based on the crewman's military bearing, etiquette, uniform appearance, work habits, professionalism and leadership. Nomination for this recognition comes from the ship's department heads and chief petty officers. Final selection is made by the commanding officer.

In recognition of being named Sailor of the Quarter, Waldron will receive various privileges on board the ship.

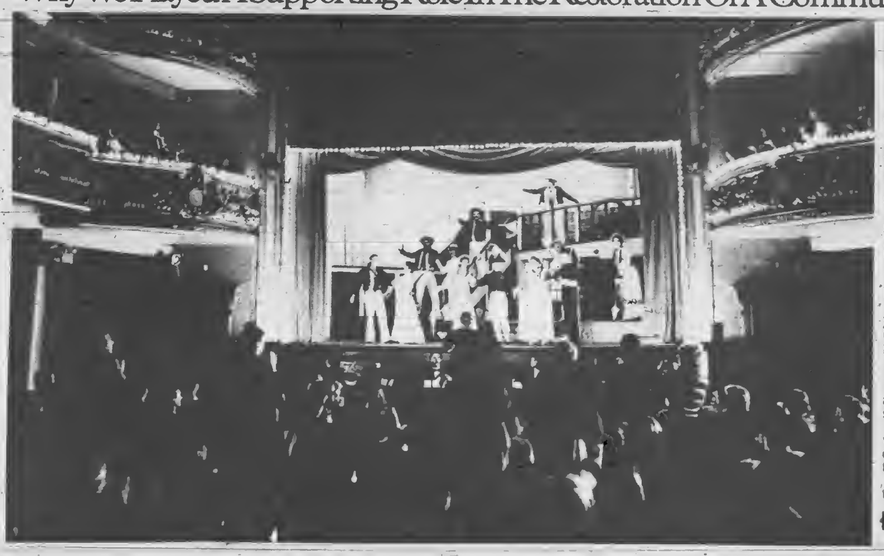
Why We Played A Supporting Role In The Restoration Of A Community Opera House.



Near the turn of the century, two-bits and a little bit of luck put you near the front of the standing room only crowds that were the hallmark of this opera house.

Mary Pickford, at the time just a blossoming star, graced its stage.

As did Annie Oakley's traveling show of six-guns and other assorted shootin' irons.

In fact, over the years, what with all the stars of vaudeville and theatre who performed here, you would have thought it was Broadway in New York.

Not a small midwest town's main-street opera house.

Even talking movies couldn't do to the grand old place what a major fire, many years of neglect and then a condemnation notice would finally do.

Close its doors. Seemingly for good.

But to the townspeople, the show just had to go on.

So when private citizens and business people got together to restore this priceless landmark, a lot of our people asked what part they could play.

You see, we're not just bankers.

We're part of the community.

So we believe that sometimes it's just as important to lend a hand as it is to lend someone money.

At First of America Bank, we're proud we were part of the impressive community cast of characters that raised the money it took to bring the opera house back to life.

And we applaud the entire town's contribution to the performing arts.

We're Community Banks First.

Hospital sponsors golf outing

Area golfers will tee up for big prizes including a new car and a steak dinner at the Charlevoix Area Hospital benefit Golf and Dinner on Sunday, August 17, at the Antrim Dells Golf and Tennis Club.

A first-time event, the Golf and Dinner is planned to not only raise funds for the hospital but also provide an enjoyable outing for the members of the community.

Ed and Barb Evanish, new owners of the Antrim Dells club as of this season, are hosting the event.

The golf tournament will get under way with a 2 p.m. shotgun start. The format will be a four-person scramble with teams scored under the Peoria system. This will allow entrants to play with foursomes of their choice but still make it possible for players of different skill levels to win prizes.

A cash prize of $200 goes to the winning team. There will also be cash prizes for other top finishers and for such events as closest to the pin and longest drives.

The most coveted prize, however, is a 1986 Olds Cutlass Ciera Brougham which will be awarded outright to the first person who scores a hole-in-one on the 159-yard number 13 hole during the tournament.

Donated by Kusina Motors, the new car will be on display at the hospital and at Antrim Dells leading up to the tournament.

Golfers interested in entering the tournament are urged to call the hospital at 547-4024 soon to register since there are a limited number of spots available. Individuals can register and be assigned to a foursome or sign up as a member of the team of their choice.

The $35 cost includes both golf and dinner. Golfers will also recieve a complimentary hospital cap and a commemorative golf ball. Cart rentals will be available at a reduced fee.

Non-golfers are encouraged to attend the dinner which will begin at approximately 6 p.m. rain or shine. The menu will feature grilled steaks with all the trimmings.

The cost for the dinner alone is $12. The cost of all golf and dinner tickets is tax deductible. Tickets are available at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The 1986 Olds Cutlass Ciera Brougham that will be awarded to the first golfer who scores a hole-in-one on Antrim Dells' No. 13 hole at the Charlevoix Area Hospital Benefit Golf and Dinner Sunday, August 17, is displayed by, from left, Antrim Dells owner Ed Evanish, Dennis Kusina of Kusine Motors who is providing the car and Dr. Tai-Hee Kang a member of the hospital's medical staff and a member of the organizing committee for the event.

E. Jordan woman authors diet book

With the publication of a new diet book, an East Jordan woman and her Hoosier sister took on some tough competition. The Head-First Diet, available at Connie's Place in Charlevoix, is not apt to be greeted with the fanfare afforded to more famous authors of weight control tips.

Movie star James Coco, promoting his diet book on the Tonight show, took along trousers that fit before he lost 100 pounds.

So goes the continuing saga of diet books. Richard Simmons, exercise guru, skyrocketed sales of his diet book by hyping it on his own television program. Jane Fonda's name alone demands wide media coverage for her "New Workout and Weight-Loss Program."

Lenore Bechtel, a free-lance writer and summer resident of East Jordan, and Marcia Curtis, a postmaster and prize-winning cook from Winslow, Indiana, are counting on successful dieters to spread the good word about The Head-First Diet.

Bechtel has summered on Lake Charlevoix for the last seven years. During the rest of the year she works in Southfield as a free-lance writer. The new diet book was published by Bechtel's public relations firm, Write-On Creations, Inc.

Lenore Bechtel

"Our diet is a high-fiber, nutritionally superior diet that works for gradual, permanent weight loss, and that's what people really want – not gimmick diets," Bechtel said. "The American public is too smart to believe that eating five grapefruits a day is a good way to lose weight, and that's the nonsense-type diet publishers have been thrusting at them recently."

Bechtel and Curtis are certain that with 40 pecent of the American population overweight, many will stumble upon their book and lose weight with their head-first approach, which is to take your mind off food and focus it on resolving the problems that cause you to overeat. The book has tear-out shopping lists and staple checklists so dieters can grocery shop without having to think about meal preparation.

Subtitled "How to Lose Weight and Be Happy Not Hungry," the diet plan features menus and original recipes for four full weeks, with particular behavior modification techniques to practice each day.

"It takes 20 consecutive days for your subconscious to accept any new habit," Bechtel explained. "Without the repetition, your subconscious will go right back to its old fattening eating practices. That's why we have a day-by-day plan to reprogram the subconscious."

How did sisters separated by 300 miles happen to write The Head-First Diet? The nutritional research started when Curtis resolved to control her husband's pre-diabetic condition with nutrition. The resulting recipes not only controlled his medical problems without the insulin doctors had predicted, they also took 28 pounds off of Bechtel's husband.

At the same time Bechtel was program developer for a hypnosis center, researching the mysteries of the subconscious mind. The sisters decided they should pool their talents and combine the best of nutrition with the best of behavior modification for the best of diets.

After Bechtel conducts a "Head-First Dieting" seminar for several community education programs in the fall, she expects more evidence of the diet's validity. Seminar participants will start the diet after the first session and lose eight to 12 pounds before the third and last session.

"People can lose weight happily, not hungrily," Bechtel explained. "That's what makes this diet great."

Senior photos due soon

Members of the 1987 graduating class of the Charlevoix High School and their parents are requested to make all photography appointments no later than September 1.

This date will give the photographers the necessary lead time to have two color pictures to the high school office by the October 1 deadline with the yearbook company. Wallet size colored pictures are acceptable; one for the yearbook and one for the annual supplement of the Charlevoix Courier.

It is suggested that students have their pictures taken prior to the beginning of the school year in preparation for the Oct. 1, 1986 deadline. Pictures not received by the Oct. 1 deadline will not appear in the 1987 Yearbook which is being done in color.

Boardsailers complete regatta

Just under 100 boardsailors from throughout the country competed in the Charlevoix National Boardsailing Regatta over the weekend at Ferry Beach.

Organizer Dick Lepman said the regatta provided good competition for the boardsailors.

"We want to do it every year if we get the support - that's all we need," Lepman said. "It sure is pretty to watch." He expressed some disappointment in the lack of participation by area boardsailors.

Results from the regatta, by division are as follows:

Heavyweight: 1-Andy Gratton, Oshkosh, Wis.; 2-Jim Jordan, fn. dianapolis, Ind.; 3-Kevin Gratton, Fond Du Lac, Wis.; 4-Mark Bildsten, Worthington, Ohio; 5-Dick Tillman, Satellite Beach, Fla.

Lightweights: 1-Andrew Parkinson, Chicago; 2-Kevin Quan, San Diego; 3-John Cleary, Indianapolis; 4-Allan Dushan, Highland Park, Ill.; 5-Julie Rosenberg, Kalamazoo.

Mediumweights: 1-Brent Hart, Haslett; 2-Casey Call, Syracuse, fnd.; 3-Bill Mercer; 4-Dierk Polzin, Mdison, Wis; 5-Steve Fenn, Corouado, Calif.

Women: 1-Julie Rosenberg, Kalamazoo; 2-Gail Proper, Springfield, Ill; 3-Sue Tillman, Satellite Beach, Fla; 4-Adele Lepman, Charlevoix; 5-Lori code, Middleton, Wis. Wis.

Other area boardsailors who competed included Hagen Manker and Doug Buday, both of Charlevoix.

Oleson wins major league title

Major League

Oleson Food won the city title in the Major League division of the Little League Association following a playoff for the second round title and for the season title.

In the first game played Monday night, a make-up game between Oleson and Amelcan Legion, Oleson won by a score of 6-5 for the second round title.

Guy Gengle, as the winning pitcher allowed six hits. Don Jess and Wayne Joy together allowed eight hits.

The Legion got off to a three run lead at the end of the first inning with Oleson adding one run in each of the first and third innings. The Legion added two more in the fifth inning before Oleson came back to score four runs in the bottom of the fifth to go ahead for the first time.

Guy Gengle had three singles, Ken Olinger and Denny Jinsky, two each and Justin Gengle one for the win. For the Legion, Dan Avery had two singles, Paul Cunningham a double, Joy a single and Randy Williams a single and a double.

In the title game, the Legion was unable to take advantage of the 120 hits the team got from Olinger as Oleson won the second game 3-1. Jess and Joy gave up only four hits.

Justin Gengle had a double and Olinger, Guy Gengle and Keith Carey had hits for the victors.

Dan Avery had three hits and the Legion's lone run. Paul Cunningham also had three hits, Randy Williams two, and Joy and Jess, one each.

Women enter tournament

Women's League

After completing its regular season, the Women's League went into a double elimination tournament on Thursday.

The opening games saw Town House edge Wojan 5-4 and Jerry's Meat defeat Hoskins 12-5.

The tournament will be continued Thursday with Kwikie Printing, which drew a first round bye, meeting Town House at 6:30 p.m.; Wojan meeting Hoskins at 7:56 in the first game in the loser's bracket and a second game in the loser's bracket scheduled for 9 p.m.

On Thursday, Teri Wilson pitched Town House to its 5-4 win over Wojan, allowing eight hits. Meda Kehrer allowed only five in a losing cause.

Both Shelly Erber, the winning pitcher, and Linda Ballentine allowed nine hits as Jerry's Meat defeated Hoskins 12-5.

North Country wins

Men's League

A home run by Gary Bodeis in the bottom of the tenth inning in action Monday night gave North Country Sanitation an 8-6 win over Rich's Topside cafe. In other games McLelland Home Furnishing defeated Town House 20-9 and Grey Gables won over Paul Bunyan Lanes. 15-4.

The score in the North Country-Topside game was tied in the seventh inning. Topside went ahead by a run in the top of the tenth before Bodeis hit his round-trip hit with a man on in the bottom of the inning to take the win. Scott Morgan had a three-run homer and Brent Cole a solo homer for Topside.

Alex Neidzialkowski, as the winning pitcher, allowed 16 hits. Phil Skeel gave up 17.

McLelland took advantage of the 28 hits Bob Alexander allowed to out score Town House who had 15 hits from Bill Gauthier, the winning pitcher. Among the hits for McLelland was a solo home run by Bill Herriman.

Grey Gables scored six home runs in their 15-4 win over Paul Bunyan Lanes. Joe Jones had two solos and scored another man on for his third and Kim Markorsicz scored a man on two of his homers and had a solo homer for his third.

Dan Gillespie allowed 20 hits. Ray LaVoie, as the winning pitcher, allowed 11 hits.

Pine Hill Nursery edged Glen's Market 14-13; Town House won over Paul Bunyan Lanes 12-7 and North Country Sanitation downed McLelland Home Furnishing 17-2 in games played Wednesday.

Both Ken Peebles, the winning pitcher, and Steve Leazier allowed 16 hits in the Pine Hill-Glen's Market game in which Eric Towe and Mark Cole hit solo homers for the victors, Cris Havens and Bill Joy each had homers with one aboard for the Market.

The second game on Wednesday was a bit of an upset as Town House collected 21 hits from Mike Green to defeat Paul Bunyan Lanes 12-7.

Bob Alexander claimed the win, giving up 13 hits.

Among the 22 hits Bill Gauthier of McLelland Home Furnishing gave up was a two run home run by Gary Bodeis as North Country Sanitation posted a 17-2 win. Dave Farnsworth gave up 10.

North Country Sanitation defeated Pine Hill Nursery 8-5 in the only game played Thursday night.

Dave Farnsworth, as the winning pitcher, and Ken Peebles each allowed nine hits.

The win by North Country Sanitation moved the team into third place in the standings as of that date.

Musical theatre workshop for youth is planned

The Young People's Musical Theatre Workshop will be held during the week of Monday, August 18, through Friday, August 22, at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, according to Fran Tollas, who will conduct the program.

Classes, which are sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council, will include singing, dance and movement, and improvisational drama.

The Friday session will be held at Windmill Farm (five miles from Charlevoix on the Boyne City Road, beginning at 9 a.m. Family and friends are invited to join the students at 11:15 for a run-through of the program material used during the week.

Further information about registration for this year's workshop may be obtained from Mrs. Tollas at 547-9479.

Fishing licenses reach new high

Statistics compiled from the individual State Fish and Wildlife agencies throughout the country show that in 1985 there were 35,675,557 fishing license, tag, permit and stamp holders in the United States, a substantial increase over the previous year.

Revenue from the sale of State licenses, etc. jumped to $282,342,746, also a substantial increase over the previous year.

The State of Michigan ranked No. 3 in the number of holders of licenses, tags, permits, and stamps; No. 4 in the number of in-state resident license, etc. holders; No. 2 in the number of non-resident license, etc. holders; and No. 4 in the cost of licenses, etc. to fishermen.

The top 10 states in each category were:

Total number of holders of licenses, tags, permits, and stamps: California, Wisconsin, MICHIGAN, Missouri, Minnesota, Ohio, Washington, New York, Pennsylvania, and Illinois.

Number of in-state holders of licenses, etc.: California, Texas, Missouri, MICHIGAN, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Ohio, Washington, Pennsylvania, and Illinois.

Shown above is the tug Michigan towing a three-masted schooner into Charlevoix harbor. When this picture was taken, the newly constructed channel was about four years old, and Charlevoix's first lighted channel was about four years old, and Charlevoix's first lighthouse, then on the north pier, was only about a year old. from Bob Miles', Charlevoix.

Some things change: once an open framed lighthouse, billowy sailed schooners and stouth built wood boats adorned the shore and seas; now we have the new lighthouse and the lighting - fast sailboards that held their national championships in Charlevoix last weekend.

But some things never change ... like the personal service you can count on from Charlevoix County State Bank. For well over 100 years Charlevoix County State Bank has worked side by side with Northern Michigan's families and merchants to make tomorrow a better today.

Yachting Notes

by A. NONY MOUSE

All should be quiet on the home front as many head out for Beaver Island's Homecoming, are enjoying the cruising in the North Channel, or are just taking a mid-summer break from all the activities we seem to try to squeeze into the Charlevoix short summer. It's the time to stop down at the local boatyard and see who hit what, check out what's new at city dock or spend a Friday evening with friends, old and new, down at the club. Jan Bidick sure was pretty as hostess last Friday, complete with home-grown carnation behind the ear. Had 'nuff people for a real revival. Y'all come on down, 6-8 p.m. or so.

Mark down August 17, Single Handed Race followed by the Good Old Slave Race; August 23, the Power and Sail Box Lunch Social (start thinking now - and get the white flannel trousers and Navy Blazer cleaned!); August 24, the Hot Dog Races for the Best Damn Skipper of the Year Trophy; August 29, Budweiser Olympic Triangle followed by Red Fox Regatta on the 30th and 31st. Should keep you busy.

Dues are due! You'll get your renewal and ballot in the near future, take a tip from the Mouse - consider that Sustaining Membership, it does a lot for the Club and may even save you money, if you attend many events or happen to be a racing sailor). Now's the time for those readers who are not members, come on down Friday and join.

Lots of Stats, July 23 and 30, but we'll leave the standings for the Medical Mouse who has these chores next week. July 23 first:

Fleet 1: 1st Charlie Brown (1:43:19), 2nd Slapshot (1:47:55), 3rd Kritter (1:48:43), then Plastic Fantastic, Pygmallon, Gotcha and Flying Machine.

Fleet 2: 1st Brass Tacks (1:52:01), 2nd Wingnut (1:57:37), 3rd Bandit (1:58:18), then Merry Hell, Maranatha and Flash.

Fleet 3: 1st Tireless (1:55:15), 2nd Blasen III (2:03:09), 3rd Cygnus (1:08:56), then Nulli Secundus and Spectre.

Fleet 4: 1st Mud Duck (2:06:47), 2nd Canusa (2:09:21), 3rd Ribit (2:11:21), Kittiwake.

Fleet 5: 1st Maureen (2:23:50), 2nd Sandpiper (2:44:04), 3rd Apothecary (2:44:22) then Te-Gi, Stalworth and Coolwhip.

Fleet 1: 1st Charlie Brown (2:07:00), 2nd Plastic Fantastic (2:07:24), 3rd Slapshot (2:08:48) then Flying Machine, Pygmalion, Kritter and Gotcha.

Fleet 2: 1st Wingnut (2:10:55), 2nd Babe (2:12:28), 3rd Merry Hell (2:14:39) then Bandit, Brass Tacks and Flash.

Fleet 3: 1st Spectre (2:16:57), 2nd Cygnus (2:18:51); 3rd Blasen III (2:18:52) then Tireless, Nulli Secundus, San-Sue-She and Phoenecia.

Fleet 4: 1st Mud Duck (2:28:54), 2nd Ribit (2:31:28), 3rd Maureen (2:39:31) then Apothecary, Stalworth, Te-Gi, Carousel and Coolwhip.

Area robbers get jail

Two men were sentenced to the Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson last week by Circuit Judge Richard Pajtas.

Bradley S. Warner, 25, of Charlevoix, and Daniel R. Hess, 26, former Charlevoix resident now living in Scottsdale, Ariz., received the sentences in connection with two strong-arm robberies in Charlevoix County.

Warner and Hess admitted their involvement in the June 7 strong-arm robbery of the Total gas station on U.S. 31 in Charlevoix and the June 14 robbery of the Bay Shore Party Store on U.S. 31. They were arrested after the Bay Shore robbery and police later learned of their involvement in the gas station robbery.

Warner pleaded guilty to two counts of conspiracy to commit larceny from a person, which carries a penalty of up to 10 years in prison.

In exchange for the plea, the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office agreed to drop other charges against him.

Warner was sentenced to 18 months to 15 years with credit for 20 days served on two charges of conspiracy to commit larceny from a person. The sentences are to run concurrently.

Hess pleaded guilty to two counts of unarmed robbery, which carries a penalty of up to 15 years in prison.

In exchange for Hess' guilty plea the prosecutor agreed not to charge him as being a habitual offender, based on a previous felony conviction. He also faced a conspiracy charge which was dropped.

Hess was sentenced to 2 to 15 years with credit for 45 days served on two charges of unarmed robbery. The sentences are to run concurrently.

Study: city's electric system needs change

by DOUG TRUAX

City Council met in special session Monday afternoon to receive the final $12,000 "Electrical System Study" prepared by Charlevoix utility consultant Roger D. Westenbroek.

Council, which has had two previous meetings with Westenbroek to review progress on the study, commissioned the utility consultant to evaluate the Charlevoix electrical system and anticipate future needs.

One of Westenbroek's preliminary recommendations was for the city to purchase excess power from the City of Lansing, which it did, resulting in substantial savings.

In the final report, Westenbroek was critical of the city's electrical policies and record keeping. "Present policies are nebulous and often conflicting," he wrote. "The intent of the council regarding its policy on the operation of the electric system has not been adequately communicated to the city personnel nor to the public."

Westenbroek emphasized to council Monday that his criticisms were not directed at individual city employees, whom he found "capable and quite well qualified to implement most of the recommendations in this report," or on any city administration.

"The electric utility's business functions are inadquately supervised at present," Westenbroek concluded.

He was also critical of the record keeping. "Information provided from present accounting and billing records is totally inadequate for the management of a modern, efficient electric utility."

Electrical rates will have to be raised as soon as possible, he added, to compensate for the "erosion" of profits made by the city. He also cited several inequities in the current rate structure.

"An accelerated construction program will be needed in the near future to improve, replace, rehabilitate and generally increase the electrical capacity of the present distribution facilities," he said.

Some $1.6 million will be needed in the next five years for new capital improvements, expansfon and replacements, the report added. Although much of the money could come from the electric fund and cash from rate revenues, Westenbroek estimated that the city would have to borrow some 35-40 percent of the capital needed.

The report found the $75,000 mandated for the city electrical fund by the city charter inadequate. "There are no 'magic numbers' but it appears that a larger contingency - perhaps in the neighborhood of $300,000 - is in order," the report stated.

The new rates proposed in the study would produce 3.63 percent more revenue. Because of the savings from the Lansing power purchase, the increase in rates would not be felt immediately by customers, Westenbroek said.

Among the proposed rate increases: for city residential customers from $2 per month service charge and 5 cents per kilowatt hour (kWH) to $2.75 service charge and 5.7 cents per kWH; for commercial city users from $4 per month service charge and 5.5 cents per kWH to $6.25 per month and 5.9 cents per kWH; for rural residential customers from $2.75 per month and 6 cents per kWH to $3.60 and 6.8 cents per kWH.

Council delays fire hall site plan

City Council tabled action on the development plan for the new public safety building currently under construction north of city hall at its meeting Monday night.

The development plan would formalize the parking arrangement and other details of the site preparation. City Manager Michael Wiesner called for approval of the plan with the elimination of one of the 22 proposed parking spaces to save a large maple tree.

Councilman Robert Timms urged the addition of four parking spaces behind the unused truck bays at the rear of the building.

Councilman Norm Probert questioned the installation of two underground gasoline storage tanks. Probert noted that underground tanks were an environmental danger and the Department of Natural Resources was condemning many of them. He suggested the use of the tanks at the city garage to fill the vehicles.

Wiesner said contractors were not eager to bid on the tanks because of the liability issue. He said Fire Chief John Martin would be invited to the next council meeting to discuss the issue further.

Council also discussed further employment of Roger Westenbroek as a consultant to help implement the electrical study (see related story). Wiesner proposed retaining Westenbroek for a 90-day period at $30 per hour. After that time, Wiesner said, Westenbroek would be able to determine the amount of work needed to complete the study.

Council members expressed uneasiness at an open-ended consultation agreement and asked for a time estimate and list of items from the study needing additional work.

IN OTHER ACTION, council:

-Agreed to a lot split for Thomas and Esther Carey at 104 East Upright Ave. conditional on the Zoning Board of Appeals granting a variance. The variance is required, council was advised by City Attorney Jeffery VanTreese, because one of the two lots would be less than the 100-foot minimum lot size required by the zoning. The lot split is being sought so the proposed new owners of one of the homes on the two lots can enlarge a garage.

-Approved a maintenance contract with the Michigan Department of Transportation from Oct. 1, 1986 to September 30, 1989. Leonard Dubey, city street superintendent, was named maintenance superintendent under the contract.

-Heard from Wiesner and Probert that the bandshell is in serious need of repair, with large cracks in the back wall which is leaning in the direction of the dog run. They suggested closing off the dog run for now.

EMERGENCY ORDINANCE No. 466

An Ordinance to amend the Code of the City of Charlevoix by adding new sections, which new section shall be designated as Sections 3.89 (1) through 3.89 (7), Chapter 34, Title III of said Code.

The City of Charlevoix Ordains

That Title III, Chapter 34 of the Charlevoix City Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 3.89 (1):

The Charlevoix City Council hereby determines that a public emergency exists that affects the life, health or property of the residents of the City of Charlevoix by reason of the high water levels of Lake Michigan, Round Lake, Lake Charlevoix and their interconnecting waterways which caused concern over the public safety and also damage to property.

Section 3.89 (2):

All phrases used in this emergency ordinance shall be construed and have the same meaning as those words and phrases as defined in Act 303 of the Public Acts of 1967, as amended, being MCLA 281.1001 et seq., MSA 18.1287 (1) et seq.

Section 3.89 (3):

From and after the date of this Ordinance it shall be unlawful for any person to navigate or operate, or cause to be navigated or operated, in Charlevoix Harbor, any vessel whereby a wake or wash is created by said vessel. It is the express intent of his Ordinance to deem the entirety of Charlevoix Harbor as a "slow — no wake speed" zone as defined in Section 81(b) of Act 303 of the Public Acts of 1967, as amended.

Section 3.89 (4):

All other Ordinances or parts of Ordinances in conflict are hereby repealed.

Section 3.89 (5):

Violations of this Ordinance are deemed a misdemeanor and may be punished by a fine not to exceed Five Hundred ($500.00) Dollars, together with costs of prosecution or imprisonment in the County jail or such other places of detention as the Court may prescribe for a period not to exceed ninety (90) days or said fine, cost of prosecution and imprisonment at the descretion of the Court.

Section 3.89 (6):

This Ordinance and the various parts, sections, sub-sections, provisions, and clauses are severable. If any part of this Ordinance is found to be invalid or unconstitutional it is hereby declared that the remainder of this Ordinance shall not be affected thereby.

Section 3.89 (7):

Pursuant to Section 17 of Act 303 of the Public Acts of 1967, as amended, the Charlevoix County Sheriff or his authorized deputies shall enforce this local Ordinance in accordance with the provisions of said Act.

This Ordinance was adopted by the following yes and nay vote:

Ironton Church celebrates centennial

Charlevoix to Ironton was taken up and houses were sold and moved to East Jordan, which was then fast becoming a lumbering town. But the women members of the Cherrie clan were not upset by the change of events. Miss Cherrie, Mrs. Adams, and Mrs. Adams' daughter, Eva, who had been living in Chicago, all of whom had been large stockholders in the Ironton Iron Furnace, pooled their broken fortunes and started the Sweet Brier Farm, taking in paying summer guests. Their business lasted for many years and was the start of Ironton as a summer resort, according to Mrs. Alexander.

Summer residents soon became an important part of the Ironton Congregational Church. Mrs. Alexander especially mentions its "good friends from the Sequanota Resort Club on the bluff a little north of us, which was founded in 1902".

Also benefactors of Ironton and the Congregational Church were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stuart of Chicago, who built Breezy Point Farm on the far side of the channel. Mr. Stuart was president of the Quaker Oats Company, and for many years the Stuarts sent a generous check to buy each boy and girl in Ironton a gift for the Christmas stockings that were distributed at the church.

In 1926, the church building was moved from its original location on Sweet Brier Lane to its present location at the corner of Washington and 5th Streets. Records show that it cost $500 to move the building and that most able-bodied men in the community helped to dig the new foundation and build the stone wall for the church. The church was moved at the request of Louis Reiman, who had bought the Sweet Brier Farm and adjoining property near the church for a boy's camp. He gave the church the property for its new location.

An interesting note is that Mr. Reiman later moved his boy's camp to the north side of Lake Charlevoix and it became known as Camp Charlevoix, operating for many years.

After the church was settled in its new location, George Hemingway of Oak Park, Illinois (uncle of the well-known Ernest), who operated the Charlevoix County Nursery on the east side of the channel, furnished trees and shrubs to cover its bareness. Today, those trees shade and protect the church building, along with a small red maple recently planted in memory of the church's matriarch, the late Hilda Alexander.

The Ironton Congregational Church has witnessed many changes and served its community well through the years. Its members and friends have also contributed much toward keeping the building up-to-date and worthy as a place to worship. A "Memorial Book" acknowledges many gifts and labors of love. If members of the Cherrie family and others of their time were to return to the church now, they would find the original pulpit in the back of the sanctuary and the original bell in the steeple. The original church records are also intact. Perhaps the only sign of age are the tie rods which run across the top of the sanctuary from one side to the other to keep the old sides from bulging under heavy winter snows.

The church which started as a missionary adjunct of the Charlevoix Congregational Church has had its own minister for several years. Since 1973, Harold Kruse of Eastport, a lay minister, has conducted Sunday services. He will bring the "good word" this coming Sunday, and descendents of many year-round pioneer families, as well as those who started as summer residents, will assist with serving refreshments and showing pictures and memorabilia of other days.

Official Notice

RESOLUTION TO VACATE A PART OF STREET OR ALLEY

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Charlevoix has the power and authority to vacate, discontinue, and abolish streets and alleys or any part thereof pursuant to MCLA 102.3, MSA 5.1808; and

WHEREAS, The City Council of the City of Charlevoix, after due investigation and consideration, has determined that the nature and extent of the public use and of the public interest to be subserved is such as to warrant the vacation of a part of a public street or alley as described below; and

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Charlevoix is heretofore considered the public interest, present and future, in vacating and abandoning the part of the alley or street described below and have deemed that the same shall be a public improvement; and

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED

By the Council of the City of Charlevoix, that all that part of an alley or street described in the attached Exhibit "A", incorporated herein by reference and further colored in red and indicated by the words "to be vacated" on the drawing attached hereto and marked Exhibit "A", which drawing for greater certainty is hereby made a part of this Resolution, is no longer required for the public use and the public interest will be subserved by such vacation; and

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED that the City Council shall meet and hear objections, if any, as to said vacation of the part of the alley or street so described on September 2, 1986, and that Notice of such meeting with a copy of said Resolution shall be published for not less than four (4) weeks before the aforesaid time appointed for such meeting; and

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED that objections to said proposed vacation of the part of the alley or street described in Exhibit "A" may be filed with the Charlevoix City Clerk in writing, and if such objection shall be filed, said alley or street, or any part thereof, shall not be vacated or discontinued except by concurring vote of two-thirds (2/3) of the Councilmembers elect.

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED that the City of Charlevoix shall reserve an easement on all such parts of the alley or street described in attached Exhibit "A" for public utility purposes within the right of way so described.

RESOLVED this 21st day of July, 1986. A.D.

City readies for 28th Waterfront Art Fair

As though by magic, East Park in downtown Charlevoix will become a majestic art gallery as the 28th annual Waterfront Art Fair is unveiled Saturday, August 9.

Like mushrooms, exhibits of art in its many media will spring up on the rolling terraces - watercolors, oils, batiks, acrylics, stoneware, fibres, wood, pottery, photography, jewelry, basketry, porcelain and miscellaneous other art forms. The fair will open at 10 a.m. and remain open until 5 p.m.

There will be a number of new artists in the fair as well as numerous old favorites.

Among some of the interesting artists will be Terri Haugen of Benzonia, self-taught batik artist who was the 'cover artist' for the November 1985 Yankee magazine and whose batik art has been selected for the November 1986 issue of Reader's Digest; M.P. Marion of Raeine, Wis., who has revived ancient papermaking as a current art form; Steve French of South Haven, whose watercolors of wildlife and outdoor scenes have brought him many honors, the most recent the Michigan Watercolor Society, Annual National Exhibition Founder's Society Award, Detroit Institute of Art and Michigan Watercolor State Award Winners Governor's Invitational Capitol Building, Lansing and Susan Sturgill of Columbus, Ohio, graphic designs.

George Camp of Royal Oak works in egg tempura and will display his waterfowl decoy paintings which have always attracted visitors at the fair.

Others include: Susan Bittle of Brighton, who utilizes the contrast of smooth hard porcelain against soft batiked fibers in her art work; a newcomer, Char TerBeest of Baraboo, Wis., a basket artist; and Gordon Freedman of Washington, D.C. and Charlevoix, photography.

Also showing will be such old favorites as Dee Knott of Flushing; Allen Vigland of Benzonia with his pottery; Roland Brown of Sterling, a goldsmith who's been coming to the fair for 25 years; and Kim and Frank Yanke of Farmington, jewelers.

The show this year has been limited to 115 entries in part because some of the park along the waterfront has been lost to the high water in the Great Lakes. Another reason for the reduced numbers was the calibre of entries did not meet the standards for the fair set by the committee which juries all entries before they can be accepted.

However, the fewer number of artists in the space available will allow better viewing by the fair-going public and also permit artists to exhibit their art work at a better advantage, a committee member said.

The Waterfront Art Fair is administered by a committee of 14 members and is sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce as one of the city's community events.

Mary Ann Chew, a member of the Waterfront Art Fair Committee, is pictured with Kathleen Chaney Fritz' watercolor of the Charlevoix harbor which has been purchased by the committee and will be presented to the Charlevoix Elementary School as a memorial to the late Carolyn T. Rader, longtime Waterfront Fair Committee member. The watercolor will be exhibited at the 28th annual Waterfront Art Fair which has been dedicated to the memory of Mrs. Rader. The fair will be an event of Saturday, August 9 in East Park.

Kathleen Chaney Fritz of Grand Rapids, whose watercolor of the Charlevoix harbor has been purchased by the Waterfront Art Fair Committee as a memorial to Carolyn T. Rader, will be among the 115 artist who will be exhibiting at the 28th annual Waterfront Art Fair to be held in East Park form 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday.

Show dedicated to Carolyn Rader

by FRAN MARTIN

The 28th annual Waterfront Art Fair, scheduled for Saturday, August 9, will have a special meaning this year because, for the first time, it will be dedicated to a committee member, Carolyn T. Rader, who contributed 25 years to its continuing success. Mrs. Rader died June 5 in a traffic accident.

As a memorial to Mrs. Rader, who joined the committee when the fair was in its infancy, the present committee has supplemented available monies to purchase an original Kathleen Chaney Fritz watercolor of the Charlevoix harbor which will be presented to the Charlevoix Elementary School.

Mrs. Rader's dedication to the arts and to the success of the Waterfront Art Fair was well known. "Carolyn came on the scene when the fair was young and still suffering growing pains. It was through her guidance that the committee came to realize that quality should have priority over quanity," a fellow committee member for many of those 25 years, Sally McNamara, said of Mrs. Rader and her influence.

Now considered one of the prestigious art fairs in the state and second only to the Ann Arbor show, the Waterfront Art Fair owes its continuing success to the dedication of people like Mrs. Rader is the message one gets from the present fair committee.

The Waterfront Fair committee has always had an unusual format. Consisting of as many as 15 members at times, it has no chairperson, each member or groups of members carry out designated assignments, all take a turn a jurying entries, depending on her interests, and, on the day of the fair, all double in numerous capacities.

A firm believer in teamwork, as such a format requires, Mrs. Rader would enlist the assistance of anyone she thought had something to offer. Older members of the present committee recall how her family did not escape and could be found in East Park on the day of the fair carrying out all sorts of chores. Much of the present format can be credited to Mrs. Rader's foresight and good management, McNamara said.

Members of the committee who have been instrumental in establishing the memorial to Mrs. Rader are (listed alphabetically) Cissy Biekersteth, Barbara Bump, Mary Ann Chew, Alicia Christoph, Edith Gilbert, Connie Harper, Eileen Heck, Marge Martin, Beth McGraw, Sally McNamara, Jacquie Merta, Diane Pace, Nancy Porter and Suzi Reis.

The watercolor the committee selected as a memorial to Mrs. Rader is a scene of the Charlevoix harbor, which might have been painted from the home of the Rader family when they lived in Charlevoix prior to moving to Petoskey.

The response to the work has been more than enthusiastic and, once viewed, one can easily see why... the water ripples and shimmers on neighboring yachts; the light attracts itself to places in need of warmth, and shadows recede into the background. Nothing is left unsaid, but so much is left to the imagination. It is said that this work alone stands as a tribute to Kathleen Chaney Fritz' dedication to the fine arts and echoes from her years of learning and mastering the fragile medium of watercolors.

Fritz and her husband, John, are offering a limited series of hand signed prints to coincide with the 1986 Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair.

These prints are being shown at Northern Art in the Gaslight District in Petoskey and at the Apple Tree Gift Shop in Charlevoix.

Fritz, 33, a resident of Grand Rapids, has previously exhibited at the Waterfront Fair, thus her interest in the Charlevoix harbor. A 1973 graduate of the Kendall School of Design, her brushes have wielded a wide array of works from technically diseiplined illustrations to emotionally spirited watercolors that radiate the warmth of the artist as a person and celebrate the artist as a craftsman.

She has now turned to the world of fine art. At the juried Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair of 1985, her new work became an instant success.

Delegates set for conventions

by PEG OHLE

Twenty-eight Republican Precinct Delegates will answer the call to the Charlevoix County Republican Convention this (Wednesday) evening, where three delegates and two alternates to the State Republican Convention will be selected.

The State Convention, to be held next Friday and Saturday, August 22 and 23, in Detroit, will name the Republican Party's nominees for Lt. Governor, Attorney General, Secretary of State, Supreme Court vacancies, members of the State Board of Education, and State University posts.

Those selected for the above posts will appear on the November General Election ballot, along with William Lucas, who was nominated for Governor at last week's Primary Election, and candidates for other state posts, including State Senator, State Representative, and State Court of Appeals judges, as well as Representative in Congress.

Next week's State Convention is the first of three which some local Republican Precinct Delegates will attend during their two-year term in office. Next February, a State Convention will be held to select the Republican State Chairman, State Vice Chairmen, State Committee Members, and District Committee Members. Early in 1988, a State Convention will be held to select Delegates and Alternates to the Republican National Convention, and to elect the Republican National Committeeman and Committee Woman who will represent Michigan Republicans on the Republican National Committee for the next four years.

Those with credentials for tonight's County Republican Convention are:

Donald R. Smith, Ronald G. Geer, and John E. Haggard of Charlevoix Township; Robert Timms, Barbara Timms, Donald Volsin, Bonnie Bellows, and F. Earl Muma of Charlevoix; William D. Huber and Donald L. Hufford of Hayes Township; Bruce Lanphar of Norwood Township; Kevin Green of St. James Township; Lyle Wayne Harper, William D. Sanderson, and Dorothy G. Sanderson of Eveline Township.

Also, William H. Ohle and Margaret A. Ohle of Bay Township; Delbert E. Nixon of Evangeline Township; Barbara Elliott and Ellen D. Laurie of Melrose Township; Glenn Piepenburg of Boyne Valley Township; Randy Witten, Charles W. Inman, and Betty A. Inman of South Arm Township; Harrietta B. Jackson of Wilson Township; Galen W. Seiler of East Jordan; and Arthur Rouse and Casimir Totoń of Boyne City.

Also eligible to vote for delegates to the State Republican Convention will be the four Republican nominees for county offices. (This year, the only county nominees are those for the County Board of Commissions.)

Republican Precinct Delegates in Michigan received much attention this year because their election was meant to show support for one of the three candidates campaigning for the presidency in the State: Vice-president George Bush, evangelist Pat Robertson, and U. S. Representative Jack Kemp of New York State. However, most Charlevoix County Republican Precinct Delegates did not indicate a presidential choice when filing for the post of Precinct Delegate.

Charlevoix County Democrats will hold their County Convention August 16 at 9:30 a.m. in the UAW Hall on Main Street in Boyne City. At that time Precinct Delegates will elect delegates for the State Convention.

Delegates to the Democratic convention are:

Boyne Valley Township: Phyllis Marchinkewicz; South Arm: Ruth Ann Crawford; City of Boyne City: Lance Johnson; City of Charlevoix: Bob Morgridge, Ruth Emery, Barbara MacArthur and James Novotny.

Art Fair big hit once again

Skies were bright, the weather warm and customers everywhere as the Waterfront Art Fair staged its 28th annual event on Saturday. Organizers reported very brisk activity and some of the largest crowds ever.

"Someone was watching over us," commented Suzi Reis, a member of the Art Fair committee. "It was a wonderful fair, with lots of people."

Many forms of art were displayed including art you could wear, as shown by ceramic sculptor J. Robert Black Jr. of Ann Arbor (right) who sported a ceramic pith helmet.

The U.S. Coast Guard rescue boat pulls in a disabled boater during Sunday's high winds

High winds keep Coast Guard busy

Winds of 30 knots an hour out of the northwest sent the U.S. Coast Guardsmen from the Charlevoix lifeboat station to the assistance of a 25-foot power boat which had run out of gas off the pierheads at Charlevoix Sunday evening.

The disabled vessel was towed to safety in the harbor. The owner of the boat was Holecheck of Charlevoix. No first name was available.

A short time later the crew at the lifeboat station was called to assist a 100-foot yacht, the Bantamaro, which had lost its power off Cathead Point at the tip of the Leelanau Peninsula. The disabled vessel was taken in tow in waves up to 10 feet and brought into the harbor at Northport at 4:30 a.m. Monday. The owner of the boat was William McConnell of Charlotte, N.C.

On Friday, the lifeboat station had been called to assist the 33-foot sailboat, Puffin, owned by William Strough of Grand Rapids. The boat had lost its power while attempting to enter the harbor. It was towed into the harbor at 2:25 p.m. Friday.

Marooned sailor found ... twice

After being rescued by the U.S. Coast Guard after three days hard aground on Ile Aux Galets (Skillagalee Island) 10 miles off Cross Village, Russell Smith, 67, of Manchester turned up missing a second time on Sunday.

However, the second time he was located at Mackinaw City when the U.S. Coast Guard here made a harbor check, but not before the Traverse City Air station had initiated a helicopter search Sunday when a member of his family reported him overdue.

It all started Wednesday, Aug. 6, when Smith, accompanied by his dog, was enroute from Beaver Island to Petoskey. Enroute his single masted 25-foot sailboat lost power and, buffeted by high seas, he found himself hard aground on the isolated island.

He said he set fires and even threw gasoline from his boat on the flames in an attempt to attract the attention of passing boaters. It was Wednesday before his plight was reported by a passing boater who saw his signal.

The U.S. Coast Guard lifeboats station here dispatched a patrol boat to the scene and returned him and his dog to Charlevoix. He told his rescuers he lived on candy bars and Coca-cola that he had aboard. There was also a supply of dog food on the boat for the pooch.

On Thursday, Cliff Biddick of Irish Boat Shop accompanied him to Skillagalee, repaired the sailboat and pulled it into the water.

He advised Biddick that he was returning to Beaver Island. Enroute he was blown off course and found himself among the small islands north of Beaver Island so he headed for Mackinaw City where he was found during the harbor check on Sunday after being reported missing by his family.

Council hires electric consultant

by DOUG TRUAX

City council agreed Monday to hire Roger Westenbroek as a consultant for 90 days to help implement his recent electric system study.

The city agreed to up to 150 hours of consultation at $30 per hour for Westenbroek's services which would include negotiations with other utilities, development of forms and procedures to survey the city's physical plant, review of electric department's financial condition, and revision of proposed service rules and regulations.

Council also heard bad news from City Manager Michael Wiesner concerning the boiler system in city hall. Wiesner said a recent inspection of the boiler by the state and the city's insurance company revealed leaks in the fire tubes and that the state would require the boiler to be taken out of service until it is tested.

Wiesner advised council the boiler, over 50 years old, and would likely fail the tests. Various authorities recommended replacing it at an estimated cost of $12,000, Wiesner said.

The city has $5,500 in a city hall maintenance fund, he noted, and the remainder would have to come from the contingency account.

Council authorized the city manager to proceed with bids on a new system rapidly in light of the impending cold weather.

Council gave its unanimous approval to the purchase of three new vehicles as included in the 1986-87 city budget. They include a new ambulance to replace a 1968 Chevrolet Suburban at a cost of $61,900, a new plow truck to replace the city's 1973 Chevrolet truck at a cost of $45,300, and a new patrol car for $11,000 to replace a 1983 vehicle with over 83,000 miles.

Wiesner was asked to proceed with bids on all three vehicles.

The deterioration of the band shell in East Park was also discussed. Mayor Hal Hill and several council Plant of Charlevoix Lumber Company in Winter, Charlevoix, Mich.

Charlevoix Yesterday

Residents of the new Edgewater Inn on the north side of Round Lake could be sitting on remains of this pile of logs. For over 100 years, lumber companies occupied the site, beginning with the Charlevoix Lumber Company, which was operating when this picture was taken. The picture postcard is not detad, the the stamp area reads, "Domastic, Canada, Greet Britain, Garmany, ONE Cant, Foraign, TWO CENTS". (Pictura postcerd courtasy of Art Krullik)

Watercolorist coming to Arts Center

Roland Roycraft, an award-winning watercolorist from Beulah, will be the featured artist in a week-long Limited Engagement Exhibition at the Art Tree Sales Gallery in Petoskey beginning Sunday, Aug. 17.

Roycraft's unusual combination of impressionistic and realistic approaches to watercolor captured the judge's eye and earned him and award in the 1985 Crooked Tree Arts Council juried fine arts competition. His work has been singled out for honors and invitational exhibitions by the American Watercolor Society, Midwest Watercolor Society, and Michigan Watercolor Society.

"I am basically a landscape painter and specialize on capturing the moods of nature," the artist says. A commercial artist for 35 years, with illustrative credits in nearly a dozen top national magazines, Roycraft says he chose the watercolor medium because its spontaneous nature fits his personality.

A reception for the artist will be held in the sales gallery on Sunday, Aug. 17 from noon until 2:30 p.m. the public is invited; there is no admission charge.

The Art Tree Sales Gallery is located in the McCune Arts Center, formerly the historic Methodist church at the corner of Mitchell and Division Streets, downtown Petoskey. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Area United Way campaign seeks summer contributions

The fund-raising campaign for United Way of Charlevoix is off to an early start again this year, hoping to attract contributions from summer residents before they leave town, Robert Rajewski, 1986 campaign chairman has announced.

Rajewski said the goal for this year is $35,000 – above last year's goal but nearly equal to the amount actually raised.

United Way hopes for contributions of between $5,000 and $6,000 from summer residents to meet its goal, Rajewski said.

"We are very fortunate here in Charlevoix to have a lot of people willing to help other people, whether with money or labor," he added.

The campaign is in the process of mailing letters to summer residents soliciting contributions. Volunteers are also being sought.

Rajewski said the remainder of the United Way solicitation will be conducted primarily in October. It will concentrate on contacting people in the workplace through payroll deductions. "Most employers are pretty cooperative," he said.

United Way of Charlevoix supports 17 agencies and over 90 percent of the money stays in the community. Of the money sent to the national organization through United Way of Michigan, Rajewski says, Charlevoix gets back more than it puts in.

Contributors can also elect to earmark their money for a particular agency, either local or national.

Among the agencies supported by United Way of Charlevoix are: Red Cross, Big Brothers, Big Sisters, Charlevoix Hospice, Planned Parenthood, Friends of Camp Daggett, Lake Charlevoix Exceptional Riders, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Womens Resource Center, Bergmann Center, CHIP counseling, Volunteers in Probation, Senior Citizens and United Way of Michigan.

Robert Rajewski

Anyone not contacted but wishing to make a contribution can send checks payable to United Way of Charlevoix, P.O. Box 532, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

The Rainbow Shoppe of Charlevoix recently presented a check for $2,000 to the Sunshine Club for its first year's activities. Shown above are Joe Spurgeon, manager of the Rainbow Shoppe, and Barbara Rogers (right), president of board of directors of the Shoppe, handing the check to Jan Boss, president of the board of the Sunshine Club. The Club will provide after-school care for elementary aged children. It will be housed in the Community Reformed Church and is open to all kids in the school district.

Season all-sports tickets on sale

Season tickets for all home games at the Charlevoix High School will go on sale at the high school office on East Garfield on Monday, Aug. 18.

The first home football game of the season will be played at Kipke Field at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 5, with the Petoskey Northmen.

Ticket prices will be as follows: student all sports, $15; adult all sports, $30; and family all sports (parents and K-12 children only), $55.

Sports fans are reminded that the tickets cover only home scheduled athletic events.

Individual ticket prices at the gate are $2 per person.

Additional information relating to tickets may be obtained by calling the high school office, 547-3222.

Norwood grads meet

Plans are being made for a biennial reunion of students, teachers and board members of the former Norwood School located in Norwood Township.

The event is planned for noon on Saturday, Aug. 30, at the site of the former school in the village of Norwood now known as Friendship Hall, a community meeting place.

Those planning to attend are asked to bring a dish to pass and their own table service. The meat, rolls and beverage will be furnished.

State planners meet at Boyne

by PEG OHLE

When the Michigan Society of Planning Officials meets for its Annual Conference at Boyne Mountain Lodge, October 2 to 4, one of the highlights will be a tour of second-and-recreational home projects in Charlevoix County.

Co-sponsored by the Charlevoix County Department, the guided bus tour will cover the condominiums on Round Lake in Charlevoix, the Nine Mile Point development on Lake Michigan in Hayes Township, the Hemingway Point and Water's Edge developments in Eveline, Marion, and Charlevoix Townships on the south side of Lake Charlevoix, Wildwood on Walloon on Walloon Lake in Bay Township, and The Harborage on Lake Charlevoix in Boyne City.

Among the many workshops scheduled for the conference is one with local background. Titled "Ballot Box Zoning", the workshop will consider the growing tendency of citizens to take dissatisfaction with local zoning decisions to the ballot box. Marsha Trimper of Charlevoix and a member of ALERT (which forced the question of rezoning for Water's Edge to be placed on the ballot), will be one of the speakers at this session. She and Jeff Cohee, Director of Planning for the city of Rochester Hills, will discuss ballot box zoning issues in Charlevoix, Rochester Hills, and Gaylord.

Other workshops include "Retaining Farmland and Rural Open Space" (Gary Harsch, Charlevoix City Planner, will be one of the speakers at this session); "Tax Abatements and Tax Increment Financing: Local Incentives or Regional Theft?"; "Michigan Waterways: Protecting and Regulating the State's Most Unique Natural Resource"; "Historic Preservation: Its Importance in Planning"; "Waterfront Development: The Planning Process"; "City-County-Township Governments: Interdependence and Independence"; "The Role of Landfills in Solid Waste Management"; "Local Institutional Zoning Issues"; "Zoning and the Federal Courts: Free Speech and Expensive Takings"; among other topics.

It is not necessary to be a member of the Michigan Society of Planning Officials to attend the Conference, although daily fees will be charged those attending the workshops and banquets.

Genealogists gather

A meeting for genealogists will be held Saturday morning, August 23, at the Big Boy Restaurant in Gaylord, beginning at 9:30. The possibility of joint meetings of genealogy groups in northwest Michigan will be explored.

Such joint meetings would provide for mutual help and support, one-day workshops, exchange of information, various methods of research, assessment of local resources, and discussion of subjects of importance to each local group.

Further information about the Gaylord meeting may be obtained from Aletha Arnold, 106 Green Street, Charlevoix, phone 547-2667.

I LEARNED ABOUT Lou Metzler's new scholarship program in a very roundabout way. He certainly isn't doing it for self glorification, you can be sure. So why is he giving his student summer employees - all 24 of them in the Charlevoix and Petoskey stores - the opportunity to win $1,000, $750 and $500 scholarships?

"The scholarship is not based on financial need," says Lou. "It is based on a young person's outlook and attitude. We hope our student employees will take their jobs seriously, because we depend on them. Oh, I know it's hard to work a 40 hour week or more during the summer, when all ones' friends are out waterskiing and having fun.

"I guess it's a form of recognition and encouragement for those who wish to go into business as a career. The scholarship check is made out to the school of the student's choice. We hope our young people will stay in school and complete their education."

So do I, Lou. So do I.

MARION PRICE HARRISON called from Ironton to tell me she saw a Charlevoix T-shirt this summer while on an Alaskan cruise in Glacier Bay. Not only that, but the lady wearing the T-shirt was from Mexico! It seems her daughter lives in Michigan and the family visited Charlevoix for a day.

So far now, we've recorded seeing Charlevoix T-shirts in Los Angeles, London, Cambridge, Boston, and now Glacier Bay, Alaska. There must be more.

SOME OF OUR CHICAGO visitors may be interested to know that Edwin Eisendrath, age 28, is running for alderman in the 43rd ward in Chicago. (That's the Lincoln Park, Gold Coast area). He is an independent candidate in the February election.

Edwin has spent 10 days every glorious summer in Charlevoix since he was born, and recently purchased property on Beaver Island, where he hopes to build.

"I want to thank my summer friends, who have made campaign contributions, but the greatest campaign contribution of all is the time I have spent in Charlevoix. It's given me the rest and energy to do the kind of hard-hitting campaigning I need to do to win," says Edwin.

"What do you look forward to, when you think of coming to Charlevoix?" I asked Edwin.

"To rest, read, water-ski, boardsail, also play tennis. To climb Mt. McSauba and look at the view. To eat einnamon French toast. (Guess where?) and to see my friends."

Wouldn't it be nice if we could all vote for him?

MOST OF THE old timers will want to know that our popular pianist, Les Payne, is leaving the area this weekend. He and his wife, Ruth, are moving to Louisiana to be near Ruth's daughter and son-in-law.

Oh, what stories he could tell.

Les used to play at the Belvedere Hotel every summer, before it was torn down, in the early 50s. After that he played for 10 years at the Chimney Corners, which is now La Senorita, in Petoskey. And for the last few years he's played with the Epsilon Jass Band. His smiling face and pleasant, gentlemanly manner always helped to make things go. It won't seem the same around here without him.

For those of us who want to keep in touch, his new address is 8200 Dogwood Trail, Haughton, LA 71037.

RECENT CHARLEVOIX visitors were Wendy and Brian Froud with two-year-old son Toby, seen with Wendy's mother, Peggy Midener, at the July opening of her exhibit of fantasy boxes at the wonderful new Koucky Gallery on Bridge Street. Walter Midener, well-known sculptor, father, grandfather, and husband of the above, also has work on display at the gallery.

The Frouds were on a short R&R from their home in England where they have completed work on the latest Jim Henson film "Labyrinth." Brian was again the conceptual designer (as in "Dark Crystal") and Wendy is credited with the creation of several goblin and faerie folk.

To round out the artistic family, Toby at age one appeared in a leading role, with rock-star David Bowie, playing the demanding part of crying baby who is snatched away by goblins. Quite a credit to tuck away in one's baby book.

The proud parents report he enjoyed seeing himself in the movies, loves goblins, and looks forward to another visit with his grandparents in East Jordan next summer.

Attention all bicycle riders: As you know, bicycles (and skateboards) are not legal on city sidewalks. Please use one of the three bicycle racks the city has provided to park your bike and walk. Racks are located at the side of Burnsides, the library and the Chamber of Commerce.

Rite-Aid Drugstore will be giving free blood-pressure testing Wednesday, August 13th from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The Michigan Chamber Executives summer conference was at Schuss Mountain last week. Many new and interesting ideas were shared including: new fund-raising approaches, telemarketing and management tips.

Mark your calendars for the Downtown Sidewalk Sale Days, August 14, 15 and 16. The city has asked that the following stipulations be met: 1) no parking space be used for displaying merchandise, 2) only existing businesses in the downtown area may participate, 3) merchandise must be set up on sidewalks to allow reasonable flow of pedestrian traffic.

Your cooperation is appreciated during the busy sidewalk sale days. Cash in on the great bargains.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

My sermonizing was interrupted by the sound of my daughter's tears. One of her favorite dolls had lost an arm and she thought it was ruined forever. I put my books aside and went to her to see if I could fix it. The arm had just come out of its socket. A little push and a twist saw it as good as new. Where there was a flood of sadness, joy now filled the room.

In the seventh chapter of Luke, you will read of a widow whose heart was destroyed by the death of her only son. The sounds of grief stirred the inmost parts of Jesus' being. Worlds of comfort could come from anyone. Jesus ministered to her with words and with action. Her son was restored to life. What wonder and joy filled them all.

There are cries of sorrow that cross our lives daily. Some cries have visible tears. All too many show up as broken hearts or spirits. The compassion of Christ reached out to you when you needed it. That same compassion can work through you.

You can do more than you might realize: Your efforts might not seem miraculous to you. But to the person you bless, it may be the difference that pulls them through. Take time to listen and care whenever you hear the cry of someone's heart.

Chorlevoix Work Ethic

By Bob Clock

I wonder what would happen to Charlevoix as a resort community if everyone under age 20 were suddenly removed from the workforce as of July 1?

I strongly suspect the city would go belly up.

It is surprising how many young people are working this summer, helping keep the wheels of the tourist industry turning: Cooks, hosts, hostesses, waiters, waitresses, busboys, busgirls, dishwashers, sales clerks, stock handlers, grass cutters, window washers, chauffeurs, babysitters, lifeguards, camp counselors, office aides, motel desk clerks, housekeepers, recreation staffers — the job classifications are endless.

We wouldn't have enough adults to fill in if they all decided to go on strike.

OF COURSE, they are not about to go on strike. They are being paid for their labors and the money they earn today will come in handy during the winter doldrums.

Probably more important, these kids are acquiring something that has never had a name until now: The Charlevoix Work Ethic.

I have a number of these people living under my roof — and I have never heard one of them complain that the work is too hard or the hours too long. They take split shifts or graveyard shifts without complaint and are willing to pitch in wherever needed.

The training they receive and the work habits they develop under Charlevoix's experienced entrepreneurs certainly will serve them well once they enter the world of year-round employment.

They also are learning the importance of tact in dealing with the public. The wide variety of people they come in contact with — from across the nation and around the world — is something of a liberal education in itself.

Anyone who works an entire summer catering to Charlevoix's summer visitors should certainly should mention the fact during his or her next job interview. I can't think of a better recommendation for future employment of any kind.

THE WATERFRONT Art Fair Saturday was the biggest since Clockwise hove into town 21 years ago.

The park was jammed to capacity by 10:30 a.m. and apparently the stream of visitors continued without letup until late afternoon, judging from the number of cars parked not only in the valley but on both the north and south hills.

The Charlevoix fair has the reputation of being second only to Ann Arbor's insofar as spectator participation is concerned. But the Ann Arbor fair continues several days, whereas the Charlevoix fair lasts only a single day.

I wouldn't be surprised if more art works didn't change hands Saturday in Charlevoix than on any single day of the Ann Arbor exhibition in July. Charlevoix certainly seemed to have as many buyers as browsers this year, judging from the number of folks I saw leaving East Park with an objet d'art in tow.

Letters to the Editor:

Intersections pose problem

Dear Editor:

I wish to call attention to the problems of two intersections which occur between highway U.S. 31 south and the Clipperview subdivision which borders Lake Michigan. The paved roads involved have recently been renamed. The newly-named "Witmere" joins "Clipperview Road" at a tee; this intersection is unmarked save for a yellow direction sign which indicated that one must turn either right or left.

This situation is very dangerous; as drivers traveling from town at high speeds on Witmere assume the right-of-way in their left turns onto Clipperview Road, as do drivers traveling toward town straight on Clipperview Road. An accident will occur at this intersection unless signs are installed to halt traffic.

A yield sign has been placed at the end of Clipperview Road where it intersects and ends in a tee with the newly-named "Lakeshore Drive." Drivers traveling toward the lake must turn right or left at this point and usually are moving at higher speeds than those just leaving the subdivision via Lakeshore Drive.

In my experience, drivers on Clipperview Road have no intention of "yielding" at his point, and would be happy to demonstrate their disregard for my posted right-of-way by smashing into the side of my car, were I foolish enough to insist on it. In my opinion, it would be more appropriate to require both ends of Lakeshore Drive to stop, or at least yield, rather than to require Clipperview Road to yield.

I believe the changes suggested above would at least give the drivers in the affected area an opportunity to operate their vehicles more safely.

Pedestrians need protection

Dear Editor:

As a long-time resident of Charlevoix and a supporter of our community, I have watched the change on Bridge Street over the years. A great deal of effort has been given to the beautification and development of the retail area, however, I believe a serious problem has not been given sufficient attention by both the business community or the city fathers. The question of pedestrian traffic seems to be overlooked by all parties concerned.

One only needs to stand out at the downtown intersections on Saturday and Sunday and watch the pedestrians as they try to cross in the properly designated crosswalk. Vehicular traffic seems little concerned about the citizens who take their life in their hands each and everytime they cross Bridge Street.

It does not appear that Michigan requires the motorist to give the right of way to pedestrian traffic in a crosswalk but expects both parties to use a reasonable standard of care. It is my suggestion that yellow caution lights be installed at each and every block from Antrim to the Bridge for Bridge Street traffic, placing a greater burden of care on the motorist.

Further, counsel for the city should investigate the possibility of passing an ordinance which will allow the city to require motorists to stop while pedestrians are in the crosswalks. The traffic on Bridge Street although a state highway should be controlled by city ordinance as well.

It's time for the city to quit its ongoing investigation of the traffic flow problem and begin to take some positive steps to control the situation.

Engagements

Margaret Hausladen and Patrick Schmidt

Hausladen - Schmidt

Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Hausladen of White Bear Lake, Minnesota announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Elaine, to Patrick P. Schmidt. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Schmidt of Charlevoix.

The bride-to-be attended Mariner-White Bear Lake High School and is presently employed by Honeywell, Inc. Her fiance is a 1979 graduate of Charlevoix High School and a later graduate of Ferris State College, from which he received a bachelor's degree in Business Administration. He is presently employed by Honeywell in the Military Avionics Division and is pursuing studies for a master's degree from St. Thomas College in St. Paul.

The wedding will take place November 29 at St. Olidia Church in St. Paul.

E. Jordan Garden Club plans flower show

Both professional and novice flower arranger and growers are welcome to enter the East Jordan Garden Club flower show, to be held Monday, August 18, from noon to 5 p.m. in the Evangelical Lutheran Church Fellowship Hall, 302 Nicholls, East Jordan. This year's theme is "Flowers for Liberty."

The floral arrangement category will have nine classes, ranging from an arrangement of fresh flowers suggesting the Statue of Liberty, to a floral centerpiece complementing one place setting for Lady Liberty's birthday party. The horticultural category, with four classes, offers growers of hanging baskets, small or large foliage house plants, single blooms of cut flowers (roses, annuals, perennials, bulbs and tubers), and vegetables an opportunity for entry.

Judges will be Phyllis Block, Portia Crawford, Lois Pollock and Annabelle Webb. Bert Stanley, of the Cooperative Extension Office of Antrim County, will judge vegetables and plants.

For further information please call 536-3733, 536-7631 or 536-7382.

House tour proves to be big success

The recent Home Tour sponsored by the Kappa Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority proved to be a very successful venture, Pam Newcomb, co-chairperson with Sue Fowler, has reported. Approximately 350 tickets were sold.

As a result, the chapter will be soon making its annual contribution to the Charlevoix Area Hospital, always the beneficiary of the tour. This year the funds will be used toward the purchase of a volume metric infusion pump, Mrs. Newcomb said.

In the interim, the sorority members would like to express their appreciation to the five families who opened their homes for the tour: Mr. and Mrs. Raymond MacGillivray, Mr. and Mrs. Tim Moore, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Anderson, Dr. and Mrs. Gerald Rakotz and Dr. and Mrs. Reed Friedinger.

Hostesses at the respective homes were Cindy Urban and Kathy Engel at the MacGillivray home; Glenda Wilhelm and Joyce Kern, the Moore home; Kris Schaperkotter and Sue Bartlett, the Anderson Home; Pat Gaskin and Jeanne Heininger, the Rakotz home and Pat Ricks and Cindy Whitley, the Friedinger home.

The group would also like to acknowledge the beautiful floral arrangements donated by the Charlevoix Garden Club, Expressions Unlimited, Charlevoix Floral, Greenleaf Gardens, and the Country Blossom.

Those who sold tickets for the event were the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Apple Tree and Shop of the Gulls.

"This has been a community effort. We of the sorority would like to express our appreciation to all those who helped make the Home Tour a success," Mrs. Newcomb said.

Kwikie captures women's title, upset in tournament play

Women's League

Kwikie Printing, in its first appearance of the Charlevoix women's softball tournament, was upset by Town House 17-9 Thursday night, dropping the league champions into the loser's bracket.

In the second game, Wojan beat Hoskins 17-2 and in the nightcap, Kwikie snapped back from its earlier loss to defeat Wojan 15-14 in a game that went eight innings.

In the upset game, Terri Wilson of Town House allowed 14 hits while the Clanaghan brought in the winning run. Earlier in the game, she had hit a bases-loaded homer to score four of the team's runs.

Play in the tournament will continue Thursday with a game scheduled for 6:30 p.m. with the finals in the men's tournament to be played at 7:45 p.m. If extra games are needed, they will be played at 9:00 p.m.

Games in the men's tournament will also be played at 6:30 and 7:45 if necessary.

losing pitcher, Vickie Flowers, allowed 12.

Hoskins scored only two runs on the nine hits allowed by Meda Kehrer while Marsha Hansen, who took the loss, gave up 24 in the Wojan-Hoskins game.

In the nightcap, Wojan rolled up a nine-run lead going into the seventh inning only to have Kwikie get hot and score nine runs to tie the score in the bottom of the seventh inning.

The score remained tied until the bottom of the eighth when Angie Mc-

Islanders win tournament

ST. JAMES, Beaver Island-The Beaver Islanders, one of two island teams entered in the 11th annual Beaver Island Bud McDonough Memorial Softball Tournament, claimed the tournament title after heavy rains washed out the final games of the event.

The Beaver Islanders had defeated Town House 4-2 in the finals of the winner's bracket with Town House scheduled to play the winner of the Rich's Topside Cafe-Paul Bunyan Lanes game on Sunday when rains called a halt to the tournament.

The Beaver Islanders were awarded the Bud McDonough Memorial Trophy; Town House of Charlevoix the second place trophy with Topside and Paul Bunyan Lanes sharing third place honors.

Corey Einhardt of the Beaver Islanders was awarded the Most Valuable Player trophy and Ed Maudrie, also for the Beaver Islanders, the batting title with a .667 average. Tom McDonough, Rusty Gunser and Dave Phillips, also of the Beaver Islanders, shared the home run title.

The Jewell Perry Gillespie Memorial Home Run Derby that was to follow the tournament was also cancelled because of the rain and the trophy given to the parents, Daniel and Tammy Gillespie of Charlevoix.

In the Beaver Islanders-Town House game late Saturday, the Islanders edged the Barmen 4-2 behind the six-hit pitching of Don Willis. Jim Werner had allowed eight hits.

The Islanders came through the winner's bracket after defeating Nordic Bar of Boyne City 16-1 and Paul Bunyan Lanes 7-5.

Town House defeated the second island team, the Shamrock Bar, 10-5 and Rich's Topside Cafe 9-2 before losing to the Beaver Islanders 4-2.

In other games in the winner's bracket, Paul Bunyan Lanes won over Swanson's K&S, 9-1 and Topside Cafe downed DeKelyer's Roofing of Grand Rapids 8-2.

In the loser's bracket, Nordic Bar defeated Swanson's 11-6; Shamrock Bar beat DeKiever's Roofing (no score reported); Rich's Topside eliminated Nordic Bar 13-2 and Paul Bunyan Lanes won over Shamrock Bar 8-4.

The weather held up the start of the tournament until 8 a.m. Saturday. All games were played under sunny skies Saturday.

Grey Gables wins crown

Men's League

As the men's slowpitch league goes into its final week of play, Rich's Topside Cafe defeated Pine Hill Nursery 19-15, Grey Gables shut out Glen's Market 7-0 and North Country Sanitation downed Town House 11-9.

Phil Skeel pitched the Topside to its win over Pine Hill, allowing 19 hits to Ken Peebles 25. Peebles also had a three-run homer but it was not enough to give his team the game.

Glen's Market was unable to capitalize on the seven hits off Howard Zoet as the team suffered a 7-0 shutout at the hands of Ray LaVoie who gave up only seven hits. Mike Loper had a three-run homer for the victors.

Dave Farnsworth pitched North Country Sanitation to an 11-9 win over Town House with Jim Werner taking the loss. Werner allowed 15 hits and Farnsworth 13.

Grey Gables wrapped up the 1986 men's softball title Thursday night when they defeated contender, Rich's Topside Cafe, winner of the first round by a score of 11-9. In other games, Glen's Market upset Paul Bunyan Lanes 9-5 and Pine Hill Nursery defeated McLelland Home Furnishings 11-6.

Two-run homers by Joe Jones and Randy Holecheck gave the winning pitcher, Ray LaVoie the extra momentum he needed for the victory. Phil Skeel gave up 15 hits. Brent Cole clouted a three-run home run for Topside.

Howard Zoet gave up nine hits as he pitched Glen's Market to a 9-4 upset over Paul Bunyan Lanes. Dan Gillespie alldwed 18 hits as the losing pitcher.

Eric Towe had a three run home run for the Nursery as Pine Hill defeated McLelland 11-6.

Ken Peebles as the winning pitcher allowed 12 hits. Bill Gauthier gave up 21.

The league closed out its regular season Thursday night with the two top teams in the league losing.

Grey Gables fell victim to last place McLelland 8-7; Paul Bunyan Lanes dumped second place Rich's Topside Cafe 11-2 and Glen's Market defeated Town House 15-6.

Bill Gauthier pitched McLelland to its fourth win of the season, allowing 12 hits while Jim Mash, who took the loss, gave up 14 hits.

Bill Herriman had a two-run homer for the winning cause while Joe Jones had two and Mike Loper one solo hit for the Gables.

Rich's Topside Cafe managed only two runs off the nine hits given up by Dan Gillespie while Paul Bunyan Lanes scored on 11 of the 15 allowed by Phil Skeel who took the loss.

Howard Zoet was the winning pitcher in the Glen's Market-Town House meeting. He allowed only 10 hits to Bob Alexander's 23.

State recreation plan released

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) recently released the 1985-90 Michigan Recreation Plan. The result of a six-year planning and development process, the Recreation Plan provides a strategic framework for state actions such as buying land, developing recreation facilities and making grants available to local units of government.

The plan qualifies Michigan for Federal Land and Water Conservation Funds, a grant program to help local units of government buy land and develop facilities, for outdoor recreation. DNR, which administers the funds, will use the new project selection process that includes a priority rating system described in the plan.

Joseph Seavey, DNR Recreation Services Division Chief, says "The plan will provide direction for the department to select recreation sites and improve recreational opportunities throughout the state. This plan represents a wide variety of ideas from both private and public outdoor recreation providers."

After the extensive public comment, DNR's internal Recreation Task Force reviewed the plan.

Statewide recreation issues addressed in the plan are grouped in six categories: marketing, resource protection, facility development, close-to-home recreation; financing; and planning, research and coordination. Over the next five years, the DNR will improve its administration of recreation programs, seek legislation where appropriate, and improve the coordination of services and information available to residents, visitors and potential visitors to the state.

Yachting Notes

by A. NONY MOUSE

Commodore John Coolman has informed the Mouse that the entries for the Budweiser Olympic Triangle and the Red Fox Regatta are beginning to snowball and that is he considerlng curtailing the number of entries at 75 boats, so if you are still holding out, it's about time you make your decision or watch from the shore.

Racers should be receiving in the mail revised CYC racing rules, according to the Commodore, who has been working with the race committee chairman Craig Tallberg. Be certain to study the instructions for the differentiation between DNF (did not finish) and RET (retired from racing). They are not synonymous and will not be scored as such.

Well, Bunger has provided the mouse with an updated version of the summer series total of six races. The shortened course of 8-6 brought home:

Fleet 1: Charlie Brown, Slapshot, Gotcha, Kritter, Piggie, FlyMach, Plas Fas.

Fleet 2: Babe (pending protest), Merry Hell, Flash, Bandit, Wingnut.

Fleet 3: Cygnus, Spectre, Blasen, Nulli Secundus, SanSueShe, Tireless.

Fleet 4: Mud Duck, Canusa, Mint Julip, Ribit, Kittiwake.

Fleet 5: Maureen Sandpiper, Apothecary, Cheemaun.

The Serles to date with no throwouts is as follows:

Fleet 1: Charlie Brown 7.25; Slapshot 16.25; Kritter 19.75; Pygmalion 25; Plastic Fantastic 25.25; Gotcha 29.5; Flying Machine 36.

Fleet 2: Wingnut 11.25; Babe 18; Brass Tacks 19.25; Merry Hell 20; Bandit 20; Flash 33.75.

Fleet 3: Spectre 12.5; Blasen 14; Cygnus 15.25; Tireless 19.5; Nulli Secundus 25.25; Phoenicia 38; SanSueShe 40.

Fleet 4: Mud Duck 4; Canusa 14.75; Ribit 15.5; Kittiwake 22.5; Mint Julip 25.5.

Fleet 5: Marueen 11.25; Sandpiper 15; Cheemaun 15.5; Apothecary 20; Te-Gi 25.25; Stalworth 30; Coolwhip 39; Carousel 41.

ISLAND NURSE

Mike McGinnity tends the flock on Beaver Island as both nurse and lay minister

Story and photos by Doug Truax

ST. JAMES, Beaver Island – Dressed in a faded blue workshirt and jeans and driving a beat-up pickup truck, you might not pick Mike McGinnity as either a doctor or a priest. And in truth he is neither. But as nurse and lay minister on this isolated island, McGinnity serves as the day-to-day chief medical practitioner and minister for the Beaver Island's inhabitants.

McGinnity begins his day behind the altar of the Holy Cross Church where, as lay minister, he conducts the daily communion service for the island's predominantly Catholic population.

When the service is over, McGinnity walks next door to the Beaver Island Medical Clinic, the smallest licensed hospital in the state of Michigan – which officially has three beds if the examining rooms are used, but in reality has one set up on a permanent basis.

Without having to exchange hats, or even change his casual dress, McGinnity takes up his role as the island "nurse-practitioner" for this small island located far out in Lake Michigan.

With a name like McGinnity and the shock of red hair, you just might assume that here, indeed, is a native Beaver Islander. But until a year ago, Mike McGinnity was a stranger to this place.

In his short tenure, however, he has become an important link in the spiritual and physical life of the island.

Located some 32 miles by ferry boat or air from Charlevoix, Beaver Island is well-known to many as a rough-and-tumble tourist destination and a location for summer residents and boaters with a taste for quiet nights and serene sunsets and bumpy gravel roads. It is something of a throwback to the tourist era of 30 or 40 years ago, sporting few of the chic shops and high-priced condominiums which have taken over the mainland.

It is known too for its colorful history, from the Morman empire of King Strang to the large immigration of Irish fishermen and loggers. Although its year-round population once numbered 2,000 residents during the turn of the century, Beaver Island's permanent population is now some 350 and during the summer the island swells to 2,000 to 3,000.

Its diminutive size and remote location make Beaver Island something of a curiosity ... and create difficulty in providing the services most mainlanders take for granted.

Over a year ago the island doctor retired. The Michigan Department of Public Health, which had subsidized the position since 1927 – primarily with aging doctors who wanted a brief pre-retirement stint in a peaceful surrounding, could no longer come up with a willing applicant.

Not long after, the Island lost its full-time priest.

Enter Mike McGinnity.

His introduction to the island came through the offices of Drs. Dennis Joy, F. James Stewart and Edward Newcomb in Charlevoix. The doctors devised a plan of a "physician extender" for the island – a licensed nurse who would remain in residence, supported by the medical doctors on the mainland. Once a week one of the doctors would make a weekly visit to tend to those more difficult cases which could be scheduled for appointment. The three doctors would also be on emergency call, only 15 minutes away by plane if the need arose.

McGinnity, who at the time was working as a nurse in Gladstone in the Upper Peninsula, was contacted by Dr. Stewart. The two had worked together during Stewart's internship at Midland Hospital Center five years earlier. Would Mike be interested in being the nurse on Beaver Island, Dr. Stewart wanted to know.

McGinnity says he had to go to his car and get a road map to find out where Beaver Island is.

The Charlevoix doctors' physician extender plan was accepted by the Public Health Department and the island residents. McGinnity, who was beginning to feel a little burned out after five years of 10 to 11-hour days in the UP, readily accepted.

"It was a little difficult at the beginning," he says. "People here were unhappy about not having a doctor on the island. The first summer was not as busy. But this summer has been very busy. The residents are realizing they can get as good a medical care as anywhere else. I think they have come to accept me for what I can do."

The islanders seem to agree, taking to this warm, easy-going Irishman as to a native son. Marilyn Damstra moved to the Island two years ago with her builder husband. She works in the clinic as a receptionist and office worker for about 30 hours each week. "Mike is one in a million," she says with pride. "You don't meet people like him very often. He genuinely cares about people. They can come in and talk with him about very personal problems. People are very lucky to have him here, and I think they know that."

The isolation of the island from events and people on the mainland has not been a major drawback for McGinnity who savors the country life. In the UP, he lived 25 miles from work and raised chickens and rabbits, butchered his own hog each year and shot a deer each season. On Beaver Island, he and his wife, Patricia, and their two boys, aged 9 and 13, currently live some three miles south of St. James. They rent an old farmhouse and are again raising some chickens and tending a garden.

The only disadvantage, Mike says, is that being on 24-hour call, seven days a week can take its toll. To fly off the island for a little R and R, however, costs him $140 roundtrip. He hopes someday, however, to get a private pilot's license so that he can make the 15-minute trip to Charlevoix more often.

He also dreams of building a house and settling down. In the year the family has been on the island they have moved three times – outside of town when rents go up in St. James during the summer, and move to town during the winter months.

Injured in a fall on the family sailboat, Derek Fulmer of Traverse City gets stitches as his mother, Linda, provides comfort.

As island nurse McGinnity takes care of a wide variety of medical problems, from sewing up frequent lacerations to treating minor fractures. He treats burns, splinters, abscesses and urinary tract infections and handles many of the routine ear, nose and throat problems. He also phones in prescriptions to the mainland. The drugs are then sent over by plane, boat or mail, many arriving the same day, if necessary. For emergency situations, he dispenses limited quantities of drugs to patients until they can get to a doctor or pharmacy.

"I either work from phone calls to the doctors' office or from protocols they have set up," McGinnity says. On the phone constantly to the doctors' office or the mainland pharmacies, "I probably have the biggest phone bill of anyone on the island," McGinnity says.

He carefully documents each case and has developed a close working relationship with the mainland doctors so that he knows which cases require a phone call and which he can treat himself.

The Beaver Island Medical Clinic is a trim ranch style building on the King's Highway overlooking the harbor at St. James, the island's only village. At one end of the building there is a dental office where Dr. Jeffrey Porter of Charlevoix treats patients once a week. The rest of the building is reserved for the clinic.

The nurse practioner takes a blood sample from islander Bill Allen.

There are two examining rooms, the one bed hospital room with a single bed and wash basin, a laboratory, x-ray room, reception area, and McGinnity's office.

On an average day in the summer the clinic will treat 12 to 15 patients. In the winter the number drops to about eight.

On Tuesday one of the Charlevoix doctors, usually Dr. Newcomb, arrives to handle some 15 or 20 patients, with the assistance of McGinnity and a part-time Licensed Practical Nurse from the island, Joyce Runberg.

During McGinnity's tenure, the hospital room has only been used once – by a woman who developed abdominal pain but could not be flown off the island because of foul weather. She stayed overnight and was flown out the next morning.

McGinnity nearly delivered his first baby in the little hospital last St. Patrick's Day, however. A woman called the clinic to say she was in labor, but fog and ice on the island made the air trip to Charlevoix impossible. McGinnity and Runberg feverishly prepared to deliver the baby. There were frequent phone calls between the island and Dr. Stewart on the mainland as the delivery hour approached.

Just as it appeared the island nurses would be doing the delivery, the weather broke enough for Stewart to fly in, although he reports not seeing the island until the plane was a few feet over the runway.

The plane touched down at noon and Stewart and the island medical team delivered a healthy baby boy at 2 p.m.

As lay pastor he conducts daily communion services at the Holy Cross Church.

McGinnity is on the phone to the mainland constantly.

To help in any medical emergency, the island has initiated a Emergency Medical Training (EMT) program. After the first classes, nine EMT technicians have been certified, including Mike and Joyce. Another course is planned for this fall.

McGinnity says he would like to have two trained paramedics on the island whenever he is gone. The EMTs are also aided by a nearly new ambulance equipped with an advanced cardiac life support unit. The ambulance is used to get victims to the airport for transport to the mainland. "Before, we used the first van to come down the road," McGinnity says.

In the three months they have had the emergency vehicle they have used it eight times.

Born in Detroit and raised in Royal Oak, McGinnity became involved in medicine after leaving the Navy. He took a job as an orderly to see if he would like the field.

He did and promptly enrolled in the nursing program at the College of the Sequoias in Visalia, Calif. After he received his associate's degree, Mike moved back to Michigan and worked in the Midland Hospital for five years, including several years in the emergency room as a trauma nurse.

He was invited by two of the family practitioners at the hospital to come to Gladstone and help them open a new practice. His responsibilities included all of the emergency and trauma care. "The constant training through that five-year period got me prepared for what I am doing at the Beaver Island Clinic," McGinnity says.

McGinnity's unique medical role on the island is paralleled by his role in the church. One of Beaver Island's last resident priests moved to a different state and a new priest was brought in. He stayed only six months before being given a medical retirement last February.

Although a priest from the mainland conducts Mass on Sundays, the Island is without a full-time cleric.

McGinnity, during his stay in the Upper Peninsula, had begun a two-year program from the Lay Pastoral Formation Institute in Marquette designed to prepare him for duties as a lay pastor. He continued and completed the program when he moved to Beaver Island and is now an approved lay minister of the church and will be studying to become a deacon.

McGinnity and another lay minister on the island, Bob Pittman, filled the breach at Holy Cross Church, taking over the daily pastoral duties. The administrative duties are handled by the island's two Catholic nuns.

McGinnity recognizes the difficulty the Beaver Island congregation is going through at this time. But the shortage of priests, he says, is a worldwide trend. "The lay pastorate in future years will be the church," he says. "There are not enough priests coming in."

He believes the long-term trend will be favorable to the church and the Catholics on Beaver Island. "Catholics, particularly, are known for not being called to use their gifts – they have allowed the priest to take care of that," McGinnity says.

"But Catholics are going to have to be more actively involved in the church," he adds. He says the Holy Cross Church is on the cutting edge of this trend. "I look forward to it. I think the future is going to be so much brighter for the church. It is going to enliven the faith of the vast majority of people.

"Something good is going on here, even though it is traumatic to have it going on."

McGinnity finds a close relationship between his dual roles on the island. "I see being a pastoral minister and being the nurse on the island as working hand in hand," he concludes.

Journey to Jerusalem

by ANNE KELLY

Children from seven participating Charlevoix churches made a "Journey to Jerusalem" this summer during the annual vacation bible school program on the grounds of the First Baptist Church on M-66.

It was a comprehensive trip, including visits to key cities in the Holy Land where Jesus grew up, walked and talked, and performed miracles and taught the people of His time about what was to become Christianity - a major world religion. The tour included the cities of Nazareth, Bethesda, Capernaum, Jerico, Jerusalem, Bethany and Emmaus.

At each city, children, carrying passports, were able to see a re-enactment of a special event in the live of Christ. They were able to visit places such as: the River Jordan where John the Baptist baptized his cousin; Bethesda, where the celebrated multiplication of the loaves and fishes took place; Jerusalem, where Jesus shared a special last meal with his friends and Emmaus, where the women discovered the empty tomb after his death.

The tour included craft-making and songs and concluded with a family picnic.

Rev. David Yingling takes the role of John the Baptist.

David Salmonson, left, and Brian Ward feed one of the animals brought to the summer outing. Animals which would have been present at the time of Christ were shown each day.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage made by LADONIS MOONEY and ELEANOR MOONEY, his wife, to CHARLEVOIX COUNTY STATE BANK, a Michigan banking corporation of Charlevoix, Michigan, dated November 25, 1983, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, on December 1, 1983, in Liber 171 of Mortgages, Page 419. As of the date of this Notice, there is claimed to be due on said Mortgage for principal, interest and late fees, the sum of $29,736.25, and no proceedings at law having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said Mortgage has become operative;

NOW, THEREFORE, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described, or so much thereof as may be necessary, at a public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the County Building in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place of holding the Circuit Court in and for said County, on Wednesday, September 3, 1986, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, and said premises will be sold to pay the amount so as aforesaid then due on said Mortgage, together with 15 percent interest, legal costs, attorney fees as provided by law and any taxes and insurance that said Mortgagee, Charlevoix County State Bank, does pay on or prior to the date of said sale, said premises being described as follows:

Land located in the Township of St. James, Charlevoix County, Michigan, described as: Beginning at the Northeast corner of the Arthur C. Pischner and Mary M. Pischner lot in Government Lot 5, Section 23, Town 39 North, Range 10 West, according to the deed recorded in Deed Liber 167, Page 309, in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan, which point is also on the South line of Clyde Francis Hinckley and Violet M. Hinckley lot, according to the deed recorded in Deed Liber 125, Page 46, in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan; thence East along the South line of said Hinckley lot 4 feet to the Southeast corner thereof; thence North along the East line of said Hinckley lot 109 feet to the Northeast corner thereof; thence West along the North line of said Hinckley lot 100 feet to the Southeast corner of the George A. Trude and Charlotte E. Trude lot, according to the deed recorded in Deed Liber 142, Page 198, in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan; thence North along the East line of said Trude lot 50 feet to the Northeast corner thereof; thence West along the North line of said Trude lot 100 feet to the Northwest corner thereof; thence North to the North line of Government Lot 5 of said Section 23; thence East along the North line of said Government Lot 5 to the Northeast corner thereof; thence South 20 feet to the Northeast corner of the Charles Martin and Marion Martin lot according to the deed recorded in Deed Liber 161, Page 557, in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan; thence West along the North line of said Martin lot 100 feet to the Northwest corner thereof, which is also the Northeast corner of the James A. Carpenter and Fern E. Carpenter lot, according to the deed recorded in Deed Liber 170, Page 302 in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan; thence continuing West along the North line of said Carpenter lot to the Northwest corner of said lot; thence further continuing West along said last described course 150 feet; thence South, parallel with the West line of said Carpenter lot 165 feet; thence East, along the Westerly extension of said Carpenter lot and along the South line of the said Carpenter and Martin lots 350 feet to the Southeast corner of said Martin lot, which is also on the East line of said Government Lot 5; thence South along the East line of said Government Lot 5, to the South line of said Arthur C. Pischner and Mary M. Pischner lot, if extended East; thence West along said line 478 feet, more or less, to the Southeast corner of said Pischner lot; thence North along the East line of said Pischner lot 217 feet to the point of beginning; being a part of Government Lot 5, Section 23, Town 39 North, Range 10 West. The above described lot is subject to any roadways there might be.

The length of the redemption period of said Mortgage as made and provided by statute is 12 months from the time of the sale.

New church begins services in Charlevoix

The new Charlevoix Baptist Chapel, sponsored by the Cherryland Baptist Church in Traverse City, is currently conducting Sunday services in the train depot at the end of Chicago Street. Art Horst is pastor. The Horst family has been living in the Charlevoix area since August 1985.

Sunday school begins at 10 a.m. and worship service at 11 a.m.

The church introduced itself to the community the last week of July with backyard bible clubs in various areas of town. A visiting youth group from Jonesboro, Arkansas sang at East Park and there was a three-day revival featuring Jerry Muckenstrum, former outside linebacker for the Chicago Bears.

The pastor says that "emphasis will be placed on teaching and preaching the Bible, meeting people's needs and presenting Jesus Christ as a personal savior. When the Bible is preached and taught it has a way of changing peoples' lives and drawing them to Christ."

"The question that many people ask is why does Charlevoix need another Church?" Pastor Horst said, "The answer is that the church of Christ is not made of brick and mortar but of people. As long as there are people without Christ then there is room for another witness."

Annual Senior Olympics planned

Local men and women aged 55 and over have only three weeks to get themselves in shape for the Eighth Annual Senior Olympics, scheduled for Thursday and Friday, September 4 and 5, in Traverse City.

Sponsored by Northwest Senior Resources, Inc., and the Traverse City Eagles, the Olympics will provide competition in shooting a basketball, chipping a golf ball, tossing a frisbee, pitching horseshoes, walking a mile, playing eight-ball pool, playing euchre, shuffling on a shuffleboard, bowling at a bowling alley, golfing at a golf course, and swimming in a pool. Participants may compete in as many or as few events as they wish.

First, second, and third place awards will be presented at a banquet on Friday evening. There will be a $2 registration fee for the Olympics, with additional fees for the awards banquet, bowling, and golf.

Further information about the event may be obtained from the Senior Centers in Charlevoix, East Jordan, and Boyne City, or by calling 582-7301.

Health Care Center gets approval

The proposed Charlevoix Health Care Center, a 107-bed skilled nursing and residential care facility, last week received the approval of the Board of Directors of the Northern Michigan Health Services Agency and will soon be considered by the State Division of Health Facility construction in Lansing.

Ralph McRae, local representative for the Health Center, says he expects state approval by September 15, after which final architectural plans will be drawn up.

The Charlevoix Health Care Center will be located on seven acres of land near the Charlevoix Area Hospital and the offices of several local physicians. It will consist of 49 beds for skilled nursing care patients and 58 beds for persons who do not require regular medical attention.

The Health Center will be operated by Liberatore Health Care, Inc., of Columbus, Ohio, who operate several other Health Care Centers in the midwest. Construction will start some time early next year, according to McRae.

Kindergarten registrations required

Parents of children in the Charlevoix School District who are not registered for the fall kindergarten term are requested to call the Elementary School office at 547-3215 on Monday, August 18, to make an appointment to have their child registered.

Parents are advised that they must have the child's birth certificate and up-to-date immunization records when registering the child.

Parents or guardians are asked to bring only the child to be registered to the appointment as the child will be given a kindergarten readiness test. They are also advised to allow at least 45 minutes for the appointment.

RESOLUTION TO VACATE A PART OF STREET OR ALLEY

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Charlevoix has the power and authority to vacate, discontinue, and abolish streets and alleys or any part thereof pursuant to MCLA 192.3, MSA 5.1808; and

WHEREAS, The City Council of the City of Charlevoix after due investigation and consideration, has determined that the nature and extent of the public use and of the public interest to be subserved is such as to warrant the vacation of a part of a public street or alley as described below, and

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Charlevoix is heretofore considered the public interest, present and future, in vacating and abandoning the part of the alley or street described below and have deemed that the same shall be a public improvement, and

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED

By the Council of the City of Charlevoix, that all that part of said alley or street described in the attached Exhibit "A", incorporated herein by reference, and further colored in red and indicated by the words "to be vacated" on the drawing attached hereto and marked Exhibit "A", which drawing for greater certainty is hereby made a part of this Resolution, is no longer required for the public use and the public interest will be subserved by such vacation, and

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED that the City Council shall meet and hear objections, if any, as to said vacation of the part of the alley or street so described on September 2, 1986, and that Notice of such meeting with a copy of said Resolution shall be published for not less than four (4) weeks before the aforesaid time appointed for such meeting, and

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED that objections to said proposed vacation of the part of the alley or street described in Exhibit "A" may be filed with the Charlevoix City Clerk in writing, and if such objection shall be filed, said alley or street or any part thereof shall not be vacated or discontinued except by concuring vote of two-thirds (2/3) of the Councilmembers elect

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED that the City of Charlevoix shall reserve an easement on all such parts of the alley or street described in attached Exhibit "A" for public utility purposes within the right of way so described members requested that Wiesner obtain bids on the repair or replacement of the shell before proceeding further with the Downtown Development Authority. Bud Gebeau told council the band shell was never completed and council should investigate a portable band shell as used by Rogers City.

Council continues electric study

Fire Chief John Martin explained to council the need for two 500 gallon gas tanks – for regular and diesel fuel – at the new public safety building. Council had questioned the inclusion of the tanks at its last meeting, and asked why the tanks at the city garage could not be used instead.

Martin said Haggard Piping told him Monday the tanks could be purchased within budget. Using the city garage, he said, would mean increased time and expense for the ambulance drivers who fill up after each of their 300 to 400 runs a year. The fire department tanks, he added, were also used by other city departments.

"It makes for a much more efficient operation," Martin concluded in stating the case for the fuel tanks. Council agreed and unanimously endorsed their inclusion in the new building if the cost was within budget.

Council also approved a resolution establishing an Industrial Development District for Lot 10 of the new industrial park which Donald Hufford of CPI intends to purchase for a new industrial plant.

Women artists shown

Nine women artists will be exhibiting their work in a show titled, "Directions," at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center in Petoskey Aug. 11 through Sept 2.

The women are members of the Detroit Society of Women Painters and Sculptors, an organization from the Detroit metropolitan area founded some 75 years ago.

Artists featured are Martha Cormie, Jeannine Goebel, Margaret Kelleher, Barbara Keiden, Sonia Molnar, Isabelle Rodger, F.C. Scafuri, Rita Skoczen and Frances Waring.

The award-winning artists of this highly diverse and accomplished group have been actively involved in the Michigan art scene and have also exhibited throughout the U.S. Their work is included in many private and corporate collections.

Included in the show will be works in watercolor, acrylic, collage and print making dealing with the subjects of the natural world interpreted in their own creative approaches.

Shown above is the tug Michigan towing a three-masted schooner into Charlevoix harbor. When this picture was taken, the newly constructed channel was about four years old and Charlevoix's first lighthouse, then on the north pier, was only about a year old. From Bob Niles', Charlevoix.

Some things change: once an open-framed lighthouse, billowy-sailed schooners, and stoutly-built wood boats adorned the shore and seas; now we have the new lighthouse and the lightning—fast sailboards that held their national championships in Charlevoix last weekend.

But some things never change ... like the personal service you can count on from Charlevoix County State Bank. For well over 100 years Charlevoix County State Bank has worked side by side with Northern Michigan's families and merchants to make tomorrow a better today.

Household hazardous waste collection planned

Every American household uses products and materials that were unheard of a hundred years ago. Not only do we have new chemical products such as pesticides, medicines, and cleaning solvents, but also everyday products such as shampoo, tires, glue, paint, and plastics. When these products are no longer useful to us, they become wastes. Many of these new kinds of wastes can harm living things - even to the point of being life-threatening.

Such wastes have been termed "hazardous wastes." A hazardous waste is a discarded substance whose chemical or biological nature makes it potentially dangerous to people and other living things.

Man can no longer afford the attitude, "out of sight, out of mind" toward these products. For example, discarded motor oil poured down a storm drain goes directly into our lakes and waterways. It takes only a few parts of oil to contaminate a million parts of water. Hazardous wastes must be disposed of by methods which prevent them from reaching dangerous levels in our environment.

In an effort to bring the issues of proper household hazardous waste disposal to the attention of northern Michigan residents, District Health Department No. 3 is sponsoring a hazardous household waste Pick-Up Day on Saturday, August 23. Two sites have been selected for people to bring their household hazardous wastes for disposal. The two locations are Petoskey Giantway Plaza parking lot, US 31, north of Petoskey, from 9 a.m.-noon and Gaylord Midway parking lot, Old US 27, south from 2:30-4:30 p.m. The Pick-Up Day will be carried out by Drug and Lab Disposal, Inc. of Plainwell, Michigan.

Health Department official, Bert Notestine advises that all household hazardous waste items must be in or with their original containers so that the product may be identified. Unknown substances will not be accepted, according to Notestine.

Northern Michigan residents are encouraged to clean their garages, storerooms, laundry rooms and sheds by August 23, in an effort to properly dispose of hazardous waste at the pick-up site nearest your home. Examples of items which are considered household hazardous wastes are paint stripper, batteries, wood preservatives including oil-base paints, insecticides, unused medicines, drain cleaner, aerosol cans of all types and cleaning solvents. For more information, residents can call their local Health Department.

"Managing hazardous wastes in our environment requires each of us to be aware of what household products create hazardous wastes, to reduce the amount of waste we produce, to recycle wastes whenever possible, and to make certain that wastes are treated to make them non-hazardous prior to disposal," Notestine said.

"One of the simplest things an individual can do to reduce hazardous waste from the home is to choose cleaning products and methods which do not require the use of hazardous waste producing materials. Another option is to share products, except medications, with neighbors or relatives to avoid having to discard unused portions of hazardous products."

An all-too-familiar scene in northern Michigan. Improper disposal of household hazardous waste represents a serious threat to our environment.

Obituaries

Greydon W. Copeland

Funeral services for Greydon W. Copeland, 65, were held at the Winchester Funeral Home Monday, Aug. 11, the Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum of the First Congregational Church officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Copeland died Friday, Aug. 8, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Born in Central Lake Nov. 2, 1920, Greydon W. Copeland was raised in Central Lake. During World War II, he served with the U.S. Navy. Following his discharge, he came to Charlevoix to make his home. He was employed at the East Jordan Iron Works for 15 years prior to his retirement in 1984. He was a member of the Rebec-Sweet Post No. 227, American Legion, in East Jordan.

Surviving are his step-mother, Mrs. Ellen Copeland of Charlevoix and a step-sister, Mrs. Richard (Arletta) Foster of Greenfield, Wis.

The family suggests memorials to the Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Joseph H. Sendenburgh

A funeral Mass for Joseph H. Sendenburgh, 85, lifelong resident of St. James, Beaver Island, was celebrated at Holy Cross Church at St. James Tuesday, Aug. 12. The Rev. Bob Tonelli officiated. Interment was in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Mr. Sendenburgh died Sunday, Aug. 10, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility at East Jordan.

Mr. Sendenburgh was born at St. James, Beaver Island, April 3, 1901, and had always resided on the island. On June 25, 1924, he married the former Bridget McDonald at South Bend, Ind. They returned to Beaver Island to make their home. She preceded him in death Dec. 16, 1971. He was a commercial fisherman all his life aboard his fish tug, the "Margaret". He was a member of Holy Cross Church.

Albert L. Omland

Funeral services for Albert L. Omland, 72, of East Jordan, were held on August 6, 1986 at the Evangelical Lutheran Church, East Jordan. Pastor Robert L. Herbon officiated. Interment was in Sunset Hill Cemetery, East Jordan.

Mr. Omland died Aug. 4, 1986 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

He was born June 5, 1914, in East Jordan, the son of Ole B. and Syneva (Eide) Omland.

In 1984 he married the former Marjorie Kiser.

Mr. Omland farmed in the East Jordan area and later was employed at Grandvue Medical Care Facility until his retirement. He enjoyed woodcarving, barbershop singing and singing with church and community choirs. He was a member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Survivors include: one daughter, Bonnie Kaye Dechamps of East Jordan; two sons, Robert L. of East Jordan and Lee A. of Detroit; six grandchildren; one sister, Emma Marie Hughes of East Jordan; two brothers, Olaf of East Jordan and Eddie of Fond du Lac, Wis.

The family suggests memorials to the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Paullin Funeral Home was in charge of the arrangements.

Hazel Raby

Graveside services for Mrs. Hazel Raby, 97, former Charlevoix resident, were held Tuesday at Brookside Cemetery. The Rev. David W. Yingling of the United Methodist Church officiated.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Francis (Anna Marie) Ricksgers of East Jordan and St. James; five grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Winchester Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Caroline T. Wise

A funeral Mass for Mrs. Caroline T. Wise, 71, of Charlevoix will be celebrated at St. Joseph's Catholic Church at O'Hara Township, Pa., at 10 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 14. The Rev. Walter Dvorak will officiate. Interment will be in Mount Royal Cemetery at Shaler, Pa.

Visitation will be at the Neville E. Frank Funeral Home in Sharpsburg.

A prayer service was held at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix on Sunday.

Mrs. Wise died Friday, Aug. 8 at her home.

Born in Pittsburgh, Pa., April 16, 1915, the former Caroline T. Anderson was raised in the Pittsburgh area. On Aug. 30, 1937, she married Robert L. Wise at Erie, Pa. They made their home in Sharpsburg, Pa., until 1962 when they moved to Gibsonia, Pa., prior to coming to Charlevoix in 1977. She was a member of St. Mary's Church.

Surviving are her husband, Robert L. Wise, Sr., of Charlevoix; one son, Robert L. Wise, Jr., also of Charlevoix; two grandsons; a brother, James T. Maloney of Sharpsburg, Pa. and three sisters, Mrs. Loretta Hodos and Mrs. Thomas (Alice) Kotchoy, both of Sharpsburg, Pa., and Mrs. Ronald (Anges) Lebakken of Glenshaw, Pa.

Visitation was at the Winchester Funeral Home Monday evening.

Mrs. Raby died Saturday, Aug. 9, at a Munising nursing home.

Born in St. Ignace June 16, 1889, the former Hazel O'Brien was married in 1914 to James Gordon Raby. They made their home in Charlevoix. He died in Europe while serving with the Canadian Army during World War I. She continued to make her home here until moving to the Upper Peninsula about 1980.

In recent years she had been confined to the Munising Nursing Home. Mrs. Raby had been a seamstress and had been employed as a domestic.

She is survived by four grandchildren and several great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the National Kidney Foundation or the Michigan Heart Association. Envelopes for this purpose are available at the funeral home.

How A Small Community Came To See The Light At The End Of The Tunnel

A few years back, the mine practically caved in on the people who lived in this small mining community.

The mine had been shut down.

Putting half the town out of work.

And taking away a livelihood that had been a way of life here for decades.

Considering that miners all across America were struggling with all the same kind of problems, there did not seem to be even the slightest ray of hope left to the town.

Problem was, just like the miners could not afford to go much longer without work, the company could not afford to reopen the mine. Much less run it profitably enough to keep it up and running, as it had before.

But when the State of Michigan got the miners and the mining company together, people began to see things in an entirely different light.

So when they figured out a way to reopen the mine, we pitched in to help figure out a way to finance it.

Today, the mine is open again.

The miners have gone back and reclaimed their jobs.

And even though there's still some hard work ahead for everyone concerned, the entire town is beginning to see a much brighter future for itself.

At First of America Bank, we still take special pride in what this small community achieved just by digging deep inside themselves for answers.

Not just because we're bankers.

But because, more importantly, we're part of the community, too.

FIRST of AMERICA
...We're Community Banks First.

School awards bids for track, lighting

by FRAN MARTIN

The awarding of three bids, the hiring of a teacher and the appointment of an assistant girls basketball coach highlighted the regular meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday, Aug. 4.

The bid for a new lighting system at the football field was awarded to Charlevoix Electric for $43,384. The bid was among three received. It included 75-foot steel poles with interior wiring, making maintenance less expensive and cutting down on deterioration of the power source. There will be four poles with 10 lights mounted on each. The other bids for steel poles ranged upward to $50,816.

The bids were also received for the eight-lane track which will replace the cinder track in use for more than 50 years. H & D of Petoskey (Hodgkiss & Douma) was awarded the bid for $93,521. This includes all the work from the initial excavation to the completed rubberized asphalt track. The base will be completed this fall and final topping laid early next summer.

These bids ranged upward to $142,371.

Bids for the carpeting of the band room and adjacent office and Room 21 in the business education section of the high school was awarded to the Whitley Carpet Co. for $4,100 including all material and labor. Other bids ranged upward to $4,653 with one of three not including floor preparation or removal of the old carpet.

Becky Gengle of Petoskey was offered a probationary contract to teach physical education, health and special education and do some coaching. She will succeed Marie Osterberg who has retired. Gengle is also certified in all subjects K-8 and elementary certified in special education. A graduate of the Petoskey High School and Central Michigan University, she has two years experience in the classroom as a teacher and as a coach.

Stan Martin, a teacher at the elementary school, was appointed girls JV basketball coach for the 1986-87 school year. He will work with Henry Wagner, head coach.

The summer reading curriculum study was approved as recommended by the committee. The recommendations will be incorporated into the present program.

With the renovation of the athletic complex at the high school, the board voted to fence the property owned by the school district from the Shell Station on Carpenter to Wood St. with gates to be installed at Green St. to permit for snow removal by the city. The action was taken after all residents in the area had been contacted regarding any hardships that the move might cause.

Dale Burge, athletic director, discussed the background of the break-up of the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference and what it will mean to Charlevoix. He also advised that he would report to the board of the progress of the proposed changes.

The next meeting of the board is scheduled for Monday, Aug. 18.

New Christian right mounts challenge to Republican regulars

by PEG OHLE

Thirty-two elected delegates to the Republican County Convention and Republican county office holders met in convention last week to select representatives to attend the Republican State Convention in Detroit this weekend.

Five delegates and five alternates were duly elected, but only after a gentle "tug of war" between the two groups in attendance – the regular Republican party members and the Evangelical Christian movement.

There have been warnings all over the state that the Evangelicals would attempt to take over Republican conventions in order to promote the candidacy of TV evangelist Pat Robertson. There was no such attempt in Charlevoix County.

The first evidence of the two factions appeared with nominations for a convention chairman. Don Voisin, chairman of the Charlevoix County Republican Party, was nominated for the post as the choice of party regulars. F. Earl Muma, Charlevoix councilman and County Emergency Services Director, was nominated as the choice of the Evangelicals. Voisin received 19 votes and Muma received 13 votes.

At this point, Randy Witten of South Arm Township rose to speak for the Evangelical group. "We of the Evangelical Christian movement do not want to divide the Republican party", he said. "We want to work with you. We hope you will appoint a delegate from our group so you will have a representative cross-section of the party in Charlevoix County".

Witten then displayed a flyer from another area which proclaimed "Keep the Evangelicals out of politics".

"Who next will be singled out of the Republican party"? Witten asked. "How could an established party machine put out something like this?

Let's try to work together, established Republicans and Evangelical Christians".

Following Witten's statement, convention chairman Voisin called for nominations of delegates to the State Convention – eight delegates and eight alternates. Five delegates nominations and five alternate nominations were made by the party regulars, and three delegate and three alternate nominations were made by the Evangelicals.

Convention delegates then selected five persons from the list of eight nominations to serve as state delegates and five persons from the list of eight to serve as alternates.

Persons nominated for the posts were not asked to express their thoughts on any issue, and except by identifying the individual nominating them, a stranger in the room would not have known whether the nominee was an evangelical candidate or a regular Republican party member.

In the end, the five persons elected delegates to the State Convention and the five elected alternates were all regular party members. The

ON THE MOVE

Mike Bonar observes as the Marion Township Hall is inched toward the new foundation. The 98-year-old structure was moved on the large timbers and Bonar then built up the last three rows of block on the foundation to support the building.

Historic township hall gets new site

by DOUG TRUAX

The 98-year-old Marion Township Hall went for a brief ride this week.

The landmark structure, located on the corner of Marion Center and Ferry roads, was lifted off the foundation that has held it since the building was constructed in 1888 and, carefully and ever so slowly, moved to a new foundation farther back from the road.

The new location, Township Supervisor Mike Bonar explained, will give the township an additional 1,700 square feet of space in a basement housing restrooms, a kitchen and storage areas while at the same time preserving the historic structure.

Bonar, who donated his efforts to constructing the new foundation and addition, said the site will also allow more and safer parking. The township hall was within a few feet of the busy right-of-way.

The move was done by P. and P. Hudson Building Movers of Cheboygan. Pete Hudson, son of the owner Albert J. Hudson Jr., directed most of the work on the relocation. Pete is the fourth generation of the Hudson family to be involved with the business which started moving houses in the mid-1800s.

Helping supervise the project were Pete's parents, Albert and Phyllis.

After three days of preparatory work, the township hall was lifted off its foundation Monday and inched along rails toward the new foundation. On Tuesday the move was completed and building positioned on timbers over the new foundation. Bonar then began laying the final three rows of cement block beneath the hall.

A new porch will be added, the restroom-kitchen area completed and a parking area added. Bonar said they were able to save several old cedars surrounding the old foundation.

Two years ago Marion Township began preparations for the move by buying two acres surrounding the hall.

LexaLite sells shares in LexaMar Corp.

by DOUG TRUAX

LexaLite International Corp. of Charlevoix recently completed a deal to sell its shares in the new LexaMar Corp. of Boyne City.

LexaMar now becomes a wholly owned subsidiary of Magna International Corp. of Canada.

A spokeman for the companies said Magna will purchase LexaLite's ownership in the LexaMar plant and that "simultaneously these two companies have entered into a long-term technology agreement."

LexaMar was launched on Aug. 1, 1985 as a joint venture between LexaLite and Magna to produce high technology plastic automobile components for original equipment manufacturers. It was the first company to locate in the new Boyne City Air Industrial Park and was widely heralded as a leader in the industrial revitilization of Boyne City.

It currently employs 48 people and has recently moved into a new 73,000 square foot building in the park with 40,000 square feet of controlled manufacturing environment.

LexaMar is preparing to manufacture transparent products like sun roofs, side windows and other plastic body components for the automotive industry. The company expects to begin production on components for the 1987 model year on Sept. 1.

Jim Kline, general manager of LexaMar, said the new ownership agreement was "very healthy" and a positive step. He said the company was "happy to have completed that transfer and was looking to the future."

"What it means is that the technology transfer that was necessary to start the business has been completed," Kline said.

LexaLite International Corp. consists of several subsidiaries and joint ventures. Together they design, tool and manufacture specialized plastic products for the lighting, signal device, communications, appliance and automotive industries on a worldwide basis.

City upbraided for sidewalk policy

by DOUG TRUAX

The battle of Bridge Street took a new turn at the city council meeting Monday night.

Bill Supernaw, owner of the Cinema III movie theatre, accused City Manager Michael Wiesner of selective enforcement of a recent council decision on the use of the Bridge Street (U.S. 31) sidewalks for Sidewalk Sale Days and called for an apology.

Supernaw informed council that the Rainbow Shoppe, a non-profit used clothing store in the Van Pelt Alley, had been denied use of the Bridge Street sidewalk in front of Cinema III for the sidewalk sales, despite Supernaw's invitation for them to do so.

He said the city had "made a bad, grievous error and should apologize to the Rainbow Shoppe."

THE USE OF sidewalks on Bridge Street has been hotly debated recently, with some merchants calling for an end to sidewalk merchandising and food consumption, with the exception of Sidewalk Sale Days.

Council recently discussed the issue and decided not to act, pending further direction from the merchants. It did, however, approve the annual Sidewalk Sale Days with the provision that it be limited to merchants with stores on Bridge Street.

WIESNER SAID the recent flap started when he was advised by a few merchants that the Rainbow Shoppe, which is located one-half a block off Bridge Street, intended to put its used clothing on the thoroughfare for the sale. Wiesner told the store it could not do so and the Rainbow Shoppe did not put goods on the street Thursday, the first day of the event.

Informed that other merchants were using space beyond their own storefronts, Wiesner said he reconsidered his decision and tried to contact council members to get their views. He was successful in reaching several councilmen on Friday morning, and they all agreed to reverse the decision and allow the second-hand store to put merchandise in front of Cinema III.

Supernaw charged the council decision was "selectively enforced because of the complaints of a few people." He added that Sidewalk Sale Days used to include merchants from throughout the town who used space in East Park. "Charlevoix is getting so splintered up in so many silly groups it's getting ridiculous," Supernaw charged.

"We made a bad decision and we're trying to correct it," Councilman Shirley Roloff said.

IN OTHER ACTION, council granted a 12-year tax abatement to CPI, the first business scheduled to Water levels should fall, Corps report predicts

DETROIT – The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is out with its monthly report on the Great Lakes and – you guessed it – Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of July were at record levels.

The Corps report said the July monthly mean level was some 3 inches above the all-time monthly high for July set in 1974. July's levels were 30 inches above the long-term average and about 64 inches above the all-time low for July set in 1964.

The Corps reported that Lakes Michigan-Huron, considered hydrologically to be one lake, were about 8 inches above last year at this time and 2 inches above water levels in June.

Water levels will begin a seasonal decline in August, the Corps predicted. "At the end of January 1987, the lakes are expected to be 3 inches below what they were at the same time in 1986," the report noted. "The January mean would be above the long-term average for that month but 4 inches below the all-time high mean for January, which was set in 1986."

School finds home for disabled students

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix School District Monday night accepted responsibility of furnishing space for the HIP (Highly Individualized Program) which faced elimination from the Char-Em Intermediate School District if space could not be found.

The Board of Education felt that if those kids needed a place we'd find it, Supt. Gordon VanWieren said of the decision.

Supplying room for the 15 students involved in the program for physically handicapped will mean adding a portable classroom at the Charlevoix Middle School and giving up a regular classroom on the first floor near bathroom facilities and the office. Charlevoix's Middle School has four students in the program. The others will come from elsewhere in the intermediate district.

Boyne City will continue to supply one classroom for these students.

Char-Em will supply the portable building to the middle school. It will be placed adjacent to one already housing a classroom at the school. Ramps will be constructed and other minor construction changes made to accommodate the students.

Patricia Taylor, Assistant Superintendent at Char-Em, was elated with the board's decision. She said the Charlevoix board has always been very supportive of Char-Em programs. "The administration, the teachers and the community itself haven't cared what the handicap might be. It's always been total acceptance," she said.

In other action at the board meeting, the parent-student code book was approved; approval was given for an early graduation; a report on the progress of renovation of Kipke Field and a slide presentation on the summer program at the Beaver Island lighthouse property were given.

The board approved the parent-student handbook with two additions spelling out how students can make up classwork and finish incomplete grades.

Because of problems with students and their use of the parking lot, restrictions will be placed on drivers violating the rules with stated

Bed and Breakfast — Beaver Island style

Historic home offers visitors a taste of Island's Irish heritage

by DOUG TRUAX

Bed and Breakfast lodgings are becoming increasingly popular throughout the country as travelers seek out homelike settings with charm and history and a sense of place.

Bed and Breakfast has become the antidote to the monotony of the Holiday Inn syndrome – motels that look and feel the same whether they are in Pago Pago or Newark.

Consider then, traveler, this variation on the Bed and Breakfast theme: an 1899 Victorian frame house situated on an island in the middle of Lake Michigan, embossed ceilings, fine woodwork, and a view of the lighthouse at the tip of a sleepy little harbor.

What you have is the "new" McCann House at St. James on Beaver Island. It is the home and lodging house of John and Joyce Runberg, two former Bay Cityans who recently relocated in St. James after John's retirement from Dow Chemical Company.

FOR JOHN it was a homecoming. His great-grandfather on his mother's side first came to this island in the mid-1800s. The McCann House was built for John's grandfather who did the finish work, including oak trim and a parquetry floor, himself.

The Runbergs came back to Beaver Island and the McCann House in 1984 after John, now 57, had taken an early retirement from Dow Chemical Company where he was worked for almost 30 years as an instrument technician.

That year they returned to Bay City in the fall, but in 1985 they decided to tough it out through the winter. And although they had begun to remodel and insulate the home, they spent their first winter on the island huddled close to their new wood-burning stove.

The Runbergs have since continued to refurbish the home, including adding a 1,000 square foot addition which includes a new kitchen, expanding the garage and workshop, and re-siding with white vinyl.

BUT THE HEART and soul of the fine old home retains all of the flavor and spirit of the turn of the century.

A first-time visitor can't help but lean back in one of the antique chairs in the living room and stare at the high expanse of the metal embossed ceiling which stretches over the large living and dining rooms.

The many layers of paint which have been laid on the ceiling over the years have obscured any nailholes and seams and the ceiling appears to be sculpted from plaster.

A fine oak balustrate, built by John's grandfather, John McCann, also grabs a visitor's attention.

The Runbergs have converted three of their upstairs bedrooms for use by lodgers. Each is decorated differently, but shares a comfortable, lived-in feeling. One features a fine, old brass bed. At the end of the hall is a clean, modern bathroom with shower and bath for the visitor.

John and Joyce Runberg stand on the porch of the McCann House on Beaver Island.

The living room at the McCann House features fine oak woodwork and a dramatic embossed ceiling.

GUESTS WAKE to a robust "continental breakfast." Although Michigan laws limit Bed and Breakfast establishments to serving prepared foods and bakery items – unless there is a separate, restaurant-quality kitchen – the Runbergs' offerings leave little to be desired.

Depending on the day, the morning fare may include items such as a tray full of various fresh fruits, a homebaked coffee cake, juice, cold cereal and milk, smoked fish and a pot full of the Runbergs' blend of mocha coffee.

The McCann House front porch is a fine spot to sit and view the walkers, bicyclists, and moped riders heading down the King's Highway or to watch the setting sun illuminating the lighthouse and old Coast Guard station at the end of the St. James harbor.

The Runbergs property also includes a quiet beach on the harbor where guests can swim or enjoy the sun. "Downtown" St. James is a five-block walk away. There are also enjoyable strolls from the home into the countryside.

JOHN RUNBERG'S roots go deep in this little 53-square miles of wooded island. His great-grandfather, James, immigrated from Ireland to New York in 1852 and proceeded to Mackinac Island where he worked as a cooper and then St. Ignace, where he was a teacher. He and his wife, Margaret, settled on Beaver Island in 1885 and ran a general mercantile store, "James McCann and Sons," which today houses the Dockside general store.

One of McCann's sons – John – returned to the island from Wyandotte where he had been a boat-builder. Known as Capt. McCann, John ran the 69-foot tug, the Margaret McCann, which his father had purchased. Capt. McCann went on to build many boats including the 64-foot Venus, perhaps his best remembered one.

Capt. McCann fathered a boat-building tradition as his three sons, Harold, Ulysses and Emmet, all took up the trade.

Harold built a few boats and then disappeared, but Ulyssses and Emmet established themselves in Charlevoix as highly respected craftsmen.

Ulysses was the designer and in his lifetime – he died at the age of 40 in 1940 – had produced a prodigious number of craft.

THIS SPRING John Runberg discovered 25-30 blueprints of boats designed by Ulysses. Runberg is carefully preserving them for the island's marine museum and hopes to match them up with photographs of the boats that were made from the drawings.

He is also at work on a third volume in the island's history series chronicling those fishing and boat-building days.

His mother, Marguerite McCann Runberg, grew up on the island and brought her children back to the family home when her husband, Vernon, went to sail the Great lakes to support his family during the Depression.

SHE RETURNED to the island in 1967 to enjoy more than a decade in the house. In recent years several strokes have confined her to a nursing home in Bay City.

John and Joyce vacationed on the island for 28 years prior to retiring there, so they were well prepared for island life, with the exception of the long, cold winters. But now that their insulation work is progressing, the Runbergs enjoy that season as well including cross-country skiing, the local euchre club, the remodeling, and chopping wood.

Opinion

'Round Town

Mt. McSauba Nature Trail

BY EDITH GILBERT

I WAS HEADING NORTH on Bridge Street near St. Mary's. A huge semi approached from the south, and I saw a seagull swoop down and get clipped by the truck's fender. The seagull was lying still in the middle of Bridge Street and would have been run over if I hadn't stopped my car, jumped out, scooped up the seagull, and put him in the back seat of my car.

Now, what? Here I was driving around, wondering what to do with this stunned seagull – a little stunned myself! My earlier instant reflexes had not prepared me for this novel situation. When you see a seagull flying over Round Lake, they don't look nearly as big as when they are lying quietly in the back seat of your car. And how long would he lie there quietly? Hmm. What to do?

Suddenly I had an inspiration. Let's take Jonathan Seagull to Dr. Norton, our veterinarian. He will be able to advise. I swung the car around and drove lickety-split to Dr. Norton. He came out to the car and assayed the situation.

"Well," he said, after examining the seagull's eyes, "Why don't you leave him here overnight, and call me in the morning. I think he has a slight concussion–"

"Gladly," I replied with relief.

The next morning I called Dr. Norton and he gave me the good news. The seagull had recovered nicely during the night, was released in the morning and flew home.

Now it's time to settle up, so I asked Dr. Norton, "What do I owe you?" "Not a thing," he replied. "Most veterinarians will be happy to treat an injured WILD creature without a charge."

Isn't that good to know?

CHERI WHIPPO JUST called in to report a T-shirt sighting in Texas. It seems Cheri sent her friends there "Charlevoix" T-shirts, which they wore while eating in a McDonald's in Houston. Since they were seated, all that was visible was the top half "CHARL."

"Does the bottom half of your T-shirt say 'EVOIX' on it?" someone came up to them and asked.

"How did you know!" was the surprised response.

"I have a sister that lives in Petoskey –"

So now we have had T-shirt reports from London, Los Angeles, Cambridge, Boston, Alaska, and Houston. There must be more!

PEOPLE WHO VISIT always discover the most interesting places, while those who live in the community are sometimes oblivious to what is going on around them.

It's the people, who camp at Bell's Bay and Young State Park, who ask for information about the nature trails in Charlevoix. It's rarely the homeowners, the condominium owners or the longtime summer residents who stop by the Chamber of Commerce to ask for brochures. Too bad, 'cause we're missing something.

The Mt. McSauba Nature Trail is one of the loveliest walks one could enjoy, yet very few people I know have taken advantage of this special treat. If you drive your car to the ski lodge, the walk itself can be covered in about a half an hour. Or one can take a picnic and spend half a day dozing on the dunes.

The attractive new brochure, available at the Chamber office, describes the early history of Mt. McSauba (did you know it was used by the native American indians as a summer camp?) So says Jay Oliver and he ought to know.

The brochure includes an ecological survey by Roger M. Knutson, PhD., who points out that Charlevoix is indeed fortunate to have such a rich educational and aesthetic resource so close at hand.

There are charming drawings of native plants and leaves one can identify on the walk in the spring, summer and fall. These were done by local artist, Jan Glass.

For those who like to know how this beautiful trail came into being, we can thank Ike Boss, Charlevoix recreation director, who applied for state funds three years ago. Sixteen fellows spent eight weeks, under Gov. Blanchard's Michigan Youth Corp program, breaking trail under the supervision of Bo Boss.

Bo knew the area like the palm of his hand, because he had played on Mt. McSauba since he was a little tyke. The results show his skill, because the trail winds up, down, around and through the woods, then suddenly bursts out on gorgeous vistas overlooking land and lake. You don't have to be a botanist to enjoy Mt. McSauba Nature Trail – but it helps. It's a lovely place to take children and dogs. With a little imagination you can even pretend you're Robin Hood or a Faerie Queen.

Card-carrying pigeon

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

When was the last time you saw a bonafide, card-carrying pigeon in Charlevoix?

I'm not talking about the pretty little mourning doves which are found throughout our residential neighborhoods and are fast becoming the city's most common songbird – even if they only coo.

I mean real old-fashioned pigeons with plump breasts and sleek, gaudy feathers — the coo's who strut through town squares around the country like so many Chicago madams.

In Charlevoix, the work performed by pigeons in other parts of the country appears to have been taken over by seagulls and mallard ducks. I guess we just do not have enough spilled popcorn and broken waffle cones to feed them all.

The Clocks spent a few days in Washington earlier this summer and I have never seen so many pigeons so gainfully employed as one time. Every federal agency must have thousands of them on the payroll just to pick up after visitors.

Although pigeons are basically wild creatures, they seem to have adapted well to the hectic pace of life in the nation's capital. I was particularly impressed by the custodial flock on the grounds of the Smithsonian Institution's Aerospace Museum.

Of course, any pigeon worthy of the name would deem it an honor to labor in the shadow of booster rockets and moon landers, rubbing shoulders from time to time with the likes of Neil Armstrong and Alan Shepard. After all, isn't that what being a pigeon is all about?

But these little creatures didn't appear as interested in space hardware as they were in the goings-on in a open-air snack pavilion next door. The day we visited the museum, literally dozens of pigeons were on duty within the pavilion itself, scurrying under chairs and tables to snatch up bread crusts, taco chips and anything else that hit the deck.

The pigeon assigned to our table did such a good job I was tempted to leave him a tip.

We also found surprising numbers of the plucky little janitors patrolling all of the snack areas along the mall, from the Lincoln Memorial to Capitol Hill.

However, I am a little puzzled as to where all the pigeons in Washington spend the night, accomodations being both scarce and expensive. My eneyclopedia tells me that pigeons build almost flat nests of twigs, bark, straw and weeds. But I have never seen one.

My encyclopedia also tells me that pigeons feed on seeds, fruit and insects, but that shows you how much the people who write encyclopedias know about pigeons. Although they all look sleek and well fed, I have never seen one munch on anything more nutritious than junk food. Furthermore, they apparently don't have any particular problems in the reproduction department, judging from their numbers.

Like most world capitals, Washington is overrun with both pigeons and politicians. But from what I could see, the birds in Washington are providing a far more valuable service.

Letters to the editor:

Hats off to young people

Dear Editor:

Before the last visitor heads home and all the students have returned to school, I feel I must give some eredit where credit is due.

As a working resident of Charlevoix I'm very much aware of the transition that takes place here during the summer weeks. Many business people plan far in advance how they might best satisfy the needs of our resorters and hopefully realize a profit to help them through the long season that follows.

I see them as the switches that start the wheels rolling. However, I feel the real heart and soul of the machine is Charlevoix's young people whether annual summer residents or year-round townies, these kids are the greatest!

They cover long shifts in summer's heat from early morning through late evening. They remain reliable, courteous and pleasant. Most are saving for college and/or helping parents with expenses. Their willingness to go that extra length to please is what our visitors will remember as a representation of our town's personality.

My hat is off to these young men and women. They have given me one more reason to proudly say "I'm from Charlevoix."

Hospital golf outing was resounding success

Dear Editor:

Sunday's Golf and Dinner benefit for Charlevoix Area Hospital was a resounding success thanks to the generosity and support of many local people and businesses.

I'd like to express the gratitude of everyone at the hospital to our hosts Ed and Barb Evanish at the Antrim Dells Golf and Tennis Club, Dennis Kusina of Kusina Motors for the offer of a new car for a hole-in-one (which unfortunately went unclaimed); Ricciardi's, Grey Gables, Terry's Place, Juilleret's, Parkside, Tom's Cafe, Oleson's, Glen's, Cross Fishery, Clayton Smith, the Torch Lake Inn, Wharf Side Market and Duffy's of Charlevoix for help with the dinner.

Special thanks also go out to the many other individuals who contributed toward the success of this event. Over $9,000 was raised for the hospital, but, more important, everyone had a great time.

Richard Krueger, Administrator

Hit and Run was cruel

Dear Editor:

I would like to address this letter to the person who ran over my puppy on Loeb Road, Sunday, Aug. 17.

You didn't even stop to see if she was alive - you kept on driving. I cannot imagine anyone not even stopping to help an animal. Especially when they hurt her. This is the cruelest thing I know of. Even a hunter puts his prey out of misery.

You ran over her face but, being the fighter she is, she is doing her best to recover. She was in extreme pain and shock.

She is not yet out of danger and will need surgery to repair her jaw bones. She also has nerve damage and possibly brain damage.

Had it not been for my neighbor, who witnessed the hit and run, I would not have been able to rush her to the vet, and she would have died a slow, painful death.

While I realize she should not have been in the road, a young puppy doesn't understand that roads are for cars. She was only trying to do her morning business and got herself hurt.

I love my puppy. She was given to me by one of my best friends. He is now deceased and she was the last thing I had to remember him by.

No matter what, you should have stopped and helped her. She was an innocent victim of your heartlessness.

Too many people feel that the life of a poor animal is worth less than a human life. I say every life was created by God, and every life counts!

If you hit my dog, I want you to know I forgive you for that. But, I cannot and will not forgive you for driving away. I only hope you can understand that life is precious. Would you please drive more carefully? What if she had been a child?

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

It was a dark and stormy night to be flying in a small plane. No ground in sight, surrounded by clouds, bumped by wind and rain, we were all looking forward to landing. Occasional lightning flashes only added to our discomfort as we flew through the storm.

As we drew close to the airport, the pilot said, "watch for the rabbits. When you see them running, you'll know we're about to land."

Rabbits? What was he talking about? No sooner had the thought passed through my mind when I saw the white flashes in sequence in front of us. In the rain and fog, they almost did look like rabbits running. They were the strobe lights along the final approach to our runway. Their flashing guided us to a safe landing.

Jesus tells us in his Sermon on the Mount that we are to let our lights shine before men. Lights have guided people for centuries through countless situations. In a world where sin, doubt, and fear have brought storminess to many lives, the Christ in us should so light us up that others might see God'd path for living. We are the "rabbits." We are God's strobe lights that can lead others to a safe landing in him.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kanifeck
Executive Director

It's official, after two years at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce the current Executive Director will be leaving at the end of the year. No regrets, no problems, just a need for more personal time. So, now begins a campaign to find a new person to assume the Chamber responsibilities.

With the exception of the October Apple Festival, all the planned events the Chamber sponsors have come to an end. Could summer really be almost over?

East Park always manages to survive Venetian and Art Fair, but without the expertise of city employee Jerry Knudtson it would never make it. Thanks to all the city employees who keep the streets and parks so clean.

The two Charlevoix Chamber Hostesses that have worked hard all summer are Charlotte Cunningham and Emily Miller. These nice young girls have done a fine job of keeping the litter off the sidewalks. Thank you girls!

Internal Affairs Chairman, Doug Shaw, is planning the next membership "Business Mixer" for sometime in September. More details upcoming.

The $100 tickets for The Keep Charlevoix Beautiful car raffle are limited, but if you hurry you can still buy one at the Chamber.

Bill Price (left) and Penny Shaw of the Charlevoix Area Historical Society present a $200 scholarship to Geoffrey Reynolds (center).

Historical Society awards scholarship

The Charlevoix Area Historical Society recently presented the first of what it hopes is an annual college scholarship. The award was given to Geoffrey Reynolds, 21, who will be attending Gettysburg College in Gettysburg, Penn. this fall to study history.

Bill Price, organizer of the program, said the scholarships are designed to help young people get involved in history and in the local historical society. Applications for future scholarships will be available through Charlevoix High School.

Reynolds has been a member of the Charlevoix Area Historical Society since he was 13 years old. His interest in history, particularly civil war history, began when he was 10 years old, and Geoff has been actively studying it ever since.

Reynolds received his associate degree from North Central Michigan College last spring and plans to complete his bachelor's degree in history and French, subjects he would eventually like to teach at the secondary level.

Reynolds is the son of Douglas and Betsy Reynolds of Charlevoix.

Graduate course offered

The Michigan State University off-campus fall term program in Petoskey will offer a graduate course in education. This course will be held at North Central Michigan College.

The class will be TE 820D (3) Reading and Learning in Content Area Subjects, Saturday, 8:30-11:30 and 12-3 p.m., September 20, 27, October 4, 11, 18, Dr. Jean Franco, senior lecturer will be the instructor for this class. Tuition fee is $60 per credit hour payable by check or money order made out to Michigan State University. Visa or Master Cards are welcome.

For registration by mail or further information concerning these and other courses in Northern Michigan, you may write or call Shirley Thompson at the MSU Center for Lifelong Education Programs, 202 Health and Edueation Building, Northwestern Michigan College, 1701 E. Front St., Traverse City, MI 49684, telephone 616-922-1124.

Obituaries

Marilyn L. Drenth

Funeral services for Mrs. Marilyn L. Drenth, 46, of Ellsworth, were held at the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church Friday, Aug. 15. The Rev. Janies Evenhouse officiated. Interment was in Ellsworth Cemetery.

Mrs. Drenth died Tuesday, Aug. 12, at her home in Ellsworth.

Born in Charlevoix Oct. 28, 1939, the former Marilyn L. Richardson was raised in Norwood Township and graduated from Charlevoix High School. On October 28, 1960, she married Jerroll Drenth at Ellsworth where they always made their home. She was employed as director of the food services at the Ellsworth schools.

She was a member of the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church, was active in the Ebenezer Christian School P.T.A., a member and secretary-treasurer of the North Pine Chapter of Michigan School Food Services and a member of the American School Food Services.

Surviving are her husband, Jerroll of Ellsworth; one son, Allen of Ellsworth; three daughters, Debra, Wendy and Bonnie Jean, all at home; one grandson, Christopher; her step-mother, Mrs. Vida Richardson and two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Meadows and Mrs. Richard (Beverly) Smith, both of Charlevoix.

The family suggests memorials to the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church.

The Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth was in charge of arrangements.

New Family Planning Clinics added

District Health Department No. 3 has announced it will be adding three new Family Planning Clinic days each month. These days will help decrease waiting time for family planning services. One extra day each month will be added in East Jordan, Gaylord, and Petoskey. Clinic hours will also be expanded for Antrim County at the Bellaire clinic.

Family planning services provided at the health department clinics include: education and counseling with referral if necessary, physical examination completed by an OB-GYN nurse practitioner, immediate dispensing of birth control measures, and pregnancy testing and follow-up.

The confidential family planning services are available to all ages. These services are provided on a sliding fee scale that charges less for a person with a lower income. Medicaid will also cover the cost of the services for Medicaid recipients.

Appointment times may be given, or questions about the program may be answered by calling any of the health department offices: East Jordan 536-7371; Petoskey 347-6014; Gaylord 732-1794; Bellaire 533-8607.

Kwikie takes 2nd title

Kwikie Printing added a second title last week by coming out of the loser's bracket to win the double elimination tourney that topped the season for the Women's Softball League.

In the opening game of the tournament, Town House upset the league champs by a score of 17-3 to send Kwikie to the loser's bracket early in the tournament.

Kwikie then defeated Wojan 15-14 to advance in the tournament, defeating Town House a second time after the team had lost to Jerry's Meats 7-6.

In this game, Kwikie won 14-12 with Terri Hodge scoring a two-run homer for the victors. Vickie Flowers, the winning pitcher, allowed 13 hits while the losing pitcher, Teri Wilson, gave up 19. In their first game on Thursday, Kwikie edged Jerry's Meats 5-3 and later defeated Jerry's 11-5 in the title game.

Both pitchers, Flowers and Shelly Erber, allowed nine hits in the first game. In the title game, Flowers allowed seven to Erber's 11 hits.

The most exciting game of the tournament was played Tuesday when Jerry's Meats edged Town House 7-6 in a game that went 11 innings.

Jerry's Meats was headed for a win with a 7-6 lead when Town House tied the game in the top of the seventh inning. Both teams scored a run in the ninth inning before Town House scored two runs in the top of the 10th inning. Jerry's not to be denied, also scored two runs in the bottom of the inning. As the game went into the bottom of the 11th inning, Jerry's rallied to score the winning run.

Earlier, Wojan had eliminated Hoskins 17-2; and, on the first night of play, Jerry's had defeated Hoskins 12-5 and Town House edged Wojan 5-4.

Loper named McBride winner

The recipient of the 20th annual Larry McBride trophy, the batting champions of the Charlevoix Women's Softball League and the home run and batting champion of the Charlevoix Men's Softball League have been announced by Dwight Boss, city recreation director.

Greg Loper, a member of the league championship Grey Gables team, was named the recipient of the Larry McBride Award given annually to softball player selected by the umpires as representative of good sportsmanship.

The award is given annually to the player who represents the attributes McBride stood for...sportsmanship and team spirit as well as being an excellent ball player. Loper, who played first base for the Grey Gables team, has participated in the summer league since graduating from high school where he was an outstanding football and baseball player and wrestler.

The award bears the name of McBride who made a name for himself at the Charlevoix High School from which he graduated in 1964. He went on to play in the summer softball league, bringing with him the mark of fine sportsmanship prior to his untimely death in a traffic accident in 1967.

Missy Sandahl, a member of the Kwikie Printing championship squad with a batting average of .563, was named batting champion in the women's league. Joe Jones, also a member of the Grey Gables team, was named both batting champion with a .654 average and home run champion with a total of 17 for the 1986 season.

Dave Novotny is chairman of the Larry McBride Award committee.

Greg Loper (left) was named as the recipient of the 20th annual Larry McBride award; Missy Sandahl, the batting champion of the Women's Softball League and Joe Jones, batting and home run champion of the Men's Softball League.

Grey Gables topped the eight-team Men's Softball League, posting a 16-5 record for the season and winning the best two out of three games among the top four teams in the league in the recent play-offs.
Missing: Steve Dunkelberg and Kim Maekorwitz.

Gables feasts on Topside, takes league play-off crown

The Grey Gables softball team, which earlier had won the Charlevoix Softball League title with a 16-5 record, captured the play-off title in the series of games featuring the top four teams in the eight-team league.

In the final game of the play-offs on Wednesday, the Gables defeated Rich's Topside Cafe 9-4.

Earlier Grey Gables defeated Topside 16-1.

In the final game Grey Gables took advantage of the 17 hits allowed by Phil Skeel to score nine runs. Ray LaVoie, the winning pitcher, allowed nine hits.

In the first game with Topside, Joe Jones scored a two-run homer as Gables won by decisive 16-1 score with LaVoie giving up nine hits to Skeel's 21.

Earlier, Grey Gables shut out Paul Bunyan Lanes 17-0 with Randy Holecheck collecting a grand slam home run off the losing pitcher, Brad Barrent, who allowed a total of 18 hits. LaVoie gave up five.

In a close game on Monday, the Gables won by a 19-17 score over Paul Bunyan Lanes with the assistance of Gene Morrison and Holechock who posted three-run homers for the winning cause. Pat Kerr scored two homers, one good for two runs and another for three. LaVoie allowed 24 hits. Dan Gillespie, who took the loss, gave up 23.

Rich's Topside defeated North County Sanitation 17-5 on Wednesday to advance to the finals after splitting with North Country 5-4 and 9-8 on Monday.

Skeel, the winning pitcher on Wednesday, allowed 10 hits while Alex Niedzialkowski, who took the loss, allowing 15.

Skeel gave up eight hits to Niedzialkowski's 12 in the first meeting and 16 and 15, respectively, in the second game.

The Men's Softball League is sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation Department.

Our Compliments To The Chef. And All The Staff Who Keep Meals On Wheels Rolling.

About two decades ago, a group of some very enterprising people first opened the doors to what has ever since been a favorite local eatery.

In that time, not a whole lot has changed in the way they run things.

The menu's simple. But the food is always hot, fresh and wholesome.

A lot of the staff works for free. And most provide their own cars and gasoline so the operators can still offer home delivery.

And, as it's always been over the years, they've never once made a red cent to show for it all.

But they did manage to make firm believers out of us.

They're Meals on Wheels, after all.

So while it is not surprising that they are not in business to make a profit, they still have to pay their bills like everyone else to stay in business.

Otherwise, hundreds of homebound senior citizens and hundreds more less-fortunate people might go hungry every day.

So when they fed us the facts on their cash-flow problem, we gave them the line of credit they needed to keep things rolling.

Not just because we're bankers.

But because, more importantly, we're part of the community.

You see, at First of America Bank we think non-profit organizations like Meals on Wheels, who make sure that those in need do not go hungry, are something everyone will eventually profit from some day.

FIRST of AMERICA.
We're Community Banks First.

Yachting Notes

BY A. NONY MOUSE

All the scheduled activities should be covered in the Binnacle, so we'll just go right to last week's results...

Fleet 1: 1st Flying Machine (1:19:22), 2nd Charlie Brown (1:20:06), 3rd Pygmalion (1:21:01), then Plastic Fantastic, Slapshot and Gotcha.

Fleet 2: 1st Wingnut (1:20:11), 2nd Babe (1:23:10), 3rd Brass Tacks (1:24:55), then Merry Hell, Bandit, Maranatha and Flash.

Fleet 3: 1st Blasen III (1:22:41), 2nd Cygnus (1:27:50), 3rd Tireless (1:36:19), then Spectre, San-Sue-She, Nulli Secundus and Phoenecia.

Fleet 4: 1st Mint Julip (1:26:07), 2nd Canusa (1:26:42), 3rd Rubi (1:26:49), then Mud Duck and Kittiwake.

Fleet 5: 1st Maureen (1:51:58), 2nd Cheemaun (1:56:09), 3rd Te-Gi (1:59:27), then Stalworth, Apothecary and Coolwhip.

As this goes to press, no word on the Single-Handed or Slave Races so all is quiet on other activities.

It's with mixed emotions that I type this, my last regular "Yachting Notes". Old original A. Nony has now been playing this game for a lot of years, and, with the help of the "Other Mice," not a single issue has been missed (although it wasn't printed once when the deadline was changed without our knowledge). I've enjoyed putting it together and sure appreciated the regular input from the scorers. Mike Miller was doing that job when we first started, Dale Troppman and Mike Carland for most of the intervening years and, most recently, Wes Dilworth. Almost without exception, their data was accurate and on time.

A special thanks to the Courier Staff; which, to me, always meant Ruthie, a near and dear friend of soooooo many years, who put up with this garbage since it started. Thanks also to the "Other Mice" who shall be nameless to protect their A. Nony Mousity.

I now see quite a resemblance between some of our readers and the ancient emperors. Both would like to kill the bearer of bad tidings! Help the future mice a bit by remembering that they only report our DSQ's; they don't cause them. Best wishes to my successors - I'll be pleased to, once in a while, fill in - and I'll sure be reading every issue.

'time to crawl back in the hole for a while...

the End of the Mouse's Tale.

Freshman open house planned

Parents of students who will be entering the Charlevoix High School as freshmen in September and the students are invited to a "Freshman Open House" at the high school at 7 p.m. Tuesday, August 27.

The invitation has been issued by David J. Smith, high school principal, to acquaint the students and their parents with the building and high school procedures.

After a brief welcome, there will be a tour of the building with an explanation of each activity area. This will be followed by an explanation of required courses, the Petoskey Vocational Education program in which students participate, graduation requirements and school policies relating to behavior, attendance, Saturday school and in-house suspension, athletic and extra curricular activities, and college interests.

"This is meant to be an informal, get-acquainted meeting. I hope all parents of freshman students and the students themselves will attend this meeting," Smith said.

Tag Day nets over $3,000

The recent Tag Day sponsored by the Grandvue Medical Care Facility netted $3,036.57, it was announced at the meeting of the organization head at the facility Thursday.

The Tag Day is the auxiliary's major fund raising event during the year. The proceeds are used to help purchase equipment and underwrite the cost of services for patients at the facility. The funds raised this year will be used to supplement funds on hand to underwrite the cost of a third Century Tub at the facility, it was voted at the meeting.

A breakdown of the contributions shows $1,040 was contributed in Boyne City; $882 in East Jordan; $644 in Charlevoix; $250 on Beaver Island; $84 at Bay Shore; $67 at Ironton; $43 at Norwood and $21 at Barnard. The Auxiliary expressed its appreciation to workers and contributors that made the event a success.

The annual membership drive is presently underway. The auxiliary now has 16 active and 29 life members. All residents of the county are invited to join the auxiliary as an active or inactive member.

Ronald Conkle, administrator at the facility, advised the members that representatives of Community Family and Children's Services of Gaylord had been at the facility during the past year for conferences and workshops. The auxiliary will underwrite the cost of such staff education.

The suggestion of Alice Heise that an up-to-date postcard of the facility be made is being investigated.

During the program which followed the new president, Joanna Gunn, presented a book report of Garrison Keillor's "Lake Wobegon Days," the story of life in a Minnesota town in the 1940's.

Oeylord
Gaylord High School	Aug. 26, '86 (Tues.)	7-9 p.m.

Classes will begin on Tuesday, September 2, 1986

Except where specifically noted, all evening classes will meet at 7:00 p.m.

The Fall Semester will end on December 20, 1986

SPECIAL NOTE

Because of enrollment restrictions placed on all community colleges by the State Legislature it will be necessary to make the decision concerning whether a class has sufficient enrollment to be taught at the time of registration. Therefore, it is extremely important that students register on the scheduled registration dates.

TUITION AND FEES

Tuition: Emmet County Residents — $26.50 per credit hour.
Residents of counties other than Emmet — $32.50 per credit hour.

Registration Fee: Two Dollars ($2.00) is charged per credit hour or partial credit hour.

FINANCIAL AID

There are several kinds of financial aid for which a college student may apply. Pell Grants and Michigan Guaranteed Student Loans provide a majority of the financial aid funds for our students at the present time. More information and applications for these programs are available from the Office of Financial Aid at North Central Michigan College. Application materials for Veteran's benefits are available from the Dean of Students Office on campus. Students must enroll for at least six credit hours in order to be eligible for consideration for Financial Aid.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE ON FORECLOSURE
BY ADVERTISEMENT
Default having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage made by LADONIS MOONEY and ELEANOR MOONEY, his wife, to CHARLEVOIX COUNTY STATE BANK, a Michigan banking corporation of Charlevoix, Michigan, dated November 25, 1983, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, on December 1, 1983, in Liber 171 of Mortgages, Page 419. As of the date of this Notice, there is claimed to be due on said Mortgage for principal, interest and late fees, the sum of $29,738.26, and no proceedings at law having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained, in said Mortgage has become operative;
NOW, THEREFORE, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described, or so much thereof as may be necessary, at a public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the County Building in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place of holding the Circuit Court in and for said County, on Wednesday, September 3, 1986, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, and said premises will be sold to pay the amount so as aforesaid then due on said Mortgage, together with 15 percent interest, legal costs, attorney fees as provided by law and any taxes and insurance that said Mortgagee, Charlevoix County State Bank, does pay on or prior to the date of said sale, said premises being described as follows:
Land located in the Township of St. James, Charlevoix County, Michigan, described as: Beginning at the Northeast corner of the Arthur C. Pischner and Mary M. Pischner lot in Government Lot 5, Section 23, Town 39 North, Range 10 West, according to the deed recorded in Deed Liber 167, Page 309, in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan, which point is also on the South line of Clyde Francis Hinckley and Violet M. Hinckley lot, according to the deed recorded in Deed Liber 125, Page 46, in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan; thence East along the South line of said Hinckley lot 4 feet to the Southeast corner thereof; thence North along the East line of said Hinckley lot 100 feet to the Northeast corner thereof; thence West along the North line of said Hinckley lot 100 feet to the Southeast corner of the George A. Trude and Charlotte E. Trude lot, according to the deed recorded in Deed Liber 142, Page 198, in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan; thence North along the East line of said Trude lot 50 feet to the Northeast corner thereof; thence West along the North line of said Trude lot 100 feet to the Northwest corner thereof; thence North to the North line of Government Lot 5 of said Section 23; thence East along the North line of said Government Lot 5 to the Northeast corner thereof; thence South 20 feet to the Northeast corner of the Charles Martin and Marion Martin lot according to the deed recorded in Deed Liber 161, Page 557, in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan; thence West along the North line of said Martin lot 100 feet to the Northwest corner thereof, which is also the Northeast corner of the James A. Carpenter and Fern E. Carpenter lot, according to the deed recorded in Deed Liber 170, Page 302 in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan; thence continuing West along the North line of said Carpenter lot to the Northwest corner of said lot; thence further continuing West along said last described course 150 feet; thence South, parallel with the West line of said Carpenter lot 165 feet; thence East, along the Westerly extension of said Carpenter lot and along the South line of the said Carpenter and Martin lots 350 feet to the Southeast corner of said Martin lot, which is also on the East line of said Government Lot 5; thence South along the East line of said Government Lot 5, to the South line of said Arthur C. Pischner and Mary M. Pischner lot, if extended East; thence West along said line 478 feet, more or less, of the Southeast corner of said Pischner lot; thence North along the East line of said Pischner lot 217 feet to the point of beginning: being a part of Government Lot 5, Section 23, Town 39 North, Range 10 West. The above described lot is subject to any roadways there might be.
The length of the redemption period of said Mortgage as made and provided by statute is 12 months from the time of the sale.

"There is no shortage of activities," John says.

The Runbergs also joined a community choir last winter and hope for something similar this year. The only activity they seem to miss much is the square dancing they did for 31 years on the mainland.

Joyce is a part-time registered nurse at the Beaver Island Medical Clinic and John has taken on the responsibility as St. James Township's grants advisor.

The Runbergs hope to keep McCann House open year round, with the possible exception of the mid-winter trip to warmer climes. From Memorial Day through Labor Day the rates are $40 per night, double occupancy ($5 less for single). Off-season rates are $5 less. John picks up and delivers guests to the boat ferry or the island airport.

Republican regulars retain control

Evangelical group did not get their wish to have representation in the Charlevoix County delegation, but their presence at the county convention made that convention the largest in recent years. The "new" Republicans were greeted cordially and welcomed into Republican folds with the stated hope they would join the party and attend meetings regularly.

William Huber, local representative of Congressman Bob Davis, told the Evangelicals that the Congressman was aware of their stand on many issues and appreciated the support he (Davis) had received from the group in the past.

Voisin told the Evangelicals that he was glad they were at the meeting and hoped they would attend meetings from now on.

Delegates elected to the State Convention are Huber of Hayes Township; Voisin, a Charlevoix insurance broker; Don Smith, a high school teacher and member of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners; William Ohle of Bay Township, a retired advertising executive; and John Haggard, a Charlevoix business man.

Alternates are Cass Toton and Art Rouse of Boyne City, Don Hufford of Hayes Township, Lee Moerland of Charlevoix, and Margaret Ohle of Bay Township.

Later, when asked by the Courier what difference it would have made at the State Convention if some or all of the Evangelical Christian county delegates had been elected to the State Convention, Muma replied:

"Well, there wouldn't have been so much partying and drinking and the state would have gotten the message that here in Charlevoix County the Republican party is the party of all the people".

Witten answered that as far as this State Convention is concerned, it would not have made any difference because his group is supporting the same candidates for state office as are the Republican regulars.

"However, representation by some of us would have sent a message about the next presidential candidate", he said.

The delegates will name Republican nominees for Lt. Governor, Attorney General, Secretary of State, Supreme Court Justice, members of the State Board of Education, and State University trustees.

The convention will also be the kickoff to the fall campaign of the Republican nominee for Governor, Bill Lucas, who will address the assembled delegates.

Council upbraided locate in the new Charlevoix Industrial Park.

CPI, owned by Donald Hufford, qualified for the maximum tax abatement allowed under the city's new formula. Industrial tax abatements are given for six to 12 years based on the number of points given for criteria which include: the number of jobs retained and created, cost of construction, cost of renovation as a percent of taxable property and the cash value of the building, installation of automatic fire sprinkler system, beautification of the site, and the use of energy-saving devices or design.

The Hufford project was given 130 points; 110 are needed to qualify for the 12-year abatement.

Wiesner estimated the abatement would cost the city some $921 in taxes per year. The tax abatement waives 50 percent of the tax on any increase in the State Equalized Value of the property.

Total taxes – city, county, school, etc. – waived for the project would be $3,290 per year, according to Wiesner's preliminary estimates, or $39,480 over the life of the abatement.

COUNCIL ALSO approved a request from Gary and Sharlene Spencley of 1009 St. Johns Street, to increase the capacity of their foster care home from four to five or six children. "They are doing a lovely job with those kids," Roloff commented.

CPI, which manufactures components for the automobile industry, currently employs nine people and expects to create an additional 17 jobs after the move to the industrial park.

North Point group forms to preserve sand dunes

A grassroots organization has been formed in Charlevoix to oppose condominiums on Charlevoix's North Point and to work toward its eventual preservation.

The group, spearheaded by Tom and Gaylehe Ramsey, calls itself DUNE (Defenders United for North Point Ecology), has held two organizational meetings and has scheduled another public meeting on Thursday, Aug. 21 at the Charlevoix Public Library.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. and will feature Jay Oliver who will speak on the old Indian trail through North Point. Katherine Amy will also read her poem, "A Walk."

"The DUNE group was formed with the long-term goal of preserving North Point in its natural state," the organization said in a prepared release. "The short-term goal of DUNE is to prevent zoning from being changed from its present R-1 to prevent condominiums on North Point dunes."

North Point was the site of a proposed condominium development submitted to Charlevoix Township last winter by developer Jeff DeGayner. DeGayner originally proposed 120 condominium units for approximately 30 acres of land. He was killed in a northern Michigan plane crash in March 1985. The accident also claimed the life of Richard M. Turner, DeGayner's business partner and owner of the North Point property.

The DUNE group said a Lester Turner of Lansing currently has an option until Sept. 30 to buy the property for $800,000.

Among the long-term options being considered is application to the state for matching funds under the Natural Resources Land Resources program to purchase the property and keep it in public trust.

Ruth Willis, a member of DUNE, said her group recognized the right of the owner to use the property. But it was bought zoned R-1, she said, and should not be rezoned to allow for condos.

North Point is located north of the Mt. McSauba Recreation Area. The area is described by DUNE as "a complex of 26 acres of beachfront, wetlands, lower fore dunes, large sand dunes and stabilized dunes with climax forest growth." The group said it was also noteworthy for its wildflowers, including the endangered Pitcher's thistle, and animal life.

If the property is offered for sale, DUNE organizers said they would make every effort to obtain it and have it used as a scenic reserve without buildings – scenery reserved for the public – with walking trails and a nature preserve."

Boychoir to sing

The Plymouth Boychoir from Ft. Wayne, Indiana, will be guests of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix on Sunday, August 24. Their musical program will be presented as part of the 10 a.m. worship service.

The Boychoir of two dozen voices is made up of boys ages seven to thirteen who audition for a place in the choir. While the Boychoir is sponsored by the Plymouth Congregational Church-UCC in Ft. Wayne, its membership comes from a wide variety of churches, including Roman Catholic. The choir, which visited Charlevoix in August 1984, performs once a month in the Ft. Wayne area and goes "on the road" several times each year.

Founded in 1981 by Mr. Vincent Slater, long-time musical director at Plymouth Church, the Boychoir is affiliated with the Royal School of Boychoirs in England. The participants receive religious education along with musical training as they move through the various "grades" of the choir program.

Included in their repertoire are classical works by Bach, Brahms, and Mozart, and many contemporary pieces. The boys also enjoy singing popular numbers from musicals and the hit parade. Their presentation in Charlevoix will focus on music from the churches' heritage. The public is invited.

Democrats elect state delegates

The Charlevoix County Democratic convention was held Saturday in Boyne City to elect delegates to the Democratic State Convention to be held in Flint Saturday and Sunday.

Named as delegates were: Ellen Addington of East Jordan, Democratic candidate for 103rd District Representative, Phyllis Marchinkewicz of Boyne Falls, Lance Johnson of Boyne City, James Novotny of Charlevoix and Mrs. Ruth Crawford, Democratic county chairman.

Barbara MacArthur of Charlevoix was named as an alternate.

The delegates will be uninstructed since there are no party contests.

Among the topics discussed at the meeting was the "homecoming" parties for Gov. James Blanchard to be held throughout the state in October. Tentative plans are being made for one in Charlevoix county Crawford said.

Divers find missing fisherman in tug

by FRAN MARTIN

The body of a fisherman, missing since Aug. 20, was pulled from a tug on the bottom of Lake Michigan, late Tuesday afternoon, almost a week after the boat sank.

The body was taken to Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix for examination by the Charlevoix County medical examiner. Identification will be given pending notification of next of kin.

The divers expected to continue working Wednesday, weather permitting. Both bodies were found trapped in the tug on Sunday.

Russell King, 31, and Ed Perkins, 45, both of Naubinway, who coowned the tug Razel Brothers, apparently were trapped on the boat when it collided with the Yugoslavian freighter Jablinca near Whiskey Island last week. The 30 foot steel tug sank immediately.

A third fisherman, Kurt Peterson, 21, of Manistique, was pulled unconscious from the water by the crew of the 620 foot freighter just after the accident. A U.S. Coast Guard helicopter from the Traverse City air station transported him to Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital at Manistique where he was pronounced dead.

The tug was located Sunday in 45 to 48 feet of water by volunteer Beaver Island boatmen and airplanes working with Charlevoix County sheriff's deputies, East Jordan Fire Department divers, a DNR diver and others aboard a DNR vessel, and a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter.

Divers said the tug had been badly damaged in the collision.

On Monday, the five East Jordan Fire Department divers were joined by six Michigan State Police divers. However, they were forced to terminate their diving operation at 3:15 p.m. due to lake conditions Sheriff George T. Lasater said.

The accident which claimed the lives of the three commercial fisherman occurred at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday when the up-bound Yogoslovian freighter collided with the tug, sending it to the bottom with the two owners trapped in it.

At the time of the accident, skies were slightly overcast and visibility was 10 miles, a Coast Guard spokesman said. There has been some speculation that the fishing tug was set on automatic pilot while the crew was cleaning fish and that the men were never aware how close they were to the freighter. That also would explain why they did not hear the warning horn.

The 44 foot patrol boat from the St. Ignace Lifeboat Station was dispatched to the scene following the accident. They were joined by the DNR research vessel, the Steelhead, out of Charlevoix which was in the area. Both were forced to withdraw from the area because of rough seas.

The Yugoslavian vessel also left the scene enroute to Duluth via the Soo locks where it was detained upon arrival while the crew was questioned about the accident by representatives of U.S. Coast Guard Marine Inspection office at St. Ignace. The ship departed the Soo at 5:30 p.m. Thursday for Duluth.

As weather permitted, the search for the sunken tug and the bodies of the owners continued. However, it was not until late Sunday that the divers reported that they had sighted the bodies of the two men in the damaged tug.

Meanwhile, the Jacques Admiralty Law of Detroit has brought suit against the owners of the freight seeking $12-$13 million settlement. The firm is representing the widow of the owners, Perkins and King, and the parents of the crewman.

State grant to fund Hoffmann Park

CHARLEVOIX — Development of a new city park and other downtown improvements could begin this fall thanks to a $25,000 coastal management grant from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Downtown Development Authority chairman Jim Mabee discussed plans for using the grant to develop Hoffmann Park on the Pine River channel, construct new city restrooms and an interpretive display on commercial fishing with city council Monday.

Mabee said the DDA wanted to make sure council supported the projects it was proposing before seeking additional design assistance and meeting with the planning and recreation commissions.

The city has until Tuesday, Sept. 30, to submit plans for use of the grant money, which the city must match.

The grant will cover planning and engineering for the various projects and most of the construction of Hoffman Park, which runs from Park Avenue to the Pine River channel. Heavy construction, such as for the restrooms, must come out of the city or DDA budgets.

The grant funds must be used for projects within 1,000 feet of the shoreline.

The design for Hoffmann Park, tentatively prepared by city planner Garry Harsh, shows a cement and brick walkway lined by flower beds. A seating area and wooden steps which will eventually connect with the planned walkway along the channel are also a part of the proposal.

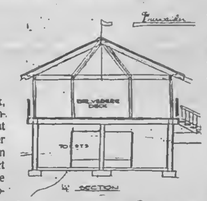
Railing for the walkway may come from the former swing bridge that carried traffic across the channel.

Mabee said work on the park — a $10,000 project — could begin this fall.

Mabee and architect Jack Begrow also discussed proposed restrooms near the highway bridge. Two sites are being considered — the pump out station next to the commercial dock and the park area by the Burnsides store.

Mabee and Begrow preferred the Burnsides location because it would provide better access for the people on Bridge Street and also because it would allow the construction of a viewing deck.

The restrooms would be on a lower level with the deck at street level. The roof of the deck would be about two-thirds of the way up the Burnsides building wall, Begrow said. The proposed site of the restrooms slopes.



Proposed restrooms next to the Burnsides store building.

Begrow proposed a Victorian design reflecting the cottages in the area.

Citizens attending the meeting were concerned about putting buildings in park areas.

Council member Shirley Roloff said she liked the idea of the viewing deck because it would create more use of the facility which would make it safer. She also felt the Burnsides site provided better access.

An interpretive display, also proposed by the DDA as part of the grant projects, would be located near the commercial dock in the park area on the channel. The display would include the fish net reels that once dotted the Round Lake shoreline as well as special Fiberglas panels which would show pictures of Charlevoix's commercial fishing industry in its heyday, among other things.

Pilot classes start at lighthouse for area high school drop-outs

by FRAN MARTIN

A pilot program for high school drop-outs, youths 16-21 years of age, who have left school and who are open to an alternative lifestyle of education, has been established at the Beaver Island Lighthouse property owned by the Charlevoix School District.

Designed to bring the youths back into the educational system through an alternative route, the program was established through the efforts of Dan Kaczynski, director of the Youth Employment Training Program (YETP) through the Traverse Bay Intermediate School District in cooperation with the Charlevoix School District and the Char-Em Intermediate School District.

The program is financed with funds made available through the Job Training Partnership Act, Adult Education and, as Kaczynski said, "hopefully, from Probate Courts and departments of Social Services in the 10 Northwestern Michigan counties to which the alternative program has made available."

The alternative program offers a residential educational experience thus providing a unique setting for individuals who have difficulty coping with conventional educational facilities, Kaczynski explained.

Located at the lighthouse property on the 14-mile-long Beaver Island, the program is operated by the YETP under Kaczynski's guidance and staffed by State of Michigan certified teachers. The program seeks to clarify and integrate societal norms and values with the student's personal lifestyle. Educational goals are based on conpetency-based contractural agreements and reinforced in the day-to-day group living Kaczynski said further.

Those enrolled in the program are youths, both young men and women, referred by the courts, DSS and other sources. At the outset the student signs a contract agreeing to meet goals they have established with the teaching staff. In return, they receive one on one assistance in meeting their individual goals. As part of the ongoing process the group participates in programming designed to help them in choosing goals whether educational, vocational or personal. Career training in the decision making skills are provided.

Under the program, each individual has responsibilities to fulfill his or her own needs as well as responsibilities toward others. As part of a group each individual is responsible for everyday household duties, meal preparation and other independent living management skills on a rotating basis. Moral support and group interaction are encouraged, flexibility remains an essential part toward the individuals' success.

Two sessions, winter and spring, were held at the site earlier this year with 15 youths involved in each of the programs.

On Monday, Sept. 22, the 1986-87 sessions will get under way with four sessions planned, Kaczynski said. Under the program, each student spends 12 days on the island, and two days at his home on the mainland or 48 days per session.

At the present time, the Charlevoix School District is fulfilling its role in the program by hiring certified instructors for the year.

Two instructors, a male and female, are employed as teachers-directors of program. A resident caretaker is in charge of the work section at the property.

The site of this alternative program to encourage young people who are high school drop-outs to return to school and eventually become a part of the work force is the Beaver Island Lighthouse property, acquire by the Charlevoix School District in 1972 when it was made available by the U.S. Government

Classic Car Club cruises Charlevoix

by DOUG TRUAX

Charlevoix pedestrians and drivers did a lot of double takes Friday.

The source of their curiosity was a fleet of classic automobiles which cruised through town during the afternoon. Interspersed among the usual snarl of Fords and Chevys and Subarus on Bridge Street were some stunning examples of the epitome of luxury from an earlier era.

Suddenly the street was crawling with Duesenbergs and Rolls Royces and Packards.

The drivers of these showcases of chrome and steel passed leisurely through Charlevoix, many stopping to shop or have lunch. Wherever the cars parked, the curious gathered to peek inside at the birdseye maple dashboards and the plush leather seats or to chat with the drivers.

Each year the Classic Car Club of America stages a week-long tour somewhere in the United States. This year's tour, called the CARavan, started in Dearborn and worked its way north to Petoskey. It then headed south through Charlevoix on the way to an evening stop at the Grand Traverse Resort in Acme.

The tour ends in Kalamazoo at the end of the week.

There are 113 classic cars making the trip. Paul TerHorst of Buffalo Grove, Ill., explained. A "classic," he said, is a luxury car built between 1925 and 1948. "That is considered by many the high point of luxury car building," he added.

Cars participating in the Michigan event came from as far away as Texas and Maine.

"If anybody is stopped in the road as we pass by, they have the greatest car show in America," Bud Hicks of Marshall, the owner of numerous classic Buicks, said proudly.

Wednesday will be a full day for all other students with a full schedule of classes, meals at the cafeteria and full bus schedule. Classes will be dismissed at 2:20 p.m. at the high school; 2:30 p.m. at the middle school and 3:30 p.m. at the elementary school.

Prices for meals at cafeterias will be the same as last year: $1 at the high school and 90 cents at both the middle and K-5 schools: Snack milk will be 25 cents. The $1 for meals at the high school does not include the a la carte items.

New residents of the community who have not registered their student(s) may do so at the school they will attend. Offices at all three schools will be open from 8 a.m.-4 p.m. (except during the lunch hour). If parents have questions they may call the schools during these hours or the business office at 208 Clinton St.

Parents with questions regarding the transportation system may contact the business manager, Vincent Olach, at the business office.

During the summer months, the buildings have been cleaned and painted in preparation for the September opening of school. Rooms in the business education department at the high school have been carpeted in readiness for the return of students.

At the high school level, Home Economics will be offered for the first time in several years. Mercedes Mathers will teach the clothing division and Mary Lieberman the Home and Family Living section.

Becky Gengle has joined the faculty as girls' Physical Education and Health Educaton instructor. She also will teach two class periods in the Learning Center. She succeeds Marie Osterberg as physical education instructor. Mrs. Osterberg has retired.

Auto mechanics will continue to be offered as a high school elective but students enrolled in this class will be transported to the Petoskey High School. Richard McLenon, former Auto Mechanics instructor, will now be at the middle school where he will teach math and will be involved in the remedial program.

Janyce Erzleben will join the faculty at the middle school as seventh grade English teacher replacing Nancy Nagurka who is on a leave of absentsee.

James Glyna will return to the Elementary school as a fourth grade teacher after an absence of three years when he taught in an American school on Okinawa. He succeeds Jacqueline Meier who has retired.

The first day for the administration and faculty will be Tuesday, September 2, when they meet at the elementary school at 8 a.m. for a conference. At noon there will be a luncheon at the high school cafeteria for the administration, faculty, the entire support staff, board of education members and invited guests.

At 1 p.m. Tuesday, principals and faculties will return to their respective schools for building conferences before readying classrooms for the opening day of school for students.

David J. Smith is the principal and Richard Swenor the assistant principal at the high school; Denise VanGulder, the principal at the middle school and Vane H. Smith principal at the K-5 building.

For the first time, the Charlevoix Middle School will host the H.I.P. (Highly Individualized Program) for middle school age students from throughout the Char-Em Intermediate School District. They have been assigned a classroom on the first floor of the school and the students vacating the room will be assigned to an adjacent portable classroom. Andy Peters will be the teacher for H.I.P. students.

St. Mary's opens doors Sept. 3

St. Mary's Parochial School will open at 9 a.m. Wednesday, Sept. 3 with a full schedule of classes.

Sister Barbara Ann Seymour, director of Christian Education, said she had set as one of her goals for the year the strengthening of the language arts program. "This means in all phases of the subject, writing, composition and speaking," she said.

The school features six grades, the first through the sixth grades, taught by four certified teachers. Christine Young of Bellaire will be joining the faculty this year. She will teach the fifth and sixth grades.

Jeanne Dubey will return as first-grade teacher; Linda Moore, former Chapter 1 teacher, as second grade teacher and John Gagnon as teacher of third and fourth grade students. He previously had the fifth and sixth grade.

Jeanne Lignell will return as music teacher and Eileen Heck as art instructor.

Sister Lisa Marie Lazzo, who has joined the St. Mary's parish as pastoral associate, will teach religion in the second grade.

Classes at St. Mary's school are dismissed at 3:10 p.m.

New postmaster named for city office

Sheila Murphy was sworn in Friday as the new Charlevoix postmaster, replacing acting postmaster Gary Oliverson who will return to his position in Gaylord.

Murphy, a 21-year veteran of the U.S. Postal Service, received the oath of office from T. Gary DeVar, head of the Management Section Center in Saginaw. Her mother, Dolores Murphy, also participated in the ceremony as postmasters from various cities in northern Michigan and friends and family looked on.

Murphy comes to the Charlevoix post from Grand Rapids where she served one year as director of the financial section which supervised the fiscal affairs of 162 post offices in southwestern Michigan. Prior to that she worked in Jackson for five years and in Royal Oak where she was raised.

The new postmaster says she is excited about the move to Charlevoix and is familiar with the area. She has often visited a sister who lived in Charlevoix and has since moved to Petoskey. Her parents bought property on Beaver Island, which her mother still owns, some 20 years ago.

Customer service is the top priority for the post office, Murphy said. "I welcome anyone's comments, suggestions or questions which would help make the service better," Murphy added.

She is enthusiastic about her work in the Postal Service. "It is a good place to work. The people are super. You know you are among friends," she said.

Many tickets sold for Petunia fundraiser

CHARLEVOIX — All remaining tickets for the Petunia truck fundraiser are being held at the chamber of commerce office.

According to Darrell Linder, ticket chairman, that's about a half day's supply the way sales have been going.

The 200 tickets which include a 1966 Mustang as top prize and entitle the ticket holder and guest to a sunset cruise on board the Star of Charlevoix will fund the purchase or repair of a Pejunia watering truck for Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, a civic beautification organization which oversees the planting of 50,000 petunias annually along Charlevoix's main street.

The organization also held a auction this summer with most of the proceeds funding the annual planting. Some of those funds may be used to purchase or repair the watering truck.

The cruise, which will feature hors d'oeuvres including quiche by Putting on the Ritz and John Cross' smoked whitefish, will run 7-9 p.m. Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 1. Boarding will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Entertainment will be provided by Fran Tollas at the piano and Phil Schairbaum on bass. As a surprise feature, over $1,000 in door prizes for those present will be awarded ranging from a petunia chair designed by the Woodwright Shop to acorn squash from Smith's Little Acre and car wash tokens from Phillips Standard.

He reminded purchasers that tickets are not transferable and ticket holders need not be present to win top four prizes.

Transportation dept concentrates on road work

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) is an agency with many responsibilities, and to celebrate Michigan Transportation Week, MDOT offered some statistics:

The largest part of the Department's work force is assigned to highway programs: building, maintaining, and administering the 9,500 mile state highway system. While this mileage is only an estimated eight percent of the state's total road system, these state highways carried about 34.2 billion miles of driving in 1985.

Michigan's 395 mile segment of Interstate 75 Freeway is the state's longest highway. M-209 in Leelanau County, which runs for four-tenths of a mile, is the state's shortest highway. The least-traveled is M-77 to Grand Marais in Alger County, with 400 vehicles a day. The only Michigan highway not traveled by motor vehicles is M-185, a 7.5 mile blacktopped road which encircles Mackinac Island.

Michigan is one of only three states (the others being California and Missouri) which does not have a toll road.

Michigan's highways are designated in three different ways: "I" highways, such as I-94, are on the Interstate Freeway System, which extends to all 48 contiguous states. "U S" highways extend to two or more states. "M" highways begin and end within Michigan.

White center lines were first used in the United States, in Michigan, in 1911. The first yellow "no passing" lines were also first used in Michigan, in 1928. Both white and yellow lines are usually repainted annually.

The Department of Transportation operates 100 roadside parks and 77 freeway rest areas as well as 11 welcome centers located mostly at border points around the state. Trained counselors in these centers serve about two million visitors a year and dispense some four million pieces of travel literature, including the Charlevoix Visitors Guide.

The nation's first permanent travel information center for highway travelers was the New Buffalo Welcome Center, built in 1935.

The first highway roadside park was built in 1918 by the Iron County Road Commission. The first roadside picnic table was placed on Old US-16 in Boston County, Ionia County, in 1929.

The Michigan Department of Transportation is responsible for the state's public transit systems, such as the one in Charlevoix County.

Last year, over 104 million people throughout the state used public transportation of one kind or another.

The MDOP maintains 292,510 signs along its 9,500 mile highway system. It is estimated that 15 million gallons of gasoline are save annually by using the "right turn on red" traffic system.

Since the Highway Beautification Program began in 1966, Michigan has planted well over 300,000 trees and shrubs. The state spends $10 million to $15 million a year on planting grass and sod on new construction projects.

State highways in Charlevoix County are M-66 and M-75, for a total of 66.6 miles.

County board seeks nominees for waste planning

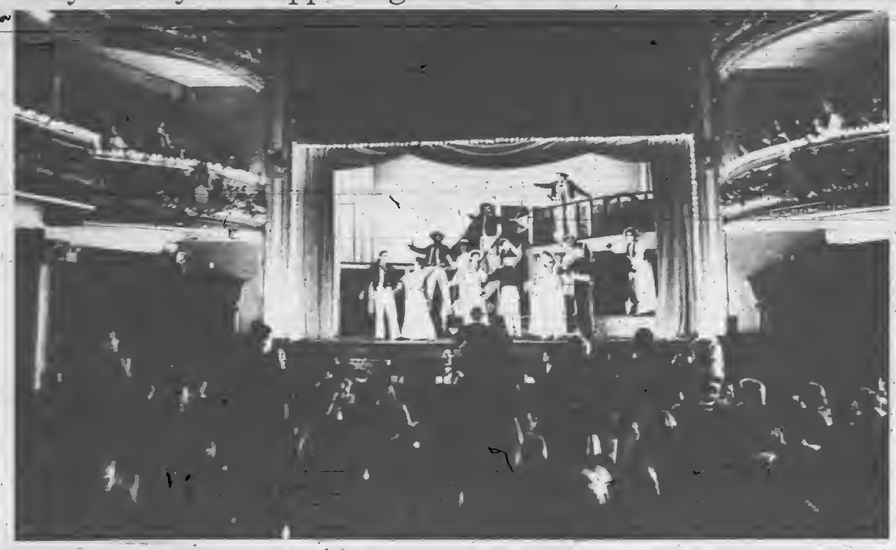
Why We Played A Supporting Role In The Restoration Of A Community Opera House.



Near the turn of the century, two-bits and a little bit of luck put you near the front of the standing room only crowds that were the hallmark of this opera house.

Mary Pickford, at the time just a blossoming star, graced its stage.

As did Annie Oakley's traveling show of six-guns and other assorted shootin' irons.

In fact, over the years, what with all the stars of vaudeville and theatre who performed here, you would have thought it was Broadway in New York.

Not a small midwest town's main street opera house.

Even talking movies couldn't do to the grand old place what a major fire, many years of neglect and then a condemnation notice would finally do.

Close its doors. Seemingly for good.

But to the townspeople, the show just had to go on.

So when private citizens and business people got together to restore this priceless landmark, a lot of our people asked what part they could play.

You see, we're not just bankers.

We're part of the community.

So we believe that sometimes it's just as important to lend a hand as it is to lend someone money.

At First of America Bank, we're proud we were part of the impressive community cast of characters that raised the money it took to bring the opera house back to life.

And we applaud the entire town's contribution to the performing arts.

FIRST OF AMERICA
We're Community Banks First.

Lots happens when bridge is up

BY EDITH GILBERT

WHEN THE BRIDGE goes up, not only do boats pass through the channel, but sometimes unusual deals are made. The deal I'm talking about benefits Charlevoix Area Hospital. Let me explain –

While Bruce MacArthur was impatiently waiting for the Bridge, he hops out of the car and runs into Ski and Shore to see Rik Lobenherz and said, "Hello." "So glad you stopped by," says Rik. "I have a commercial treadmill that I want to the donate to the Petunia Auction. It only has 1100 miles on it and is worth $4,000." "It's a deal," replies Bruce enthusiastically.

Thanks to a couple of husky volunteer coast guardsmen, the heavy treadmill is carried off Rik's porch to the stage in East Park. Unfortunately the people, who promised to bid didn't show, so Dr. George White, who summers in Charlevoix and is the Director of Psychiatric Services of Hurley Hospital in Flint, bids and gets the treadmill for $225.

Dr. White is now donating the exercise machine to the Charlevoix Area Hospital and the therapy department couldn't be happier.

Remember this little story the next time you're sitting and waiting for the Bridge.

WE'VE HAD ANOTHER T-shirt sighting! This call came from Renee Durban whose family summers on Pa Ba Shan Trail. The family feels so much a part of Charlevoix, that they call Bloomfield Hills their second home. The six children count the days 'til its Charlevoix time, and why not? Mama and Papa Durban spent their honeymoon here and two of their daughters have also honeymooned in Charlevoix. That ought to be some kind of record.

Back to the T-shirt. While walking on Waikiki beach in Hawaii, son Skip Durban was wearing a Charlevoix sweatshirt. An elderly man approached him and said, "I was born and raised in Charlevoix. Now I'm retired and living in Hawaii." (Can anyone guess his name?)

Later, on the island of Maui, a young woman approached Renee, who was wearing a Charlevoix T-shirt, and said, "I was born in Petoskey, and I'm homesick. Will you please send me a postcard when you get back home?" And Renee did.

WHY ARE THOSE Belvedere cottages filled year after year with families from all over the United States? One reason may be the Annual Cabaret that the members put on for each other's amusement. Well, that's the impression I got after talking to Bill Claggett, because this year's endeavor was a complete sellout in the newly renovated Casino. The new entrance charmingly decorated with large black and white framed pictures of old Belvedere cottages is inspired.

I can just imagine the fun the committee had in writing satirical skits, collecting amusing costumes and props, rehearsing songs and dances, handling lights and music. The theme this years was High Water, with a rear screen slide projector showing actual photos of the high water around town.

One of the skits showed the ladies of the Belvedere dressed as pink flamingos, standing on one leg gossiping, ready to fly off when the Belvedere resort sinks complete under water. "Whoops, there goes another cottage –"

The flamingo theme was repeated on the 20 tables of ten in the casino. Each table had a flamingo centerpiece filled with red and pink carnations and snapdragons. Really pretty.

The cabaret is the high point of the Belvedere summer and the audience loved every minute of the talent show. Sure beats watching "Dynasty."

Summer's gone

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

Summer is zipping along like a boy on a skateboard.

Summer is melting away like an ice cream cone in a sauna.

Summer hasn't lasted any longer than a ....

Fill in your own simile. I'm getting tired.

But the fact remains that summer, despite what the calendar says, is our shortest season. And it always ends before I do half the things you intend to do.

This summer, for example, I had made a personal vow to take the family to Hartwick Pines near Grayling.

I haven't visited that small swatch of virgin forest since I was a boy. But I remember vividly holding hands with other members of the family as we formed a circle around the gigantic Monarch Pine, the granddaddy of white pines in the Midwest.

I can't remember now what its circumference was, but it took a slew of us to complete the circle.

The tree is still alive, I understand, and I am confident it would be as happy to see me as I would to see it. Probably both of us have grown a little since the early 40s.

I also had sort of planned to visit Drummond Island in the estuary of the St. Marys River. I have been assured by residents and visitors alike that there is "nothing there," but I would like to see for myself. I enjoy quiet, untamed places, "far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife," as old Thomas Gray used to say.

Another possible destination was to have been the south shore of Lake Superior, a rugged stretch of coastline with such beautiful place names as Ontonagon, Keweenaw, Baraga, L'Anse, Ispheming, Negaunee, Marquette, Munising and Grand Marais — names that sing and thunder on the pages of Michigan history.

I haven't visited any of them since they were raw-boned timber, mining and fishing towns — but I loved the names then and I still do.

I always get a kick whenever I hear about a posh restaurant or fancy motel opening in any of them. The last time I visited the Superior shore, no one knew what "posh" meant, but the food was good and plentiful.

Travelers were forced to spend the night in ramshackle frontier hotels. The bar off the lobby was usually so jammed with boisterous lumberjacks that you couldn't get to sleep until the wee hours with all of the hooting and hollering going on downstairs.

I also had intended to visit east coast of the Lower Peninsula. Although I have attended football games in Rogers City and once spent a weekend at Tawas City, I have never set foot in Alpena. Former residents tell me it is not really the "queen city of Lake Huron" that I envision, but I'd still like to find out for myself.

Another spot just beyond my reach is the settlement on Fayette on Big Bay de Noc. I hear there are spectacular limestone outcroppings in the area similar to the awesome headlands of Georgian Bay, but I don't know for sure.

Maybe next summer.

Letters to the editor:

Courier looks good in Florida

Dear Editor:

The Courier certainly has good "shelf life," as I look at your May 21, 1986 issue and the 2nd Annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament.

As you move onward to 1,000 participants - am enclosing a brochure from the 6th Annual Greater Jacksonville Kingfish Tournament that might be of some interest. It incorporates just about all the refinements needed. (The $35,000 winner this year did it with a 50.7 pounder.)

I was born and raised in Charlevoix, class of '43. I'd sure have to go to the Chamber of Commerce and get a map if I needed to go more than ¾ of a mile from the Central Drug Store.

A bunch of us down here enjoy and delight in the Courier. Particularly the Jan. and Feb. issues - when a bag of ice is no problem at all. Eh?

Print on.

Thanks to hospital staff

Dear Editor,

We wish to express our deep appreciation to all the nurses at Charlevoix Area Hospital for their loving care of our husband and father, Joseph Pienta, during his recent stay there for the last few days before his passing away. Also to the nurses from the Public Health Department who visited him at our home and gave him such wonderful care and many thanks to the ladies from Hospice who visited us and were so helpful and caring. I'd like to add a special thank you to Dr. Merle Plagge. May God bless you all.

Chamber should have helped

Dear Editor:

To Claudia C. Kenifeck, Executive Director, Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce:

We don't need legalism and expect no pampering. Your response (Aug. 6 Letter to the Editor) proves this point. Discretion was omitted by your staff turning down Mrs. Lisa Kleiber the use of a phone.

It appears there is a lack of compassion at the Chamber. A young mother with a 14-month old baby should have been attended to, business as usual could have waited one or two minutes. In this emergency Mrs. Kleiber did the correct thing, asking the Chamber for help.

How would you feel if your loved ones had their car stalled in the rain in a busy "No Parking Zone" with a 14-month baby aboard - especially at the Chamber's doorstep - and were refused the use of the phone? Mrs. Lisa Kleiber, please accept this apology from all the people that care.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

Since the first of the year, Mayor Hal Hill, City Manager Mike Wiesner and I have been touring the local industrial plants in the area to establish a line of communication between the city, the Chamber, the township and local industry. Business has been very responsive and the results have been very beneficial.

The last time the Chamber was involved with the industrial segment of our community was several years ago when an industrial survey was conducted. A healthy economy needs to balance all segments of business to stay healthy.

Though the shoulder seasons are drawing more people to this area, tourism is yet to be a solid year around "employer." The 25 or so manufacturers in the Charlevoix area generate approximately 875 year around jobs. That figure equates to a payroll of about $1.5 million a month and those employers pay a lot of taxes. These taxes underwrite our utilities and help our schools.

Recognizing the need to keep existing industry happy, the City Manager was instrumental in getting the ball rolling with the industrial contacts. It will take several more months to complete calls to all local industry, at the rate of one contact a week, but once this is accomplished, the valuable information gained will be compiled and a "plan of action" will be outlined.

As the three of us gather more information, we will be better equipped to outline what it takes to service the needs of the industry in this area. The mayor, the city, and the Chamber are committed to economic development in Charlevoix; that includes both expansion and retention of existing industry, along with solicitation of new industry.

Things that must be addressed:

1. Organize a local group - industrialists that can talk to industrialists.
2. Create incentives to keep and attract industry.
3. Get total community commitment toward economic development.
4. Secure solid financial involvement.
5. Acquire and earmark future industrial parcels.
6. Establish guidelines for industrial parks.
7. Solicit target market.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

What do you look for when you come to church? It was his first Sunday in his first church as pastor. When the service was over, he went to the back of the sanctuary to greet his people. His first greeting wasn't exactly what he expected. "Pastor, I just thought you ought to know that I counted fifteen grammatical errors in your message this morning."

What do you look for when you come to church? If you look for errors in the sermon or in songs that are sung or played, you will probably find them. No human is perfect. But is that why you come to church?

David reminds us in Psalm 100 that we come to worship our God. We come to spend concentrated time in his presence. We come to renew our joy for living. We come to be reminded that it is God who is in control of our lives.

What should you do when you come to church? Be thankful. There is a little saying that goes "when you think, you will thank." There's not a one of us that doesn't have something to be thankful for. The very fact you can read this is something to be thankful for.

What should you do when you come to church? Be thoughtful. You are in God's house. You have come before his presence. There is little doubt about what he has saved us from. Have you considered what he has saved you to be? You are saved to be his child. You are saved to be his ambassador. You are saved to inherit a home with him in heaven.

What should you do when you come to church? Be thoroughly prepared. One of the purposes of worship is not just to express our praise and thanksgiving to God but it is also to equip us to serve him better. Every aspect of your Sunday worship time is prayed over and planned to help encourage you to live the life of faith. God has a work he wants you to help him with.

It is every pastors prayer that you find the refreshment and revival you need when you come to church. It is also every pastors prayer that you might leave church with a joy in your heart and a willingness to serve God more.

Renown illustrator exhibits works at McCune Center in Petoskey

The work of renowned American artist and illustrator Carol Wald is being presented in a Limited Engagement Exhibition at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center in Petoskey through Saturday, Sept. 6.

Wald is well-known as a teacher and juror in Northern Michigan and nationally celebrated in more than 100 periodicals and magazines including L'Express, Forbes, Atlantic Monthly, Saturday Review, Fortune, People, and Time.

For her Petoskey exhibition, Wald is displaying a portion of her new series on native Americans, which will be featured in New York's Museum of American Illustration Sept. 23 through Oct. 17. She is also exhibiting works from her award-winning series "Hermit of the Sea," which was published by Nautical Quarterly.

The "Hermit of the Sea" series received numerous honors, including the Twentieth Annual Publication Design Exhibition in New York City in 1985, and a certificate of merit from Communication Arts Awards in the same year.

The images used to create the photo-montages for the series were based upon four vintage photographs of Alain Gerbault, the first man to sail single handed across the Atlantic from east to west.

Wald conducted extensive research on Gerbault's 1923 Voyage and subsequent travels before she began to combine paint, photography and collage to result in the richly textured images critics have found so compelling.

To create these montages, the artist amassed hundreds of picture fragments of sails, rigging, ships and a variety of shipman's gear as well as numerous special-effect photographs of weather and landscape environments. She spent hours in the darkroom, masking, collaging and manipulating this wide range of printed material, until one cohesive paper negative was achieved for each image. The artist then enhanced the photo montage with an application of oil paints.

The Art Tree is located in the McCune Arts Center, the former historic Methodist church at the corner of Mitchell and Division streets, downtown Petoskey. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

The public is invited to attend the opening reception. There is no charge.

The class of 1931 of East Jordan High School celebrated its 55th anniversary with a reunion dinner held at St. Joseph's Parish hall Saturday, July 26. The dinner was served by the St. Anns' Alter Society. Those present were, back row: Roy Gunderson, Morean (Bulow) Sarkozy, Bill Russell, Agnes (Stenek) Derbee, Jason Snyder, Vare (Hammond) Kraemer, Walter Holstad, Mabla Hudkins. Front row: Olive (Lavenwey) Pfaffer, Florence (Gleason) Stucker, Edith (Carson) Ball, Miriam (Gould) Noffsinger, Jo (Dolzel) Moody.

Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Marshall of Charlevoix celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary on August 3 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bowen in Drayton Plains.

They were guests of honor at the annual Marshall-Bowen reunion and specially honored by their daughter Debby of Midland and James II of Lombard, Illinois. They were presented with a grandfather clock and a card personally calligraphied by their son, combining the family's thoughts of celebration and congratulation.

Forty guests and relatives, including Mrs. Marshall's mother, Lois Vassoff, attended the event.

Dorothy Dixon wins garden club quilt

Dorothy Dixon held the winning ticket in the recent raffle of the handcrafted flower garden quilt sponsored by the Charlevoix Garden Club, Derith Lane, president of the sponsoring organization has announced.

Funds derived from the project will be used to underwrite the club's civic projects including gardens in the community and others sponsored by the club.

Members of the club appliqued the many blocks and assisted in handquilting the quilt. Nancy Fowler and Mary Helen Riggle coordinated the project.

The club sponsors such a project every other year.

4-H offers wilderness survival skills course

Charlevoix County older youths and adults who want to learn more about wilderness living can take advantage of the opportunity to participate in the 4-H Challenge wilderness adventure training program, says Jane Regenmorter, Charlevoix County 4-H youth agent.

Through the 4-H Challenge program, participants learn a variety of skills, including backpacking, canoeing, cross-country skiing, snowshoeing, orienteering and wilderness cooking and survival.

According to Regenmorter, county residents interested in becoming part of the Challenge program and, after training, serving as group leaders for young people, should sign up now.

The first 4-H Challenge leader training for this region will be held Sept. 12-14. Location details will be given at a later date.

Regenmorter says that anyone interested in becoming a Challenge leader must attend four or five weekend intensive training sessions, pass a comprehensive written test and take a Multi Media Standard First Aid and CPR course. Additional training in areas such as rock climbing and rappeling, caving, advanced canoeing, winter camping and survival (including skiing and snowshoeing) and extended backpacking is available.

"Because Challenge leaders will be involved in high adventure situations and be responsible for youngsters participating in wilderness outings; they must be prepared," Regenmorter points out. "After completing all the training, Challenge leaders become certified and are qualified to take youth on wilderness adventures. "It's worth all the hard work and studying if you like the challenge of the out-of-doors," she adds.

To be eligible for the 4-H Challenge certification program, applicants must be at least 21 years old. Young people aged 16-20 years may become associate leaders, who must be accompanied by a certified adult leader when taking a group of youngsters on a Challenge outing.

Training for both leader types is identical.

Charlevoix County residents interested in more information or in signed up for the 4-H Challenge Leader certification program should contact Jane Regenmorter at the Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension Service office, or call 582-6232.

Sports complex renovation continues at school

Working alone on the concession stands block work is Rod Stevens.

by FRAN MARTIN

The renovation of the outdoor sports complex at the Charlevoix High School continues though the schedule has been changed a little.

School district business manager Vincent Olach said the delay was caused by the late arrival of the poles for the new lighting system. They were expected Monday but may not arrive before Labor Day, Olach was advised Monday.

Despite this, Olach said that Ivan Withoeft of Charlevoix Electric Service which was awarded the bid for the work, said the lights would be ready for the season opener on Friday, Sept. 5, when Petoskey Northmen meet the Charlevoix Rayders at Kipke field.

When the poles arrive, Stevens Construction will be ready to set them in place 75 feet from the perimeter of the playing field and encase them in concrete. The lights can then be mounted on the four 80 foot poles which are being sent to replace the 75 foot steel poles ordered, Olach said.

Other work at the field is progressing on schedule. Bleachers have been moved to the west side of the playing field, mounted and bolted to the foundation. The base for the press box is being completed in readiness for topping it with the press box which, like the bleachers, will be moved, set in place and wired.

Construction of the building to house the refreshment booth and restrooms is expected to done prior to the season's opener. The plumbing for the structure was completed earlier.

The bleachers were moved from the east side of Kipke field to the west side beginning Friday. Working on the bleachers is Rodger McBride Sr. who is assisted by Rodger Jr. They both work for John Peerl who is overseeing the project.

The drainage system inside the track is also underway.

The new scoreboard is expected later in the week and will be erected prior to the opening game, Olach added.

While the work on the project will continue throughout the fall months, the major part of the renovation is expected to be completed by Nov. 1. At that time, weather permitting, the eight-line all-weather tarack and related facilities wil be completed except for the top coat of rubberized asphalt on the track and work on the football field proper will begin.

The renovation of the facility which will continue into 1987 was made possible with the approval of a 1.25 mill tax levy for one year to underwrite the cost of he project.

The new energy-effiuent lighting system will replace system donated to the school in 1954 as a memorial to John Knight, mayor of Charlevoix at the time of his leath, and the cinder track which was constructed as a W.P.A. project with federal funds 50 years ago.

Veterans fill spots on girls basketball team

The Charlevoix Rayder girls' basketball team will open its 20-game season Tuesday, Sept. 2, at Ellsworth.

Coach Henry Wagner said the game will cilmax three weeks of preparation for the season.

Coach Wagner and his candidates for this year's squad return to the boards after posting a 15 win-5 loss season in 1985.

"We are returning from a good year," Wagner said. "We lost three regulars by graduation. However, with the return of several veterans from last year and Ann Kroll who spent the school year in Sweden where she played, we should be pretty strong."

The veterans he mentioned are Amy Pischner, All-Conference last season, and Kroll, both 5 foot 10, Barbie Boss, Cindy Boss and Stephanie Martin, all seniors, and Elden Pearl, a 5 foot 10 junior.

Pischner will fill the center position. Kroll, Cindy Boss and Pearl, the forward positions and Barbie Boss and Martin, guard slots.

Other players up from the JVs are Lisa Smith, 5 foot 7, Jennifer Bonar, 5 foot 11 and Jill Austin, 5 foot 9. All are candidates for a center position. Also Allison Hall, who could fill a point guard position and Becky Smith a forward slot. These players are all juniors.

Stacy Gebott, 5 foot 8, who can play either the guard or forward position, is the only sophomore up from the JVs.

Thirteen players — 11 freshmen and two sophomores — are out for the junior varsity squad coached by Stan Martin. The candidates for this team have had experience as middle school team members. They will gain further experience as members of the JV team, a feeder group for varsity players.

Wagner said that prior to the season, letters were sent to 42 candidates, all of whom had played or indicated they might want to play, inviting them to report for practice. Twenty-five prospective players responded, Wagner said.

Speaking of the upcoming season, Wagner said "The core is there. I look for a decent season."

He added that he felt Cheboygan and Gaylord were the teams to beat.

All JV games will start at 6:30 p.m. with the varsity game following.

Flag football registration set

It's time to sign up for the flag football program sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation Department, Dwight Boss, recreation director, has announced.

All boys in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades wishing to participate in the popular fall sport are asked to sign up at the recreation department in the city hall by Friday, Aug. 29.

There will be a $10 fee which will also underwrite the cost of a T-shirt and a mouth guard.

Purple Martin project starts in state

With Michigan's summer populations of purple martins expected to start winging their way for Brazil any day now, reports of their southbound migrations are needed from all corners of the state to help blueprint many happy returns for the birds in nesting seasons to come, reports the Department of Natural Resources.

Those sightings of martin migrations are being requested by Ann Arbor researcher Richard Wolinski, who recently launched a five-year study aimed at helping stem the birds' nose-dive in numbers on Michigan's outdoor scene.

The study is one of some 30 field projects sponsored by the Nongame Wildlife Fund this summer to help bald eagles, piping plovers, lake sturgeon, bluebirds, sandhill cranes, timber wolves, endangered snakes, and a wide variety of rare and precious plants. The fund is made up entirely of public donations. Nearly all of them come as checkoff contributions on state income tax returns.

Wolinski can already count on hearing from 335 citizen cooperators who, since last spring, have answered his call to serve as the eyes and ears of his project throughout the state.

Those volunteers, using survey forms supplied by Wolinski, have recorded when purple martins returned to their areas this spring and the number of birdhouse compartments they occupied in each active colony. This month, they will be keeping tabs on the birds' departure dates for southern climes.

Wolinski's latest appeal for citizen help is designed to fill out his project's survey coverage. In seeking volunteers last spring, he came up empty in a number of counties, notable those in the mid-section of the Lower Peninsula.

In any event, "landlords" of active martin colonies in any of Michigan's 83 counties are urged to get in touch with Wolinski. He can be contacted by writing to: Purple Martin Project, 2450 Baker Road, Dexter, Michigan 48130.

Yachting Notes

by A. NONY MOUSE

Well, the summer of '86 has closed and now, as we await the anxiety of the Red Fox and the winds of October, we can reflect back on the terrific summer given us by Mother Nature.

Eight races and pseudoraees began, and finished, by Phil Ohmert amid capricious winds, occasional lake freighters and juvenile-minded power boaters such as Miss Christine, who consider it sport to crash through a becalmed fleet spilling the residual of the late afternoon's air from their sails.

Did you notice that the Flying Machine closed out the summer with two consecutive guns? And that Spectre almost pulled the rabbit from the hat and proved that Fleet III doesn't belong to the Ingots anymore?

Well the last race scoring goes as follows:

Fleet I: Flying Machine, Plastic Fantastic, Miss Piggie, Kritter, Gotcha, Chuckie B, Slapshot.

Fleet II: Cygnus, San-Sue-Sbe, Nulli Secundus, Blasen III, Spectre, Tireless and Phoenicia.

Fleet IV (JAM): Ribit, Mud Duck, Canusa, Mint Julip, and Kittiwake.

Fleet V (JAM): Stalworth, Coolwhip, Apothecary, Cheemaun, Sandpiper, TeGi, and Maureen...

And, for the summer series, here it is:

Fleet I: Charlie Brown 8.75; Slapshot 21.25; Pygmalion 23.5; Kritter 23.75 (that's close!); Plastic Fantastic 24.75; Flying Machine 29.5.

Fleet II: Wingnut 9.25; Brass Tacks 16.25; Babe 19.5 (position under appeal); Bandit 24; Merry Hell II 24 (tie).

Fleet III: Cygnus 12 (a P-26); Blasen III 14.25 (a P-26); Spectre 16.5 (Hey, he's not a P-26); Tireless 22.25; Nulli Secundus 27; San-Sue-She 37.5; Phoenicia 38.

Fleet IV: Mud Duck 5.5; Canusa 13; Ribit 14.5; Mint Julip 24.75; Kittiwake 27.5.

Fleet V: Maureen II 5; Cheemaun 13; Sandpiper 20; Apothecary 22.75; TeGi 28; Stalworth 28.25; Coolwhip 38.5; Carousel 48.

So ends two-thirds of the racing season.

The Best Damn Skipper Races were held August 24, 1986, off the CYC beach in the puffers. As he has demonstrated in years past the BDS is still Mike Miller, but 1986 showed Mike some of the stiffest competition that bearded boater has seen in the person of Dylan Stewart, who bested Miller in one race but lost the final showdown when he ran into flukey air while the BDS skirted the edge of the depression and won by 20 yards. Outstanding performances were offered by Tom Ochs, Dan Bickersteth and not-so-outstanding by an aging family doctor who should have known better.

Hope to see all at the Landing Wednesday. The Red Fox-Bud lists are near-complete. If your boat isn't there, too bad!!

Hoping that the Balding Bard of Black Bandit will assist with future editions as the rest of us have always assumed that this column has been his from the beginning and that we have been priviledged to fill in from time to time.

Til then,

...Watching the Western Skies.

MUCC pushes wine cooler petitions

Now that the Michigan Legislature has rejected a special legislative session to place the wine cooler deposit proposal on the November 4 election ballot, the state's largest conservation organization is stepping up its campaign to gather enough voter signatures to place the question on the ballot in 1988.

The Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC), which gathered more than 200,000 voter signatures between mid-May and early July, has begun distributing new petitions to supporters in every county in the state. In addition, MUCC-affiliated clubs in the Detroit area are staffing a booth at the Michigan State Fair, August 22-Sept 1, where voters can sign wine cooler deposit petitions.

Under state law, the group has until November 3 of this year to submit 243,201 valid voter signatures to the Elections Division of the Michigan Secretary of State's office in order to place the issue on the 1988 ballot, according to Thomas L. Washington, MUCC executive director.

"It is our opinion that the signatures we have already collected will remain valid for the 1988 election," Washington noted, "and we are confident we will file more than the necessary number of signatures before this year's election."

Supporters of the drive to mandate deposits on containers of wine coolers and pre-mixed spirit beverages are being urged to gather more voter signatures on petitions to ensure that the question will be decided by voters in two years. More than 6,000 individuals who were involved in the initial circulation effort will be receiving new petitions in the next few weeks.

"Our club members and supporters have done a tremendous job keeping this important conservation issue alive in Michigan," Washington added. "We're asking them once again to talk with their family members, friends, neighbors, and co-workers and encourage them to sign the petitions that will give Michigan voters an opportunity to decide the issue.

"We're very close to a victory on this issue," Washington said. "With just a little more effort we'll give Michigan citizens an opportunity to stop the new trashing of our state."

Northern Mich. School of Bible lists classes

The Northern Michigan School of the Bible, with headquarters in Charlevoix, is now enrolling students for the fall semester, which will begin the third week in September.

The Reverend David Yingling of the Methodist Church in Charlevoix will offer a course called "Tools for the Workman", described as a course to "train a person to do original Bible study through utilization of the Greek and Hebrew, by teaching him to use an interlinear Greek-English Dictionary, a Greek Lexicon, New American Standard Study Bible, and Vine's Expository Dictionary of New Testament Words".

This course will be taught Thursday evenings from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

The Reverend Lowell Anderson of the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church will teach a course called "Bible Survey", which will guide the student from Romans through Revelations, tracing the background and the theme of each book as it is studied.

This course will also be taught Thursday evenings from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

The Reverend Cliff Molnar of the Faith Community Fellowship in Boyne City will teach two courses.

One course, "Communion with God", has the stated goal that "one can commune (converse) with God through the fellowship of the Holy Spirit, and that the communion flow both ways". This course will be taught on Monday evenings from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

His other course, "Abiding in Christ No. 2", will cover all 1,400 verses of scripture that deal with the heart and spirit of man. The prerequisites to this course are "Communion with God" and "Abiding in Christ No. 1".

More information about the courses may be obtained from the Reverend Mr. Anderson at 547-6430.

Arthur C. Wexstaff, 85

Funeral service for Arthur C. Wexstaff, 85, retired Charlevoix businessman, was held Aug. 28 at the First Congregational Church, Charlevoix. The Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum will officiate and interment will be in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Wexstaff died Aug. 22, 1986, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

He was born June 27, 1901, in Charlevoix and had always lived there except for a short time when he resided in Flint.

On Oct. 1, 1921, he married the former Bernice Crandell in Petoskey.

Mr. Wexstaff was associated with the dry cleaning business prior to the purchase of the business which became Art's Dry Cleaners. The business was sold in 1980.

Mr. Wexstaff was a musician and from 1927-40, he had his own orchestra. Mrs. Wexstaff was associated with him in the band until 1933. Mr. Wexstaff played the drums and until recent years, played with local and area bands.

He was an outdoorsman, a restorer of guns, a golfer, an artist and a former pilot. In recent years, Mr. and Mrs. Wexstaff spent the winter months in Zephyrhills, Fla.

Mr. Wexstaff was a member of the First Congregational Church, a past master and life member of the Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F.&A.M. and a member of the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club.

He is survived by his wife; one son, Robert E. Wexstaff of Charlevoix; a sister, Mrs. Kathryn Hunt of Mt. Morris.

The family suggests memorials to The Lift Entry Fund at the First Congregational Church, Charlevoix. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix, where friends may call 2-4 and 7-9 p.m. today.

Official Notice

EVELINE TOWNSHIP BOARD MINUTES-AUGUST 12

The regular meeting of the board August 12, 1986; all board members present.

The minutes of the previous meeting read and approved as read.

Several requests by residents were made but no action was taken.

As suggested by attorney Graham, the board recessed the regular meeting to go into closed session to discuss litigation between Eveline Township and H&O Trucking and to hear a request from H&O. Motion by Ted Sherman and supported by Wayne Saunders to hold closed session; motion carried at 8:38 p.m.

Regular meeting reconvened at 9:42 p.m.

A petition signed by many lakeshore home owners near Advance was presented to the board with a request to change "Ferry Road" to "Lakeshore Road" from the Boyne City city limits thru Whiting Park. Motion made, supported and carried to grant that request.

Motion made, supported and carried to deny Don Hodgkiss of H&O Trucking a request to off load 39,000 ton of boulders at their Ironton dock.

The board will request that the Charlevoix County Equalization Dept. assess the Wolverine Power Plant in Advance as in the past, therefore allowing Cave a waiver to the state requirement that he become a Level II Assessor.

Motion made, supported and carried to hire a private engineer to continue the survey for Ironton Grain #1.

Treasurer's report was given and bills were approved for payment in the amount of $5,228.33.

Adjournment at 12 midnight.

Marsha Beshlag, Clerk

Notice of Public Hearing on Increasing Property Taxes

The Board of Commissioners of the County of Charlevoix will hold a public hearing on a proposed increase of .0039 mills in the transit operating tax millage rate to be levied in 1986.

The hearing will be held on Wednesday, September 10, 1986 at 11:00 o'clock in the a.m. at Commissioners' Room, County Building Annex Charlevoix.

If adopted, the proposed additional millage will increase operating revenues from ad valorem property taxes 1.58% over such revenues generated by levies permitted without holding a hearing.

The taxing unit publishing this notice, and identified below, has complete authority to establish the number of mills to be levied from within its authorized millage rate.

Construction continues on the new water treatment plant for the city. Workers have been putting up reinforced concrete walls on the weter resevoir et Michigen Beech end doing brick work on the pump and office building. The plent, which will drew water from Lake Michigan and treat it before pumping it to Cherlevoix homes, will replace e municipal well system that is contaminted by e suspected cender ceusing chemicel trichloroethylene (TCE). Aeretion reduces the emount of TCE that is in the water sent to erea homes to about 30 perts per buillion. One part per billion is the equivelent of one drop of chocolate in 16,000 gallons of milk.

Notice of Public Hearing on Increasing Property Taxes

The Board of Commissioners of the County of Charlevoix will hold a public hearing on a proposed increase of .3069 mills in the operating tax millage rate to be levied in 1986.

The hearing will be held on Wednesday, September 10, 1986 at 10:30 o'clock in the a.m. at Commissioners' Room, County Building Annex, Charlevoix.

If adopted, the proposed additional millage will increase operating revenues from ad valorem property taxes 6.99% over such revenues generated by levies permitted without holding a hearing.

The taxing unit publishing this notice, and identified below, has complete authority to establish the number of mills to be levied from within its authorized millage rate.

This figure includes funds to be received by Charlevoix County from the Michigan convention facilities tax revenue distribution.

U-M study: Finances serious problem for seniors

by PEG OHLE

With almost 22 percent of the population of Charlevoix County made up of men and women over the age of 55, facilities and activities to provide for this segment of the population have become of utmost importance.

The particular needs of the senior citizens and others throughout the state were recently highlighted in a study made by Professor Milan J. Bluhy and others of the University of Michigan:

The income support system of the older population is delicate and fragile and any major medical or other emergency could easily jeopardize the older person's financial security.

Currently, 55.6 percent of the population of Michigan relies on social security as their main source of income. Twelve and two-tenths percent is at or below the poverty level, and another 10.3 percent is at the near poverty level (125 percent of poverty).

When asked about their most serious problem, 21.5 percent indicated that money to live on was of concern. Additionally, 17.3 percent indicated they had problems paying specific bills, and when this happened, they were most likely to put off paying their utility and telephone bills.

Another serious problem of the older population is poor health, suffered by 25.7 percent. Also, 24.7 percent of the older population reported either fair or poor health. In terms of health status, 23.4 percent have been in the hospital in the last year, and 7.3 percent report receiving help at home because of their health problems. Surprisingly, 85.8 percent of the older population who have been in the hospital have been discharged with no services.

The older population strongly supports increased delivered meals, home health aides, homemaking and chore services, and health screening.

On the surface, the older population in Michigan appears to be well housed: 82 percent own their own homes; 93.7 percent report they are satisfied with their present housing; and 89.5 percent think their neighborhood is a nice place to live.

However, the third most serious problem perceived by the older population is keeping up their home or apartment (17.3 percent). The housing circumstances are that 25.5 percent of the homes of the older population are over 50 years in age, and 23.4 percent have poor insulation.

Also, the older population reports regular difficulty in making major home repairs (73.3 percent), minor repairs (51.8 percent), shovelling snow (42.1 percent); mowing grass) 41 percent), and doing housework (35.4 percent).

Besides this, 11.7 percent of the older population report difficulty in paying for their housing. Of special note is the fact that 64.9 percent of the older population pay property taxes of over $1,000 a year.

The government agency charged with the responsibility of helping to meet the needs of the older population in this area is Northwest Senior Resources, Inc., with headquarters in Traverse City, of which the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging is a component part.

Senior Resources recently released its "Area Plan" for the next three years and stated its primary goals and objectives: "Assist residents to achieve or sustain a level of physical, mental, and social well-being that will maximize an independent lifestyle through a core package of programs and services accessible in all counties".

"Independent lifestyle" for senior citizens has come to mean living in one's own house or apartment rather than in a communal facility such as a nursing home or foster care home.

To assist older men and women achieve this goal, Northwest Senior Resources would contract to provide for personal care, homemaking assistance, home-delivered and group meals, health screening, transportation, and an information and referral service to meet other needs.

A list of secondary goals and objectives includes home chore services (usually outdoor work such as shovelling snow and washing windows), legal services, nursing home consultation, operating senior centers, and helping senior citizens find employment.

All of the above services have been offered in Charlevoix County with varying degrees of availability for several years. In the first 10 months of this fiscal year, services were provided in the following numbers:

Group meals, 20,814; home-delivered meals, 16,435; health screening, 43 persons; homemaker services, 1,185 units of service for 45 persons; home chore services, 613 units of service for 71 persons; home health aide, 198 units of service for 12 persons; senior center activities, 631 service units; and information and referral, 1,710 service units.

Transportation in Charlevoix County is provided by the Charlevoix County Transit System, which is not under the jurisdiction of Northwest Human Resources or the County Commission on Aging.

No figures for services rendered during the year are presently available.

Based on the 1980 census, there are 4,377 men and women in Charlevoix County who are over 55 years old.

Beaver Island hires ex-student to head school

St. JAMES, Beaver Island — "It will be a challenge. I am looking forward to serving as th principal of the school where I have taught. I'm sure it will be an interesting year," Kathleen (Kitty) McNamara said of the position of principal-teacher of the Beaver Island Community School to which she was named recently.

Until September, 1985, McNamara, a Michigan State University graduate with world history and political scienc, had taught the subjects plus other social studies at the school she will now head as principal. However, after a visit to Ireland from when her grandfather came. (In County Clare) when she fell in love with the land, she wanted only to return and learn more about the country. Taking a leave of absence, she enrolled in University College Galway wher she studied not only Irish brt world history and political science and a course in Gaelic, the language of the frish.

"What did I like best? The people. I loved them. I liked their easy going nature, their friendliness and their down-to-earth ways. I was right at home among them", she said.

She went on to say she also liked the Irish countryside. "It's beautiful. There was so much to see. As you can see, I fell in love with it" she said in a tone of voice that told you she had, ideed, been touched y the land of Leprechauns and Irish lore.

In a more serious vain, she spoke of the political situation. "It isn't a topic of conversation among the people. They are aware of it. However, it is not a problem that just came up. they have lived with it most of their lives. The younger generation doesn't remember when it was any different. Their economic welfarie is more important to them", she commented.

She went on to say that there are many forums where issues of the day are discussed to make people cognizant of what is going on. I think this is good. However, I don't see any change for a long tim.

She added that while the people of today do not like the methods presently being used by th I.R.A. (Irish Republican Army), the remember what they did in behalf of the people in the 1920's and do not condemn them.

"I think they do what they have to do: learn to live with the situation because they realize there is no way it will be resolved in the foreseeable future. The Irish have survived other bad times. they will survive this one" she said with pride.

Hello,
Sesquicentennial people...
this is Alice Gwynn. Listen, Aunt Sara from Phoenix loved the Governor's personal invitation to Michigan's family reunion, but wouldn't you know Aunt Ruth found out about it and...oh could you?
You're a dear... and then there's Uncle Russell... and my best girlfriend Judith... and my other best girlfriend Ramona...

Free travel information sent with every invitation.

A Michigan Family Reunion.

Of course Aunt Sara loved the invitation. Who wouldn't like feeling so special that someone had the Governor invite them for a visit. And really, don't worry about hurting anyone's feelings because Governor Blanchard will invite as many people as you'd like to have come. Plus they'll get lots of information on why Michigan is such a wonderful place to spend a vacation. There'll even be a little something in the mail for you — like a copy of Michigan's Travel Planner. That way, you'll know all the when's and where's of what's happening in Michigan. Who knows, between you and the Governor, this may turn out to be Michigan's best reunion ever.

Lake Charlevoix plan begins to take shape

CHARLEVOIX — The committee preparing a management plan for Lake Charlevoix has begun to detail how its recommendations will be set on paper.

At its Aug. 26 meeting, the Lake Charlevoix Management Planning Advisory Committee agreed to a proposal for the plan's manuscript presented by Dave Knight, whom the committee hopes to hire to write the plan.

He proposed that the plan consist of four major sections, including a biography of the lake, society's use of the lake, procedures for developing a management plan and proposed regulations to be included in the plan.

Knight said he intends to begin writing the first three sections of the plan while the committee continues to iron out its proposed regulations.

"You have 18 months of work in the book now, basically, that I think stands on its own as an accomplishment," Knight told the committee.

Information provided by various speakers and reports will be utilized in formulating the first three sections, said Knight, who has spent the last several weeks listening to tapes of minutes of the committee's meetings.

Included among the experts the committee invited to speak at its meetings were a maritime lawyer, a graduate student in landscape architecture, Department of Natural Resources scientists, a Michigan State University wildlife and fisheries professor, Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council advisers and a U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service representative.

The first sections will provide readers background information that will back up the proposed regulations, Knight said. It should also point out the reasons a management plan is needed, he said.

THE FIRST section will include a history of the lake, its hydrological and biological makeup and characteristics of its watershed and wetlands, Knight said.

The second section will include a history of society's use of the lake, from loggers to present recreational boaters, he said. In addition, the section will describe the changes caused by society's use of the lake, the lake's role in the economy and current attitudes about the lake.

Attitudes will be drawn from results of a detailed survey the committee sent last fall to nearly 3,000 residents in the three cities and seven townships bordering the lake as well as Wilson Township.

Also included in the second section will be aesthetics of development, limits on the lake's use and society's responsibility to protect the resource, Knight said.

The third section will outline riparian and maritime laws, state and federal jurisdiction over the lake, city and township zoning ordinances and procedures needed to put the committee's management plan into action, Knight said.

The final section will provide background on the committee and its project and will list the recommendations for regulating and planning the lake.

Results of a study of the 10 governmental zoning ordinances around the lake performed by students of the AuSable Institute will also be utilized by the committee when recommending a plan. Results of the study, which were released last August, found that the ordinances need to be more uniform, regulations governing multi-family residences should be tighter and more specific as to location and additional natural areas are needed around the lake.

Also during their meeting, committee members proposed issues they would like to address in their plan. Topics the committee plans to discuss in the future include moorings, navigation aids, pump-out stations, water use zoning, the lake's boat capacity, fisheries, water quality, lake levels, wetlands, enforcement of existing laws and sewer needs.

Other topics of discussion will be uniform shoreline zoning ordinances, shoreline development, stewardship of the lakefront, aesthetics, shoreline protection, offshore oil drilling, air pollution, the lake's threshold points, enforcement against lake polluters and transportation systems around the lake.

THE COMMITTEE also discussed establishing a panel of experts who will advise communities in their enforcement of the lake

TempoTech workers prepare the cement holding pool.

New Charlevoix salmon weir being built at Medusa Creek

Workers from TempoTech Industries are applying the finishing touches this week to a salmon harvesting facility at Medusa Creek.

The facility will allow the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to remove salmon that would otherwise spawn in streams like the Jordan River, where harvesting operations will likely end after 1986.

Situated on property owned by Medusa Cement Co., the new facility will consist of a temporary weir and an adjoining cement pool. Access upstream will be blocked to adult salmon entering the creek from Lake Michigan.

According to DNR fisheries biologist Mason Shouder, the salmon would jump up a series of steps before finishing their journey in the pool. The salmon would then await regular harvest by TempoTech under DNR supervision.

The DNR has a 10-year contract with TempoTech, a Hart-based firm, for harvesting of salmon statewide. DNR fisheries biologist Steve Swan said the Medusa weir will be operated each fall through a five-year experimental period.

The new weir — along with a proposed blocking weir at Memorial Bridge in East Jordan — will eliminate the DNR's future harvesting operations on the Jordan River in South Arm Township.

As a result, a portion of the Jordan River will no longer be seasonally closed to fishing beyond this fall, according to DNR officials.

The DNR's fisheries division started harvesting salmon on the Jordan River after 300,000 chinook salmon were planted there in 1983. The salmon infiltrated the natural spawning beds of brook trout and caused outlawism in the form of snagging, Swan said.

The planting site was then moved to Medusa Creek, where 500,000 chinook were planted in 1984 and 250,000 were planted in '85 and '86, Swan said.

TempoTech will likely increase its harvest at Medusa Creek, Swan said.

While only 1,500 salmon were harvested from the Jordan last year, Swan figured 5 percent of the three-year-old salmon — 15,000 fish — and 1 percent of the two-year-olds — another 5,000 fish — will be collected this year.

Because the property fronting the creek is private, the public will not be affected by any closed fishing areas by the weir. However, a 100-foot semicircle at the mouth of the creek will be closed to fishing, Swan said.

The weir would be in operation through September and October.

Boating accident investigated

Charlevoix County sheriff's deputies continue to investigate an accident that resulted in the death of a Rochester man Aug. 23 when a cabin cruiser in which he was riding slammed into the bridge linking Holy Island to the mainland.

James Martin Klein, 42, was pronounced dead at Charlevoix Area Hsopital Aug. 24.

He was a passenger in a 28-foot Wellcraft cabin cruiser owned and operated y Harry Dickerman Holden, 44, of Okenos and Charlevoix. Holden was hospitalzied at Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey after being treated first at Charlevoix Area Hospital. He was released Aug. 28.

Also hospitalized at the Charlevoix Area Hospital was Klein's wife, Joan Marie, 42. She was released Aug. 27.

Treated and released from Charlevoix Area Hospital the night of the accident were Holden's wife, Sharin Ann, and Peter William Pace, 44, of Charlevoix.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, the vessel was northbound on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix, traveling 30-40 mph.

The boat entered the small hay between the island and the mainland and struck the bridge. Both the bridge and the boat sustained heavy damage.

Woman killed in ORV accident

Carmen J. Cutler, 26, of Norwood Township, died Thursday, Aug. 28, at Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey of injuries received in an ORV (Off the Road Vehicle) in Fisherman's Island State Park Wednesday, Aug. 20.

She had been transferred to Little Traverse Hospital from the Charlevoix Area Hospital via Charlevoix ambulance following the accident.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's officers, the vehicle she was driving rolled over backwards as she tried to climb a steep embankment near Whiskey Creek in the park. She was struck in the head by the right handle bar as the vehicle flipped over.

Passengers Kimberly Seglund, 22 and Michael Seglund, three, both of Traverse City, were thrown free and were not injured.

Levin visits

Charlevoix residents had a rare opportunity to meet and speak with their United States senator last week as Sen. Carl Levin made an appearance in town sponsored by the local Democratic party. Levin (shown above) answered many questions ranging from tax matters to foreign aid. He also received a request for help from local residents who want to have the new post office built downtown rather than on the outskirts of town. The Charlevoix Historical Society and Chamber of Commerce also requested Levin intervene on a rumored effort by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to replace the Charlevoix lighthouse.

Coast Guard interviews crew of freighter involved in accident

Crew of the Yugoslavian freighter Jablanica, involved in a fatal accident in Lake Michigan Aug. 20, were interviewed under oath by an officer of the U.S. Coast Guard's Office of Marine Inspection at Duluth on Monday.

The Coast Guard took the sworn statements from the captain and crew members who had information regarding the accident as a part of its continuing investigation., Lt. Cmdr. Terry McKay said.

Once all the evidence is collected, the Coast Guard will submit a report to Washington on the incident in which three commercial fishermen were killed when their fishing tug collided with the freighter off Whiskey Island in northern Lake Michigan.

Underwater effots to locate the body of Ed Perkins, 45, of Naubinway were terminated Friday. Beach patrols and aerial observations by Civil Air Patrol planes from Cheboygan were begun Friday prior to the decision to call off the underwater serach by DNR and State Police divers, Sheriff George T. Lasater said.

The bodies of Russell King, 31, also of Naubinway and co-owner with Perkins of the tug, was recovered among the nets in the tug on Aug. 26. A third man, Kurt Peterson, 27, of Manistique was pulled from the water by the crew of the freighter, given CPR and flown via helicopter to Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital in Manistique where he was pronounced dead.

The accident in which the three men lost their lives occurred at 11:30 a.m. on Aug. 20 seven miles northwest of Whiskey Island in the Beaver Island group when the northbound Yugoslavian freighter collided with the tug which, apparently was raising gill nets at the time.

The DNR research vessel, the Steelhead, a Coast Guard patrol boat from St. Ignace and helicopters from the Traverse City Air Station joined the search immediately following the accident. The freighter, after being detained for several hours in Sault Ste. Marie, continued on its way to Duluth to pick up a load of grain.

It was announced Aug. 22 that the Jacques Admiralty Law firm of Detroit has brought suit against the owners of the freighter which is operating under Yugoslavian registry. The firm is represeting the widows of King and Perkins and the parents of Peterson, a spokesman for the firm said.

The Coast Guard Office of Marine Inspection said its final report may include recommendations for preventing future casualties and could include the suspension or revocation of any Coast Guard licenses.

Lt. Cmdr. McKay said if the Coast Guard felt any civil or criminal laws were violated, those matters would be turned over to the U.S. Attorney.

Bellinger Marine: a fixture on the changing waterfront

by ANNE KELLY

In 1950, according to Bill Bellinger, "there were six places on the harbor selling gas. Now there are only two."

That's only one minor change in the Round Lake harbor front, where Bellinger Marine Service remains virtually ageless. Condos sprout up cosmetically on either side and all around the perimeter threatening what's left of days gone by.

Bellinger Marine Service, the building formerly housing Booth Fisheries, hangs on, offering the same service-oriented operation that has become a trademark over the years.

"We bend over backwards to keep the customer out on the water," Bill explained. We always have."

Bellinger's offers gas dock, engine and boat repair and storage. They are open for business seven days a week and often 365 days a year, supplementing boat repair with snowmobile service.

Bill has worked for his father, Jim Bellinger, since 1963, starting out as a gas boy at the pumps. Now his son Billy is following suit.

"At seventeen I thought I'd try it for a while to see if I liked it," says Bill. "I've never found anything I'd like to do better."

The senior Mr. Bellinger at 77 is still at the helm of the Marine Service business, and spends a few hours daily checking in to make sure everything is running smoothly. He's been watching the harbor for some forty years and knows the boat business and the lakes as well as anyone.

Bellinger Marine Service is a familiar landmark on the Round Lake waterfront.

Bill Bellinger with his son, Billy, the third generation to be involved with the family business.

Jim was born in Charlevoix, an actual "native", growing up in an apartment above his grandfather's jewelry shop downtown. His father William, operated a music and gift store in an adjacent building. Today, half-models of boats William designed, built and sold in his gift shop are hung on the office walls at Bellinger Marine. They lend an air of authenticity to the nautical flavor of the establishment.

Jim invested more than money in his enterprise. By age seventeen, he was crewing on one or another of the five Sylvis's, prestigious 130' plus yachts owned by Logan G. Thomson of the Champion Paper Co., and continued to work for Thomson for ten summers – some of these during the Depression when jobs were hard to come by.

A graduate of the University of Michigan, earning a degree in Naval Architecture, Bellinger was employed by Foster Boat Works during the War building boats for the Navy.

Bellinger obviously knows his stuff. The business he founded in 1950 continues to endure, and as one would suspect, Bellinger's boast a loyal clientele – a result of long-time acquaintances who have come to appreciate and depend upon Bellinger's expertise.

There have been many notable lake visitors to Bellinger's. A collection of postcards sent from all over the world are from friends who have brushed elbows with Bellinger, and like to keep in touch. Bellinger himself, has a lot of respect for the sailors and boaters who happen his way and take the time to get acquainted. There's a difference between these and the last-minute fill-ups before the bridge goes up.

"You don't need to be born here to be a native," Bellinger remarked in defense of his summer clientele. A native according to Jim is someone who comes to Charlevoix and adopts it and becomes part of it.

Many of his customers fit the bill. Maybe Bellinger helps convert them.

Bellinger Marine Service is captured, romantically, in the latest Charlevoix print rendered by Grand Rapids artist Katharine Chanery Fritz, and was mentioned in print and photo as part of a cruising article in the May, 1986 issue of Boating Magazine.

Story Hour sessions begin at library

The annual story hour for preschool age children sponsored by the Charlevoix Public Library will hold its first scheduled meeting at the library at 109 Clinton St. at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 9, Marybeth Wallick, librarian, has announced.

The weekly sessions are held in the basement of the library from 10:30 until 11:30 a.m. every Tuesday morning September through July.

The purpose of the story hour, Miss Wallach explained, is to introduce pre-school age children to the library and the many books it has to offer. "We feel that by introducing children to books at their library at an early age, they acquire early reading habits. They also learn that reading can be an exciting adventure as well as educational."

Each session includes a story, a short film and a craft.

Sharmon Dulaney, a former teacher, will be the "story lady" during the 1986-87 session.

'Round Town

Post-summer letdown suggestions

BY EDITH GILBERT

AFTER THE SUMMER is over, some of our good local restaurants close. Therefore, for those of us who live here through the long winter months, and for those of you who return "off season," it's nice to know that a delightful new place is available for us to dine all year around.

I'm referring to the Wolverine Dilworth Inn in Boyne City. The newly renovated decor may reflect "a step back in time," but the menu is a step forward. For instance, all ingredients are fresh, all breads are baked on the premises with organically grown grains, and the presentation is refreshing. Both times I've eaten there the meal has been delicious, and everybody with me agreed.

The atmosphere reminds me of a cozy, private club. The white tile floor of the lobby is striking. One could very easily dance the tango in the lobby, if anyone can remember how to tango! There's a lovely large, traditional room off the lobby for private parties and receptions that's worth checking out, too.

THANKS TO MARIAN BEATTY for sharing an especially poignant report on T-shirt sightings this week. Her sister Jenny Byrer lives in Eugene, Oregon. There running and walking is everyone's passion; it's the home of the Olympic tryouts.

And most of you remember that our star athlete, Jeff Drenth, died while training in Eugene. He was Charlevoix's two- time, All-American, cross country champion, and qualifier for the World Cross Country Championship for the U.S. team while at Central Michigan University, and again in '85 and '86. He had set his sights on the '88 Olympic trials in track.

While wearing her Charlevoix T-shirt, Jenny Byrer was approached by several strangers at various times, who told her how badly they felt to learn of the loss of this fine young man from Charlevoix. She was very touched and so are we.

WHEN WE LOOK up and down Bridge Street this week, it's like one of our three day blows picked up all the summer visitors and blew them downstate. No more elbow to elbow crunch. No more traffic jam.

With school starting early this year, our thoughts turn now to our private fall calendar of coming events. Here are a few suggestions to help bridge that withdrawal feeling "of summer guest let-down."

That darling Cathy Meyer, Community Chest Chairman, wants us to know the membership campaign is beginning in September, and the location of the concerts has been moved to the Petoskey High School - more comfy and congenial. The series of three performances is the biggest bargain in town. In the big cities, we'd have to pay $18 for one performance - not three. Student tickets are only $9 and family tickets are $45.

The series opens with the great comic lyric opera "The Marriage of Figaro" by Mozart, in English. What an inspired follow-up on the hit movie "Amadeus"! If you haven't already seen it three times, do rent this delightful film on the life of Mozart. Show it on your VCR, then run, don't walk to buy your Community Concert tickets. Call 347-6443. The date is Thursday, Oct. 23 at 8 p.m. at the Petoskey High School.

IF YOU'VE EVER fantasized playing the violin yourself or a low brass instrument, here's your chance. Beginning on October 8, on alternate Mondays, 3 full-time faculty instructors from the Interlochen Center for the Arts will teach at the Virginia McCune Arts Center in Petoskey. For more information on this exciting "Interlochen Outreach" program, call the Arts Center, 347-4337.

If you're interested in taking a 6 weeks course in pottery, painting, metal sculpture, calligraphy, photography, ballet, tap, piano, clarinet, percussion, or voice, then register for the Sept 15-Oct. 25 session. Call the Arts Center 347-4337.

If you enjoy being front and center under the bright lights, Little Traverse Civic Theatre is holding tryouts on Wed. and Thurs., Sept. 3 and 4, for a fast-paced British comedy, "No Sex Please, We're British." Production dates are Nov. 13 through 22. Call 347-0561 or 347-1618.

The next time your friends from downstate ask you, "What do you do up there in the winter time?" you can honestly say, "The same things you do, plus a few other things to boot!"

Bridge trekking

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

Seventeen Labor Days — some warm and sunny, some cold and stormy — have been ripped off the calendar since I first walked the Mackinac Bridge.

During that initial crossing, my sole companion was daughter Katie, then 5, who insisted on walking every step of the way, despite repeated offers to carry her on my shoulders.

The weather, as I recall, was blistering and there weren't all that many walkers. Maybe 10,000, give or take a few.

The Dixie Tavern in Mackinaw City was almost deserted when we bellied-up-to-the bar after the walk for a cold beer and whatever five-year-olds drank in 1969 to slake their thirst.

This past Labor Day I made the same five-mile-long hike in the company of wife Judy and daughter Allison. The weather was about the same, but the crowds were something else. The official prediction was for 50,000, and I think they all showed up.

Precise figures aside, the Mackinac Bridge walk certainly has become one of Michigan's most popular outdoor events. And the crowds in Mackinaw City when the walk ended were something to behold. We stopped at one restaurant for a late breakfast and were told there would be a 30-minute wait for a table. Although we were famished, we put our name on the list and waited.

It was either that or perish of starvation trying to get into a fudge shop.

THE MACKINAW City Chamber of Commerce, which arranges the walk, certainly deserves bouquets for accommodating so many visitors at one time with so little inconvenience to anyone.

Transportation of walkers from Mackinaw City to the starting gate in St. Ignace was a miracle of logistics. School districts throughout Northern Michigan provided a fleet of buses and drivers which began shuttling passengers across the bridge at 6 a.m., well before the opening gun at 7:30 a.m.

Charlevoix and Boyne City were among the districts supplying buses, along with Pellston, Mackinaw City, Inland Lakes, Cheboygan, Les Cheneaux Islands, Moran Township, St. Ignace and Pickford.

Although I spent two years in the army, I never stood in a line quite as long as the queue we joined after arriving at the Straits at 7 a.m. The line started at the bus loading area and snaked 'a good- half mile through the village — four or five abreast — with a big loop in the middle of Central Avenue.

But everyone was in high spirits and the line moved quickly.

After negotiating a zig-zag corral at the bus loading area, the line separated into several skinnier lines so that several buses could be loaded at one time. As soon as they departed, a new caravan of buses was waiting to be loaded.

It was the slickest people-moving operation I have ever seen.

The scenery from the bridge, of course, is spectacular. It really is the only way to get your fill of the sights of the Straits — a panorama of blue water and forested islands which appear to be floating in the morning haze. Driving across, you have to be satisfied with brief glimpses. But afoot, you can tarry and drink in the seascape as long as you like.

During the past 29 years, walking the Mackinac Bridge on Labor Day has become traditional for many families. The trek is not difficult for anyone who is in reasonably good physical condition. The walkers on Monday included literally thousands of senior citizens.

Aside from the $1 bus fare, there is no charge for walking the bridge — making it an event almost everyone can participate in. As you might suspect, more members of the beer-and-pretzels crowd than the champagne-and-caviar set take part.

The Japanese have a saying, "He who never climbs Mt. Fuji is a fool; he who climbs it more than once is a bigger fool."

The same cannot be said for Big Mac. I, for one, plan to walk the bridge every 17 years, come what may.

Letters to the editor:

Charlevoix at saturation point for traffic

Dear Editor:

Here's a lady named Potter complaining about unfair taxes. On the surface she seems correct. But she fails to mention how much of the Belvedere water frontage hardly be considered developed property. At least the beach hasn't changed in over fifty years, except by the ever changing water level.

In no way can living from a quarter to a half mile from the beach with a railroad and a public road between them and the water be considered on the same tax base as living on the water's edge itself.

Mr. Steele's reasoning that 1600 hotel rooms is a reason to increase condominiums should also understand, that most of these people came in by train not automobiles as they do today. Charlevoix seems to be at a saturation point now as to traffic. Maybe he would issue passes to everyone as to which day you were allowed to drive.

Some condos provide a few low paying jobs. Maybe money is more important than leaving the next generation what has always been a prime feature of the whole area.

Maybe more effort should be applied to attract small business firms to locate in the area. Steady year around good paying jobs would enable young people to stay in the area instead of having to move away.

A good zoning and planning program would help. But it needs a rezoning plan written into it. You can't rezone every time someone wants to change a part of a section. Next year you might turn down a rezoning of parts of the same section. Could this be grounds for a lawsuit claiming discrimination?

Next someone will want to rezone the parks long Bridge Street.

Charlevoix sweat shirt appearing soon in Little Rock

Dear Mrs. Gilbert,

My husband and I just returned from six weeks in Charlevoix (Norwood) this summer at Nancy Murray's little cottage. We brought home the August 13th issue of the Courier in which you wrote about the Charlevoix "sweat shirts" being worn in various parts of the country. You may add one more city — Little Rock. As soon as the weather cools off a bit - it's 90 degrees here today - I'll be wearing mine.

The design is unique, and splitting the long name into the two lines I'm sure inspires some curiosity. "what does it say?" "Where is it?", a great publicity item to keep going year after year.

Nancy told us of her friendship with you and about your Charlevoix oriented columns. I gave her several of my Charlevoix poems. I think you might enjoy them. I think most of them have been published in University journals.

I was born in Charlevoix, lived there until 1942 when I moved to Detroit. Then in 1964 I moved to Little Rock with my husband, now a retired physician.

I remember Mr. (Julius) Gilbert very well. My grandfather was the tender of the old swing bridge. He lived in the "bridge house", a small one room cubicle atop the bridge, during the navigational season. During those months my grandmother, mother and I visited him often, climbing up the ladder with food and supplies. For me it was quite a lark.

Charlevoix was very different then, always a gorgeous resort area but not nearly so crowded with visitors. Like the Gilbert family most of the "resorters" came, stayed for the entire summer and became part of the Charlevoix community, well known and loved by the year 'round residents. You probably know this history well. I mention it only because I we were overwhelmed with all the traffic, the people in the shops, the crowds at Tom's (for Tom's Mom's cookies), on the lakes, in the park, at the parade, at the Parkside, at the Argonne, and lunching at Duffy's. But we enjoyed it all, especially visiting with my cousins Bun Kohler, Bob and Jan Lieberman and old friends.

And in closing may I add - not incidentally - we enjoy your column.

Sincerely,
(Mrs. F.E.) B. Margaret Greifenstein

Vote out Contra aid supporters

Dear Editor:

In the mid 60's, at the time of the first Washtenaw County Vietnam War related death, the Ann Arbor League for Peace and Freedom held a memorial service for the young man and for the other war casualties - those from N. Vietnam as well as those from S. Vietnam, those who were civilians as well as those in uniform. The service was held in the City Plaza which was decorated with wild flowers gathered by our children and clergy and lay people, Catholic, Protestant and Jewish, were on hand to pray for peace.

But the war dragged on for another decade; hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese were killed, their once lush fields were seared with our toxic chemicals such as Agent Orange; their villages were torched with napalm and White Phosphorous. The Viet Cong fought back with booby traps and hand grenades and rifle shots in the darkness. A young friend of ours who was like another son was killed while on night patrol and his name is etched on the Granite Wall in Washington along with those of 58,000 other Americans - mostly young men who died for what older men perceived to be in the "national interest."

The gleaming black slab does not record the names of those who came home physically or emotionally scarred in a war not of their making nor of their understanding. And the Government which sent them there has yet to recognize that many of their problems are war-induced - deformed offspring, time-bomb malignancies and festering psychic wounds. Instead, it is preparing for what is shaping up to be another Vietnam-type involvement; first funds and material, then military advisors, next it will be our boys.

Members of the Michigan National Guard are among those who have already been sent to Honduras on maneuvers, airstrips are being constructed there, also roads suitable for heavy transport into Nicaragua. And recently it has been admitted in Washington that our goal is really to help the Contras overthrow the Sandinista government, something which many experts say cannot be done without the assistance of the U.S. military. The Contras, many of them discredited Somoza men, can inflict more death and damage with the $100 million recently voted for them but when their inability to defeat the Sandinistas militarily becomes clear, a pretext may be found by our government to enter into hostilities officially and openly.

According to the polls, the vast majority of Americans are opposed to our getting sucked into another bottomless quagmire and yet our legislators by a narrow margin approved our deeper involvement in Nicaragua. The Philippino people were able to stop the Marcos tanks with their bodies on the streets of Manila. Perhaps the American people can stop the Pentagon war machine in November by voting out those who voted in Contra Aid.

By so doing we may be able to save another generation of our boys from the fate of those whose names are on the Plaque in Petoskey's Pennsylvania Park and on the Wall in Washington. We owe it to their memory and we owe it to those who survived the tragic Vietnam War, some of whom are hidden away in rarely visited wards in Veterans' Hospitals. And we also owe it to those now of draft age - our sons and grandsons.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Have you ever watched your children or grandchildren play "let's pretend?" Give them a box of old clothes, shoes, or anything else that lends itself to the imagination and it will amaze you what they come up with. How about you? Will you pretend with me for a few moments?

What if you were God? Don't think me irreverent before you read any further. Put yourself in the Father's shoes. If you were God, sitting at the seat of judgement, would you save you? Would your holiness, your faithfulness, your obedience really stand up?

Of course, we are not God. But we are his sons and daughters. He is looking to us to deliver His message of salvation. Have you thought about the message your life is passing on? Is your talk truly worthy of your walk?

If you were God, how would you get people to love you? In Psalm 18 David says his love for God is his strength. Do you have that blessed assurance at work within you? God would be the first to tell you his love is never wasted. Some may tragically turn it down but there are others that it literally sets afire. What about you?

If you were God, how would you get people to listen to you? How do you advertise yourself in terms of being a Christian? Do you let people know about the reason for your faith, hope, and love? When they see you in action, do they see the whole truth or a half witted attempt at truth?

If you were God, how would you get people to live for you? Psalm 18:16 reads "he reached down from on high and took hold of me; he drew me out of deep waters." We think we can push life to the limit because we are the strongest, bravest or whatever. The devil is just waiting for us to try. He's waiting to depress or discourage you any way he can.

If you were God, what would you do? There was only one way for him to rescue us, only one way to help us with his power to overcome all our fears. He sent us his son to be our savior, to be a living example of how we could live.

Of course, we are not God. But we are his children. Can others see what it means to be brothers and sisters with Christ the Lord in the way we live our lives?

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Lankford

Klooster-Lankford

Baskets of white and fuchsia gladioli, candelabra and a pair of weeping fig trees flanked the altar of the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church for the July 26 wedding of Melinda J. Klooster and Scott Lankford. The Rev. Donald Schorsch of Brainerd, Minn., performed the afternoon double ring ceremony before 300 wedding guests.

Parents of the couple are Robert and Eloise Klooster of Charlevoix and William and Frances Lankford of Tallahassee, Fla.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a soft satin gown with double satin puffed sleeves, sheer yoke and a fitted bodice with hand-sewn pearls and sequins. European cutout lace graced the cathedral length train and the bride's fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a halo of crystal flowers and seed pearls. She carried an arm bouquet of swamp lily, larkspur and mixed pink wildflowers tied with pink ribbons.

Steve Stargardt, pianist, played a program of traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloists, Sara Stargardt, Jim Morrison and flutist Lara Stargardt.

Brenda Klooster attended her sister as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Andrea Klooster and Roberta Klooster, sisters of the bride; Shelly Miltimore and Pam Brager. The maid of honor wore a pink gown of matte taffeta with off-the-shoulder ruffled sleeves and a ruffled back-brush train. The bridesmaids wore matching cerise gowns styled the same as the maid of honor's gown. Each attendant carried an arm bouquet of swamp lily, larkspur and mixed pink wildflowers tied with pink ribbons.

Randy Miltimore attended the groom as best man and groomsmen were Mark Miltimore, Jim Morrison, Bill Lankford and Mike Washburne. Ushers were Jim and Mike Lankford.

A reception, given by the parents of the bride, was held in the church fellowship hall. Steve Stargardt played the piano during the reception and Connie Bradley and Pat Drost served the wedding cake. Pam Drost served punch and Keren Anderson attended the gift table. Hal and Jean Watson were master and mistress of ceremonies.

On July 25, the parents of the groom hosted a rehearsal dinner at Grey Gables in Charlevoix.

The newlyweds traveled to Canada for their honeymoon and will be making their home in Minneapolis, Minn. The groom is a senior at Minneapolis College of Art and Design and is a designer for Ergotron Corp. in Minneapolis. (Photo courtesy Tim Calloway)

Obituaries

Carmen J. Cutler

A memorial service for Carmen J. Cutler, 26, of Norwood Township, was held at the Winchester Funeral Home Saturday, Aug. 31. Pastor Bob Bellairs of the Norwood United Methodist Church officiated.

Miss Cutler died Thursday, Aug. 28, at Little Traverse Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals.

Born in Hart, Sept. 8, 1959, to Charles and Lois (Lindsay) Cutler, Miss Cutler came to Charlevoix with her parents in 1970. She graduated from the Charlevoix High School in 1978. She lived in California and Pennsylvania and had traveled extensively along the east coast from Washington, D.C., to Key West, Fla. She attended Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City where she was studying engineering.

Besides her parents, Charles and Lois Cutler of Norwood Township, she is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Douglas (Irene L.) Porter of Fort Bragg, N.C. and Mariam K. Cutler of Petoskey; her paternal grandparents, Charles and Gladys Cutler of Pentwater and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Maxine Lindsay of Pentwater.

Anniversaries

Marshalls celebrate 35th

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Marshall of Charlevoix celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary on August 3 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bowen in Drayton Plains.

The Marshalls were guests of honor at the annual Marshall-Bowen reunion and specially honored by their daughter Deborah Bowen of Drayton Plains and sons David Marshall of Midland and James III of Lombard, Illinois.

They were presented with a grandfather clock and a card personally calligraphied by son James, combining the family's thoughts of celebration and congratulation.

The Marshall's children and grandchildren and 40 other relatives and friends, including Mrs. Marshall's mother, Lois Vassoff, attended the event.

Above is pictured the newly completed Charlevoix Union School building of brick construction built on the same site as the wooden schoolhouse that burned to the ground in 1886. It was located half way between Mason and Clinton Streets. Called the grammer school after the high school was built on the Mason St. side, and a little later called the grade school it eventually became known as the grade and County Normal School as the latter occupied the south rooms of the upper floor.

Teacher returns from Okinawa

by PEG OHLE

When James Glynn greeted his fourth grade students at the Charlevoix Elementary School this week, it was with special enthusiasm gained from two years of teaching and living with people of another culture on the other side of the world.

Glynn returned this summer from Okinawa, where he taught United States history and geography to seventh and eighth grade sons and daughters of American service men, embassy attaches, and business people.

Glynn taught in Charlevoix schools for seven years before going to Okinawa.

"The American schools over there are run pretty much as they are here," Glynn explained. "They have the same classroom materials and a full sports program. Because of language difficulties, it would be too difficult for American kids to go to Japanese schools.

"Their schools are quite different, too. All the students wear uniforms and take off their shoes and put on 'school' shoes when they enter the school building. The length of the girls' hair indicates their grade level, and so does the color of their uniforms, be they gray or blue or whatever. Teachers are highly respected and students don't speak unless they are spoken to", he added.

Glynn's fourth grade classroom is decorated with Japanese posters. When it's time for the Japanese unit in social studies, there will be all kinds of stories to tell. The Glynn family (including wife Cynthia, daughter Jamie, 15, and son Patrick, 13) lived in an apartment over a small grocery store which was owned by a Japanese family. Spurred by the idea of rental income, the Japanese family had moved downstairs to live behind the store.

With the help of the grocer's wife and Japanese cooking lessons, the family learned to shop in local markets, pay their bills, and carry on a normal life. The children had their own special Japanese friends and learned to communicate with them with the help of the Japanese language classes in their school. "They liked it so well over there that they didn't think they wanted to come home", Glynn recalls.

The teaching assignment in Okinawa was the second foreign teaching experience for Glynn. Several years ago, he taught in a similar school in Germany. "It was such a good experience that I decided to do it again and share the experience with my family", he concluded.

The Glynn's transition from Okinawa to Michigan was made easier by a camping trip from California home, giving them a chance to experience again America's natural wonders and man-made conveniences.

Red Fox Regatta results

Yachting Notes

BY A. NONY MOUSE

To organize a weekend of sailboat racing events is a monumental task. A single sailboat race is a challenge for most but to put together three consecutive days of racing and to have nothing but blue skies, warm starry nights and brisk, moderate winds would suggest that Mother Nature had paid her CYC dues.

Well, sans the ethereal assistance, Tom Bickersteth and Bill Kenifeck served as chairmen of last weekend's Budweiser Triangle and Red Fox Regatta, in which 67 of the more competitive of northern Lake Michigan's sailboat racers met to "duke it out" en route to Boyne City.

The mundane tasks of putting together a race such as the Bud-Red Fox include advertising-promoting, selecting a race committee and protest committee, drafting racing instructions and rules, positioning buoys, arranging docking, sending times and receiving computerized finishes, ordering pennants and trophies for winners, ascertaining that the beer will be cold and frothy and the roasted corn hot and buttered.

Well, the Bickersteth-Kenifeck combo pulled it off and 67 of us and our crews salute the effort they gave to us so that we could exhilarate in three days of memorable sailboat racing.

The finishing trios for the Red Fox Regatta were as follows:

Fleet I (Jib and Main): Saturday: Stalworth, Shoo-Fly, Canusa. Sunday: Stalworth, Shoo-Fly, Genesis. Overall: Stalworth, Shoo-Fly, Genesis.

Fleet II: Saturday: Tireless, Nulli Secundus, Phoenicia. Sunday: Blasen III, Tireless, Nulli Secundus. Overall: Tireless, Nulli Secundus; Blasen III.

Fleet III: Wingnut, Coal Pile Express, Oombriago, Sunday: Coal Pile Express, 11 Marvelous, Oombriago. Overall: Coal Pile Express, Wingnut, II Marvelous.

Fleet IV: Saturday: Lockwood's J-boat, Pygmalion, Slapshot. Sunday: Pygmallon, Columbine, Lockwood. Overall: Pygmalion, Lockwood, Columbine.

Fleet V: Saturday: Traveller, Brass Tacks, Michigan Crude. Sunday: Traveller, Brass Tacks, Misty Locks. Overall: Traveller, Brass Tacks, Michigan Crude.

We are now entering our last season of racing: the Fall. Get out your unions suits, sweaters and vests. Those warm July drifters will be but a pleasant memory until '87.

Don't forget to mail in your Board of Directors election ballot.

Til then....

Watching the Western Skies.

Walkers fight world hunger

Walkers from Charlevoix, East Jordan, and Boyne City will converge on Ironton Saturday, September 13, in a county-wide effort to fight world hunger.

The Tri-City CROP Walk for the Hungry will involve participants of all ages. After obtaining as many sponsors as possible, walkers will start out from designated locations in each of the three cities and meet in Ironton for a picnic lunch.

The three starting points were chosen so the distance for each contingent of walkers is the same: about six miles. Walkers from East Jordan will start at the George Secord home across High M-66 from Elm Pointe. Boyne City walkers will start from the power plant in Advance and finish with a ride across the South Arm on the Ironton Ferry. Charlevoix walkers will start from the high school.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday, September 13, at the three starting points. The walk will begin at 9:30 a.m. Participants are now being sought for the walk. Sponsor sheets are available at many churches in the three cities. They can also be obtained from the three local coordinators of the event: Mary Glenna Malpass in East Jordan (536-2505), Michael Conklin in Boyne City (582-9776); and Phil Schairbaum in Charlevoix (547-9122).

The picnic lunch will be served at the former Sonny's Gun Shop on Highway M-66 in Ironton. Patrol vehicles will travel each route during the walk to provide any necessary assistance and to transport those who have finished back to the starting points.

CROP is the community hunger appeal of the Church World Service. More than 1,600 communities all across the country take part in special CROP events, most often hunger walks. Over $57 million was raised last year, with about 87 percent going directly to assist the hungry in more than 70 countries.

Lake management plan

plan once it is adopted. The panel would perform such duties as reviewing development proposals, suggesting solutions to disputes and issuing opinions on aesthetics.

At their last meeting, committee members discussed setting speed limits and noise levels on the lake, requiring vertical and horizontal setbacks, restricting dock sizes and regulating marinas. They also explored the feasibility of implementing a marine authority to enforce lake regulations and charging user fees to boaters.

Once the committee's proposed management plan is completed public hearings will be held to garner citizen input for possible revisions. The committee will then vote to accept the plan before sending it to the county planning commission and county board for ratification.

The plan also will be sent to each township board, which can accept, reject or modify the plan.

The committee also decided to set meeting times for 6 p.m. on the second Thursday and fourth Tuesday of each month. The next meeting will be Thursday, Sept. 11, in the county commission room.

Rayders prepare for Northmen

Game rescheduled to Petoskey field

The Charlevoix Rayder football team, coached by Roger Gowell, will open its 1986 grid season at 7:30 p.m. Friday when they take on the Petoskey Northmen at Curtis Field in Petoskey.

The game, scheduled for Kipke Field, was scheduled for the Petoskey field when it became apparent that the lighting system at Kipke Field would not be ready Dale Burge, Charlevoix athletic director, said.

Thirty-three candidates including 13 players up from JV ranks and a senior, Rick Quinn, who was not out for the sport here last year, have been reporting regularly since the season opened Aug. 10 Gowell said. Among the candidates are eight regulars from last year's team which had a four win-five loss record for the season. They are Jim Gibbs, 6'1" 160 pounds, a possible quarterback and flanker; Kent Seymour, 6'1" 190, tackle and guard and Darrin Batdorff, 6'1" 156, all seniors who have been named co-captains; Kevin Shepard, 6'188 fullback; Mike Thompson, 6'9" 155 tailback; John Jaskierski 6'2" 230 and Bill Marquardt 6'3 224 tackles, and Terry Bonar 6'3" 190 center.

In discussing his prospects for the season Gowell said the best thing the Rayders have going for them this season is team spirit. "They're a good bunch of kids. They're coachable. They're working hard. However, we lack good depth in most positions. At this age kids are not strong enough to play both ways. While we have decent speed, we are inexperienced," Gowell said in explaining the team's strong points and pointing out its weaknesses.

"You can be assured we'll work hard and give it our best" Gowell added.

He said that he thought the strength in the Michigan-Huron Shores league is probably in Gaylord, Cheboygan and St. Ignace. He added, however, that he thought all the teams would be respectable.

At this time Gowell has not settled on starting line-ups. He did, however, name players who are candidates for the various positions.

In the backfield, he said, the signal calling will fall to Gibbs or Dan Drury, 6'2" 188 pound junior; Shepard will share fullback duties with Derek Dutcher, 5'7" 156 and Mark LaBlance 5'7" 160; tailback, Thompson will have competition from a sophomore, Dave Miller, 5'8 130, who shows great promise, and junior Marv Wittheoft, 5'9" 153. Steve Hopkins, 5'8" 152 a junior who transferred from Traverse City and did not play JV football here, and Chad Thorp 5'8" 120 are candidates with Gibbs for the flanker position.

In the line, the end positions lack experienced players. Among them are juniors Scott DeYoung, 6'3" 180 and Roger Smith 6'1" 155, up from plenty of action with the JV's, seniors Rick Quinn 6' 160 who transferred from Fairview, Paul Anderson 5'11" 170 and Quint Walker 6'2" 175.

Joining the veterans Seymour, Jaskierski and Marquardt as candidates for tackle assignments are junior Jim Tilton 5'11" 200 and seniors Don Zipp, 5'11" 209, Chuck Myers 6'2" 195, Coy Groves 5'11" 172, Dave Kruskie 6' 184 and Tom Wojan 6'4" 185.

Two juniors, Scott Denny 5'11" 150 and Todd Holtzman 5'10" 162 along with seniors Christian LaCroix 5'7" 140 and Jason Fettig 6'1" 160, a former end, will join Batdorff as candidates for guard positions.

At the center position, Bonar, a regular, Paul Zoet 5'9" 162 and Mike Smith 5'10" 165 are vying for the starting assignment. Smith is a junior; the others are seniors.

Gowell said that Batdorff and Drury would likely share punting assignments and Bonar, DeYoung and Roger Smith the kicking.

This leaves Rusty Coolman, a senior halfback who is recovering from a fractured leg suffered during the summer and who hopes to get some playing time in before the season is over.

Oleson Food won the Major League title in the Little League Association following playoff games with American Legion recently.
The first game, a 6-5 win for Oleson, was the final game of their regular schedule. The teams then played a second game for the title. Oleson won by a 3-1 score. American Legion had won the first round title.
Members of the championship team are front row, left to right: Dennis Jinsky, Jeff Joy, Mike Patrick, Justin Gangle, Gregg Holmes.

Flag football draft set for Saturday

The draft for the flag football program sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation Department will be held at the Carpenter Ave. field at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 6, Dwight Boss, city recreation director, reminds prospective players.

The program is open to boys in the six, seventh and eighth grades.

Prospective players who have not signed up for the program may do so at the time of the draft. A fee of $10 which will include the cost of a T-shirt and a mouth guard must be paid at the time of registration.

Games will be played Monday and Wednesday during the season.

A limited number of helmets will be available for $15 each. Anyone wishing to sell a helmet may bring it to the field at the time of the draft.

Coaches and officials are needed for the program. Interested persons may contact Boss at 547-9098.

County salary schedule causes confusion

by PEG OHLE

The new wage schedule for employees of Charlevoix County which was put into effect July 14 has caused so much confusion and resultant controversy that the County Board of Commissioners last week voted to send a letter of explanation to all elected officials and appointed department heads explaining the compensation schedule.

Rumors have spread around the community to the effect that the salary schedule would lower present hourly wages and put all new employees at the minimum wage level of $3.35 an hour. These rumors were even used in the recent contest for County Commissioner from the City of Charlevoix.

Explaining the Wage and Job Study completed by a firm of Management Consultants, the Board of Commissioners states in its letter:

"At no time, did the Board intend to use the results of the study to lower wages. The board's position was clearly stated to the consultants and the job study committee when the project was initiated.

"A review of the (attached) Employee Salary Schedule will show that in every case where an employee's job was studied at a lower rate than the employee currently received, the higher pay rate was retained. NO HOURLY WAGES WERE LOWERED AS A RESULT OF THE WAGE & JOB STUDY. The wage schedule was revised to lower the minimum starting salary to minimum wage, with the intention of making provision for part-time and-or unskilled labor not considered under the previous schedule".

The letter further states that "An examination of the Comparative Wage Study Summary will show that in virtually every case, Charlevoix County employees are at or above the median hourly wage paid by other Northern Michigan counties for the same position. Not included in the comparative hourly amounts are county-paid fringe benefits which average an additional 30 to 36 percent of Charlevoix County gross annual wages".

The new salary schedule replaces one that has been in effect since 1979. It was researched and prepared by Health Shares Systems of Petoskey, a research and management group, with the assistances of four county employees: County Clerk Jane Brannon, Equalization Director Joan Blanchard, District Court Clerk Lynn Groves, and Prosecutor's Case Worker Mike Schell.

Also serving on the committee were County Commissioners Lee Moerland and Larry Matthew.

Elected officials and department heads are asked to pass along this information to their employees.

DUNE environmental group to meet

The second meeting of DUNE (Defenders United for North Point Ecology) will be held September 11 at the Charlevoix Public Library, starting promptly at 7:30 p.m.

Some 32 people attended the first meeting of the group, including Jerry Puhl, president of WATCH and Joyce and Dean Davenport, members of ALERT.

DUNE hopes to prevent a change in zoning of the 26-acre tract of beach front, sand dunes, and hard woods north of Charlevoix's McSauba public beach and west of McSauba Road. The property is presently zoned R1 (single family residential). A change in zoning to R-4 would allow condominiums to be built on the property, a change to which DUNE objects because it believes the area should be saved for all the people as a scenic reserve and left in its natural state.

All interested persons are urged to attend the meeting, which is open to the general public.

Post office picks site

Group still pushes for downtown location

by DOUG TRUAX

The U.S. Postal Service has made a decision on the location for a new post office in Charlevoix, a postal official in Chicago told the Courier recently.

The new site was not identified by the Postal Service, but other sources confirm it is a lot located on M-66 near the corner of U.S. 31. Tom Erber, owner of the one-acre lot, said the Postal Service has told him they intent to purchase the lot.

Erber's lot was the only one under serious consideration by the Postal Service, but a group of city officials has been meeting periodically for several months hoping to come up with an acceptable downtown site. They met recently and identified four parcels including 108 Clinton Ave., the car wash at Hurlbut and State streets, 108 Park Ave. and the city owned water tower property.

Negotiations with the property owners are in progress and the ad hoc committee to keep the post office downtown was scheduled to meet Tuesday evening.

The new Charlevoix postmaster, Sheila Murphy, has met with the ad hoc committee and advised them that she would pass on any suggestions for a downtown site. "I told them if something suitable is available, we could give it a shot," she said.

Nonetheless, the Postal Service's division says the decision has already been made. "A site has been selected," Tom Aggen of the Chicago division of the Postal Service said. A formal announcement of the new site should be in the mail within the next two weeks, he said.

The Postal Service originally considered a downtown site for the new post office at the urging of various civic officials. City Council, however, changed its mind on the location of the new public safety building and voted it to build it on State Street at the location previously reserved for the post office.

The Postal Service, irritated and confused by the move, put out new bids for a site which included but were not confined to a downtown location.

Erber said his site is some 180 feet wide and 250 feet deep. It includes 280 feet on the highway and is located next to the branch office of the Charlevoix County State Bank.

Erber said he submitted his bid as an afterthought and was surprised when the Postal Service responded favorably to it. Postal officials told Erber that they could not find a site big enough in the downtown area.

Summer residents win car, new petunia truck approved

Gail and Larry Schaefer of Dearborn, and summer residents on Lake 25 in Marion Township, came up with the lucky ticket in the recent Keep Charlevoix Beautiful (KCB) raffle.

They were in town Saturday to pick up their grand prize – a 1986 Ford Mustang – just the thing for the Ford Motor Co. executive and his wife.

The couple has 11 children, many of whom work in Charlevoix during the summer.

The Schaefers were among the 200 people who bought $100 tickets for the raffle, proceeds from which will be used to buy a new petunia watering truck.

In addition to the grand prize, winners of cash prizes included Dr. Dennis Joy who won $1,000, Tom and Jacquie Merta $500 and Tom Loeb $100.

The winning numbers were drawn during a sunset cruise on the Star of Charlevoix on Saturday, Aug. 30. Over 140 door prizes were also given away. "It was a beautiful evening," Bruce MacArthur, president of KCB, said. "We had a gorgeous sunset and excellent food."

The event raised over $10,000 toward the purchase of the new watering truck. Additional funds for the truck and the annual petunia planting were raised earlier in the summer during the annual petunia auction.

The drawing was clowded by controversy for several days, as three ticket buyers reported their numbers had not been drawn. After discussions between the ticket holders and KCB officials it was agreed by all that the tickets had been drawn, but may not have been announced.

"We are convinced the numbers were drawn," MacArthur said. He added that KCB offered refunds to the parties involved, but all were content to have their money go to support the petunia project.

Dale Boss, father of the petunia planting, said recently he is ready to order the new petunia watering truck to replace the current 24-year-old model which is experiencing a variety of mechanical problems.

The Board of Directors of KCB unanimously approved the purchase at it meeting Monday night.

Boss said the new truck will be a deluxe model with all the trimmings and will serve several functions in addition to watering petunias.

Boss and his wife, Marilyn, water the five miles of 50,000 petunias every other morning, pumping out some 10,000 gallons of water per trip.

Freighter captain charged, feds say extradition out

The United States cannot request extradition of a Yugoslav freight captain charged in the death of two Lake Michigan fishermen, a federal spokesman said Monday.

Captain Seman Franko, skipper of the Yugoslavian ship, Jablanica, is scheduled to appear in 90th District Court at 10 a.m. Sept. 30 on two charges of negligent homicide in the death of two Naubinway commercial fisherman on Aug. 20.

The warrants were served Sunday by Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater who boarded the freighter as it passed through the locks at Sault Ste. Marie with a load of grain.

Franko posted $4,000 bond.

Franko, who was heading back to Yugoslavia Monday, cannot be extradited under a 1901 treaty between the United States and Serbia, a spokesman for the Department of State said. Serbia became a Republic of Yugoslavia in 1945.

He is charged with operating his ship, the 620-foot Jablanica, in a careless, reckless or negligent manner as it either struck or swamped the 30-foot fishing tug, the Razel Brothers, seven miles northwest of Whiskey Island in Lake Michigan. The accident resulted in the deaths of the owners, Russell King and Ed Perkins of Naubinway and an employee Kurt Peterson of Manistee.

The body of Peterson was pulled from the water at the time of the accident. The body of King was recovered from the sunken tug on Aug. 26. A body which washed ashore at Manistique and recovered Sept. 4 has tentatively been identified as that of Perkins.

When the body has been positively identified as that of Perkins, Kragg Lieberman, county prosecutor is prepared to file a third negligent homicide warrant against Franko.

At the time of the accident the foreign vessel was northbound in Lake Michigan enroute to Duluth for a load of grain scheduled for delivery to Tunisia.

Franko was accompanied by his attorneys at the time the warrants were taken aboard the Jablanica by Sheriff Lasater who was accompanied to the Soo locks by Chippewa Count Sheriff Leroy Case.

County to cut child care costs

by PEG OHLE

"We can cut costs of government," those words were behind the feelings of optimism and achievement expressed by members of four bodies of government when the unprecendented meeting ended last week.

Representatives from the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, the State Department of Social Services, the County Department of Social Services, and the Charlevoix County Juvenile Court had gathered to discuss the number one money concern of couhty government – the high cost of foster care for its delinquent, neglected, and abused children.

The cost to the county for that care during the 1984-85 fiscal years was $312,376, which represents 16 percent of the revenue the county generates from property taxes. And, added to the county's expenditures for child care, was another $446,493 paid by the state and fenderal governments, for a total of $758,869. For this, county children received 32,090 days of foster care.

These figures average out to $127 for every child and teenager in the county, the highest average for any county in the state. Wayne County, at $109 had the second highest cost.

The optimism and feeling of achievement following last week's meeting was based on programs aimed at cutting the days of foster care during this fiscal year (1985-1986) to 25,000 days of care, 7,000 fewer days than last year. At an average day care cost of $30, this would amount to a total savings of $210,000. More cuts are projected for future years. The cuts will be made possible by caring for more offenders in their own homes and providing an opportunity for diversionary activities.

The cut in this year's days of care is a realistic one, according to Juvenile Officer Brad Campbell, who presented actual figures for the first seven months of the year.

Richard Knapp of the Child Care division of the State Department of Social Services, who earlier this year refused to authorize state reimbursement for some child care costs in Charlevoix County because they were "out of line", said the proposed plan to cut days of foster care would make it possible for him to reinstate the re-imbursement process.

However, Knapp requested that the County Department of Social Services and Juvenile Court adopt a policy of screening youthful offenders for care in their own homes and-or inclusion in a diversionary program before placing them in foster care.

Such a screening policy could include specific recommendations, such as "no young person charged with a status offense alone would be put in a foster home." (A status offense is an offense based solely on

Ellsworth cleanup approved

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

The Department of Natural Resources has authorized $350,000 for the cleanup of the toxic chemicals and other wastes at the site of a semi-abandoned former steel fabricating factory on the shores of Lake Ellsworth.

The DNR, however, will continue to try to persuade the owners of the now defunct businesses to perform the cleanup first mandated last January 3 in joint orders from the State Department of Health, the DNR and the State Attorney General's office, according to Gregg Danneffel, DNR Environmental Engineer in Cadillac.

"Local citizens would like to see all the derelict buildings torn down, as well as all the hazardous materials removed," Ron Hext, Ellsworth village president, said responding to the DNR announcement.

"Ellsworth is up in arms. There is a petition being circulated and we are consulting attorneys. We want everything 'cleaned up,'" Hext stated.

Lake Ellsworth is a long shallow lake stretching seven miles north-south between smaller Lake St. Clair to the north and the Chain of Lakes to the south, eventually emptying into Lake Michigan at Elk Rapids.

Moerland to run as Independent

f. Lee Moerland, present chairman of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, has announced his candidacy for the office on the Independent ticket in the November 4 general election.

Moerland, a member of the Board of Supervisors and more recently the Board of Commissioners representing the City of Charlevoix was beaten by Bud Heeres by a vote of 290 to 239 in the August Republican primary election.

In announcing his decision to seek re-election as commissioner representing the City of Charlevoix, Moerland said "I have been encouraged to seek re-election by many of my constituents. After given the matter serious thought, I have decided to seek return to the office in the November election."

Moerland said he decided to take advantage of a federal law which allows a candidate to run for office on the Independent ticket. By doing this, his name will appear on the ballot in the November 4 general election thus eliminating any confusion that might result if he ran as a "sticker" candidate, he explained.

The last taste of summer

Kindergartners at the Charlevoix Elementary School got a treat Friday when Diane Pece owner of Meggie invited them down to help clean up the ice cream, popcorn and sode pop. Meggie closed for the season on after Labor Day and the children were more than heppy to help reduce the inventory.

Fall Harvest at Sunnyview

A bonanza of fresh fruit is ready for the picking at area orchard

by PEG OHLE

Nature's bounty was evident all around Sunnyview Orchards last week. The trees were bowed down with fruit waiting to be harvested – luscious red, yellow, and green apples; blushing peaches; golden and green pears; and royal purple plums.

The orchards undoubtedly looked beautiful in their spring blossoming period, but for lovers of fresh fruit, the harvest period has to be even more beautiful.

Francis and Stella Otto took over operation of Sunnyview Orchards in 1980, putting to work what they had learned in the School of Horticulture at Michigan State University. At that time, the farm consisted of about 20 acres of working trees. Now there are about 150 acres, all productive except for 20 wooded acres.

Stella Otto grew up outside of Boston and worked on horse farms in Maine. She entered Michigan State University with the thought of becoming a veterinarian, but changed to the study of horticulture. Francis Otto grew up in Niles in southwestern Michigan, not far from the great fruit-producing area. They both served an apprenticeship on a large cherry orchard near Elk Rapids before buying Sunnyview Orchards.

Located on a plateau above the Jordan River Valley, the Ottos have found temperature and weather conditions good for fruit-growing. "The cold seems to drain down onto the river area", Stella explained. The only natural hazard they have had are deer, which are very fond of fresh fruits.

The problem which causes the Ottos most concern is the lack of labor for harvesting. "The fruit has to be hand-picked because it goes to the fresh fruit market, and it's hard to find people to do the picking", Stella says. "The kids are in school when most of the apples are ready. We use other local people but can't get enough of them. We're really thinking about putting up housing for migrant workers".

Although Sunnyview Orchards is now harvesting only apples, peaches, pears, and plums, its season begins in early spring when asparagus stalks begin to sprout. The Ottos are working toward a steady summer and fall business with the addition to their orchards of early varieties of apples, sweet cherries, apricots, table grapes, and – next year – raspberries and perhaps strawberries.

In addition to what they grow, the Ottos sell a variety of homestyle jams, jellies, and fruit butters which they buy through a Farm Marketing Cooperative in Lansing. They also sell vegetables grown on a neighboring farm.

On Saturday, September 20, Sunnyview Orchards will celebrate the birthday of the legendary "Johnny Appleseed" (real name, John Chapman), who, it is said, scattered appleseeds from Pennsylvania all through Ohio in the eighteenth century. Since many northern Michigan pioneers came from Ohio, it is conceivable they brought with them another generation of Johnny's appleseeds to start the orchards that once were a part of every homestead. At least it's a thought-provoking possibility!

The family-oriented Johnny Appleseed Festival will feature orchard walking tours, cider-pressing demonstrations, puppeteers Patty Clark and Carol Spaulding telling the story of Johnny Appleseed, recipe contests for apple goodies (take a taste of samples for judging), a Johnny Appleseed look-alike contest, a cider-and-doughnut stand, and a performance by Kirby's Live Folk Music Band.

There will also be a Country Crafts Fair and many "pick your own" fruit opportunities.

Lest the festival-goer begins to think that fruit-gowing is a nice, easy way to earn a living, consider these facts: Orchardists are always at the mercy of the weather; every tree must be planted, pruned, sprayed, and trained through the years; every young tree must be wrapped with plastic to prevent gnawing by rodents; orchards and adjoining areas must be mowed and sprayed to keep the rodent population down; it takes four or five years for a tree to grow to bearing stage; and before a single piece of fruit can be sold, it must be carefully picked from the tree.

The enormous amount of work involved in an orchard like Sunnyview can be realized when one finds that the old orchard trees are capable of producting 400 to 500 bushes of apples an acre, and the new dwarf trees (which the Ottos and most other orchardists are now planting) are capable of producing twice as many – 800 to 1,000 – bushels an acre.

The Johnny Appleseed Festival will be an informative, entertaining day – Saturday, September 20. Sunnyview Orchards are three and a half miles south of East Jordan, one and a half miles south of Rogers Bridge Road, on Mt. Bliss Road, just pst the Charlevoix-Antrim County line. Take M-66 to Rogers Bridge Road, turn left, continue across Rogrs Bridge, and turn right at Mt. Bliss Road. There's a Sunnyview Orchards sign at this intersection.

New petunia truck

He said the new vehicle will be outfitted with air conditioning, a stereo AM-FM cassette system, and a chrome front bumber. The Bosses contributed the $1,350 needed for the accessories.

Boss said the truck will be used in parades to promote Charlevoix and will be capable of pulling a float. It will be equipped with four large speakers custom built into the skirting which will broadcast the "Charlevoix the Beautiful" song written by Elizabeth Humphries.

"What we will be doing is nothing different than was done at the turn of the century when Charlevoix had a huge horse-drawn bandwagon," Boss commented.

He said the truck, which will be outfitted with a 2,000 gallon water tank, can also be used by the fire department to assist in bringing water to large fires.

Release of the water for the petunias will be operated by a hydraulic mechanism activated from inside the cab.

'Round Town

Studying snakes

BY EDITH GILBERT

A LOT OF us who shop at Oleson's will remember that friendly, personable young lady at the checkout counter, Adele Lepman (Kiteley). You'll never guess what she's up to now, so I had better tell you.

Adele has finally been accepted – after three years trying – as a student at the Ringling Bros., Barnum and Baily Clown College! There are 8,000 applicants annually and only 60 people are accepted. Can you imagine that?

The college is located in Venice, Florida and the course lasts only 10 weeks. Classes go from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. six days a week, and they include learning improvisation and mime the use of props, make-up, masks, costume design; stilt walking, juggling, rhino and unicycling.

If Adele is lucky, at the end of her training, she will receive a one-year contract to travel with the circus for five.

I asked Adele how she found out about the school, and she told me that her mother heard about it on the radio, and said, "Adele, do I have a college for you!"

Let's all wish Adele a lot of luck in her new venture.

YOU ARE PROBABLY AWARE from reading the papers that Prince Charles attended the 350th Anniversary of Harvard University last week. But what you are not aware of – and what Doris Leedteigen called to my attention – is that Harvard Alumnus Rabbi Sam Karff of Houston, Texas, was invited to be one of the speakers on this historic occasion.

Between tennis sets this summer, Sam has been working diligently at his cottage on Lake Charlevoix on his speech. His pretty wife, and ballerina-dance instructor, Joan, will be there to applaud, and both will attend the elegant luncheon following the ceremonies. Wonder what she wore, what they ate, and what he said?

MY SUMMER FRIENDS have been urging me to visit Glorie Be, a remodelled chicken coop filled with antiques, folk art, collectibles and plants. I finally made the trip and was delighted with what I found.

Helen Coble has always been interested in collecting and growing flowers, would you believe she's planted 54,000 gladioli bulbs? She and her husband, formerly of Hazel Park, purchased the picturesque, retirement farm four years ago, and if you haven't already been there, do go before they close in the middle of October because the flowers are in their prime.

I plan to return and stock up on those wonderful little bags of potpourri that they have simmering on a stove, which wafts the most delicious fragrance throughout the shop.

Location: Between Charlevoix and Petoskey, 2 miles off U.S. 31, on the Horton Bay road.

RAN INTO TRACY MILLER– who's Baltimore family has summered on Michigan Avenue for five generations, in case you didn't know. She has just returned from a summer stint at Central Michigan University's Biological Station on Beaver Island. Before that, she spent a year in Panama under a program of the Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute. The study of reptiles and amphibians makes her a herpetologist. (The word is bigger than she is!)

She tells me that she's been studying Field Methods in Ethonaly and Garter Snakes. This means studying the behavior of animals in their natural habitat. It seems that Beaver Island is unique, because here one is able to observe the same snakes in their daily routine. Honest, that's what she said. For instance, Tracy watched a family of snakes wake up about 9:30 a.m. poke their heads out and look about, then head for a stream, where they had a breakfast of worms and frogs. Sometimes between 4 and 8 p.m. they would return home. She knew they were the same snakes, because she painted each one a different color.

It was interesting to learn that the instructional program of the Biological Station has been designed to meet the needs of both undergraduate and graduate students in biology, as well as biology and general science teachers. Tracy says that the program even allows mothers to bring their children with baby sitters. And there are classes in aerobic dance, too. What an interesting way to spend the summer on Beaver Island.

Pass the pork

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

I attended my first Democratic pig roast at Al Foster's Pond in Emmet County Sunday and the chow was so good I am seriously considering becoming a Democrat.

A whole pig, tenderly roasted overnight by retired Petoskey postmaster master chef Tom Wilhelm, bread stuffing seasoned to a T, sauerkraut cooked long hours with pork ribs, German potato salad, boiled potatoes, corn on the cob, cucumbers and onions marinated in sour cream, sliced tomatoes, homemade bread, real butter, corn relish...

The menu gocs on and on, but I'm sure you get the idea. The wonder is that Emmet County Democrats aren't all running restaurants instead of touting political candidates.

Of course, Charlevoix County Democrats were invited to show up and a number of them did, including Ellen Addington of East Jordan who is attempting to unseat Republican Ralph Ostling from his longstanding position as state representative from the 103rd Legislative District.

For the second year, Gov. James Blanchard put in an appearance at the Democratic picnic, direct from the Posen Potato Festival. Blanchard, who appears fit and trim at the end of his first term, was accompanied by Dennis W. Archer, his black appointee to the Michigan Supreme Court. Young, well spoken and overflowing with personal charisma, Archer is one of 24 candidates seeking election to two vacancies on the court in November.

While other politicians ranged through the crowd pumping hands, State Sen. Mitch Irwin of Sault Ste. Marie picked out a job for himself that virtually guaranteed that he would meet everyone present. He handed out plastic tableware wrapped in napkins at the end of the serving line. At an Antrim County picnic recently, Irwin found a spot for himself on the cafeteria line serving barbecued chicken to senior citizens.

Talk about public service!

Democrat Paul Brown of Petoskey, a University of Michigan regent, also got a chance to talk to everyone. He was master of ceremonies.

The visit was was the second to Northern Michigan for both Blanchard and Archer in less than a week. On Labor Day, they walked the Mackinac Bridge.

As far as party politics is concerned, I find it increasingly difficult to choose up sides with excellent candidates on both tickets. I realize party support is important. Without it we wouldn't have Democratic picnics. And Republican picnics.

But the ability of each individual candidate to do the job at hand is even more important.

It is also important to remember that some of our founding fathers feared that their new system of government might degenerate into a party system.

That's why I have never voted a "straight ticket." And I don't think I ever will.

In the meantime, past the roast pork, please. And another dollop of sauerkraut.

Letters to the editor:

Mix-up resolved in spirit of generosity

Dear Editor:

An unfortunate mix-up during the recent Keep Charlevoix Beautiful raffle on the Star of Charlevoix has shown us a good example of the true community spirit that has been part of KCB's Operation Petunia from the very start. As the 200 numbers of the ticket holders were counted down to the final few and eventually the winner of the 1986 Mustang first prize, three ticket holders did not hear their numbers called. Obviously they were greatly let down when the winners were named and they learned they had not been in the final few after all.

While they are satisfied that all 200 ticket stubs were drawn, there remains some question that all numbers and names were called over the public address system. Clearly the three couples were certain their names were not called.

But instead of accepting the KCB offer of having their $100 contribution refunded, they have all indicated that the money should still go toward the original purpose – Charlevoix's petunias.

It is this spirit of generosity and understanding that makes Charlevoix the Beautiful such a special place in which to live.

Camp McSauba completes successful season

Dear Editor:

Another year has come to a close at Camp McSauba and on behalf of over 300 children who enjoyed the 1986 camping season and our staff, I wish to express our gratitude to the following who contributed to the success of the program this year:

Charlevoix United Way, Charlevoix Knights of Columbus, Charlevoix Womens Club, VFW Auxiliary of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Lions Club in memory of Bob Murray, Round Lake Lodge Order of Oddfellows, Charlevoix MESPA (Charlevoix Public School Custodians, Cooks, Aides, and Bus Drivers), Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, Beta Sigma Phi Kappa Sigma Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi Epsilon Gamma Chapter, Charlevoix Education Association, American Legion Auxiliary, Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department, Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club and a number of private and corporate donors who wish to remain anonymous.

These organizations have graciously given of their time and effort to make Camp McSauba a part of many childrens summertime activities in Charlevoix, and for that we thank you. Without your support and encouragement, many children would not have the opportunity to be involved with this camping experience.

We would also like to thank the Friends of Camp McSauba for their efforts in our fundraising activities.

Again, thanks Charlevoix, for your continued support.

Law would threaten wildlife

Dear Editor:

Everyone with an interest in wildlife should be shocked to learn that the Michigan Legislature is on the verge of allowing dogs to run free in spring and early summer when most wildlife species are virtually helpless.

HB-5082, which has already passed the House of Representatives, will be considered by the State Senate when it goes back into session Sept. 9 in Lansing.

A Michigan law, dating back nearly 60 years, prohibits the training of hunting dogs from April 15 to July 16 each year. It has been a good law, designed to save the lives of baby deer, bears, rabbits, raccoons, foxes, pheasants, grouse, woodcock and ground-nesting songbirds, in addition to many other wildlife species.

At the same time, the Department of Natural Resources has the authority to issue permits to hold field trials in specified areas, during which hunting dogs can be trained. Such training can also be done during the other nine months of the year, including open hunting seasons, so there is no hardship for hunters.

Hounds which have been trained to chase and kill raccoons and foxes will have no hesitation in also killing bear cubs that may weigh under ten pounds, deer fawns, baby rabbits and other small, helpless wildlife. After mid-July, however, most wildlife has grown and learned to avoid predators, including dogs.

HB-5082 is opposed by the Michigan Conservation Foundation, the Michigan Bear Hunters Association, the Michigan Deer Hunters Association, and Ruffed Grouse Society and Whitetails, Inc., as well as a majority of thinking Michigan citizens.

I would urge everyone to write immediately to their state senator to help kill the intent of HB-5082 when it comes up for a vote in Lansing this fall.

If allowed to become law, HB-5082 could become the most inhumane bill ever enacted in Michigan.

Public toilets don't belong in city park

Dear Editor:

I hope the city fathers have the foresight to locate the public toilets next to the sewage plant where they would be convenient for the boaters and shoppers, and be unobtrusive, instead of next door to Burnsides where they would stick out like a sore thumb.

To look upon toilets when first entering Charlevoix from the north would be a dreadful shame. It would be a grave error to use such a valuable piece of property for toilets.

We have worked hard to keep Charlevoix beautiful, let's not spoil it with toilets in the park.

Engagements

Roxanne Smith and Gary Novotny

Smith - Novotny

Mr. and Mrs. Brennan Smith of Flushing announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Roxanne, to Gary Novotny, also of Flushing. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Novotny of Charlevoix.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Flushing High School and Mott Community College. She is presently employed as a dental assistant.

Her fiance is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and Ferris State College. He is employed by Thomas Design and Engineering.

The wedding will take place October 4 in Flushing.

Smith - Louiselle

Mr. and Mrs. John Smith of Charlevoix are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Susan, to Dick Louiselle of Charlevoix. He is the son of Niley Louiselle.

The intended bride and her fiance are both graduates of Charlevoix High School, and are self-employed.

The wedding will take place October 11 in Charlevoix Township.

Peace workshop planned

Friday, Sept. 19, is the deadline for registering for the 13th annual Gaylord Diocesan Council of Catholic Women Workshop to be held at Immaculate Conception parish in Traverse City Wednesday, Oct. 1, Mary M. Geiken, president of the Northwest Region of the Council, has announced.

Theme for the event is "Women for Peace through Ministry."

Registration will start at 9 a.m. The workshop will continue until 3 p.m. The reservation fee of $5.50 will include coffee and roll and a luncheon at noon.

Reservations are to be made with Geiken on or before the deadline Sept. 19. All women of the Gaylord Diocese are welcome to attend.

At the same time, it was announced that the annual Fall Day of Recollection will be held at the Augustine Center at Conway on Wednesday, Sept. 24. The Rev. Ronald Gronowski of the Indian River Shrine will be the director. Those planning to attend are asked to call Sr. Barbara Seymour at 547-3657 to make reservations as early as possible.

Members are reminded that the DCCW "Save" projects continue. They are the used glasses, cancelled stamps, and Campbell soup labels. The layettes for use in the diocese are also an ongoing project.

The annual Madonna donation, another council project, is due Oct. 31.

It was also announced that Monday, Oct. 27, has been designated as an Ecumenical Day of Prayer for Peace by Pope John Paul II.

Janet Shadko

Shadko - Martin

Mr. and Mrs. Warren J. Shadko of Memphis, Tenn., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Janet Lorrainne Shadko to Glen Reed Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Martin also of Memphis, Tenn.

Miss Shadko, granddaughter of Gregory A. Shadko of Charlevoix, graduated from State Technical Institute Memphis with a degree in Computer Accounting and is employed with Brodnax Jewelers in Memphis.

Martin graduated from Memphis State University with a degree in Mechanical Engineering and is employed by Uniking Conveyor Corporation.

A Sept. 27, 1986 wedding is being planned.

Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. Al Anderson

Andersons' 25th honored

The family of Al and Rose Anderson have announced an open house honoring the couple on their 25th anniversary. The open house will be held at Ellsworth Wesleyan Church Hall on Saturday Sept. 20 from 2 to 4 p.m.

The Andersons were married on Sept. 16, 1961 in Ellsworth and have resided in the area most of their married life.

Al has taught school in East Jordan for 18 years, served as an Army instructor for the U.S. Army Reserves and has entertained musically in this area. Rose has operated a beauty salon in Ellsworth for 10 years.

The couple's oldest son, Seven, is in the U.S. Army and is based in Arizona at Ft. Huachuca. He and his wife Sherri have one son, Steven, age 3 months. Another son, Howard, is based with the U.S. Army at Ft. Knox, Kentucky. Daughter Melody is based in England with U.S. Air Force at Mildon Hall. Their son, Alan, is a student at East Jordan Middle School.

East Jordan Garden Club celebrates 25 years

The East Jordan Garden Club will celebrate its 25th Anniversary on Monday, Sept. 15.

The meeting, which will be held at 1:30 p.m. in the Education Building of the East Jordan Presbyterian Church, will include a special acknowledgement of charter members Mrs. H. (Evelyn) Gidley, Mrs. T. (Phyllis) Malpass, Mrs. W. (Esther) Porter, Mrs. B. (Cygred) Riley, Mrs. B. (Joanne) Schenck, and Mrs. W. (Norma) Thorsen.

While the club was organized in 1961, it did not join the Michigan Federated Garden Clubs until 1981. During the years, the Club has sought to foster beauty in the community by planting flowers in the City of East Jordan, at the South Arm Township Hall and at Elm Pointe.

It has sponsored a young people's garden club at the grade school and has helped the children plant flowers at the school. "Anyone interested in maintianing the beauty of nature is welcome to become a member of the East Jordan Garden Club," organizers say.

Rayders' surge dumps Northmen

Stragglers beware. Charlevoix comes to play early.

Friday night the Rayders had things well in control before the latecomers had settled in with their popcorn and soft drinks.

They put 16 points on the board with the game only five minutes old and went on to take an impressive 28-7 decision over Petoskey.

The Charlevoix coaching staff came away pleased. "They did a god job," Rayder coach Roger Gowell said. "They did not make mistakes. We didn't lose any fumbles or have any interceptions."

Two key plays hurt Petoskey. Just before halftime with Charlevoix up 21-7 Petoskey's Eric Beer broke away on a 25-yard run but had the ball poked loose when he was tackled by Mark LaBlance at the Rayder 3-yard line. Darrin Batdorff recovered.

Another play that hurt Petoskey came in the third period when a fourth down pass from the 13 fell short in the end zone.

Both teams moved the ball on the ground as Charlevoix's junior fullback, Mark LaBlance led the team with 160 yards rushing in 16 carries. Senior tailback Mike Thompson scored twice and had 114 yards in 20 carries. Beer led Petoskey with 104 yards in 14 attempts, 103 of that in the first half.

Thompson got Charlevoix's first score on a 12-yard sweep three minutes into the game. The TD was set up by a 29-yard run by LaBlance. On Petoskey's first play from scrimmage following the kickoff, Jim Tilton recovered a fumble at the 15 and three plays later quarterback Dan Drury hit Scott DeYoung with a 17-yard TD pass. Terry Bonar kicked both concersions and also put his first two kickoffs into the end zone.

The Northmen then came up with their most impressive drive of the night, moving 81 yards in 12 plays. Beer got the TD from 7 yards out.

The Rayders bounced right back with a long drive of their own that covered 75 yards in 13 plays with Drury diving in from the 1 for a 21-7 lead.

Petoskey appeared to bounce back again as Beer ripped off a 50-yard run to the Charlevoix 22 but the drive fizzled at the 20.

In the second half defenses of both teams dominated, despite giving up yardage.

LaBlance broke off a 52-yard run on the first play of the third period but Charlevoix stalled at the 17. Later in the quarter Petoskey came up short after reaching the 13.

The only scoring of the last period came with 50 seconds left when Thompson went in from 8 yards out and Roger Smith converted.

For Charlevoix, Steve Hopkins had a pass interception on the game's final play while defensively Kent Seymour had 13 tackles.

Also contributing to the defensive effort were Batdorff with eight tackles, LaBlance with seven and Quintin Walker with six.

Girls open with narrow victory

The Charlevoix Rayder girls basketball team opened its season last week with a 45-43 win over Ellsworth.

The game was a battle all the way with Charlevoix holding a slim 11-8 advantage at the quarter only to see it slip away as Ellsworth took over 22-17 at the half and 32-28 going into the final period.

With the score 43-42 in the Lancers' favor with a minute remaining, Jill Austin connected for a field goal to put the Rayders ahead for the first time since the first quarter.

Allison Hall was fouled in the scramble for the ball and scored on the first shot to give Charlevoix a two-point margin. With nine seconds on the clock, the Lancers muffed their chance to score when the ball handler was called for traveling as time ran out.

Veteran Amy Pischner led the scoring with 14 points followed by Cindy Boss with eight. Guard Stephanie Martin had 12 rebounds. Everyone on the Rayder team scored.

Kathy Wynsma had 12 points, Andrea Doctor 11 and Rhonda Grulke 10 for Ellsworth.

In the preliminary game, the Charlevoix JV's bowed to Ellsworth 38-17 after trailing 16-8 at halftime.

Paula Thorp with 11 points was the top scorer for the Rayder Lori Ruis had 10 points for Ellsworth.

The teams will play at Elk Rapids next Thursday at 6:15 p.m.

JVs shut out by Petoskey 34-0

The Charlevoix Rayder JV squad dropped its first game of the season to the young Petoskey Northmen by a score of 34-0.

The Northmen scored on two ground plays and, late in the game, took to the air to score their points.

Todd Flynn, on a quarterback keeper, scored from the 30-yard line early in the first quarter with Todd Shomin running in the conversion.

Shomin then went in from the 7 and Don Spencley ran in the two-point conversion. A 35-yard reverse by Spencley accounted for the TD that brought the halftime score to 22-0.

There was no scoring in the third period but in the final quarter freshman Tobin McFarland passed 20 yards to Pat Griffin. Later in the period McFarland repeated his performance with a 20-yard toss to Steve Behan. Griffin and Behan are also freshmen.

Coach Brian Certa said that Jamie Montieth and Jason Whitley were the outstanding players on defense.

"We need a lot of work to become competitive," he added.

The young Rayders were to play at East Jordan Wednesday and travel to Rogers City on Sept. 18.

Golfers edged in season opener

The Charlevoix Rayder golf team dropped its first meet of the season Monday to the Petoskey Northmen by three strokes, 196-193.

"They did well for a first meet but it is going to take a lot more to make us really competitive," Coach Glen Taylor said of the meet.

Petoskey's Vince Peterson was medalist with a score of 44 in the meet played on the back nine of the Bay View Golf Club. Sophomore Dan Bickersteth carded a 45 for the Rayders.

Also scoring for the Rayders were Scott Wise 47, Dave Clark 51 and Pat Anderson 53.

Other Petoskey competitors were Kim Baker 46, Kirk Shanley 50 and Joe Robbins 53.

In the JV meet played on the top nine at the course, Petoskey carded a 197 to Charlevoix's 220. The JVs played six golfers and scored the top four totals.

Scott Kuhna was medalist with a score of 48. Teammates Pete Hill and Jeremy Krussel each scored 49 and Tracy Piehl 51.

For Charlevoix, Mike Wise had a 50, Dave Loder 54, Tom Herriman 57 and Tim Berry 59.

The teams will be a Gaylord on Thursday and at Rogers City the following Thursday.

Sports Boosters to plan season activities

An important meeting of the Charlevoix Sports Boosters has been called for 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 16, to make plans for the 1986-87 school year.

The meeting is to be held in the high school library.

Among the items on the agenda will be the organization for the year, membership report, treasurer's report, program advertising report, recommendations regarding the use of funds on hand and the new concession stand at Kipke Field.

"This is an important meeting. We hope all persons in the community interested in the athletic program at the Charlevoix High School will respond to this announcement. Your participation is needed if the Sports Boosters are to meet their goals," a spokesman for the Boosters said.

Wise is the housewife who cleans closets with CLASSIFIED ADS.

Runners start season at White Cloud, boys take third place, girls fifth

The Charlevoix - Rayder cross country team, in its first meet of the 1986 season, came in third among the eight teams entered in the White Cloud Invitational with Doug Bergmann setting the pace for the race.

Rayder girls placed fifth among nine terms and the junior varsity second among seven teams.

Bergmann's time of 15.35 over the sand, gravel and grass course was the best of the day.

Benzie Central, the defending title holder with the top three runners from its state championship team returning, was first with 45 points followed by Big Rapids with 63; Charlevoix with 65; Unionville-Seabewaing Area, 132; Muskegon Oakridge, 153; Mason County Central, 154; Kingsley, 200 and Reed City, 207.

Other members of the Rayder squad and their place in the race and times were: Pat Rajewski, 9th with a time of 16:16; Tom Merta, 14th, 16:55; Scott Miller, a freshman, 20th, 17:08; Kevin McLenon, 22nd, 17:25; Sean Henne, 23rd, 17:27; and Harold Herriman, 28th, 17:43.

Coach Pete Spieles said Bergmann, Merta and Miller had good races. "Doug looked especially good and walked away with first place. Pat (Rajewski) can improve a lot. Kevin (McLenon) improved his time the most. We have a long way to go but I know we can improve our times," he commented.

Of the girls team, Spieles said "They did well. We were able to field a team. However, two members were running in their very first meet. I think as the season progresses, they will improve and do well. Betsy (Haggard) came in seventh and showed improvement over last season. I think they will do all right."

Cathy Ackley of Hart, whose team finished eighth, posted the best time, 19:45.

Betsy Haggard, 7th place, had a time of 21:22; Michelle North, 17th in 22:00; Heidi Olinger, who just missed receiving a medal by coming in 21st, 22:11; Barb Haggard, 24th, 22:28; Maria Parsons, 49th, 25:45; and Shelly Ferguson, 50th, 27:04.

Medals were awarded through 20th place.

Betsy Haggard, North and Olinger are returnees from last season and looked very good Spieles added. Parson and Ferguson are the first-timers on the team.

Benzie Central girls won the meet with 54 points followed by Mason County with 91; Muskegon Oakridge, 113; East Jordan, 114; Charlevoix, 118; Reed City, 123; Big Rapids, 124; Hart, 153; and Kingsley, 234.

The Rayder JVs came in second behind Mason County with 71 points. Mason County had 68; Benzie Central, 75; Kingsley, 81; Big Rapids, 92; Muskegon Oakridge, 102; and DSA, 160.

Jared Glover of Kingsley with a time of 17:29 posted the top time for the JV division.

The Rayders' Gehry Wiesner placed 2nd in 18:01; Marty Joy, 3rd, 18:20; Jeff Skeel, 4th, 18:22; Dylan Stewart, 27th, 20:10; Tim Henne, 35th, 20:41; Mike Stargardt, 37th, 20:55; and John Terry, 43rd, 22:06.

In the race for the independent JV runners, Jerry Thayer with a time of 19:56 placed third; Matt Schnackenberg, 7th, in 21:04 and Jacob Smith, 12th in 24:33.

The Rayders will be at Boyne City Tuesday for a dual meet.

Rayder harriers to defend conference title

The Charlevoix Rayder cross country team, coached by Pete Spieles, will open its 1986 season Saturday at the White Cloud Invitational which traditionally is the first major meet of the season.

The meet launched the team's schedule, which includes four dual and seven invitational meets plus the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference meet, regional and state meets and the Kinney (Midwest) regionals.

The Rayders will be defending their conference title when they enter competition.

In the running for slots on the team will be eight lettermen from last seasons boys team and three from the girls team, Spieles said.

Returning will be five seniors including Doug Bergmann, Joe Simpson, Harold Herriman, Kevin McLenon and Mike Dohm and Pat Rajewski, Sean Henne and Tom Merta, juniors.

Missing from among the returnees will be Ed Knight and Dave Warth who have moved from the area. Both were potential starters Spieles said.

Other candidates will come from among the 27 new candidates, including a crop of nine freshmen, four sophomores and three juniors who have been preparing for the season by running regularly. Some of the group joined the veterans at camp on Beaver Island last week.

Spieles has had his candidates running regularly at practice and prior to that running on their own to build up a strong base. "A strong base is important. To do this, a runner must discipline him or herself in order to better their running time as the season progresses. With a strong base, runners have fewer injuries and if they do have one, it takes them less time to recover," Spieles said of the stringent routine he has set for his candidates.

"Our goal is to run as a team, have fun as a team and win as a team. Everyone must give his or her best if we are to reach our ultimate goal... a state title," Spieles has told his teams.

In 1985, the Rayders qualified in the regional meet, placing second behind Benzie Central. The state meet at Cass City was a re-run of the regional meet, with Benzie taking the state title and the Rayders on their heels in second place.

"We have set our goals for the season. They include an effort to regain the state title held in '82 and '83. It's going to mean a lot of hard work on everyone's part but I think we can do it," Spieles said.

Among the candidates vying for a position on the team are Hal Chase, Marty Joy and Jeff Skeel, juniors; Mike Stargardt, Dylan Stewart, Jon Terry and F.L. Dammann, sophomores, and a host of freshmen led by Scott Miller who has an excellent chance to break into the top seven this year Spieles said. Others are Kevin Gerke, Tim Henne, Tim Holm, Justin Kulhawick, Matt Schnackenberg, Jacob Smith, Jerry Thayer and Gehry Wiesner.

Girls who are returning are Betsy Haggard, who qualified for state competition last season, Heidi Olinger and Michelle North. The first two are juniors; North a senior.

The other candidates are Maria Parsons and Wendy Voisin; juniors Lori Jinsky and Lauren Pace; sophonores Barb Haggard, Shelly Ferguson and Sheri Prater and four freshmen, Kate Christensen, Stephanie Agnew, Kriste Avery and Chrissy Dillon.

"My goal for the girls team is to have them become competitive enough to have state competition become a reality," Spieles said of the group which could develop into a strong team.

Attending the training camp at the Charlevoix School District's lighthouse property on Beaver Island were Bergmann, Herriman, Chase, Tim and Sean Henne, Rajewski, Skeel, Merta, McLenon, Holm, Schnackenberg, Simpson who joined the group Wednesday, Miller, Thayer, Smith and Warth who returned for the camp; Betsy and Barb Haggard, Stargardt, Olinger and Agnew.

Candidates qualified for the trip by running a minimum number of miles.

The runners were accompanied by Coach Spieles. Mrs. Robert Rajewski accompanied the group as chaperone and camp cook. Col. Rajewski joined them at mid-week.

Veterans should make golf squad competitive

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Rayder golf team, coached by Glen Taylor, will travel to Gaylord Thursday for its second meet of the 1986 season after taking on Petoskey on Monday.

Three seniors who played regularly last season - Scott Wise, Dave Clark and Tim Berry - will form the nucleus for this year's team along with a transfer from Owosso, Pat Anderson, who comes with two years experience, and three sophomores who lettered in 1985 - Wes Cumberland, Scott Crain and Dan Bickersteth.

Other candidates are sophomores Bob Jess, David Loder, Charlie Witthoeft, and Tom Herriman.

Seven freshmen are out for the first time. They are Chris Pemble, Don Cox, Ryan Holmes, David Puhl, Matt Gibbons, Randy Wurst and Tim Jervis.

"They're enthusiastic and I think they will be competitive," Coach Taylor said of his candidates during the first week with his team.

Their prospects for the season, at this point are uncertain. "The strength in the league (Michigan-Huron Shores Conference) should be Cheboygan for they have their entire league championship team back.

Petoskey always fields a strong golf team and Boyne City lost only one player, so they should be strong also. It looks like a good season," Taylor said.

The Rayders finished third in league standings last season.

Taylor added that the Rayders should do well in regional play this season when they meet Class C teams.

Fall series opens

Yachting Notes — BY A. NONY MOUSE

A confused start in only two knots of rain-filled air followed by successive squalls sweeping westward down the lake from Boyne City weren't enough to daunt the spirits of 22 crews as they opened the 1986 Fall Series of racing of the Charlevoix Yacht Club. The devious deceptions of Mother Nature were soon evident as the weather clocked to the south, the winds piped up to 18-20 knots and skippers were forced to decide whether the chutes could be carried on the "reaching legs" without crews involuntarily testing the lake's September temperature. It turned out to be one of those rare nights when despair transformed itself into glee as the Mouse's crew pulled one from the hat and slipped by the Sage of the Ingots, Karl Jurries. And it really became "Pearson Air" as John Gordon's Flash, Mike Carland's Tireless, and John Gaskin's Sandpiper took guns in their respective fleets.

The final score was as follows:

Fleet I (JAM): Sandpiper, Coolwhip, Apothecary, Maureen.

Fleet II (JAM): Flash, Canusa, Ribit, Kittiwake.

Fleet III: Tireless, Cygnus, Blasen III, Spectre, Nulli Secundus.

Fleet IV: Wingnut, Merry Hell, Bandit.

Fleet V: Pygmalion, Flying Machine, Charlie Brown, Reckless, Columbine, Traveller, Gotcha——

A sail cruise is scheduled for Northport Friday, September 12 with hopes of pulling out in convoy at approximately 3 p.m. A Sunday return is expected. Contact J. Stewart, 547-5353 or Roger Sievertson, 547-2959, if you would like to join.

Til then...watching the Western Skies.

CARDS OF THANKS 071

WE WOULD like to thank our friends and family for all their support during our loss. It helped so much knowing we were not alone. The Winchester Funeral Home for all their assistance and kindness; Pastor Bob Bellairs for the prayers and comforting words; the women of the Methodist Church for their help with the lunch. A very special thanks to the Charlevoix ambulance crew, the sheriff's department, coast guard, the boys on the beach that went for help; everyone at Charlevoix Area Hospital in the transfer; Everyone at Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey. We felt that everyone gave their very best to help Carmen and the family. Also a special thanks to KHQ for the scholarship in Carmen's name to Northwestern Michigan College. Thank you all and may God bless you. The Family of Carmen Cutler.

Ellsworth cleanup gets DNR approval

The derelict remains of International Disc Company (IDI), formerly Moreweld Steel and Disco Companies, occupy a major section of lake frontage. A sprawl of rusted steel buildings, some fire damaged, piles of steel shavings, barrels of chemicals, discarded machinery, rusting hulks of trucks, old cars, enormous pieces of steel, are strewn for almost a half mile.

The factory site came under intense Department of Natural Resources scrutiny last fall, when Ellsworth Lake was reported to be highly contaminated by arsenic and other toxic wastes. Although subsequent DNR tests gave the lake a clean bill of health, the factory site on its shores continued to be a focus of concern.

"Hundreds of barrels of toxic chemicals are stored on the site," according to statements released last January by the Health Department, when a cleanup scheduled was established. At that time the Health Department, DNR and Attorney General ordered the site be fenced, posted and cleaned up by its previous owners. DNR officers then said they wanted the cleanup finished before the winter's snow melted, because runoff could carry contamination into Lake Ellsworth.

In addition, acid in a powdered form, stored in the old buildings, was found in close proximity to 700 pounds of cyanide, Dean Mikulski Director of Environmental Health, for District Health Department No. 3, reported in January. Had the roof leaked and the acid and cyanide mixed there could have been a release of deadly cyanide gas.

An Ontario, Canada, corporation known as "48921 Ontario Limited" and officers of the various corporations which operated the different factories are being asked to perform the cleanup. These were the same corporations and individuals served with the orders of last January and include Maurice Taylor, resident agent of the corporation. Taylor is a resident of both Grosse Pointe and Ellsworth. Taylor's son Brent Taylor still operates a small steel fabricating business in one building on the property.

The DNR's current authorization for the $950,000, through Act 307, The Michigan Environmental Response Act has become necessary, according to Danneffel, because the "responsible parties have not responded" earlier.

Danneffel outlined the DNR plan. "We will fence the site, then sample and categorize all wastes, storing compatible wastes in appropriate locations until they can be hauled for off-site disposal.

"All visibly contaminated soils must be removed. Also there is a lagoon adjacent to the lake, which was used for the disposal of plating wastes. We found metals in some samples so we must either excavate and fill the lagoon or just fill it, depending on how contaminated we find it to be," Danneffel continued.

Village President Hext revealed that the town council is considering a lawsuit on its own against the former factory owners.

Child care costs to be cut

the fact that the offender is a minor – truancy from school or running away from home, for example.)

Knapp also said his department would require annual plans and proposed budgets for child care to be in his office on time if they are to get state approval. In the past few years, this information has been going in late from the office of Juvenile Judge John Murphy. Judge Murphy explains this lateness was due to caseworkers and others in the court system not getting reports in on time. "I'm a patient man but I'm running out of patience with them," he said, "and you may expect trouble if they don't follow orders."

The in-home care program for young offenders has been in use for about a year. A caseworker makes regular visits to homes of offenders for consultation with them and their parents. The program has been very successful in cutting down the number of foster care placements, Juvenile Court personnel have found.

A youth diversionary program will be started shortly, and it, too, is expected to offer a viable alternative to foster care for both Juvenile Court offenders and the Department of Social Services' Protective Services charges.

County Board Chairman Lee Moerland, who chaired last week's meeting, asked Campbell to have the written assurances required by the state, as well as a proposed budget ready for consideration by the County Board today.

County Commissioner Don Smith, the board liaison person for child care, has been wrestling with the high cost of foster care for some time. After the meeting he said, "We've finally found a solution."

County Department of Social Services Director Richard Tillen pointed out that he would not have an in-home care worker or youth diversionary worker in his department, but said he would be glad to use these services for his charges when applicable.

Knapp said the State Department of Social Services would closely monitor the success of the new child care program.

Obituaries

Ida A. Kenney

Funeral services for Mrs. Ida A. Kenney, 87, were held Thursday, Sept. 4, at Calvin-Starks-Frost Funeral Home in South Haven. The Rev. Robert Snyder officiated. Interment was in Lakeview Cemetery at South Haven.

Mrs. Kenney died Monday, Sept. 1, at the home of her oldest son, William E. Kenney in Charlevoix.

Born at Covert April 25, 1899, the former Ida A. Bostwick was married to Lawrence Kenney who preceded her in death in 1967. A former resident of South Haven, she made her home in Bradenton Beach and North Fort Myers, Fla. for the past 20 years.

She was a member of the Congregational Church at South Haven.

Surviving are two sons, William E. Kenney and Glenn Kenney, both of Charlevoix; two daughters, Mrs. June Leever Schultz of North Fort Myers, Fla, and Mrs. Lois McDonald of St. Joseph; 13 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the South Haven Congregational Church or the charity of one's choice.

The Winchester Funeral Home was in charge of local arrangements.

Henry Wassenaar

Funeral services for Henry Wassenaar, 88, of Ellsworth, were held Monday at the Belltower Reformed Church. The Rev. James Heneveld officiated. Interment was in the Atwood Cemetery.

Mr. Wassenaar died Saturday, Sept. 6, at Little Traverse Hospital.

Born in Banks Township June 6, 1898, Mr. Wassenaar was married to the former Josie DeYoung Sept. 22, 1926, at Central Lake where they made their home. He owned and operated the Mobil Service Station in Central Lake until 1947 when they moved to Banks Township where they owned and operated a farm until 1978 when they moved to Ellsworth. Mrs. Wassenaar preceded him in death in 1984.

He was a member of the Belltower Reformed Church and had served as clerk of the Atwood Cemetery Association for many years.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Edwin (Joyce) Petter of Ellsworth; two sons, Ronald of Hartwell, Ga., and Marvin of Omaha, Neb.; nine grandchildren; six great-grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. Andrew (Hattie) VanZett of Grand Rapids.

The family suggests memorials to the Banks Township Rescue Squad. Envelopes for this purpose are available at the Hastings Funeral Home, which was in charge of arrangements.

New Pastor heads Bethany Lutheran

The new pastor at the Bethany Lutheran Church is Robert H. Piller.

Pastor Piller and his family came to Charlevoix in July from Springfield, Illinois, where he completed his vicarage at Concordia Lutheran Church. The family consists of the pastor's wife, Victoria, and two young children, Elizabeth, who is three, and Jennifer, seven months old.

Pastor Piller was born in Irvington, New Jersey, and after graduating from high school, attended Concordia College in Bronxville, New York. He was graduated from there in 1976 with a bachelor's degree in education.

Following graduation, Pastor Piller taught in parochial schools in Hilton, New York; Delray Beach, Florida, and North Tonawanda, New York. Six years after graduating from college, Pastor Piller began his studies for the pastoral ministry at Concordia Lutheran Theological Seminary in St. Catherines, Ontario, from which he was graduated this year with the degree of master of divinity.

"I decided early in life that I wanted to be a minister, but I was detoured", Pastor Piller says of his delayed entry into the Seminary.

Pastor Piller is busy preaching the gospel to his congregation and setting out to re-build the church's membership – to "bring back those who are lost". Mrs. Piller, who is a pianist and organist, will teach a Sunday School class. Worship services are held at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, and Sunday School and Bible classes are held at 10:45 a.m.

Robert W. Pillar

When not working, Pastor Piller likes to undertake woodworking projects such as bookshelves and a grandfather clock. He also likes to play softball and racquetball and intends to learn to cross-country ski.

Since he has lived in the snow belt of western New york state, he does not think he will be deterred by Charlevoix's snowstorms.

Fall classes scheduled at Virginia McCune Arts Center

A variety of classes in visual art, applied music lessons and dance instruction begins Monday, Sept. 15 at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center, Petoskey. The six-week term is one of five terms offered throughout the year by the center's Community School of the Arts.

The art center continues its efforts in offering instruction to the communities of East Jordan and Charlevoix. Dance lessons will be available Monday afternoons at the East Jordan Civic Center, taught by Dianna Weltich, in cooperation with the East Jordan recreation program. In Charlevoix, artist Janis Glass will offer a course in flower painting and watercolor, held Thursday evenings at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Violin and low brass music lessons will be taught by faculty of Interlochen Center for the arts at McCune beginning Monday, Oct. 6. Students are required to provide musical instruments for these lessons. The Interlochen faculty will be visiting McCune on Mondays.

Regular classes in the visual arts include adult pottery taught by Suzanne Hoppe; Children's Pottery offered by Kim Overton; two sessions of Children's Art taught by Charlevoix artist Eileen Heck and an adult (advanced) painting class with artist Glen McCune.

New to the visual art classes is a class in calligraphy taught by artist Dennis Jessick. Also new is a class in metal sculpture taught by Tim Harbaugh and an intensive course in the basics of photography offered by instructor Tony Dunaske.

Dance instruction expands with additional sections of children's movement and dance and ballet taught by Dianna Weltich Heinzelman. Heinzelman and instructor Wendy Timmer also offer adult ballet, tap and musical theatre as a part of the dance curriculum. Dance instruction is available on Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Private music lessons are available in piano, clarinet, saxophone, percussion, voice, violin and low brass.

Musical ensembles feature a new choral singers group organized by Fran Tollas which meets Tuesday evenings. The Little Traverse Orchestra, led by Gig Stewart, begins rehearsal later in the fall on Thursday evenings.

For information on all classes, registration and available scholarships, call the McCune Community Arts Center, 347-4337. The center is open 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Bikers ride for St. Jude Hospital

Charlevoix residents will join the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital "Wheels for Life" Bike-a-thon slated for September 20 at the K-5 school on Division Street, Bike-a-thon chairman Sally Sanford has announced. The rain date is Sept. 27.

Sanford explained this ride honors Jaime, a leukemia patient at St. Jude. "With every turn of the wheel, riders become 'spokes'-men for all the kids with cancer, like Jaime. This ride is a vital part of the fight against childhood cancer at St. Jude," Sanford said. "Riders are really needed. They make or break a Bike-a-thon.

"The general plan is to have a good time while helping a wonderful group of children counting on your support," she added.

Contact Sally Sanford, 1214 State St., 547-6872 for details on riding or sponsoring a rider.

Flag Corps honored

The Flag Corps of the Charlevoix High School was honored with the "Spirit Award" at Flag Corps camp this summer, and Corps member Michelle Louiselle received the "Most Valuable Flag" Award for the second year.

This year's members, who will be seen at athletic events, are Michelle Louiselle, captain; Jennifer Bonar, co-captain; Kim Hand; Ember Spencer; Tina Fershee; Sandy Schaefer; and Kristi Pearsall.

Chase: small counties discriminated against in health services funding

by PEG OHLE

The Michigan Public Health Code formula for distributing funds for cost-shared services is discriminatory against smaller counties.

That statement was made by District Health Department No. 3 Administrator Gerald Chase at last week's meeting of the District Board of Health.

Chase cited figures showing that from 1979 to 1984, the Michigan Department of Public Health budget for cost-sharing support of local health services increased by $12 million. Over 80 percent of that amount was distributed to 10 urban health departments, while 38 rural health departments with county populations of less than 200,000 each received only 19.9 percent, according to Chase.

Chase is a member of the board of Michigan Rural Health Partnership (MRHP). He and others in MRHP hope to organize the 38 rural health departments to amend the Public Health Code, which went into effect in 1979. That code developed a state-local cost sharing program which is largely responsible for the urban health departments receiving the lion's share of funds, Chase believes.

Those local health departments that include all kinds of extraneous services under public health – most of them urban health departments – are getting the greater share of funds by the state-local cost sharing formula. This penalizes the other health departments who must maintain their health services largely by local means.

The amendment to the Public Health Code which Chase and his colleagues would propose would be a one-time $5 million cost-sharing equity adjustment addition to the State Public Health Department budget as part of the fall supplemental budget bill. The equity adjustment proposal would be based on a $2.25 per capita share – rather than matching local dollars, which would distribute funds more evenly between rural and urban health departments, Chase says.

Also, in addition to the supplemental funding, MRHP would like to cut the number of services which would be included in cost-sharing.

The District Health Department No. 3 Board invited State Senator Mitch Irwin and State Representative Ralph Ostling to their meeting last week to ask the legislators' support in amending the Public Health Code. Both said they would do what they could to help.

Holmes named Merit Semifinalist

Kristin Holmes, a senior at Charlevoix High School, was among the 15,000 young men and women across the country honored as Semifinalists in the current Merit Program, the National Merit Scholarship Corporation announced Wednesday. Other area students named Semifinalists included Michael Lereel and Steven Plite of East Jordan High School.

Academically talented high school seniors in all of the 50 states have qualified as Semifinalists and will have an opportunity to advance in the 1987 competition for about 6,000 Merit Scholarship worth over $21 million.

In the fall of 1985, more than one million juniors in some 19,000 U.S. secondary schools entered this competition by taking the PSAT-NMSQT, the qualifying test for the Merit Program. The top scorers in every state, representing about half of one percent of the state's high school graduating class, are included in the nationwide Semifinalist pool.

"In publicly recognizing this select group, NMSC hopes to broaden the higher education opportunities of these young people and to focus a spotlight on the academic achievements of able students in the nation's secondary schools," a spokesman for the award said.

To be considered for Merit Scholarships, these Semifinalists must advance to Finalist standing by documenting high academic performance, being endorsed and recommended by their high schools, taking the Scholastic Aptitude Test and comfirming their qualifying test performance, and submitting information about their school and community activities, personal interests, and goals.

About 90 percent (or 13,500) of the Semifinalists are expected to meet the rigorous standards required to become Finalists in the Merit Program and to compete for one of several types of Merit Scholarships to be offered in 1987.

Every Finalist will be considered for one of 1,800 single-payment National Merit $2,000 Scholarships, allocated on a state representation basis in proportion to each state's total of U.S. high school seniors.

Corporations, foundations, and other organizations also will underwrite some 1,400 Merit Scholarships for Finalists who meet preferential criteria the grantors specify.

Approximately 2,800 four-year Merit Scholarships will be offered by colleges and universities and only Finalists who wish to attend a sponsor institution will compete for these awards.

The National Merit Scholarship Program, initiated in 1955, is financed independently by over 600 sponsor organizations. The 6,000 academic champions who will be named Merit Scholars next April and May will bring the program's 32-year total to more than 100,000 young Americans who have received Merit Scholarships worth $308 million.

BIDS WANTED

City picks site for gazebo, rest rooms

by DOUG TRUAX

Mayor Hal Hill had a field day Monday night.

"Gosh, I've had more votes tonight than I've had in a year and a half," Hill said after casting the deciding vote on the location of a new rest room and gazebo facility to be located in the park north of Burnsides' store.

Hill voted twice Monday, the first he has cast as mayor. The second vote broke a 3-3 deadlock on city council and passed a motion by Councilwoman Shirley Roloff to place the new rest rooms in the center of the park area on Bridge Street.

Voting for the plan were Roloff, Robert Timms and William Bellows. Opposed were Norm Probert, F. Earl Muma and Ray Wood.

An earlier motion by Councilman Timms to locate the restrooms in the same park but along the wall adjacent to Burnsides also ended in a 3-3 tie, but Hill voted against that proposal and defeated it.

The decision on the location of the rest rooms, which will include a gazebo style viewing deck, marked the first authorization by council of plans for the downtown area being worked on by the Downtown Development Authority (DDA).

HILL TOLD the DDA's Jim Mabee, who presented the plan, to proceed with further sketches and elevations of the site for final approval by council.

Council also indicated it wanted a scaled down version of the rest room plan presented to council three weeks ago which was estimated to cost some $74,000.

The DDA expects to get a state Coastal Zone Management grant for the much of the design of the facility. The cost of construction could be paid from a $25,000 city reserve for rest rooms with the remainder paid by the DDA.

ROLOFF TOLD council she had done a survey of 70 residents prior to the meeting and found 68 of them (all women) in favor of putting the rest rooms in the park north of Burnsides. The respondents liked the idea of a viewing deck, Roloff said.

Timms said he supported the gazebo closer to the Burnsides building because it would obstruct less of the view of Round Lake.

"What I'm finding is people like the shape of a gazebo, bandstand structure," Bruce MacArthur, president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, told council. "I think it's clear that a gazebo, whether against the building or not, would do nothing but block the view of clutter but do nothing to disturb the view of beauty. It enhances the view."

Boat quotas proposed by lake planners

by DOUG TRUAX

The year is, say, 1996. It is Labor Day weekend and Lake Charlevoix is swarming with boats of all descriptions – fishing boats, sloops, massive powerboats.

A car towing a boat pulls up to the public launch area and finds a gate controlled by a computerized machine. The machine asks for information on the boat and the driver complies, punching in the relevant information: power boat, 24 feet long, 75 h.p. motor.

The machine pauses as it checks the day's total and then spits out four day-use stamps after the driver has deposited the necessary fee.

The next car arrives and goes through a similar ritual.

This time the computer is not so generous. "Sorry, lake filled" the video screen says. The driver backs away and goes in search of another lake.

THAT IS something like the future scenario envisioned by the planners developing a management plan for Lake Charlevoix. The scheme was devised by the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee at a meeting Thursday. The committee is in the process of writing a final report after nearly two years of preparation.

Agreeing that Lake Charlevoix is not currently overpopulated with boats, the committee nonetheless said it should address the subject of boat crowding now.

"I think there is a threat of overcrowding," Rick Smith of Boyne City, who represents developers on the committee, told the group. Smith, who came up with the idea of stamps or permits, said some form of control was needed but he didn't believe it could be done through limiting the type of boat or the use of the boats.

What Smith proposed was this: one stamp issued for every acre of surface on Lake Charlevoix, or 17,260 stamps. The allocation of stamps would be divided equitably among riparians, marinas and day users.

Smith said stamps could be allocated according to the type of boat, on the assumption that different boats require varying amounts of space.

SMALL BOATS might require only one stamp, Smith said, emphasizing that the number was only an example. Sailboats could require two and larger powerboats four.

Smith's examples were based on statistics County Planner Larry Sullivan had presented earlier to the committee.

Sullivan said research has revealed how many boats of each type can occupy a given amount of water without problems. In general, he reported, a small fishing boat requires about 10 acres of water, sailboats about 20 acres and powerboats 40 acres.

He said studies by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers show that only 10 percent of the boats docked around a lake are in use at any one time.

Therefore, Lake Charlevoix's 17,260 acres could support 17,260 small fishing boats, or 8,630 sailboats, or 4,215 powerboats – or some combination of them – assuming only 10 percent were in use.

SMITH'S STAMP proposal would apportion the lake according to the type of boat one owned. Property owners on the lake would be given stamps based on their frontage and a certain number of stamps would be reserved for marinas and for public access sites.

A property owner whose frontage allowed him six stamps, Smith theorized, could use them for a powerboat (four stamps) and a sailboat (two stamps) or for six small fishing boats (one stamp

Polish sailors seek shelter from storm in Charlevoix

by TOM DAMMANN

Northern Lake Michigan weather proved too much for a Polish transatlantic sailor who put into Charlevoix last Wednesday for safety and comfort.

Andrew Lipinski, 29, of Lodz, Poland, and three fellow Poles, were on the last leg of their voyage from New York to Chicago aboard their 27-foot sloop, Polonia, when they decided the seas and northwest winds they encountered as they left the Straits of Mackinac were too much for comfort.

"Storms come up much more quickly here than they do on the Atlantic and the distance between waves, which are high and sharp, is much shorter," Lipinski said, grimacing.

He knew this, he said because four years ago he had sailed from the East Coast of the United States to Brighton, England, and that it had taken him two months because of Atlantic storms, but that they hadn't bothered him as much as last week's heavy weather here.

Accompanying Lipinski are: his sister, Ewa, 24, a midwife; Dorata Pietka, 24, a spanish translator; and Romke Biela, a carpenter.

The Polania left here for Chicago, "the largest Polish community outside Poland," according to its skipper, as well as the seat of the Polish American Congress, a sponsor of the voyage.

His purpose is to write a book about the Polish American community, Lipinski said.

From Chicago the four Poles will go down the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico. They plan to winter in Florida and then sail home via Bermuda, the Azores, France, England and West Germany.

Parent's school session planned

The Charlevoix High School will host a "mini-session" program at the school on Monday, Sept. 22 to introduce the parents of the students to their child's daily schedule and teachers, principal David J. Smith, has announced.

The event will be held from 6:30 until 9:30 p.m. with parents meeting in the cafeteria at 6:30 p.m. for coffee.

The mini-sessions begin at 7 p.m. with parents following their child's class schedule. Each class will meet for 15 minutes with five minutes allowed between sessions.

When the sixth period ends at 8:55 p.m., parents will have an opportunity for a brief conference with one teacher of their choice, Smith explained.

Parents are asked to make a note of their child's schedule and bring it to the mini-session.

Later in the school year, on Nov. 6, individual Parent-Teacher conferences will be held. The conferences will be held at the high school from 6:30 until 9:30 p.m. More details will be made available later.

"We are looking forward to having as many parents as possible attend the mini-sessions. We hope you will make every effort to be present," Smith said in issuing the invitation.

Writers to meet

Writers of the North will hold the Fourth Annual Upper Great Lakes Writers' Conference on Oct. 11 at North Central Michigan College's new conference center.

The 1986 conference, funded by grants from the Michigan Foundation for the Humanities and the Michigan Council of the Arts, boasts a roster of Michigan writers, including Gloria Whelan, author of "The Pathless Woods," "A Clearing in the Forest," as well as other stories and young adult novels. Also speaking are Grand Rapids journalist Mim Mencarelli, songwriter Candace Anderson, and poet and teacher at Interlochen Arts Academy, Michael Delp, author of a chapbook titled "Languages." Delp will also award three prizes in a poetry contest, held in conjunction with the conference.

Candace Anderson will perform her "Sampler of Michigan Women," an evening of history and song at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 11. The evening program is free of charge. The public is invited.

Registration forms for the Writers' Conference are available at the Petoskey Public Library, Volume I bookstore, and North Central Michigan College, or by calling 347-7878.

Fisherman's body found

The body of the third commercial fisherman lost in the Aug. 20 sinking of the fishing tug, Razel Brothers, out of Naubinway, has been positively identified as that of Edward Perkins of Naubinway following an autopsy, Sheriff George T. Lasater has announced.

Following the identification of the body a third charge of negligent homicide will be made against Seman Franko, the captain of the Yugoslavian ship, Jablancia, Lasater said.

The skipper of the vessel was served with two warrants charging him with the deaths of Russell King, co-owner of the tug with Perkins, and Kurt Peterson, an employee, of Manistique. The three men died when the 620-foot freighter struck or swamped their tug approximately seven miles northwest of Whiskey Island in the Beaver Island group.

The body of Peterson was recovered from the water by the crew of the freighter at the time of the accident and flown to a Manistique hospital where he was pronounced dead. The body of King was recovered by divers from the sunken tug on Aug. 26. The body of Perkins had washed ashore near Manistique where it was found Sept. 4.

The Yugoslavian skipper is scheduled to appear in 90th District Court at 10 a.m. Sept. 30.

The first two warrants were served by Sheriff Lasater when the Jablanica, loaded with grain onloaded at Duluth, passed through the Soo Locks on Sept. 7. Franko posted a $4,000 bond at the time.

School Board levys taxes, approves bids for new field

by FRAN MARTIN

The December school millage levy and the state aid incentive funds were approved by the Charlevoix Board of Education at its regular meeting Monday night.

Because the units of government within Charlevoix County (Charlevoix, Eveline, Hayes, Marion and Norwood townships and the City of Charlevoix) collect summer taxes, only 14.24 mills will be levied in these units in December. Those parcels in the Banks Township of Antrim County will levy 27.23 mills.

The levy will include 50 percent of 9.1 mills allocated or 4.55 mills; 15.25 voted or 7.625; Public Library voted .50 or .25; 1965 voted, .61 or .305; 1979 voted, .25 or .124 plus 1.25 voted in June for the total of 14.24 mills.

The second resolution applied for the $29 per public state aid incentive program. They fourth Friday official student census will determine if the district is eligible for the funds. Because the Charlevoix district has been "out of formula," the district has never received these funds.

In other action, the board accepted a bid of $6,555 from Traverse Outdoors Maintenance Co. for a sprinkler system for Kipke Field. The bid was the lowest of six received. The highest was $9,665.

The low bid of $4,786 from Site Planning and Development of Charlevoix, was accepted for repairs and improvements of the playing field at Kipke Field. The second bid was for $9,700.

In other action, the board:

-Established the position of assistant cross country coach and named Ken Plude of the faculty to fill it.

-Discussed tentative goals for the year.

-Read a proposed policy relating to communicable diseases. The policy will be aired further before being adopted at a later meeting.

-Scheduled the next meeting for Oct. 6.

The board then adjourned to executive session to discuss labor negotiations.

Boat quotas proposed each) or for three sailboats (two stamps each).

The choice would be his.

Once the number allocated for public access sites was used up, no more stamps would be issued for the day.

Similarly, marinas would get an allocation and once it was exhausted no more boats in marinas could be licensed.

Stamps could be bought and sold freely or even leased on a permanent basis, Smith said. He also noted that stamps could be donated to conservation organizations by persons not wanting to overcrowd the lake.

Enforcement of stamp use would require a harbormaster with broad authority.

NOT EVERYONE on the committee was convinced the group should deal with limiting usage. "The committee should recommend something that is halfway feasible. This is beyond the scope of my thinking," William Grimm of Boyne City told the group.

Dave Knight, who has been hired by the committee to draft the report, was equally skeptical. "It is a waste of time to try and control the number of boats," he said. Knight said Lake Charlevoix was not like other inland lakes in that it was a navigatable waterway with access from Lake Michigan.

He suggested boat numbers be treated like other environmental indicators: if the numbers get too high, go after the source of the problem. He told the committee it should pursue further research on boat use before setting any absolute numbers.

John Hall, chairman of the committee, endorsed the stamp concept.

"I don't think we are (currently) anywhere near capacity. We could allow four times what is on the lake now," he added.

He urged the controls be put in place now, before a problem emerges.

Plate night arrives at nursery school

Area children can design their own plates during the Charlevoix Co-op Nursery School's third annual Plate Night Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 24-25, at the elementary school.

Children will be given a special type of paper and markers to use in designing the plate patterns at a cost of $3.50. The designs will then be sent to the factory to be printed ooto sturdy, white plastic, dishwasher-proof plates.

"They make great Christmas gifts," said Betsy Collier, project chairman.

Childreo can design plates from 4-5:30 p.m. and 6-7:30 p.m. Sept. 24-25 in the nursery school room at the elmentary school. Adult helpers will be on hand to assist with the designs.

The project benefits the co-op nursery and funds will be used to purchase equipment.

For more information contact Collier at 547-9412.

Memorial service is planned

A memorial service for Mrs. Hilda Alexander of Ironton will be held at the Ironton Congregational Church at 11 a.m. Sunday. The Rev. Harold E. Kruse, Jr., will officiated.

Mrs. Alexander, 87, the former Hilda Carlisle, died March 18.

Surviving are her husband, Ross of Ironton; a son, Samuel R. of Philadelphia, Pa.; one daughter, Mrs. Richard (Jane A.) Friend of Petoskey; four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Charlevoix Yesterday

This picture of Charlevoix Harbor was taken from the Belvedere Avenue hill. It appeared on a postcard mailed from Charlevoix on October 19, 1915. The Courier is again in need of old pictures for "Charlevoix Yesteryear". We promise good care and prompt return.

Gazebo site approved by council

COUNCILMAN RAY WOOD did not agree. He said the best location for the rest rooms would be off Clinton Street, behind Central Drugs.

He said this could be accomplished once the Erber Building was demolished for parking.

Also voicing objection to the plan was Councilman Probert. "I can't believe the amount of cost and maintenance we are going to have," he commented.

Probert also said he didn't think a viewing stand was compatible with the rest rooms which would be located beneath it because of the exhaust required from the toilets. He was also concerned with the effect of the structure on the view.

"I definitely do not believe it should be anywhere where it would block the (view of the) lake," Probert added.

IN OTHER ACTION council voted to:

–Join the Straits Area Narcotics Enforcement (SANE) program as proposed by County Prosecutor Kraag Lieberman. The city's contribution to this seven-county, six-man drug enforcement team supervised by the Michigan State Police, would be $.50 per person or $1,644.50. This will go toward the county's $15,000 annual fee for participation in the program. Timms, while supporting the program, said he favored participation by the townships as well.

–Approved a mutual aid pact among members of the Michigan Public Power Agency. The pact sets rates and conditions under which members provide manpower and machinery for emergency assistance to another member.

–Passed a set of restrictions on the use of the Charlevoix Industrial Park. The restrictions prohibit certain noisy, dirty or toxic industries and set forth limitations on the use of the property by other industries. They also are designed to prohibit speculation on property in the park.

–Voted for a new contract with City Attorney Jeffery VanTreese identical to last year with the exception of the monthly retainer being reduced from $250 a month to $200 a month, because of shorter meeting times. The hourly rate of $40 per hour stayed the same.

–Heard from Ed Whitley, superintendent of electricity and water, that the new water treatment plant's Lake Michigan water supply will mean much colder water than the current well water. He said the temperature of the new water supply would be in the low 30s compared to the well water which was in the mid 40s. Whitley said this could mean freezing problems for people who go away for the winter or who turn their heat down when out of town for several weeks. He advised anyone anticipating leaving for an extended period this winter contact the city about having the water turned off at the curb.

–Received formal title to the new city fire engine from the Charlevoix Volunteer firemen.

The city, in turn, presented each volunteer fireman with a certificate of appreciation.

Cub Scout Registration set

There will be a registration for new Cub Scouts at the Charlevoix Elementary school gymnasium on Thursday, Sept. 18 at 7 p.m. Parents should register their children at this time, including boys in the second through fourth grades who would like to be in Cub Scouts and fifth-graders who can enter Weblos.

All Cub Scout leaders, or anyone who would like to become a leader, should plan to be at the school at 6:30 p.m.

THE HAPPY APPLE SAYS — "Learn to Earn"

Some of the adult education classes in Charlevoix will be offered this year in a new format.

Because so many people returning to school have different needs both in skills and courses required for graduation Straits Area Community Education is going to provide some classes in an "adult learning center" environment.

This incorporates the old one-room school house atmosphere where all students study together on some materials but much of their course work is individualized under the guidance of a skilled teacher.

Some students may need help with basic reading or math skills while others may need only a government or history class to graduate. In the "adult learning center" setting each student can work on the courses and materials appropriate for them with the help of a teacher.

The program also allows students to progress at their own speed, enabling some to earn their credit in a class even before the semester is over if they are proficient enough in the subject matter.

Some of the courses offered are listed below; other subjects are available upon request.

Monday	Math	9-12:30
Tuesday	English	9-12:30
Wednesday	Government	9-12:30
Thursday	History	9-12:30
Friday	Psychology	9-12:30

Senior Citizens Classes

Exercise	Tuesday & Thursday	11:00 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
Crafts	Wednesday	1:00-4:30 p.m.
Health	Thursday	1:00-4:30 p.m.

Classes are held at the Senior Center, VFW Hall, U.S. 31, Charlevoix. All age groups are welcome.

DIARY OF A DISASTER

A writer details the terror of traveling in Europe after Chernobyl

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

Our itinerary was set in January. We would retrace the reporting route Tom followed through eastern Europe just before the beginning of World War II.

We planned to camp through the Black Sea coast of Bulgaria and Romania, follow the Danube to Bucharest (Romania), Belgrade (Yugoslavia) and Budapest (Hungary), and continue north to Prague (Czechoslovakia), Warsaw and finally Gdansk (Poland). We would approach each capital city via the countryside, trying to meet people at all levels, especially young people. We wanted to compare current opinions and attitudes with those of almost 50 years ago.

And we wanted F.L. (age 14) and Nancy (10) to see and experience ancient and modern history, much through their father's eyes.

We began in Geneva, in March and April, where for six weeks Tom prepared background and gathered news at the United Nations. The children finished their school year by correspondence and I gathered material for travel stories. Our departure date for the East Bloc, via Vienna, was May 1.

We drove toward Bled through hardwoods, the rising Alps, the snow on distant peaks. It began raining. We cried.

MAY 1, Geneva: We've been worried about terrorism and have kept a close eye on the children. Now comes the Soviet meltdown at Chernobyl. The seriousness not clear. All Polish children being fed iodine to counteract radiation in thyroid. No milk should be drunk. No green leafy vegetables.

The Common Market has banned all foods from eastern Europe.

MAY 2, Oberammagau, West Germany: Tom is sure we will not take the children into Poland because of the radiation. Now there has been a wind shift. Radiation levels said to be dangerous here in Bavaria. We have been told not to sit on the ground, not to be on sand, not to drink milk, not to eat veggies (especially lettuce), and not be in the rain.

Ida Venotti (wife of wood-carver Pietro Venotti) won't hang her laundry outside, won't let the kids swim in the outdoor swimming pool.

We hear the clouds of radioactivity are over Italy, Austria.

We listened to hours of German news broadcasts only to be confused. Tom has called the World Heath Organization (WHO) in Geneva.

This afternoon Ida, Pietro, Tom and I walked the footpaths in the foothills of the Alps surrounding Oberammaggau. The Venotti children and ours went to the local indoor pool.

The fields, usually full of cattle and sheep, all empty...only butterflies and the beautiful delicate first bloomings of spring. The farmyards are devoid of chickens. All livestock is indoors for protection, to feed them last year's fodder.

MAY 3, Oberramaggau: We have decided for now to skip Vienna. It's raining there. The radiation levels are recordable. We will head south through Italy to Yugoslavia. What we do about Eastern Europe will depend on lingering radiation later in June. Will it be safely diminished, given a month and changing weather patterns?

Went to Garmish for a Greek dinner. Waitress couldn't understand why Ida wanted to know if the lettuce had been well washed.

MAY 5, enroute to Yugoslavia: Tension. We argued. Tom called WHO monitoring headquarters in Denmark. They are meeting tomorrow but the spokesman was encouraging, said Yugoslavia okay. He was leaving on a fishing trip to Yugoslavia.

MAY 8, Umago, Yugoslavia: Much talk after dinner in hotel about radiation. Young Yugoslavian tour guide standing on steps of hotel moved under the porch as the rain began. I wouldn't let the kids help unpack the car. Kept thinking of Joan Baez – "What Have They Done to the Rain?"

Fell asleep listening to BBC reports. Not clear how many people have died already. Russians say only two. Woke up to hear Common Market banned Yugoslav vegetables. Russian blew it. Yugoslavs very angry.

Has the meltdown stopped yet? Will it get into the Dnieper River and to the Black Sea? Families are being evacuated from Kiev region.

Tom called old friend Vlado Dedijer, Yugoslav historian, practicing cynic. Vlado reassured us about coast so we headed toward Pula, tip of Istrian Peninsula to camp, before visiting Brioni, Tito's island where non-aligned movement began, where OPEC will meet in July.

MAY 9, Pula: Radiation is on everyone's mind. Pushing vitamin pills to make up for no veggies. BBC reports Italians are demonstrating because Common Market banned all Italian foods. There are no veggies for sale. The countryside is in full bloom.

It's been raining. We are making kids stay inside tents.

MAY 10, Pula: The downtown market is full of fresh farm vegetables, fruits and meat.

MAY 13, Rijeka: A noisy, dirty port city. The Harvard travel book is right, pass through quickly.

The road to Rijeka up over small mountain in center of Istrian Peninsula. Untamed lush greenness, wildflowers, between small towns. Suddenly red tile roofs, irregular stone walls, sometimes plastered, towns frequently centered around a church, garden plots. Houses surrounded with cultivated flowers.

Tom called U.S. Embassy: Advice don't walk in the woods, but situation getting better. We're depressed. May eliminate Bled, the mountain lake in the woods.

MAY 14, Ljubljana: Charming broad streets, old city, old churches, bells ringing, new buildings drab and socialist functional.

Found students selling underground magazine. Politically, because this is Slovenia, close to Europe, students more open, have been demonstrating against nukes. Word is Yugoslavia is canceling nuclear power plant plans.

MAY 15: Bled had been part of the dream, Tom had spent two weeks there in August, 1939, putting writing together. Went for a quick lunch, a glimpse of the beautiful lake, the Alps rising around it.

The invisible is frightening, the warnings to stay out of the woods, don't walk on the grass, don't eat this or that. We drove towards Bled through hardwoods, the rising Alps, the snow on distant peaks. It began raining. We cried.

Children and their parents are working the fields by the road. What of them? Thirty years from now. Their DNR? We can come and go. They can't we can change our plans, they have to live here.

We will go to Zagreb, then Sarajevo and back to the coast. We will not take the kids to Belgrade now, still some radiation concerns there. Tom will fly to Belgrade for interviews.

MAY 16, Zagreb: American Counsul General says he has a young child who has not been allowed out of the house for two weeks. Kids and I are slasticarna – Yugoslav answer to gelato – best ice cream. Now having second thoughts.

MAY 17, Sarajevo: Wandered through old Turkish quarter – mosques and churches, minarets and steeples. Wonderful ancient culture in midst of disappointingly industrialized modern city. Began to rain, F.L. and I ran. Got drenched. Made kids shower, change clothes.

Nancy tired, headache, sick. Hosts made fresh mint tea. Was it safe?

MAY 18, outside Dubrovnik: Yugoslavia is lifting bans on certain foods.

Back home in Charlevoix after several months in Eastern Europe, Tom and Sara Gay Dammann enjoy the local surroundings with their children, F.L. and Nancy.

The Yugoslavs say the Russians are crazy, stupid, but talk too of American and French nuclear testing. Yugoslavs are outspoken in their criticism of both East and West. They are proud of their nonalignment.

The silent, unseen stalker.... Yugoslavia is so beautiful, rugged, unspoiled, yet this potential killer is stalking all of eastern Europe. Everyone from embassy officials to WHO people assure us the levels were never really bad here...unlike Poland... and now the danger is past, they say.

We had our first lettuce, attacked salad like starving, vitamin deprived, depraved maniacs. Washed each piece twenty times. Said a prayer over the lettuce.

The children and their parents are working the fields by the road. What of them thirty years from now? Their DNA? We can come and go. They can't. We can change our plans, they have to live here.

MAY 25, Dubrovnik: Tensions. We've driven from here to Ulcinj near Albanian border. Dubrovnik, Kotar, Sveti Stefan, peeling back layers of history, from now through Ottomans, Byzantines, Venetians, Romans, Greeks. Talking politics. Staying with families. Chernobyl is the not topic.

But the sea in the morning is wonderful. Wander off with a cup of coffee to watch the islands across the water, bleached white rocks, thick foliage rising, trees, gulls.

There's no wind, only riffles on the water. The mainland is a mirror reflection of the islands, the hills rising steeply from the coast. It will be hard to leave Yugoslavia tomorrow.

MAY 28, Corfu, Greece: Corfu, a necessary break from politics and radiation, but even this island is not entirely radiation free. There remains a ban on all leafy greens, including lettuce! Had been looking forward to fresh dolmades (stuffed vine leaves) – no way, ban on grape leaves. Ban on fresh lamb.

The colors of Corfu: deep rich greens, brilliant wildflowers, warm yet shady olive groves, waist high ferns, swallows nesting, water so blue and clear, old ladies in black trudging bowlegged or sitting sidesaddle on scruffy donkeys, the ladies' little feet beating a steady rhythm on the donkey's sides.

JUNE 11, Athens: This has been a difficult week of making decisions. We continued to read worrisome reports of lingering radiation and our discussions with Greek friends added to our concerns.

Spent hours trying to learn answers from the U.S. embassy, they are not much better off than anyone... no one knows. The short-term problems with iodine are pretty well passed, although the bans will continue on dairy products, leafy greens and fruits.

Now the issue is the ceasium in the food chain.

We try to agree on a new itinerary.

American fears of terrorism and now Chernobyl, have left Athens with few American tourists. Hotels are empty. Shop and restaurant owners beg you to bargain.

After hours of agonizing we called Jerry Drake (Dr. Gerald) in Petoskey, Michigan. Jerry has studied radiation (Hiroshima, nuclear power). We agreed we would trust his opinion. "Don't take

Score one for Hal

BY DOUG TRUAX

Hal Hill finally got his chance Monday.

And he made the most of it.

The Charlevoix mayor was called on to break a City Council deadlock over the location of new rest rooms and a viewing gazebo. The deadlock has lasted for over three weeks and was going nowhere fast.

Hill, I believe, was less than enthusiastic about the chore. I think he would have preferred that the council resolve the issue. But that was not to be.

So he did the right thing. He voted to approve the gazebo for the park just north of Burnsides.

MY OFFICE has a beautiful view over the Round Lake harbor and it is a pleasure to stare out over the lake and watch the gulls and boats at play. The downside of the view is that it also looks on the Chamber of Commerce building. In particular, I have a fine view of the rest rooms.

I can therefore attest with some authority that they are in frequent use in the summer. On Venetian weekends and other busy times it is a madhouse.

The need for rest rooms in the downtown area is unassailable. There is a particular need for them at the north end of town.

The Downtown Development Authority, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, the Planning Commission and others have wrestled with this issue and the DDA finally arrived at an innovative idea: put the rest rooms underneath a viewing platform and solve two problems. The platform or gazebo or belvedere, call it what you will, would make good use of the north end of Bridge Street which is otherwise not intensively used. It would give strollers a convenient place to take in the sights.

In the meantime, the city could incorporate the phone booths which block the view into the general design.

The major objection to this plan by some members of council is that the parks should be left alone. They provide a unique open area which gives us all a remarkably uninterrupted view of Round Lake and the channel.

In theory, they are right. And I do not believe council or the DDA should start mucking up the works in other parts of the park.

But the simple fact is that the area at the north end of Bridge Street is a different creature than East Park. No one lolls about here. There are no large open areas and no moored boats other than the Mesquite and a few fishing tugs.

The old sewage digesting plant is an out and out eyesore which should be removed.

But a gazebo would spruce things up a little, provide for the convenience of rest rooms and give the area an interesting focal point.

Mayor Hill knows how to make his votes count.

'Round Town

Bus driving family

BY EDITH GILBERT

PETITE PEGGY THORPE drives a 62-passenger school bus 135 miles a day. She's been doing this for almost 17 years in all kinds of weather.

The first week of school, after one of her first-graders got off the bus, Peggy turned wistfully to a fourth-grader and said, "I used to take his daddy to school."

"Are you THAT old?" answered the fourth-grader. "You're almost old enough to retire!"

Both Peggy, and her husband Albert, are well into driving the second generation of children on their daily rounds to and from school, but neither one of them is thinking of retirement for awhile. They both enjoy driving the school bus much too much!

WE ALL LIKE to hear stories about local boy making good. Jeff Porter tells this one about his fraternity brother, Scott Supernaw, who was in town last week enjoying dinner at the Gray Gables.

Scott is Sam Supernaw's brother, in case you were wondering. Scott went west to make his fortune. He started out working for TWA, which was bought by General Mills. Then General Mills sold one of its travel companies and Scott bought it, so now he is the President of Olson Travelworld, Ltd., which is one of the two biggest tour companies in the United States.

Guess the reason I was so interested in Jeff's story is because I am leaving next week for China with the Olson Tour, and I'll be watching for Scott next year on his annual Charlevoix visit to tell him how it all went. In the meantime, we'll beg Breeze to practice playing "It's a long way to Beaver Island" for Scott.

For people interested in more tour information, including the Olson Tours, your local contact is Andrew Kan Travel Agency in Petoskey.

PEOPLE WHO WRITE BOOKS don't get nearly the feedback or satisfaction as the people who write a column for their local paper. That's why I was so pleased the other day when one of my friends from Chicago asked for another copy of "All About Parties." Her original copy was worn to shreds and she decided she wasn't going to carry it back and forth anymore. She now will have one copy in Charlevoix and one in Chicago.

"On second thought," she continued, "I think I'll order six copies and give some for Christmas presents."

Then the phone rang, and a voice from Harbor Springs said, "I can't get any of your "Complete Wedding Planner" in the bookstores, they're all sold out and I'm leaving for home tomorrow. Can you get me four copies?".

Of course, I'm delighted to fill these orders! I only wish I could supply all those people who ask for copies of "Summer Resort Life, Tango Teas and All." That book, published in 1976 for the Bicentennial celebration, is out of print. The original cost was $4.95, but today people are willing to pay $10 for a copy in good condition. Would that all our investments do as well, right?

The changing church

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

A new friend, who promises to become a good friend and eventually an old friend, believes that "change is inevitable."

She expressed the opinion in reference to the many changes that have taken place in old, established churches in recent years: changes in the order of worship, changes in prayer books, changes in church music, changes in the decorum of church-goers, changes in such little things as genuflecting before entering a pew.

Perhaps (and that is a perhaps loaded with regret) she is right. But I do not believe that change should be considered inevitable, particularly in regard to such a bed-rock institution as the Christian church. And I certainly do not believe it should be encouraged.

In an era when so many other things change so rapidly, I believe the long-suffering human race needs an anchor. And for many of us that anchor has been the church, at least before the mania for change set so many of us adrift.

Yet church hierarchies around the world can't seem to get their fill of change. The Methodist Church recently considered seriously whether it should strike "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Onward Christian Soldiers" from the Methodist hymnal on grounds they are too militant for peace-loving church-goers. Fortunately, sanity ruled and the two hymns are back in good standing.

Change also has swept through the Roman Catholic Church, and I cannot see that it has improved the church one iota.

There was a time not many years ago when Catholics were constrained not to eat meat on Fridays, at least not without special dispensation. Whether the law was good or bad is beside the point. What the law did was give Catholics an opportunity to express their faith publicly and powerfully. As a non-Catholic, I was always impressed by the willpower of my Catholic friends who could turn down a T-bone steak for a grilled cheese sandwich — or suffer through a pizza without pepperoni — just because it was Friday.

About the same time the Catholic Church abolished the Latin mass and declared street clothes were acceptable garb for women in holy orders. I feel sorry for young Catholics today who have never experienced the majesty — and the spine-tingling mystery — of the Latin mass. I also sympathize with sisters who lost a great deal of their charisma and authority when they exchanged their drab habits for pastel prints and penny loafers.

Of course, it is impossible to assess the impact of such changes; but I believe they have robbed the Catholic Church of much of its former grandeur.

Most of all, I commiserate with older people of all faiths who have relied on the traditional church to see them through to the grave, only to have the church change so radically that they no longer feel at home. This has happened in a great many Episcopal churches, leaving life-long worshippers without a faith to lean on — just when they need it most.

If change in the church is inevitable, as my friend claims, I would like to see it come so slowly that that the differences would scarcely be discernible from one generation to the next. It should be no less difficult to change long established church practices than it is to amend the U.S. Constitution or alter the course of the planets.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Leo Durocher was one of baseball's most colorful players and managers. He tells a story of a close call from his playing days. His team was the visiting team. He was on third running for home. He and the ball both got to the plate about the same time.

The umpire thrust his thumb up in the air as if to call him out but hollered, "safe!" The crowd couldn't hear what the ump called. They only saw that up raised thumb and roared approval.

Leo couldn't believe what has happening. "Hey ump! Which is it? You hollered safe but your sign is out!" "Leo," the ump began, "you know you're safe. I know you're safe. Even the catcher knows you're safe. But to the 30,000 people in the stands, you're out! Now get back in the dugout before I throw you out." Leo left muttering, "It isn't fair!" along with a few other things.

Have you ever felt that way before? It isn't fair, God! It's amazing what we find to protest over. David says we should praise God that we are fearfully and wonderfully made. Instead of blaming God for what we don't have or what we think we ought to have, we should be praising him for what we've got.

The next time you're tempted to holler "It isn't fair, God!", ask yourself three quick questions. Have I been honest in my dealings with God? Your dealings should include regular prayer and bible study, faithful attendance in God's house, a genuine concern for others and more. Am I sincere about my Faith? Christianity is not a part of your wardrobe to take off and put away at your convenience. God's power is there to encourage and work through you daily. Am I happy to be God's child? Remember when you were a child, the comfort that came from your mothers' love any time you were hurt? That comfort does not have to disappear just because we're adults.

It isn't fair? Life may hurt sometime but God is there to help us through. He is more than fair.

Letters to the editor:

Lake planners should scrap boat quota system

Dear Editor:

ATTENTION: All boat owners, future boat owners, and other boat enthusiasts in the Charlevoix County area. An old political saying goes: No person's property is safe as long as the legislature is in session. After reading the allocation system proposed by the Lake Charlevoix planners, I believe the same thing could be said about boat owners rights.

The thought that they would propose a quota system for the number of boats using the lake and have developed numbers to go along with the system should strike fear in the heart of all boat owners.

If you own property on the lake, do you own enough frontage to qualify to keep the kind of boat you have? If you keep your boat in a marina, will only the biggest boats qualify for the marina's limited quota of boat stamps?

Finally, think about the large number of boat owners who keep their boats on a trailer. If we reach the maximum limit of boats, who loses access to the lake - the local people or tourists bringing much needed money to the local economy? Remember, under the quota proposal someday someone loses their right to use Lake Charlevoix.

If you have any thoughts or fears of this proposed plan, contact a member of the planning committee or attend the next meeting of the Lake Charlevoix Management Planning Advisory Committee Tuesday, September 23 at 6 p.m. in the Charlevoix County Building Annex.

Personally I believe the committee should scrap any thoughts of a quota system for boats before many people develop very negative feelings towards the committee and any future, beneficial work they may do.

Charlevoix dunes cannot be replaced

The following letter was received recently by Courier columnist Edith Gilbert.

Dear Edith:

I enjoy reading 'Round Town when my Courier is delivered. I am delighted you wrote about the wonderful Mt. McSauba Nature Trail. You are right, the local people don't make themselves familiar with, or appreciate the beautiful and very special things they have at their backdoor.

The dunes area of Charlevoix is very unique and very precious – the Lake Michigan dune shoreline is one of the reasons Charlevoix is named "Beautiful." There seems to be many people in Charlevoix willing to sacrifice all this for dollars. Once destroyed, many can never replace it.

How wonderful it would be if the North Point could eventually be preserved and added as an extention to the Mt. McSauba nature area. Any support you can give the new organization, DUNE, would be grand.

My husband, Jim, and I have recently returned from Wyoming where we enjoyed time at Granite Ranch owned by Safari International. We were part of an educational group representing many of the states. I wore my Charlevoix sweatshirt and also passed out Petoskey stones collected in Charlevoix. The warmth of the sweatshirt was just what was needed in the cool evenings. (In the morning there was always frost to scrape off the windshields of the automobiles! Things to come!!)

Further details on new petunia truck

Dear Editor:

I would like to add a little more information to last week's article about the new petunia water truck. The truck has been ordered, and is a 1987 Ford F 700, pure white in color, and has power steering, power brakes and a four-speed Allison automatic transmission.

Without the generosity of Mr. Pat McKeown selling the truck at cost, plus the generous donation of $1,000 it wouldn't have happened.

We still have details to take care of. We need to find someone to fund the 2,000 gallon water tank, which will be built to our needs by David Arnold at a very reasonable cost. This must be custom built to fit the truck and give us the needed water capacity.

I would like to thank the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful Board of Directors, and everyone who had a part in making this new truck a reality.

Family

Weddings

Lugibihl - Harwell

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Harwell

Brenda Kay Lugibihl and Gregory Steven Harwell were united in marriage on Saturday afternoon, August 16, at the Bible Baptist Church of Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of the Reverend and Mrs. Jim E. Lugibihl of Charlevoix, and her bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Harwell of Mary Esther, Fiorida.

The bride's father officiated at the marriage rites and her uncle, Wilbur Fosmore, escorted her down the aisle. Both her father and mother gave her in marriage.

For the ceremony, the bride chose a white gown fashioned with scooped neckline flounced and adorned with simulated pearls, puffed sleeves with ruffles, and a Basque waistline.

The chapel-length train and fingertip-length veil were trimmed with Chantilly-type lace to match the gown.

Cheryl Muma, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor, and Mary French, Lois Lamp, and April Meadows were bridesmaids. They wore flounced gowns of rose suede fashioned with yokes of point d'esprit lace. The couple's daughter, Alicia, served as flower girl, also wearing rose suede, and Brian French was ringbearer.

Bill Dryer served as best man, and the bridegroom's father, Jim Lamp; and brother-in-law of the bride Larry Lenhert were groomsmen. Mark Hooker and Scott Lamp were ushers.

Phyllis Lenhart and Nancy Stoel, both sisters of the bride, provided vocal music for the ceremony, and Mrs. James Feidler offered traditional wedding music.

The bride's parents hosted a reception in the Church Hall following the wedding ceremony. They were assisted with the cake by the bride's aunt and cousin, Bernice and Marylou Allerding, and at the gift table by Cheryl Muma. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at the Fireside Inn of Charlevoix.

Following a short wedding trip, the newlyweds are at home in Portsmouth, Virginia, where the bridegroom is stationed with the United States Coast Guard.

Auxiliary receives plaque

The Ladies Auxlliary of Charlevoix Post No. 1153, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has been presented with a bronze plaque in recognition of its continued support of the organizations' National Children's Home located at Eaton Rapids. The National Home is observing its 60th anniversary.

The announcement was made at the recent meeting of the auxiliary held at the post home.

At the same meeting it was announced that the annual fall Powwow would be held at Mackinac Island Sept. 26-28.

Plans were also made for the Sept. 18 social meeting, a cook-out to be held at the Petoskey Avenue home of Clara Parsel. Members and friends are asked to bring their own meat for barbecueing, a dish to pass and their own table service. The event is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

The annual membership drive is now underway and dues are payable until Nov. 1, Beverly Plum, membership chairman announced. Members are asked to renew their dues by that date to become eligible for a prize for the Auxiliary. Membership is open to all eligible residents of the community. Applications are available from any member. The auxiliary is active in assisting all veterans and their families in time of need, health and other problems.

In other action, Mrs. Parsel was welcomed as a new member and Bernice Elzinga as one who has renewed her membership.

Marge Plum was presented with the "Come and Get Me" prize.

Betty White served refreshments.

The next business meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 2, at the post home. All members are asked to attend.

Brian Phillips of Charlevoix Boy Scout Troop 11 is pinned by his mother, Gale Phillips, after being elevated to the rank of Eagle Scout during a recent Scout of Honor as his father, David, looks on. In the background are three members of the Order of the Arrow, Todd Callaway, Eric Jung and Ken Mainland, all of Petoskey.

Brian Phillips given Eagle rank

Brian Phillips, 16, was elevated to the rank of Eagle Scout at a Court of Honor held recently at the historic Greensky Hill United Methodist Church.

He became the seventh member of Charlevoix's Troop 11 to earn the highest rank in Scouting his Scoutmaster, Louis Edwards, said.

The son of David and Gale Phillips, Brian joined the Scouts as Cub Scout in September 1977 and through the years, was awarded the Arrow of Light in May 1980; joined Troop 11 as a Boy Scout in September 1980; earned the rank of Scout in Oct. 1980; Tenderfoot in Jan. 1982; Second Class, July 1982; First Class, Feb. 1983; Star, Jan. 1984; Life, Sept. 1984 and Eagle Scout, May 1986.

Since 1981, he has served as assistant patrol leader, patrol leader, as a member of the leadership corps and as an instructor. He was elected to the Order of the Arrow in April 1984. He attended Camp Greilick, operated by the Scenic Trails Council, each summer from 1981 through 1984. He earned 21 merit badges to become an Eagle Scout.

As his community project, he repaired and painted the building at the Girl Scout camp off the Marion Center Road and constructed equipment boxes for use at the site.

Participating in the ceremony were Dr. Beverly Zelt of Petoskey, Northern District committee chairperson; Carol Smith of Harbor Springs, Scenic Trails Council Advancement chairperson; Scoutmaster Edwards; his father and his mother, who pinned the Eagle Scout pin to his uniform. Col. Robert Rajewski, USAF, (Ret), Scouting coordinator, was master of ceremonies. The Rev. David Yingling, pastor of Greensky Church, gave the opening and closing prayers and Jeannie Lignell provided music.

Members of the Order of the Arrow, Todd Calaway, Eric Jung and Ken Mainland of Petoskey, in costum, also participated in the ceremony.

Immediately following the impressive ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips hosted a buffet lunch.

Citizenship is theme of VFW essay contest

The annual Voice of Democracy essay contest open to all high school juniors and seniors will again be sponsored by the Charlevoix Post No. 1153 and its Auxiliary.

Theme of the 1986 essay contest is "Challenge of American Citizenship," Arlene Staley, Auxiliary president, said. "With attention focused on citizenship during 1986 when the nation celebrated the anniversary of the Statue of Liberty and attention given immigrants to the United States, it is hoped that eligible students will rise to the challenge this contest is offering in the way of monetary prizes and scholarships," Staley added.

Essays written on this topic will be judged locally with a top prize of a $100 savings bond and in lesser amounts being offered for second and third place winners. The winning essay will be entered in the district contest and, if selected as a winner at this level, to the state contest. The national contest offers a scholarship.

Information relating to the contest may be obtained by calling Staley or Mrs. Clarence Goldstick.

Rayders fall to fired up Red Devils, 14-0

The Rayders knocked, but the door would not open.

They huffed and puffed, but the house would not blow down.

And in the end, the East Jordan Red Devils stood firm behind a stalwart defense and came away with a 14-0 shutout of the Charlevoix team.

It was the first win for the Red Devils since 1963, although the two teams did not play between 1967 and 1983.

East Jordan wasted no time in taking charge with a 74-yard scoring drive on their initial possession.

The ball-control drive, which consumed nine plays and 5:38 on the clock, was capped by a 9-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Greg Kitson to 6-foot-5 end Jim Raymond, catching the Rayders by surprise on a second-and-inches play.

Kitson hit Raymond for the two-point conversion and the Devils took an 8-0 lead.

CHARLEVOIX MOUNTED several scoring attempts in the first half, but they all wer shut down by mistakes or the East Jordan defense. "Defense won the game for us," East Jordan coach Ted Jeffery said afterward. Jeffery, a member of the last Red Devil team to beat Charlevoix, said his squad was well prepared for the contest. "There's a lot of desire there, and we just tried to get 'em to hold that desire tonight. That's our main goal, to play under control as much as possible."

Charlevoix threatened on its first series when, on third-and-10 from its 47, quarterback Jim Gibbs, playing for injured Dan Drury, hit Scott DeYoung on a 30-yard pass. But the Devils asserted themselves and stopped Charlevoix on the East Jordan 20.

In the second quarter, a 33-yard pass from Gibbs to Paul Anderson set up another scoring opportunity for Charlevoix. With third-and-18 at the East Jordan 18, the Devils sacked the quarterback two straight times for losses of 12 and 16 yards.

Charlevoix mounted yet another drive following a recovered fumble at their own 12 just before the half. Running back Mike Thompson carried into the opponent's terntory with a 9-yard gain. Then Gibbs hit DeYoung on a pass that took the Rayders to the East Jordan 7. The play was called back, however, on a holding call and the Rayders were intercepted on a desperation pass at the end of the half.

THE RAYDERS were back knocking on the door in the second half after Thompson returned the kickoff to the East Jordan 36. On a fourth-and-three at the 29, Gibbs connected with DeYoung for a 10-yard gain.

But on third-and-inches at the 9, the Devils stripped the football and recovered at the 10.

Charlevoix held the Devils and forced a punt, but the ball bounced off a Rayder's hands and East Jordan's Ron Cook pounced on it at the East Jordan 34.

The Rayders got the ball back quickly, however, on an East Jordan fumble at the opponent's 30.

Gibbs hit Steve Hopkins on a 26-yard pass that brought Charlevoix to the East Jordan 4. But the Rayders were stopped dead as Gibbs overthrew receivers in the end zone on third and fourth downs.

EAST JORDAN broke things open in the third quarter when fullback Darren Graham raced down the sideline for a 79-yard gain to the Charlevoix 16. Two plays later, Kitson found Raymound in the right corner of the end zone for a 13-yard touchdown pass.

The Rayders got several more chances but failed to capitalize on any of them. An interception ended one drive and after reaching the East Jordan 22 on another, Graham sacked the Rayder quarterback for a loss to the 30-yard line.

Charlevoix's final threat came with 3:38 remaining following a blocked punt at the East Jordan 10. The Rayders handed the ball over on a fumble, however, and the Devils ran down the clock.

GIBBS THREW for 152 yards on the night, 85 of them to DeYoung. Mike Thompson led the rushing with 102 yards on 19 carries.

Girls take perfect record into league play

The Charlevoix Rayder girls basketball team enters conference play against Petoskey Thursday with a 3-0 record, including a 48-45 overtime thriller against Elk Rapids last week.

Earlier in the week, the Rayders pounded East Jordan 33-30.

The Rayders had to fend off a determined Elk Rapids quintet to defend their one-point lead with 10 seconds remaining in overtime.

Elk Rapids led most of the way in the game. In the fourth period the Rayders trailed 39-35 but came back to take a 44-43 lead on a layup by Stephanie Martin. A free throw by Cindy Boss put the team ahead 45-43 but Elk Rapids knotted the score at the buzzer to send the game into overtime.

Another layup by Martin in the overtime gave the team a two-point lead but again Elk Rapids in possession with 10 seconds remaining. They failed to capitalize on the opportunity and the Rayders came away with the victory.

The Elks had led 14-12 at the quarter but the Rayders tied the score 22-all at the half and at 31-all going into the final period.

"It was a great game. The kids really battled. When the game ended four of the five players on the floor had four fouls on them," coach Henry Wagner said of the game.

Amy Pischner led the attack with 16 points followed by Barbie Boss with 10, Cindy Boss with nine and Ann Kroll with eight.

Charlevoix had 22 field goals to the Elks' 14) and four of 14 free thows. The team had 23 personal fouls. Elk Rapids hit on 19 of 34 free throws and had 16 personal fouls.

Elk Rapids won the JV game 47-36. The Rayders led 16-14 at halftime.

Melissa Boss came through with 15 points and Chrissy Dillon with 10 for Charlevoix. Deanna Brome had 17 for the Elks.

In the game at East Jordan on Tuesday, the Rayder varsity took over early and led 16-8, 28-18 and 36-22 at the quarters before winning 53-30.

The Rayders had 24 field goals and five of 11 free throw attempts while collecting 12 personals. The Red Devils had 13 field goals and four of nine free throw attempts. The team had 11 personals.

Pischner had 15 points and Barbie Boss 14. Barbie Boss and Martin had fine defensive games, Wagner said. Kristy Miller had 11 points for East Jordan.

In the JV game, the Red Devils had 27-20 at the half before taking the game 52-27.

Paula Thorp had 12 points for Charlevoix. Sara Chase had 28 points and Debbie Skop 12 for the victors.

Field goals upend Rayder junior varsity

Two field goals in the third and fourth quarters made the difference for the East Jordan junior varsity Thursday.

The Red Devils downed the Charlevoix Rayder JV football team 12-8 after Mark Moore put the kicks through the uprights.

Charlevoix took the lead in the game with a 60-yard break-away run by Jason Corwin in the first period. A pass from James Corwin to Eric Moore added the two-point conversion and an 8-0 lead midway in the early period.

A 57-yard pass play from Dan Pepin to Matt Bishop in the second period put East Jordan on the board. The attempted run for the conversion was stopped and the score stood at 8-6 at halftime.

The field goals by Moore followed the first for 18 yards and the second for 19 yards.

Bishop was the leading ground gainer for East Jordan with 85 yards in 15 carries. Bishop, Ted Sherman and Jeff Olstrom were credited by Coach Brian Certa with strong defensive play.

James Corwin, Jason Corwin and Scott Novotny were named by Certa as the outstanding offensive players. Jason Whitley and Matt Cunningham were named as the top defensive players.

Charlevoix will play at Boyne City on Sept. 25 after the game at Rogers City was cancelled when the Hurons discontinued their JV football program.

Girls shoot for dough

The fifth Annual Basketball Shoot-a-thon, sponsored by the Charlevoix High School girls basketball team, is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Sept. 19 and 20, coach Henry Wagner has announced.

Each player will solicit pledges and shoot 1,000 baskets during the shoot-a-thon, Wagner explained. Funds derived from the event will be used to finance the team's trip to the state finals later in the season.

The shoot-a-thon will begin Friday evening and continue throughout the next day at the high school gymnasium.

During the event, the Pizza Hut will provide food for the participants.

Wagner said that Ann Kroll, now a senior, set a record when she was a sophomore, hitting 820 out of a possible 1,000 throws and bringing in more than $300 in pledges.

Anyone interested in aiding the team is asked to call a team member.

Harriers win dual meet

The Charlevoix Rayder harriers posted their 50th straight dual victory at Gaylord Tuesday with Doug Bergmann topping the field of runners with a time of 15:29.

The Rayders tallied 30 points with Gaylord posting 48 and Alpena 89. Boyne City participated but did not have enough runners to qualify as a team.

Gaylord took the girls meet with 32 points to Charlevoix's 34. Alpena had 77. One Boyne City girl participated.

In the JV division Gaylord had 35 points to 42 each for Charlevoix and Alpena.

Other Rayder runners were Tom Merta in fourth place with a time of 16:43; Scott Miller, 6th in 16:56; Kevin McLenon, 8th in 17:09; and Sean Henne, 11th in 17:30.

In the girls meet, Paula Anderson of Gaylord had the best time, 20:51. Betsy Haggard placed third in 21:21; Michelle North, 4th in 21:35; Heidi Olinger, 5th in 22:30; Barb Haggard, 8th in 23:01; and Shelly Ferguson, 14th in 25:43.

In JV competition, Marty Joy had the best time of 18:00 followed by Jerry Thayer in the 9th place in 20:01; Tim Henne, 10th in 20:19; Hal Chase, 11th in 20:22; Jon Terry, 12th in 20:23.

The teams will be at the Ludington on Saturday and host Petoskey at the Belvedere course on the following Tuesday.

Girl Scout registration approaches

The week of Sept. 22-26 has been designated as Girl Scout Registration Week, Carolyn Olinger, service area manager has announced.

The registration date for first-grade girls who wish to join the Scouts and their parents is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 22, at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Parents must register the girls immediately before or after the meetings. The registration fee is $4, Olinger said.

"We are also seeking leaders as well as other volunteers to work with the Scouts. We have many girls who want to be a part of the program, but without your support we cannot offer all the fine things Scouting has to offer. We hope you will come forward and volunteer. The reward is greater than you can imagine," she added.

Registration times have also been set by organized troops.

Member of Troop No. 263, whose leader is Lynda Ward, will meet at the library at 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 22. Ward may be reached at 547-2471.

Members of Troop No. 265, whose leader is Laurel Butcher, will register at her home at 706 State St. between 3 and 5 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 24. Her phone number is 547-5338.

Troop No. 261 is without a leader. The members of this troop are asked to call Jeanne Eaton, co-manager of the service area at 547-6577 to register. If anyone would like to assist with this troop they may call the same number.

A Daisy troop for kindergartners is also being organized this year for the first time. Girls interested in joining this troop are to call Olinger at 547-5577.

St. Mary's rededicates school

The rededication of St. Mary School as St. Mary School and Parish Center is scheduled for 4 p.m. Sunday, the Rev. Casimir Zawacki, pastor of the church has announced.

The formal dedication will begin in the church at 4 p.m. and move to and Parish Center. The event will be climaxed by a parish potluck at the Parish Center. The event will be climaxed by a parish potluck at the Parish Center.

Members of the parish are urged to attend the rededication ceremony as well as the potluck to which they are asked to bring a dish to pass and their own table service. The meat and beverages will be furnished.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

TO: ANNE MARIE HUBBARTH, and MICHAEL T. HOLEWINSKI, 17843 Michigan Avenue, Three Rivers, Michigan 49093, and all persons claiming title through and under them

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, made the 23rd day of December, 1983, by Anne Marie Hubbarth, a single woman, and Michael T. Holewinski, a single man, of 3097 River Ridge, Boyne City, Michigan 49712, as Mortgagor, to State Bank and Trust Company, now known as Old Kent Bank of Petoskey, a Michigan banking corporation, of Petoskey, Michigan, as Mortgagee, which mortgage was recorded on the 15th day of February, 1984, at 3:40 o'clock p.m. in Liber 172 of Mortgages, Pages 279 through 281, in the Office of the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds; on which mortgage there is claimed to be due and unpaid as of March 21, 1986 the sum of Sixty-three Thousand Three Hundred Forty-two and 00-100 ($63,342.00) Dollars, principal; and Four Thousand Nine Hundred Seventy and 67-100 ($4,970.67) Dollars, interest; no suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt or any part of the debt secured by said mortgage, and the power of sale contained in said mortgage having become operative by reason of such default.

NOTICE is hereby given that on the 17th day of October, 1986, at 10:00 o'clock a.m., at the street entrance of the County Building, Charlevoix, Michigan; that being the place for holding the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix; there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder at public sale for the purpose of satisfying the amounts due and unpaid upon said mortgage, the lands and premises in said mortgage mentioned and described as follows, to-wit:

In the Township of Wilson, Charlevoix County, Michigan;

The North Half of the Northwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter of Section 12, Town 32 North, Range 6 West - Parcel 1. ALSO the South 5 feet of the Southwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter of Section 12, Town 32 North, Range 6 West - Parcel 2.

Subject to the rights of the public and of any governmental unit in any part thereof taken, used or deeded for street, road or highway purposes.

The primary use of this property is residential and, accordingly, the redemption period will be six (6) months from the time of such sale. The property may be redeemed by paying the amount bid at sale, plus the rate of interest borne by the mortgage note of 13.75 percent, together with any additional advancements made on the property from the date of sale.

Cruise turns east

Yachting Notes BY A. NONY MOUSE

The Charlevoix Yacht Club's annual Fall Cruise began this last weekend with good intentions blunted sharply by a low pressure area that dawdled over northern Lake Michigan and convinced us to head east rather than west.

After watching the Biddicks with CYC's newest member slug it out with those six and seven footers in Kagan, the consensus took us down the east arm to Boyne City where we met perhaps a half-dozen other cruising families.

Kittiwake, Kagan, Foxy Lady and Cygnus came in together with crews from Te-Gi and Blasen III coming in after dusk to sample the cruise chairman's famous "beer spaghetti." The only casuality being Jason, Michelle's famous foredeck doggie, who "got into the sauce" and took a header from his berth during the night.

A four-hour gentle beat westerly Sunday gave this skipper time to figure out the means by which he can heat his sloop before he ever considers doing this again.

Deepest CYC regrets to our official scorer who lost his sister in the past week. We hope that your grief is short, your memories of her long and look forward to seeing Merry, Hell II back on the race course.

A retraction is offered by the Mouse to Mr. D. who was offended by having his boat included in a previous column. The offense was unintended and the Mouse invites you to join his crew next July so that you might experience firsthand how much harder sail racers work in light air than when the wind is over five knots.

Til then: Watching the Western Skies.

Writer's diary of a disaster

the kids," he advises. "It probably wouldn't make any difference for Tom, because Tom is older, but you and the kids are younger. The risks are not worth it."

We are in the dumps. Tom will fly to Budapest then Warsaw. The kids and I will wait here, find a seaside Greek village. Can't complain about that. But I worry about Tom.

JUNE 25, Athens: Now newspapers are saying that ceasium is in the food chain in Eastern Europe. In Hungary wild game is a staple. Could be dangerous. Romania is a closed society and got a large dose, but they have not cooperated with reporting their radiation. Is ceasium in carrots, veal, milk, eggs, what? The statistics will be watched for 30 years.

We spend afternoon studying radiation maps published by WHO in May. A Greek friend xeroxed copies. The U.S. Embassy had none. The radiation went first to Scandinavia, then moved southward, across Germany, Italy, parts of Yugoslavia, with highest dose in Romania and Poland, some in northern Greece.

American fears of terrorism, and now Chernobyl, have left Athens with few American tourists. Hotels are empty. Shop owners, restaurant owners beg you to bargain.

When the Greek government announced the radiation bans, families swarmed into supermarkets and stripped the shelves. There is a new anger at the Papandreaou government. The ban on fresh lamb was not announced until after Greek Easter. Lamb is the centerpiece of Easter dinner. Greek Easter was after Chernobyl.

The Commandos shared the last of their pre-Chernobyl lamb with us. Kids and I to Delphi. Had long conversation with the oracle. Answers vague.

JUNE 26: Tom back from Poland. Says housewives bitter. Polandi bad enough before Chernobyl. Now using up the last of their stored pre-Chernobyl food. People are depressed and resigned. Ironically he got food poisoning from the water.

We will return to western Europe via Yugoslavia. Take kids to Budapest and Bratislava from Vienna. This time to Belgrade, hoping radiation depleted. Will stop at Lake Ohrid, place I've always wanted to see, near Albania. Deepest lake in Europe, has unique species of lake trout. Don't eat the trout.

AUGUST 10, Paris: International Herald Tribune: Laplanders told their reindeer cannot be eaten nor sold for six or more years because of ceasium. That's the Lap economy.

AUGUST 28, Charlevoix, Michigan: Home but Chernobyl still haunting. Russian report to International Atomic Energy Commissions sounds like a cover-up. Some saying up to 75,000 Europeans could die in the next 30 years from cancers induced by Chernobyl. Bone marrow specialist Dr. Robert Gale quoted saying since 9.5 million expected to have cancer over next 70 years, extra 75,000 "not mind boggling."

SEPT. 5, Charlevoix: Morning news item: Lake Lugano in Switzerland has been closed to fishing because of radiation.

SEPT. 9, Charlevoix: The U.S. F.D.A. will test for radiation all eastern European beers and wines coming to U.S. for next ten years.

High school students honored

The Society of Distinguished American High School Students announced recently that six students from Charlevoix Assembly of God have been selected as members in its honor society for 1986.

The students' sponsor, Rev. Jeb Brusherd, was presented with the Society's National Appreciation Award for "assiduous devotion to the development and encouragement of student leaders."

Membership in this national honorary is designed to be not only an honor but also an incentive for those exhibiting top performance while in high school. To be accepted, students must have excelled in academics, extracurricular, or civic activities.

Local students awarded this honor for 1986 include: Lara Stargardt, Keren Anderson, Terry Bonar, Lori Healey, Lori Raymond and Mike Stargardt.

As members, these students will have the opportunity to compete for college scholarships through the society's National Awards Program. This scholarship program, now in its seventeenth year, is funded by 140 colleges and universities across the nation.

Campbell outlines program to reduce foster care costs

by PEG OHLE

Juvenile Officer Brad Campbell continued discussion about his programs designed to cut the number of days of foster care of juveniles under his jurisdiction at last week's meeting of the County Board of Commissioners.

Along with a proposed 1986-1987 budget amounting to $171,715 (a large part of which would come from State funds), Campbell presented an outline of how he intends to reduce days of foster eare to 25,000 days (down from 28,200 in 1985-1986 and from 32,090 in 1984-1985.

This commitment to reduee foster eare days will be realized through three separate programs, aceording to Campbell's presentation:

Continuing the In-Home-Care Program, now in its second year, which this year served 35 children, 34 of whom were abuse and-or neglect cases. The main purpose of this program is to reduce the out-of-home plaeements except in temporary erisis situations, and, secondly, to reduee repeat offenses and to keep other young family members from getting into the court system.

This program includes a full-time social caseworker, Linda Mansfield, who counsels not only the children involved, but other family members, and a part-time support worker, Anne Rose, who deals with therapeutic issues.

Re-Instating a Diversionary Program, targeted at 11 to 15-year-olds who have exhibited behavioral problems, to try to keep them out of the Court system. The Diversionary Worker would provide diversion activities to keep these children busy. He would also see each child in the program on a regular basis and would counsel both child and parents or recommend a therapist if considered neeessary. Guidelines would be set up for each child and parenting edueation would be offered the family. Such a program was used suceessfully in the County some years ago.

Several candidates for the position of Diversionary Worker are now being considered, and it is expected the program will be under way by the beginning of the new fiscal year.

Starting a Volunteer Program, headed by a hired coordinator working under the auspiees of Juvenile Court. This coordinator would set up a matching Volunteer person with selected children from the Court caseload and his-her family. The Volunteer would act in the capaeity of a parent-aide, adult model for the child, and quasi-probation officer.

The Court has applied to the State for a $5,000 grant to pay for the services of a Volunteer Coordinator to head up this program.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners also provides additional assistance in the field of child care by paying more than half the salary of Michael B. Davis for his work as Youth Activities Director. The State pays him what the County does not pay. Davis is responsible for finding properties for recreational purposes, writing grant applications for them, and setting up reereational programs for children of all ages.

With two of the above programs already in operation and the other two soon to be implemented, the County Board of Commissioners, the Department of Social Serviees, and especially Juvenile Court, are looking forward to redueing the Court's easeload, which has grown from 150 cases to 300 cases in only three years.

Performing group to entertain officials

The Miehigan Association of School Administrators selected the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts team to demonstrate their skiils at the fall meeting of superintendents September 29 at the Grand Traverse Resort.

The Charlevoix High School team, which has swept the Miehigan Class C drama competitions for three years, is sending its varsity team of some 40 students to entertain the school superintendents with a fast-paced variety show of musie, short sketches and danee.

"They were chosen beeause they were the state Class C drama champs," said David Kahn, associate executive director of the Michigan Association of School Administrators. "They are champs, they have to be good."

The Performing Arts Department at Charlevoix High School, led by Connie Ford, has gained a statewide reputation for excellence in drama, debate and forensics competition.

"This year we are really starting off fast," Ford commented as students rehearse the 30-minute entertainment for the school administrators on the opening day of school.

"What we are doing for the superintendents will serve as a base for our fall variety show," she explained.

In November, on a day to be announeed, the Performing Arts Department will hold its annual variety show for the public at Charlevoix High School. Over 70 high school students are involved in the Performing Arts Department. They maintain a grueling year-long schedule of events and Ford is proud to point out, "maintain excellent grades."

The same students rehearsing for the school superintendents are also preparing for the first rounds in the state high school debate tournaments and the fall "Pentatholon" competition. This year's debate topic is The American Farm Crisis. The department fields three debate teams: novice, junior varsity and varsity.

The Pentatholon is an intense tournament where individual students must each enter five events: story telling, humorous interpretation, serious poetry interpretation, serious prose interpretation and dramatic interpretation. The top four competitors from Charlevoix will enter the state tournament.

Volunteers make Bloodmobile visit a success

The recent Red Cross Bloodmobile visit to Charlevoix was very suceessful with 123 pints donated by the residents of the area, Nancy Fowler, coordinator for the program announced.

A total of 140 persons responded to the urgent call for donors. Seventeen were deferred for various reasons resulting in 123 pints toward the quota of 125 pints. Among the donors were four first-time donors, she said.

"In behalf of myself and the staff of volunteers, I would like to express our appreeiation for the fine response at this time when there is such an urgent need for donors. Your contribution to the program is truly appreciated," Fowler said.

On Wednesday, the visit to the Big Rock plant by the Bloodmobile resulted in 35 pints.

The Student Council at the Charlevoix High School will sponsor a visit of the Bloodmobile on November 19.

The next visit of the Bloodmobile to Charlevoix is scheduled for Jan. 22, 1987.

Fowler also thanked the corps of volunteers who assisted with the visit.

Choirs meet

The Charlevoix Community Children's Choirs are eurrently rehearsing eaeh Wednesday after school at the Charlevoix Community Reformed Chureh and the Middle School. All area children are invited to attend.

The choirs are divided into three age groups: kindergarten through second grade is directed by Joann Danneeker at the Community Reformed Chureh; Frani Tollas directs grades three through five at the church; and Steve Stargardt and Rev. Philip Schairbaum direct grades six through eight at the Middie School.

Public hearing planned for Water's Edge

by DOUG TRUAX

A joint public hearing on the controversial Water's Edge condominium and marina project has been scheduled by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources for Wednesday, Oct. 29, at 7 p.m. in the Charlevoix High School gymnasium.

First Centrum Corp. of East Lansing and Water's Edge, Inc., owned by John McGoff, have applied to build 135 condominium units and 68 boat slips on a 51-acre site bordering Lake Charlevoix in Charlevoix Township.

The condo project has been the subject of much controversy since it was first proposed to the Charlevoix Township Zoning Board in June 1985.

Township voters overturned the township board's rezoning of the property from residential to multifamily zoning on Feb. 17, 1986 and the developer, in turn, sued the township to overturn the referendum vote.

After months of bitter feuding, the Water's Edge developers and parties opposing the condominiums agreed to a mediated settlement this past May. The settlement reduced the number of eondos from 162 to 135 and added 10 acres to the site. The developer also agreed to limit lakefront construction to 45 units with a 100-foot setback with a 35-foot greenbelt.

The mediated settlement, however, was reluetantly approved by WATCH (Water and Air Team Charlevoix) board of directors after WATCH board member Howard Neilson had negotiated a further provision that the development would not exceed 120 units without the approval of a five-member panel.

Ed Oelshaeger, president of First Centrum Corp., said the applieation to the Corps and the DNR had been modified slightly through discussions with DNR personnel but remained essentially the same as the plan approved by the mediation group.

If the applications are approved, Oelsehaeger said, construction on the project would begin in the spring of 1987.

Walter Gauthier, Corps project manager for the hearing, said their would be a 30-day comment period on the application. The Corps will conduct at least one site inspection, he said, and will prepare an environmental assessment.

The DNR will conduct its own onsight evaluation, Dennis Hall of the DNR's Land Resources Division said. That evaluation will also inelude the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Servlee and the Environmental Protection Ageney. Other agencies including state public health, soil conservation and wildife and fisheries divisions may also be involved, he said.

Boating group joins Hayes suit

by PEG OHLE

The Michigan Court of Appeals has agreed to permit the Miehigan Boating Industries Association to file an amicus curiae brief on behalf of the people of Miehigan in the case of Fox & Associates against Hayes Township.

Ray Underwood of the Boating Industries Association told the Courier that his Association decided to enter the case because it was concerned that "what is happening would limit the use of the lake by all the people", and added, "The environment is a public trust and we want to make sure that all over the state, the public has use of its waters".

Fox & Associates vs. Hayes Township has been in the courts for over a year and a half. It concerns the right of Hayes Township, through its zoning ordinance, to regulate the number of boats which may be kept at moorings, slips, or docks on the waters and shoreline of Lake Charlevoix, and to limit the use of the waters and shoreline of the lake by non-riparians.

The suit was originally filed in January, 1985, in Charlevoix Circuit Court. In the suit, Fox & Associates asked that the Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance be declared void and unenforceable and that Fox & Associates be permitted to build a planned development on the 338 acres of land and 2,800 feet of shoreline it owns on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix. Hayes Township had denied a permit for the development because it did not meet with requirements of the zoning ordinance.

Because of a conflict of interest on the part of Circuit Judge Riehard M. Pajtas, the ease was transferred to Cheboygan Circuit Court. There, Judge Robert Livo was asked to rule on the zoning ordinance issue before the whole case went to trial. He found in January, 1986 that the township zoning ordinance was constitutional because it was rooted in state law and dealt with a matter of public interest.

Fox & Associates appealed the decision last May, and in July, the Michigan Court of Appeals agreed to hear the case. At about the same time, that Court also agreed to permit Attorney General Frank Kelley to file an amicus curiae brief in the case.

Local attorneys in the lawsuit are Seberon Litzenburger of Petoskey and Thomas Pointner of Charlevoix, representing Fox & Associates, and William McTaggart of Boyne City, repreaenting Hayes Township. Litzenburger told the Courier last week that the appeal would probably not be heard until early next January.

Council reopens rest room issue

by DOUG TRUAX

City Council decided Monday in a working session to reopen the issue of the location of rest rooms in downtown Charlevoix at the next regular session of council next Monday.

Council had voted last week, after three weeks of debate on the issue, to locate the toilets beneath an open air viewing deck in the park area north of Burnsides store on Bridge Street.

The vote on the site was 3-3 and the deciding ballot was cast by Mayor Hal Hill to approve the site.

At Monday's session, however, councilmen Robert Timms and William Bellows, who originally voted for the Bridge Street site, expressed reservations about it. They indicated they were leaning favorably to the site on Clinton Street behind Central Drugs proposed by Councilman Ray Wood.

Mayor Hill also was having second thoughts. Hill said he had received several calls opposed to the project on Bridge Street and one resident had informed him that a resolution had been passed many years ago by city council prohibiting any buildings in the parks along Bridge Street.

City Clerk Arlene Staley reported she had been unable to find any such resolution. Hill ordered a further search of the records. "I'd like to see us be sure of an answer to this before we go any further," he said.

Councilman Norm Probert, an opponent of the Bridge Street site, made a dramatic presentation to council, using a flip chart and other visual aids to denounce the cost and location of the rest rooms. Probert put up cutout numbers on the Downtown Development Authority's (DDA) master plan to show five existing downtown toilet facilities including the Chamber of Commerce, Beaver Island Boat Company office, library, city hall, and county building.

He said even a scaled-down version of the viewing gazebo and rest room plan would cost nearly $80,000 before it was complete. Probert said one mill of tax revenue equaled $64,000 and questioned whether council wanted to spend that much for rest rooms downtown.

Jim Mabee of the DDA pointed out that the location on Clinton Street would take up space that would be reserved for future parking. He told council that if council refused the Bridge Street location, the DDA might choose to drop the plans for downtown rest rooms altogether and leave the funding of it to council.

Maybee also told council the money for the project would not come from general fund revenue but from a special reserve for downtown

Chinook salmon are beginning to stack up off the pierheads in Charlevoix as they near the end of their lifecycle. Fishermen like part-time charter captain and conservation officer John Crane (with net above) are finding lots of fish close to Medusa Cement Co. They have even been catching fish, as Crane and guests are doing here, in the boat slip for the Medusa Challenger.

As of Tuesday, however, no fish had shown up in the new fish weir constructed by TempoTech at Medusa Creek. Conservation officer Roger Bush looks over the weir site, which is near completion and ready for the first runs of fish.

Fisheries biologist Jerry Rakoczy says he expects the statistics on the 1986 fishing season to come out as good or better than last year.

Water levels set record

The water level in lakes Miehigan and Huron showed a seasonal decline of some 4 inches between July and August, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' latest report says. But the water level was still at reeord elevations for the month of August.

The August monthly mean level was 3 inches above the previous all-time August high (set in 1973) and about 64 inches above the all-time monthly low set in August 1964.

The August level was about 30 inches above the long-term average.

For mariners, the end of August levels was 52 inehes above chart datum.

The Corps' six month foreeast calls for the lakes to be above the long-term average level during the next six months.

At the end of September, lakes Michigan and Huron should drop another 2 inches, the Corps predicts. Lake levels are expected to continue their seasonal decline into February.

United Way starts drive

The United Way of the Charlevoix area will officially kick off its 1986 fund-raising drive at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 1 at the Grey Gables Inn.

The campaign chairman, board members and leaders of the various solicitation divisions will gather to reviow campaign strategy and make final preparations for the fall program. The organization hopes to rise $35,000 in this campaign; approximately $5,000 has already been pledged in the summer-resident campaign.

Payroll-deduction a proven means to ensure strong support will be a key theme in this year's program. To encourage as much payroll deduction as possible, solicitation division leaders will be approaching local businesses to ask their support in making the necessary arrangements in their payroll and accounting departments.

This year's campaign will run through the month of October, coinciding with other campaigns conducted on the local and national level. Last year the campaign was successful in surpassing its goal.

Lake Michigan fishery worth $94.1 million

The value of the fishery in Lake Michigan is pegged at $91.4 million by a recent study conducted by the Great Lakes Fisheries Station in Charlevoix.

The Great Lakes Creel Census, coordinated by Jerry Rakoczy of the Charlevoix fisheries station, estimated that anglers spent more than 7 million hours fishing in Lake Michigan on a total of over 1.6 million fishing trips.

The study estimates the $91.4 million figure by multiplying the number of angler trips by $55, which a recent Michigan State University survey determined was the average amount of money anglers spend a each fishing trip.

The Department of Natural Resources' creel census was begun in 1983 to obtain continuous records of the catch rates on the Great Lakes and to help the DNR evaluate its Great Lakes fish stocking programs.

DNR fisheries technicians and temporary summer workers interviewed more than 40,000 anglers at Lake Michigan public access sites, marinas, piers and in boats. In addition they took random counts of fishing boats and anglers and made catch estimates based on interviews and counts from New Buffalo to Charlevoix and Petoskey and from Little Bay DeNoc to Manistique.

"We feel this is a most significant indication that the work the DNR has been doing to improve and expand the Great Lakes fishery is reaping benefits for the state," DNR Director Gordon E. Guyer said.

Rakoczy's figures show that some 500,000 chinook salmon were caught in Lake Michigan last year, along with 111,000 coho salmon, 141,000 lake trout, 47,000 rainbow trout, 46,000 brown trout and 2.5 million yellow perch.

St. Joseph-Benton Harbor was the busiest fishing port, according to the census, accounting for 12 percent of the total fishing in Michigan waters of the lake. Ludington was the second busiest port.

The creel census work has been continuing this year, with surveying at various levels on lakes Superior, Michigan, Huron and Erie.

Conference on gifted children planned

Thirteen Northern Michigan Intermediate School districts are sponsoring a two-day "Bright Beginnings" conference for educators and parents interested in gifted, talented and creative children.

Sessions will begin Friday evening, September 26 at 7 p.m. at the Petoskey Holiday Inn and will continue all day Saturday, September 27, at North Central Michigan College, also in Petoskey.

The theme for this year's conference is "The Gifted Child in the Regular Classroom." However, sessions are included with a variety of other topics of interest to educators and parents alike.

Friday evening will feature a keynote address by nationally known presenter, Nancy Johnson. Nancy Mincemoyer, state specialist for gifted and talented will discuss issues related to gifted education in northern Michigan and across the state.

Saturday will include sessions for school administrators, board of education members, teachers from preschool through high school, as well as parents.

For further information, contact Kathy Martincheck, consultant for the gifted and talented, Char-Em Intermediate School District, 547-9947.

Lake Charlevoix study seeks sources of pollution

Water quality specialists from the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council worked last week on completing a study of shoreline sources of nutrient pollution of Lake Charlevoix.

The "Shoreline Algal Survey," done under a grant from the Lake Charlevoix Association, will attempt to identify nutrients coming from the lands bordering the lake – pollution usually associated with overfertilization of lawns or farmlands or from septic systems in need of repair.

The survey is being done by Tip of the Mitt's new water resource specialist, Rob McLennan, and water quality consultant Dave Heidtke. They are repeating a survey of the lake done in 1981 by the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments.

McLennan and Heidtke observe the shoreline of the lake from a small boat, noting in particular the presence of Cladophora, a greenish algae that grows on rocks and other material at the waterline and can signal excessive nutrients leaching into the lake.

"We're trying to identify sites where the pollution is controllable," Heidtke said. "We not out on a witchhunt. We are really trying to help homeowners."

The pair are re-examining the 22 miles of lake shoreline studied in 1981 plus an additional five or 10 miles. Lake Charlevoix has 56 total miles of shoreline.

Once the lake observations are completed, Heidtke and McLennan will begin trying to identify the sites and owners of the property. They will then mail out a questionnaire designed to gather further information on the household, physical characteristics of the septic system, lawn maintenance practices and such.

The results will be given to the Lake Charlevoix Association which may choose to notify property owners and outline ways to eliminate the problem.

"The problem we're looking at is a small piece of a big puzzle," McLennan said. "We hope other steps will be taken to address the watershed-wide issues as well."

The water quality researchers also said their results will be available to the Lake Charlevoix Planning Advisory Committee and other groups studying the watershed.

Parents invited to Middle School

The Charlevoix Middle School will host its first major event of the 1986-87 school year Monday, Sept. 29 - parent walk through "mini-sessions" to acquaint parents with their student's schedule and teachers, Dennis VanGuilder, principal, has announced.

Before attending the special event, parents are advised to make a copy of their student's class schedule so they may follow it while attending the mini-sessions.

Parents are invited to a coffee hour in the cafeteria at 6:30 p.m. prior to the mini-sessions which will begin at 6:50 and conclude at 8:45. Each session will run for 10 minutes with five minutes between sessions. From 8:45 until 9:15 p.m. parents may confer with the teachers.

Parent-Teacher Conferences are scheduled for November, VanGuilder said.

"We are glad to have your students in the middle school. We hope you will take advantage of this opportunity to see how and where your students spend their days," VanGuilder said.

Anglers converge on Charlevoix

- by DOUG TRUAX

This weekend Lake Charlevoix will again be the scene for a two-day bass fishing tournament sponsored by the Michigan chapter of the B.A.S.S. Federation.

Over 90 boats and 180 fishermen will be in Charlevoix and surrounding communities for the tournament which takes place Friday and Saturday. The contestants take off from the Ferry Beach boat lauch at between 5:30 and 6:30 a.m. each day and report back to East Park at 2:30 p.m. for the official weigh-ins.

The B.A.S.S. Federation awards cash prizes to the fishermen bringing in the largest fish and the most total pounds of fish (five fish per fisherman) each day.

All fish are kept in live wells and returned to the water at the end of the day.

The bass fishermen staged a tournament in Charlevoix last June, the first time such an event had been held on Lake Charlevoix.

Members of the Charlevoix City Council expressed surprise when the tournament was announced to them at their working session Monday night. Several said the city or the Chamber of Commerce should have done more to promote and publicize the event.

Claudia Kenifeck, executive director of the Chamber, said the Chamber's board of directors had turned down a request from the B.A.S.S. Federation to fund a banquet for the fall tournament because it was not a budgeted item. The board also questioned the propriety of funding an event that was not open to the public.

Kenifeck said, however, she has been working to line up private support for the banquet and has received $200 in donations to date. She has also worked on making other arrangements for the fishermen.

Statistics provided to the Chamber by the B.A.S.S. group note that they spent $20,000 on their last visit to Charlevoix, including $12,000 for lodging, $5,200 for food, $2,000 for gas and $800 for miscellaneous items.

This weekend's tournament will begin with an organizational meeting at the American Legion hall on Thursday evening beginning at 6:30 p.m. The banquet will be held Saturday from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Big Rock receives new fuel

The Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant received 20 bundles of uranium oxide fuel recently in preparation for its next refueling scheduled to begin in January. The fuel was delivered by truck from the supplier's fabrication facility in Richland, Washington.

The plant will be closed 51 days for the refueling.

One six-foot long bundle of fuel, weighing approximately 490 pounds, contains enough energy to generate more than 20 million kilowatt-hours of electricity during the four years it spends in the reactor, according to Charles MacInnis, Big Rock public affairs director. The heat output of that single bundle is roughly equivalent to 11,000 cords (4'x4'x8') of dry firewood or 100 train-car loads of coal.

"At a cost of about $70,000, the nuclear fuel bundle is significantly cheaper than either the wood or coal alternative. The equivalent amount of wood would cost up to $900,000; the coal would cost about $450,000," MacInnis said.

Big Rock Points last refueling was completed in November 1985. Each year the company replaces approximately one quarter of the fuel supply. The unit has been generating electricity almost continuously since then.

A bundle of newly delivered uranium oxide fuel is prepared for inspection by Consumers Power Company employees Den Zimmermen (left) and Jerry Wheat at the Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant. Thorough inspection of the fuel is required upon delivery to verify that no damage wes incurred during the trip from the fabrication facility in Richland, Washington.

Rotary to sponsor 'circus of stars'

The circus is coming to Charlevoix.

Sponsored by the Rotary Club of Charlevoix the circus will feature Gina and her uncaged leopards, Sir Harry James and his unbelievable one finger stand, Miss Stephanie performing on the trapeze, the Bertini's unicycle act, clowns, juggling, magic and many other exciting acts designed to entertain children of all ages.

It will be presentated at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium on Tuesday, Oct. 21 at 7 p.m.

Local high school students and other members of the community will soon be making phone calls to ask area businesses and residents to purchase special tickets for the "Circus Galaxy of Stars." These special tickets will admit children under 13 and senior citizens.

Ticket buyers may donated their tickets back to the Rotary Club of Charlevoix which will allow "special" children and senior citizens to enjoy the show on their behalf.

Tickets are available by calling 547-5859. Children's tickets available now, adult tickets will be available later. The price is $4 for children and $5 for adults.

It ain't over

BY DOUG TRUAX

Yogi Berra said it best: it ain't over 'till it's over.

The former Yankee great and Mets' manager could not have imagined how appropriate his non sequitur would be following Monday's council meeting.

Just when it seemed the issue of the location of the downtown toilets and gazebo had been put to a merciful rest, council decided to give it another round of discussion.

Last week, you may recall, the council voted for a Bridge Street site north of Burnsides for the gazebo facility, leaving the exact design, placement and cost to future meetings.

Not long after the meeting broke up for the night, however, one or two councilmen had begun to change their minds. Then the mayor started to get some phone calls from people who were not too fetched with the new location.

So last Monday the whole subject was renewed again.

The Downtown Development Authority, which has been working on a plan for the area for four years, must be getting very frustrated by the process. Their careful planning seems to be almost counterproductive once it reaches city council.

Several observers have noted that the more experts and citizens who testify in favor of any proposition, the stiffer the resistance of the council.

The truly scary thing is council is now talking of saving lots of money by constructing a cheaper facility elsewhere.

The last time council was determined to "save" a bunch of money was when they decided to reverse, themselves on the location of the new fire hall. That one ended up costing nearly $100,000 more once the saving was completed and probably cost the city a downtown location for the post office to boot.

Beware these cost cutting machinations.

THE FOOD CHAIN THAT KEEPS THE GREENING OF OUR EARTH POSSIBLE CONTINUES WITH GREAT ACTIVITY. ONE SMALL AREA OF TURF PROVIDES A VIEW OF THIS WONDER OF SURVIVAL. BEECH-DROPS ARE NOW IN BLOOM WHILE INDIAN PIPES AND PINESAP HAVE LOST THEIR GHOSTLY WHITE AND NOW HOLD THEIR DEEP BROWN SEED HEADS UPRIGHT ON STIFF STEMS. THESE PLANTS GET THEIR NOURISHMENT FROM OTHER PLANTS AND IN TURN PROVIDE FOOD FOR INSECTS, WHO IN TURN PROVIDE FOOD FOR TOADS AND BIRDS. ALL THIS ACTIVITY ENSURES ANOTHER YEAR OF NEW BIRTH. Nicholls' ghost

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

Charlevoix, in case you haven't noticed, has a new street. It is called Nicholas and it runs between Petoskey Avenue and Dixon Avenue — one block long on the east and two blocks long on the west, thanks to the Ainslie intersection.

Why, that's Nicholls Street, you say. Nope, not if the 1986-87 Michigan Bell (Ameritech) telephone directory is your bible.

For some reason, the Bell people have converted all of the Nicholls Street addresses to Nicholas.

I suspect it was a computer error. One "Nicholas" probably was entered into the system by mistake and the computer went through and changed all of the other entries to conform. Computers do things like that.

The street has an interesting history. It was named for John Nicholls, a pioneer lumberman and banker, whose sister Celia married A. F. Bridge. A. F. and Celia were the parents of the late Robert Bridge, whose son Gene was a resident of Charlevoix until last fall.

John Nicholls was very particular that his name be spelled with two "l's" and threatened to return from the dead and haunt anyone who spelled it with only one "l," according to Fran Martin.

The city once erected a sign at the intersection of Ainslie and Nicholls and the Nicholls had only one "l" in it. Robert Bridge, who also was in the banking business, interceded on behalf of his late uncle and the sign was changed to correct the error.

Now, generations after A.F.'s death, the telephone company has gratuitously changed the spelling once again.

I wouldn't want to be working for the publications department of the telephone company, if old Mr. Nicholls ever decides to make good on his threat to return from the grave.

With all credit to the telephone company, its directory entries usually are meticulously accurate, down to street addresses, telephone numbers and the proper spelling of names. That's probably why the misspelling of Nicholls Street stands out so sharply.

IT IS A RELIEF to learn that additional public lavatories are to be constructed in downtown Charlevoix. And the sooner the better.

It is hard to believe that a city which pays host to 25,000 visitors during the boat parade and fireworks on Venetian Night has only one public urinal for all those guests.

Even if half of the visitors are women, the odds are still a kidney-bursting 12,500 to one.

The situation has worked a hardship on downtown business places, many of which attempt to limit the use of their own restrooms to their paying customers, but without a great deal of success.

I realize the Downtown Development Authority is under mounting pressure to provide additional parking. But in my book, any town that bills itself as a tourist mecca should be a trifle more accomodating to tourists.

That is why I hope the DDA, with the council's blessing, gives top priority to the new restrooms. It would be nice if they could be in operation by next summer.

'Round Town

On to China

BY EDITH GILBERT

MY MOTHER USED to reminisce a great deal about our life in Shanghai during the 1920's but as the old Chinese proverb goes, "Hearing something one hundred times is not as good as seeing it once."

When you read this column, I will be strolling through the streets of Shanghai searching for the house where we used to live. I only have a picture of the house, the name of the street, but no house number.

I do have an address of the German school where I learned to read and write – the Kaiser Wilhelm Schule. If I locate either my former home or school, I shall be very lucky, because most people who return from a nostaglic pilgrimage to Shanghai tell me that they can't find anything, yet everything looks familiar.

NOW I CAN identify with visitors who come to Charlevoix looking for their roots when they say, "I remember my grandmother lived on Dixon Avenue, but I don't know in which house." Or, when I visited in St. Louis a few years ago, I was asked if the shuffle board courts are still in the park.

Kathy Engle, who restored one of the old Baker cottages on East Dixon, tells me that she's been swamped this summer with requests for tours from sentimental summer folk. People who used to stay at the old Beach Hotel as children, return to the bluff to gaze at the gorgeous Michigan sunsets, and end up making reservations at the Charlevoix Country Inn for 1987.

NEXT WEEK I'll be watching sunsets while floating down the Yangtze River. People ask me if I learned to speak Chinese during the three years I lived in Shanghai. It boggles the mind to think I never learned a word! My parents spoke German, everyone spoke German at school, and all our Chinese help spoke German.

How deeply I regret not making the effort then' it would come in so handy now. But in those days Mandarin was not the official language as it is today. There were many dialects, andthe common language that everyone understood was Pidgin English — a gobblygook of multiple languages.

Back then, the various nationalities – the British, French, Americans, Germans, etc. – all lived independently of each other and had very little traffic with the Chinese people or their language. It could be compared in a way to come, but not all, short-term summer visitors who visit our beaches and shops, return to their rooms, order a pizza, and leave town with a box to Tom's Mom's cookies, without every connecting with the people of Charlevoix.

TODAY IN CHINA the shoe is on the other foot. No longer do foreigners have their own courts of law. The visitor is subject to the rules of the Chinese government. It will be very interesting during my forthcoming 3½ week visit to observe the enormous changes that have taken place since I left China as a little girl.

If possible I shall keep in touch. A lot depends on the mail which is slow and erratic. Let's hope for the best.

We started Edith Gilbert's column, 'Round Town, earlier this summer hoping to bring Charlevoixians and visitors a fresh approach on people and happenings in the area. We believe it has succeeded even beyond our hopeful expectations and have had many favorable comments and letters from readers.

Although we had originally expected to end the column after Labor Day, we have enticed Edith to continue throughout the year on an every-other-week basis. Beginning next Memorial Day we will again run the column weekly for the duration of the summer.

Doing a regular column is more work than people appreciate, so we are pleased Edith is willing to keep up with 'Round Town on a regular basis.

While she is in China we will publish occasional pieces from here detailing her trip and looking at tourism Chinese style. We are not sure how frequently or fast the mail will arrive, but we will keep readers as up to date as we can.

Letters to the Editor:

Swimmers need stamps too

Dear Editor:

I would like to present a thought regarding the proposal by the Lake Charlevoix Planning Advisory Committee to limit the number of boats on Lake Charlevoix as a means of assuring continuing water quality.

The large number of people using the lake for splashing, wading and swimming have to be a cause for poor water quality. Therefore, I propose that these activities be controlled as well as the boating. Each family living on Lake Charlevoix would be allocated 12 water-use stickers; those living near (one mile or less) be allocated six stickers and all other residents of Charlevoix County be allocated four water-use stickers. Visitors would have to apply for water-use stickers on a daily basis.

Water use and activity will determine the number of stickers one must use. For example, waders need but one sticker; splashers would need two; swimmers under 200 pounds would need three and swimmers over 200 pounds would need four water-use stickers. Scuba divers would need a special use permit as well as the required four stickers.

In every case, the correct number of stickers would have to be prominently displayed on the water user.

Individuals who boat and swim must have appropriate stickers for each activity.

Special attention must be given to wind surfers and water skiers who may wade, splash, and-or swim in pursuit of their activities. Each boat would also be required to carry a special man-overboard sticker to cover that eventuality.

As system such as this would not only control the amount of water, but would also maintain the water quality that is so important to all of us.

Yours in the pursuit of quality water, I remain

Charlie Bentley

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

One Saturday morning, a little boy decided his project of the day was to try and move a rock in his backyard that had sometimes gotten in the way of his playing. He tried to lift it. It wouldn't budge. He tied a rope around it to pull it out. That didn't work either. He got his little shovel and started to dig it up. He was soon worn out.

The flurry of activity from his little boy quickly caught the father's attention. The newspaper he had been so absorbed in fell away as he watched his son work. When the little fellow got discouraged with his digging, Dad went out on the porch. "Son, have you about used up all your strength and resources?"

The little boy wearily shook his head yes. "No, you haven't," the father replied. "What about me?" Together, they got the job done.

The little boy is not the only one that forgets about the power of a father's love. We have been known to do the same thing quite often. In fact, where the power of our heavenly Father's love ought to be the first resource we bring to bear, a lot of times it is the last.

It is not a case of belittling our own efforts or abilities. I have no doubt that the Father takes pride in much of what we try to do for him. But I cannot help but wonder, if in our occasional sense of accomplishment, God also thinks, "That's good, but it might have been great if you had just let me help you."

Are you taking advantage of the resources and strength for living that God has made available to you?

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

This weekend the bass boaters are back! Over 90 boats are registered for the fall tournament sponsored by the Michigan B.A.S.S. Federation. Take off times from the Ferry Beach boat launches will be between 5:30 a.m.-6:30 a.m. with weigh-ins between 2:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. in East Park Friday and Saturday.

This time of the year many stores and businesses change their hours of operation. Please contact the Chamber with such changes to enable us to better inform the public.

The Charlevoix Chamber Merchant Group met and discussed plans for a Christmas promotion. Ideas were tossed around about concentrating on a one-night open house for shoppers. If you have suggestions, contact the Chamber.

Color tours are popular this time of year. The Star of Charlevoix has two cruises daily through mid-October. The October 12th bicycle tour around Lake Charlevoix will provide another great way to enjoy the color. Auto tours up M-119 north of Harbor Springs and through the Jordan Valley south of East Jordan are popular as well.

At the recent Chamber Board meeting, the directors voted to endorse the north side restroom location approved by the Council Monday September 15. The Chamber supports the Downtown Development Authority efforts. Not only would this location make good use of a park that is rarely utilized, the Board felt it would actually "create" a view while providing much needed facilities.

Plans are now being made for the membership drive and annual meeting. More details to follow.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Kerr

Leist - Kerr

Kathy Ann Leist and Jeffrey Lynn Kerr were united in marriage on Saturday, August 30, at the Petoskey United Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leist of Bay Township, and her bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Theresa Kerr of Flint.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown of organza fashioned with a beaded lace bodice, scooped neckline, and bouffant antebellum skirt with a lace hemline ending in a chapel-length train. Her veil of illusion was attached to a wreath of silk flowers and a waterfall of pearl accents. She carried a bouquet of pale pink roses with baby's breath and ferns.

Gail Leist attended her sister as maid of honor, and Dawn Thayer, Jackie Pinney, and Linda Leist were bridesmaids. They wore orchid satin antebellum style gowns with white lace trim and carried bouquets of pink roses.

Bill Patenge served as best man, and Frank Leist, Norm Harbison, and Alan Brown served as groomsmen. Gary, Joe, and Ed Leist were ushers.

Music for the ceremony was provided by vocalist Cindy Gapinski and organist Ross Stoakes.

Following a wedding trip to Yellowstone and Glacier Parks, the newlyweds are at home in Bay Township. They are both employed in Charlevoix, he at DMI Company of Charlevoix and she at Hoskins Manufacturing.

Engagements

Zemske - Hand

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brousseau of Coventry, Rhode Island announce the engagement of their daughter, Lynn Ann Zemske, to Richie M. Hand of Charlevoix. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Hand, also of Charlevoix.

The intended bride is a 1983 graduate of Coventry High School, and her fiance is a 1981 graduate of Charlevoix High School. He is employed by the Lexalite International Corporation in Charlevoix.

The wedding will take place next June 27 at the Bay Shore Presbyterian Church.

Obituaries

Arthur D. Hebert

Funeral services for Arthur D. Hebert, 72, were held at St. Mary's Church Tuesday. The Rev. Casimir J. Zawacki officiated. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

A prayer service was held at the Winchester Funeral Home Monday evening.

Mr. Hebert died Saturday, Sept. 20, at Little Traverse Hospital.

Mr. Hebert was born in Charlevoix April 12, 1914, and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1932. He later went to Chicago where he became building manager of high rise apartment buildings for Baum Management. On April 26, 1969, he married the former Rosemary Kortase in Chicago where they lived until returning to Charlevoix in 1979. He was a member of St. Mary's Church.

Surviving are his wife, Rosemary of Charlevoix and one sister, Mary Gleason of Hesperia, Calif.

Nellie M. Newton

Funeral services for Mrs. Nellie M. Newton, 84, of Boyne City will be held at the Winchester Funeral Home at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. The Rev. Cecil Drost of the Assembly of God Church will officiated. A chapel service will be held at Roseland Park Cemetery in Berkley on Wednesday.

Mrs. Newton died Sunday, Sept. 21, at her home in Boyne City.

Born in Yale July 8, 1902, the former Nellie M. Middleton was married to Otis L. Newton in Detroit in February 1922. They lived in Royal Oak where they owned and operated Newton Furniture until 1950 when they retired. Since that time they had lived in Hollywood, Fla., and Sho-Sho-Nie Beach on Lake Charlevoix where they had spent their summers since the 1920s.

Following Mr. Newton's death in 1959 she moved to Boyne City to live.

She is survived by three sisters, Rose Collier of Flint and Florence Schneider and Dorothy VanConant, both of Royal Oak.

The family suggests memorials to the Michigan Heart Association or the American Cancer Society.

Pearle Bibik

Graveside services for a former Charlevoix resident, Mrs. Pearle (Durance) Bibik, 84, of Livonia, were held at Brookside Cemetery here on Saturday, Sept. 6.

Mrs. Bibik died Wednesday, Sept. 3, at Livonia.

Mrs. Bibik, the former Pearle Durance, daughter of John and Lulu (Carter) Durance, was born and raised in Charlevoix. An accomplished pianist, she and her father, who played the violin, were popular musicians during the days of the silent movies in the early 1920s. She played the piano at the local theatre.

In 1924 she left Charlevoix following her marriage to Charles Leachman. They made their home in South Haven and Holland. In 1944, she was married to Irving LaRae. They moved to Detroit in 1959. Following his death, she married, in 1964, John Bibik who preceded her in death. In 1984 she moved to Livonia. She played the piano and organ at Lutheran churches in Detroit for 38 years.

Surviving are a son, Charles Leachman of Fenton; three daughters, Majurie Kearsy, Mary Lou Rosin and Pam Williams of the Detroit and Livonia areas and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Edward J. Jouzapaitis

Funeral services for Edward J. Jouzapaitis, 71, of St. James, Beaver Island, were held Monday, Sept. 22, at Holy Cross Church at St. James. The Rev. James Hoffman, O.F.M., of St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey officiated. Interment was in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Mr. Jouzapaitis died Thursday, Sept. 18, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Born in Chicago, Ill., Feb. 18, 1915, Mr. Jouzapaitis graduated from Tilden Tech High School in Chicago and attended a junior college in that city. On Aug. 2, 1937, he married the former Bernadine McCauley at Charlevoix. They always made their home in Chicago.

He was employed at the Continental Can Corp. for 30 years, retiring in 1979. At that time they moved to St. James, Beaver Island, to live. He was a member of the Holy Cross Church at St. James and the AFL-CIO in Chicago.

Surviving are his wife, Bernadine; two sons, Edward B. of Downers Grove, Ill., and Charles R. of Indianapolis, Ind.; one daughter, Mrs. Jack W. (Catherine Ann) Bauman of Exmouth, Australia; six grandchildren; one great-grandson and a brother, Arnold Joseph of Woodbine, Md.

Health screening clinics set

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging has scheduled two Health Screening Clinics for the near future.

The clinics, for which there is a donation fee of $5, include the following tests: blood pressure and pulse, hemoglobin or hemtocrit, urinalysis, vision and hearing, weight and height, breast exam, stool guaiac, and complete physical.

Clinic dates are September 29 and October 14. They will be held at the East Jordan Family Health Center but personnel of District Health Department No. 3 will conduct the tests.

Since only 10 persons can be scheduled for each clinic day, reservations must be made in advance by calling the Senior Center at 536-7831. Those needing transportation to East Jordan should contact the Charlevoix County Transit System at 582-6900.

Abuse board meets

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the Northern Michigan Substance Abuse Services Advisory Council will be held Wednesday, Oct. 1 at 10 a.m. at the Holiday Inn in Houghton Lake. For agenda and details, call 517-732-1791.

Girls roll to fourth win with victory over Petoskey

The Charlevoix Rayder girls basketball team handily defeated Petoskey 54-24 in a game played here Thursday.

"Most things went right for us. The defense really worked well. That made the difference," Coach Henry Wagner said.

The Rayders jumped off to a 15-9 lead; doubled their score to 30-15 at the half and held Petoskey to a 42-20 score going into the final period.

Nine of the 10 Charlevoix players scored. Amy Pischner, Barbie Boss and Ellen Pearl led the attack with 10 points each. Vickie Still had eight points for Petoskey.

Charlevoix outscored the visitors with 25-10 field goals from the floor and had four of 11 free throws while drawing 12 personal fouls. Petoskey scored on four of 14 free throw attempts and had 16 personal fouls.

In the JV game, Petoskey won 47-34 after leading 27-17 at halftime.

Stacy Gebott scored 17 points and Paula Thorp 10 for the Rayders. Amy Thomas had 16 points for Petoskey.

Coach Wagner said Thorp was injured and may be lost to the team for the remainder of the season.

Rayders lose in overtime

Charlevoix dropped a tough 21-20 overtime decision to Rogers City Friday night when a two-point conversion pass in the extra session fell incomplete.

The loss overshadowed a one-man rushing show by tailback Mike Thompson who piled up 241 yards in 27 carries.

The defeat dropped Charlevoix to 1-2 for the year while Rogers City reached 2-1. Charlevoix is 1-1 in league play.

Regulation play ended at 14-14. Rogers City took the ball first in overtime and scored on a 5-yard run by Wane Saile. Jere Cetzinger kicked what proved to be the winning extra point.

Charlevoix came back and scored on a 5-yard pass from quarterback Jim Gibbs to Paul Anderson, but the attempt to win on a two-pointer failed.

Charlevoix opened the scoring in the second quarter when Thompson broke loose on a 78-yard run and Terry Bonar added the point after. In the third period Rogers City tallied on a Joel Idalski 50-yard scamper but the point after failed.

With five minutes left in the game, Charlevoix scored on a Derek Dutcher 2-yard run and Bonar's kick made it 14-6. The TD was set up on a 50-yard run from Thompson.

With approximately four minutes left, Rogers City pulled even when Saile went over from 5 yards out after setting up the TD with an 80-yard run. Jeff Chrzan's pass to Rob Allum was good, tying the game at 14-14. The pass was deflection which Allum caught while lying on the ground.

Thompson's yardage accounted for nearly all of the Rayders' 280 yards in total net offense. Rogers City had 290 yards offense.

Defensively for the Rayders, Kent Seymour had 20 tackles, John Jaskierski and Darrin Batdorff seven and Mark LaBlance and Gibbs six each.

Amy Pischner lays up two points.

Free throws fall

Ann Kroll, Charlevoix High School senior, sank 868 free throws out of a possible 1,000 during the fifth annual Basketball Shoot-a-thon sponsored recently by the Rayder girls basketball team.

The free throws were thrown in a series of four blocks of 250 each ranging from 207 of 250 to 235 of 250 in her final block, coach Henry Wagner said.

Each player sought pledges. Kroll's major sponsors were 7-Eleven and Pat McKeown Ford and numerous smaller ones which, when combined raised more than $400 Wagner said.

The second best shooter in the event was Becky Smith, a junior, with 745 of a possible 1,000.

Proceeds from the annual Shoot-a-thon are used by the team to underwrite the cost of a trip to the state basketball tournament in December.

All pledges are not in at press time so the final results of the Shoot-a-thon are not available, Wagner said.

Golfers card pair of victories

The Charlevoix Rayder golf team posted wins last week over Gaylord and Rogers City, the first by a score of 178-190 and the second by a slim 184-186.

Charlevoix will be at Boyne City Thursday and will host Cheboygan Monday.

In the meet at Boyne City, Charlevoix's Scott Wise was the medalist with a score of 39. Other Rayders were Pat Anderson with a 44; Scott Crain 47 and Wes Cornett with scores of 48 and Josh Johnston with a 52.

The Rayder JVs also turned in a pair of victories. On Tuesday they beat Gaylord 213-227 and on Thursday defeated Rogers City 227-247.

Matt Victor of Gaylord was medalist in the Gaylord match with a 44.

At Rogers City, the Rayders' Tim Jervis was the medalist with a 49. Mike Wise had a 53; Dave Loger 58 and Bob Jess 67.

Scoring for Boyne were Steve Victor at 44, Jason Clemont 48 and JD Aude and Scott Howard 50.

The Rayders won the match at Rogers City by two points. Rogers City's Eric Steinorth was medalist with a 38.

For Charlevoix Wise had a 42, Dan Bickerstetth 44; Anderson 48 and Crain 50.

Joining Steinorth with his 38 were Rogers City's Ron Bingle and Mike Cumberland, 48.

Wild Turkey Federation chapter to meet

The Traverse Bay Area Chapter of the National Wild Turkey Federation will hold its fall banquet Sept. 30 at 7:30 p.m. at the Chandler Township Hall on Chandler Hill Road.

The group will discuss the winter turkey feeding program and will auction off a limited edition Browning shotgun.

The business meeting will be conducted from 7:30 to 9 p.m., followed by a one-hour video on the wild turkey.

Harriers just miss beating state champs

The Charlevoix Rayder cross country team placed second in the Ludington Invitational meet Saturday with 35 points, one point behind defending state champion Benzie Central.

"They did very well. It was a happy surprise. The JVs also made a good showing," said coach Pete Spieles. "The girls are shaping up and looked well though they were running without one of their regulars, Michelle North."

Charlevoix's Doug Bergmann set the pace for the boys' meet with a 15:38 performance. Ann Mudgett of Traverse City was tops for the girls with a time of 18:47.

Running with Bergmann were Pat Rajewski, 5th, 16:17.8; Tom Merta, 8th, 16:40.8; Scott Miller, 10th, 16:50.1; Kevin McLenon, 14th, 18:53.3.

The Charlevoix girls team placed ninth among 16 teams with 112 runners from Class A, B, C and D schools.

Betsy Haggard finished in 14th place with a time of 21:00; Stephanie Agnew, 43rd, 22:21; Barb Haggard, 49th, 22:32; Heidi Olinger, 64th, 23:07; Shelly Ferguson, 89th, 24:20 Maria Parsons, 90th, 24:24.

Traverse City won the girls division with 63 points followed by Cadillac with 83; Benzie Central 144; Petoskey 169; Mason County Central 195. Charlevoix had 259 points.

The Charlevoix JVs finished fifth in a field of 18 teams.

Joe Simpson finished in first place in 16:47; followed by Marty Joy, 7th in 17:48; Dylan Stewart, 20th, 18:39; Jeff Skeel, 24th, 18:43; Mike Stargardt, 47th, 19:47; Jerry Thayer, 58th, 19:49; Tim Henne, 56th, 20:00; Jon Terry, 66th, 20:23; Jacob Smith, 101st; 22:50; Hal Chase, 108th, 23:15.

Charlevoix will host Petoskey Tuesday; travel to East Jordan Thursday and to the Petoskey Invitational Saturday.

Doug Bergmann

Runners get workout

The Charlevoix Rayder harriers ran at Boyne City Tuesday but the Ramblers did not have enough runners for a team so participants ran only to post times.

Boyne City's Hartman placed first with a time of 16:38 over the Ramblers' new course.

The times of the other participants were:

Mike DeSchryver (BC) 16:42; Gehry Wiesner (Cx) 17:03; Dylan Stewart (Cx) 18:43; Jerry Thayer (Cx) 19:42; Tim Henne (Cx) 19:42; Jon Terry (Cx) 20:15; R. Fisher (BC) 20:19; Hal Chase (Cx) 21:08; Matt Schnackenberg (Cx) 21:20; P. Balgenorth (BC) 23:37; Jacob Smith (Cx) 24:19.

In the girls division, Katie Vickers (BC) had a time of 21:45 and Elizabeth Force (BC) came in at 25:24.

Charlevoix will be at the Petoskey Invitational meet on Saturday, Sept. 27.

Freshmen down Boyne

The Charlevoix Rayder freshman football team posted an 18-6 win over Boyne City in their second game of the season Wed., Sept. 17.

Their first touchdown came midway in the first period on a 12-yard run by James Corwin. The scoring play was set up by a 68-yard pass from Greg Lewis to Chad DeYoung that put the ball within scoring range.

It wasn't until the second half that another pass play from Lewis to DeYoung, this one for 59 yards, gave the Rayders a second scoring opportunity.

James Corwin, behind some fine blocking, broke away for a 60-yard romp to add the final TD.

Boyne City scored its lone TD in the final period.

Pat Elliott played well on defense, Coach Erik Lundteigen said, adding that the team did well for this early in the season. "This is their first experience as a team. I think they are doing a good job," he added.

Elliott, Dan Clock and John Finney had pass interceptions and Elliott and Clock had fumble recoveries, Lunteigen said.

The team will travel to Kalkaska next Wednesday.

Boosters pick new officers

James Tilton was elected president of the Charlevoix Sports Boosters at a meeting held recently. He succeeds Larry Lemerand.

Nick DeYoung was named vice president. Carolyn Havens will continue as secretary-treasurer for another year. The others were elected to two-year terms.

It was announced that there are a limited number of Charlevoix Trivia games for sale. Interested persons may contact Havens or a member of the organization.

The organization is presently contemplating the purchase of a video camera for taping athletic events and turf maintenance equipment for the football field which will be renovated at the close of the current season.

The concession stand, which has been moved to the west side of the playing field, is being readied and will be open for the first home game of the season on Oct. 3.

The next meeting of the Boosters will be held at the concession stand on Thursday, Oct. 2.

Flag football begins, Dolphins, Raiders win

The Charlevoix flag football league opened its season last Wednesday with the Dolphins winning over the Bears 18-6 and the Raiders shutting out the Panthers 22-0.

The teams will return to the gridiron Wednesday with the Raiders and the Dolphins clashing at 6 p.m. and the Bears and the Panthers meeting at 7 p.m.

The Dolphins jumped to a 12-0 lead in the second period with Dan Terryberry scoring on a 30-yard run and later in the period passing to Ryan Smith who scored on the 20-yard play.

Eric McElroy put the Bears on the board early in the final period on a 5-yard plunge to trim the score to 12-6 before Terryberry added the Dolphins' final TD on a 5-yard plunge.

In the Raider-Panther game, the Raiders scored on a run, two pass interceptions and a safety.

A 20-yard jaunt by Dan Boss scored the first touchdown before Joe Prevo scored on a 17-yard run after picking off a Panther pass and Paul Wakulat scored on a 20-yard pass interception. Wakulat scored the extra points after the first two TD's.

B.J. VanLoo added a safety in the second period as the Raiders coasted to the win.

toilets and from funds raised through Tax Increment Financing.

In othe action, council:

–Reviewed favorably a DNR permit request from Eldon Johnson to remove four wood docks on the north end of Round Lake and replace them with two 80-foot docks. Probert was the only council member to oppose the plan, so no formal objection will be filed with the DNR.

–Heard a request from Don Hufford of CPI to have the city share the cost of relocating a phone box to make room for a driveway to Hufford's new plant in the Industrial Park. Council asked City Manager Michael Wiesner and Hufford to try and have the phone company remove the box at no cost.

–Received a list of bids on the new snow plow. Wiesner told council no decision on the bids had been reached yet.

Community Pantry changes hours

The Charlevoix Community Food Pantry has changed its hours of operation. The new hours for the Pantry are from 10 a.m. to noon, Monday and Thursday. In cases of emergency, people can call the Rainbow Shoppe at 547-2815.

The Community Food Pantry is sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association and is housed in the Charlevoix Congregational Church on the corner of State and Park streets.

The Pantry is run in conjunction with the Department of Social Services to serve Charlevoix area residents in need of food. Similar assistance programs are run in Boyne City and East Jordan. East Jordan residents should call Walter Goebel Sr. (536-2924) who works through the Health Center on Bridge Street.

Boyne City people should call Mrs. Kenneth West (582-9197) in cases of emergency or go to the Community Services Center on Park Street on Tuesdays from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m.

Prodigal daughter returns

those pills. Getting Jim back on the boat was no easy matter. He couldn't raise his arms or pull himself up, but he was a real trouper and, despite the pain, got on board.

Fred was beside himself. "The whole trip has been a disaster," he moaned. I tried to assure him we were all having a wonderful time, but he wasn't listening to anything by this time.

The radio only needed a fuse and was quickly back in working order. We were all exhausted. We slept on the boat tied to the dock. End of Day Two.

Fred was up at 5 a.m. He and Harry had us out of the harbor and into the lake before I could button my jeans. Jim was stiff, but in good spirits.

When I arrived on deck, a thick fog had surrounded us. "I can't understand it. It was clear in the harbor," Fred said. We were skirting the shoreline and coming up on the Manitou Islands. "What time does the sun come up?" John asked.

"It is up," I said.

A large blast from a boat whistle, that seemed to be ten feet away, brought me to my feet directly. I flew down into the cabin yelling that there was a very large ship directly off the port side and we were likely to crash in the fog. I dug out the fog horn and Fred raised a gold metallic ball up the mast to make us more visible to radar. I did not feel at ease; those ore boats are huge.

Four more ships passed us – some closer than others, and one fishing trawler dashed in front of us only 100 feet away. It seems we were near the passageway of the huge ore boats going up to Sault Ste. Marie or Marquette, Mich. to pick up iron ore which was delivered to Chicago and other cities.

Just as we approached the Traverse City area, we came out of the fog with an ore boat alongside us. What a shock. I had forgotten just how huge those boats are. This one was at least 600 feet long. The hulls are rounded and they move at an incredible speed – at least it seemed so compared to our speed.

The sun was out and the wind picked up. "Let's sail," Fred yelled. "Man the halyards." He loved the jargon. John and I tugged on the halyards and raised the mainsail, fastening the rope on the wenches.

The wind caught the sail when it was halfway up and it took all our strength to hold the ropes. For the first time we were actually sailing or at least keeling heavily into the wind. Fred was screaming "clockwise" at me to fasten the ropes. The ropes were slipping because I did not have the strength to hold them.

"It is clockwise," I shouted.

"Oh, right. Sorry, little fella," he patted me on the head.

Our main problem was the wind, which was coming directly at us. We tacked all over the lake but ended up going backward.

I found that one of the most difficult maneuvers in sailing is using the bathroom when someone changes abruptly from a port to a starboard tack. I never found out how the men managed, but I was grateful the room was small enough to brace myself on all walls.

It was wonderful to take the wheel under full sail with the boat leaning into the water and the wind pushing the boat at full speed. It took almost as much power to hold the wheel as to raise the sails. Web had met several people at the marinas who sailed alone and I just couldn't imagine how they did it. The day was gorgeous, but sailing was just too difficult; the currents and winds were against us.

"This is impossible," Fred said.

We lowered the sails and motored up the Leelenau Peninsula, around the point, and headed straight into Charlevoix. We approached the channel entrance to the harbor in early evening. All the boats were coming in off the lake as the sun was lowering. Just ahead of us was a Canadian square rigger, about 80 feet long. A second square rigger, looking almost identical, pulled into the channel just behind us. Kids were scrambling all over the rigging and hanging precariously over the sails. These sister ships were training boats which took teen-agers on two-week training sessions all over the Great Lakes. The only people on the ships over 18-years-old, were the captains.

The bridge opened, stopping all the traffic in town, and our long procession sailed through. People lined the harbor to see this sight and Fred was beaming at the wheel.

We motored down Lake Charlevoix to the home of my mother, Irene de Castro, and blasted the horn. She had waited three days for us to arrive and had gotten bored and gone to bed.

We slept on real beds that night. I can't even remember turning out the lights, but everything seemed to be leaning sideways. End of Day Three.

The next day we toured the town and the crew prepared to leave again. I would stay on and the others would sail back. In the morning we waved from the dock and Harry, in a voice which boomed out over the lake, led the crew in three choruses of "Goodbye, Irene" to the tune of Good Night, Irene" for my mother. That's what you get when you are named Irene.

Fred called when he returned to Wisconsin. The weather and the sail back had been terrific. "I've decided to take another navigation course this winter," he said in a rather merry tone.

"Well, what has changed the tide for you?" I asked, remembering how disappointed he had been earlier. "A bigger boat. I want to get certified on a 40-foot sloop so we can go faster. Get ready, little fella," he said loudly.

I watched the stars for a long time that night. I just kept wondering if those ore boats could see a 40-foot boat easier than a 30-foot boat in the fog.

By a spinnaker

Yachting Notes

BY A. NONY MOUSE

The United States Yacht Racing Union's Rules state that a boat "finishes its race when any part of her crew, hull or equipment crosses the finish line." The "any part" of the boat could include a bowsprit, boom, sail, or if the yacht were sailing backward, its ensign.

On Wednesday, Sept. 17, this rule was employed as two very competitive Santanas, Bandit and Mud Duck, duked it out for nearly two hours on Lake Charlevoix and crossed the finish line with the race committee calling it dead even. At the last second, however, Bandit's spinnaker, filled and ballooned further forward and was thus declared the winner.

Mud Duck's skipper, Tom Bickersteth, displayed his usuel poker-faced insouciance when informed of the race committee's decision and simply vowed to "be back next week."

We have now concluded the first half of the Fall Series. That leaves us only three more races from which to select our best five finishes in the fleet-wide frenzy to win a flag.

Finishing positions for Fleet I: Charlie Brown, Pygmalion, Traveller, Gotcha, Flying Machine, Reckless, Columbine, Tigger, and Plastic Fantastic.

Fleet II: Wing Nut, Merry Hell II, Bandit, and Mud Duck.

Fleet III: Cygnus, Blasen III, Tireless, Nulli-Secundus, Spectre, and SanSueShe.

Fleet IV (JAM): Ribit, Flash, and Kittiwake.

Fleet V (JAM): Stalworth, Phoenicia, Cheemaun, Coolwhip, Sandpiper, Apothecary, Maureen, and the fleet's newest sloop, a beautiful Sabre 28 with Jim Mielke at the helm.

Charlevoix County tries for new solid waste management plan

by PEG OHLE

Some problems just never seem to go away. Garbage (more nicely called "solid waste") is one of them.

For the third time since it was established in 1971, the Charlevoix County Planning Department will soon oversee the writing of a county Solid Waste Management Plan.

In 1975, the Planning Department, under the direction of Planner Bill Mercer, prepared and sent to the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) a comprehensive plan for disposing of the estimated 21,000 tons of solid waste then generated yearly in the county.

At that time, there were three sanitary landfills in the county: one operated by Boyne City, one operated by East Jordan, and one operated by the Charlevoix Garbage Service in Eveline Township. There were also three modified dumps in the county: one in Boyne Valley Township, one in Melrose Township, and one on Beaver Island. The Charlevoix Garbage Service Landfill was the only one approved by the DNR, which regulates landfills.

Because the Charlevoix landfill was the only approved landfill, the 1975 County Solid Waste Management Plan called for using the other landfills and dumps as transfer stations. Waste collected at these transfer stations would be transported to the Charlevoix landfill.

The plan was never implemented. Time went on. The DNR changed its rules and regulations for landfill operation and put pressure on local units of government to close its unapproved landfills and dumps.

By 1980, it became evident that the county needed a new Solid Waste Management Plan to meet with state specifications. Accordingly, as required by law, a committee of county residents was appointed to work with County Planner Larry Sullivan to produce a new plan.

This committee consisted of County Commissioner Lee Moerland, representing county government; Dennis Jason, Regional Planning Commission; Oscar Ward, city government; Junior Hunt, township government; Larry Levengood and John Frey, environmental interests; Bruce Malpass, William Marme, Jr., Dawson Way, and Clarence Smith, solid waste haulers and-or operators of disposal sites; and Ralph Richardson, Tom Wieland, and Tim Clifton, members-at-large.

After holding working meetings for two years, the committee completed its work in 1982. By the end of that year, the new Solid Waste Management Plan had received the blessing of the County Board and the required number of townships to put it into effect locally.

The Plan was sent to the DNR for approval, which came after many months of delay. In 1984, Charlevoix County published this Solid Waste Management Plan in a 75-page document, which at the time appeared workable for several years to come. Briefly, the plan called for:

Continuing use of the Charlevoix Garbage Service Landfill in Eveline Township; shipping waste to landfills in Kalkaska and Crawford Counties; mini transfer stations in the Boyne City, East Jordan, and Charlevoix areas; a major transfer station near the Charlevoix Garbage Landfill or somewhere along M-66; continuing use of green box transfer stations in Boyne Valley and Melrose Townships; and either a modular incinerator or a lined landfill on Beaver Island.

Now, all the landfills in the county, with the exception of the Charlevoix landfill, and all the dumps, with the exception of the one on Beaver Island, have been closed because of potential health hazards. So has the landfill in Kalkaska, and the landfill in Crawford County is operating marginally. Transfer boxes are being used in Boyne Valley and Melrose Townships.

Although the Charlevoix landfill for some time has been under fire by residents and officials of Eveline Township because of alleged health hazards, it remains the only licensed landfill not only in Charlevoix County, but in northern Michigan, with the exception of one in Montmorency County and one in Leelanau County. As a result, waste haulers from neighboring counties as well as those in Charlevoix County are daily dumping refuse into this one disposal site.

It is because of this situation that Charlevoix County, through its Planning Department, is now undertaking the writing of a new plan to deal with the problem of solid waste disposal. In the light of changing times, it will probably have to consider alternatives to landfills – incineration, recycling – perhaps even on a regional basis. Just about this time last year, the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments, meeting on Beaver Island, discussed the possibility of shipping garbage by rail to Ferris State College and Central Michigan University for incineration and production of energy.

This third Charlevoix County Solid Waste Management Plan may look into similar possibilities. County Planner Sullivan reports that within the next year, a $30 million solid waste incinerating plant will start operation in Jackson to provide energy for Jackson State Prison.

This will be the first such plant in the state and its operation will be watched closely to observe air pollution problems, operating costs, and other features. Such an opertion would be possible in northern Michigan only if at least six counties joined in the effort, according to Sullivan.

The committee appointed to help write the plan will be announced soon.

Class of '36 meets for 50th

The class of 1936 of the Charlevoix High School gathered recently at the Grey Gables Inn for its 50th reunion.

Bob Pearl, a member of the planning committee, served as master of ceremonies at the informal program. Ray Kipke, former coach and teacher, and Mrs. Kipke, attended as guests.

Third row: Marguerite McRae Smith, Jean Zeitler LaFreniere, Rosemary Swanson Boutwell, Adeline Bellinger Wallem, Gloria Dickie DeYoung, Hilda Roen Asher, Esther West Ballard.

Back row: Marshall O'Neill, John Clarke, Floyd Eccleston, Bruce Trimble, Adolph Ecklund.

Members came from Florida, California, Iowa, Wisconsin and numerous Michigan cities. Of the class of 49 members 29 of the 39 living members attended the reunion.

Planners to gather at Boyne Mountain

The Michigan Society of Planning Officials will hold its 41st Annual Educational Conference October 2-4 at Boyne Mountain Lodge, Boyne Falls. The Conference theme is "Federal, State, Regional and Local Planning Roles: Cooperation or Competition?"

In addition to six early-bird sessions and 18 workshops, Gordon Guyer, the new director of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources will be the keynote speaker. There will be a Friday luncheon debate.

There will be a Friday afternoon point-counterpoint discussion on "Free-market Zoning versus Control of Planning and Zoning at the Municipal Level." Robert Nelson, author of "Zoning and Property Rights," will present the free-market approach. A Federal Exchange Fellow at the Brookings Institute, Nelson is on leave from the US Department of Interior Office of Policy Analysis. Phil Schaefer, attorney with the Kalamazoo firm of Bauckham, Reed, Lang, Schaefer, Sparks & Rolfe, is the Legal Counsel for the Michigan Township Association. Schaefer will present arguments for continued control of planning and zoning at the local government level.

The Michigan Society of Planning Officials is a 2,750 member organization composed primarily of local planning and zoning commissioners. The conference registration rate for early registration is $75 for MSPO Members and $95 for non-members. Spouses are welcome.

For more information or a free preliminary conference program, write MSPO, P.O. Box 8099, Rochester, MI 48308-8099 or call (313) 651-3339.

Grange installs new officers

The Barnard Grange was the site recently of the installation of officers in the Charlevoix-Antrim County Pomona Grange District. Alton and Ruth Wheaton, former Petoskey residents, Jack and Betty Luebke of Petoskey and Bertha Parsons of Charlevoix, pianist, officiated at the installation ceremony.

Officers and members from the Barnard, Torch Lake and Peninsula Granges were in attendance and officers of the subordinate Granges and Pomona Grange were installed.

Norman Empey was installed as master of the Barnard Grange. The other officers are: Jack Stebe, overseer; Beverly Smith, secretary; Charles Dhaseleer, treasurer; Donna Stevens, lecturer; Dudley Stevens, steward; Bill Stevens, assistant steward; Kay Empey, lady assistant steward; Mary Warner, chaplain; Dan Stolt, gatekeeper; Catherine Stebe, Flora; Josephine Stutzman, Ceres and Lucy Stolt, Pomona.

Charlevoix-Antrim County Grange officers who assumed their duties are Jack Luebke, master; Jack Stebe, overseer; Norman Empey, steward; Bill Stevens, assistant steward; Donna Stevens, lady assistant steward; Gerry Lackman, lecturer; Mrs. Stebe, chaplain; Lewis Yoder, gatekeeper; Mrs. Luebke, secretary; Marion Grutsch, treasurer; Mrs. Empey, Ceres; Claudia Grutsch, Pomona and Mrs. Sandeen, Flora.

Torch Lake officers installed were: Myrtle Yoder, master; Walter Coats, overseer; Alyce Keaton, steward; Lewis Yoder assistant steward; Ruth Coats, lady assistant steward; Gerry Lachman, lecturer; Margy Dean, chaplain; Webb Templin, gatekeeper; Lucy Sendeen, secretary; Jeannette Milligan, treasurer; Ethel Commerville, Ceres; Heather Knust, Pomona and Gerry Detwiler, Flora.

A potluck supper preceded the installation ceremonies.

Barnard hosts Grange campout

The Barnard Grange hosted a Grange Youth Campout at the site of the Grange Hall recently with members from Hart and Grand Rapids joining Charlevoix members for the weekend.

Because of the floods in mid-Michigan, some did not arrive until late Friday and others were detained until Saturday.

Most activities were held Saturday beginning with practice marching for the Rose drill and degree work to be held in Grand Rapids Oct. 15-19. Later in the day the members hiked the nature trail in the Fisherman's Island State Park and in the evening went bowling at the Victory Lanes in Petosky.

After breakfast and another rehearsal session Sunday morning, the campers packed up and returned to their respective homes.

The campers expressed their appreciation to senior Grange members for allowing them to camp at the site of the Grange hall.

CHASING A DREAM

A prodigal daughter fulfills lifelong ambition to sail into Charlevoix

Susan de Castro, currently special sections editor for the Daily Times Call of Longmont, Colo., grew up in Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School. She always harbored a secret desire to return by sailing through the Charlevoix channel. This past summer she got her chance when her brother organized a sailing trip from Wisconsin to Charlevoix where they visited their mother, Mrs. Irene de Castro who still lives on shores of Lake Charlevoix.

The following article first appeared in the Daily Times Call and is reprinted here with permission of the publisher and author.

by SUSAN de CASTRO

Sailing has always been a lifetime dream of mine – perhaps even a passion.

I grew up in a small town of unusual natural beauty on the northeastern shore of Lake Michigan. The center of the town is a natural harbor for yachts and fishing boats, which enter the harbor by a channel and through a bridge that opens every half-hour in the summer stopping traffic for blocks on the main street.

My brother is 12 years older than I am, and we grew up somewhat separately on the beach watching the sailboats and fishing trawlers come into the harbor. We sat on the docks and watched the fishermen mend their nets on huge windmill-type racks as the seagulls dove for fish. It was always our dream to sail into the yacht harbor from some great adventure.

Last summer, Fred decided enough time for dreaming had passed. One evening when we were home, sitting on the old docks watching the boats, he said he wanted to rent a sailboat and sail from Wisconsin across Lake Michigan to our house in Charlevoix.

What a wonderful idea, I thought. "Let's do it."

Fred spent the winter taking courses in navigation, reserving the 30-foot sloop from a marina in Manitowoc, Wisc., rounding up a crew and planning every minute detail, which he is prone to do. My sister and I had nicknamed him "Captain Bly" years ago because of his somewhat overbearing authoritative manner, which brothers tend to have. I knew it would be a miracle if we managed to sail across the lake without one of us pounding the other into a pulp.

"You're the cook," he told me weeks earlier.

"I'm not the cook, you can cook your own food," I said.

"What are you, then?" he asked slyly.

"Helmsman," I said with authority.

"Helmsman, that's ridiculous. You can't navigate your way out of a paper bag," he said.

"We both know it's only a matter of reading a compass," I said.

"Oh sure," he said with a smirk, walking away somewhat amused.

To this day I have no idea how Fred picked the crew. We were indeed an unlikely lot and not particularly seaworthy.

Harry, the Lutheran minister, was a retired chaplain from a boys' reform school in Milwaukee. He was a sturdily built fellow with lots of blond curly hair and rather well packed into bermuda shorts and tank top. Jim, the pharmicsist from Minneapolis, wore his clothes loosely and had a quiet, easy-going manner. John, the blacksmith from Boulder, had a slender muscular build. He was quizzical, friendly and interested in everything. Fred, the captain and mechanical engineer, lived in Milwaukee. He had a large frame, lean build and a tendency to shout a lot. He wore a hearing aid and thought no one else could hear either. The only woman on board was me – a tall, fuzzy-haired journalist from Longmont, Colo. Each of us had some sort of minor sailing experience but none of us had sailed across a lake this size.

We all met in Manitowoc in mid-July. The ship was called the "Valhalla" and I hoped it did not mean we were all on our way to a Viking heaven, sailing in flames into the sunset, like in the movies.

It was early afternoon and extremely hot. The young man from the marina showed us all the features of the boat. It slept five in rather cramped quarters. John and I were assigned the most cramped area, the bow, for sleeping because we were the smallest, or at least the leanest. The tiny bathroom was a curious contraption. "Don't put anything in the toilet you have not eaten first," the marina guide told us. I reflected on that for awhile.

Fred was getting anxious to get underway. The marina guide ran out to the dock and told us a storm front was brewing just north of us. He said we should listen to the weather station on the radio. "No problem," I yelled. "We'll ride it out." He rolled his eyes and walked away.

Fred yelled, "Harry, give us a push and jump on." Harry pushed but neglected to jump. Suddenly he became a bridge with his toes on the dock and his fingers on the boat. With a loud splash our Lutheran minister was in the drink hanging on to the edge of the boat. We rushed to his aid and pulled him on. Dripping wet, Harry was good natured about the spill.

We set sail for Frankfort, Mich., about 76 miles across on a slight diagonal. From there we would sail north along the coast past Traverse City to Charlevoix, another 76 miles. The trip was to take approximately 24 hours.

The crew of the Valhalla in Manitowoc.

A breeze came up and the clouds darkened on the horizon. The Coast Guard issued small craft warnings for all the counties north of us. The breeze stiffened the sails as we headed into the wind. Fred was determinedly navigating our course from the cabin and Jim was at the wheel. I had developed a great respect for the lakes and had known many ships to do down in the violent storms that plagued the lakes.

The sky darkened and the Coast Guard was calling all small crafts off the lakes from Manitowoc County. Suddenly, as I had seen happen so many times before, a dead calm came over the lake – nothing moved.

"I think we should take down the sails," said Jim.

"I think you're right," I said. We all scrambled. I knew we had 10 minutes. And right as rain, I was. The wind came at us with a vengeance. We turned around and headed straight for shore.

We were only two hours out from shore, but it took us forever to get back. We put harnesses on and clamped ourselves to the shrouds (wires holding the main mast). I realized for the first time how valuable these contraptions are when the boat started keeling at a 90-degree angle, about to toss us out.

Actually, I loved it. I knew the boat wasn't going to tip over even when the waves washed over the side.

At the marina everyone was waving their arms frantically. "Throw us the ropes," the attendants yelled, and tied us to the dock. They had tried to call us back on the radio. As we walked to the marina, I heard on of the attendants say in a mocking tone, "Ride it out."

It was evening and the rain came in torrents. Harry decided to dry his money and wallet in the microwave at the marina, but fried his driver's license in the process. Fred was pacing the dock, brooding. The plans were perfect, but the weather wasn't. The Coast Guard said the storm could last two days. We all slept on the boat, which was tied to the dock. End of Day One.

We were all up at dawn. The weather had cleared and we were off at 6 a.m. There was no wind – not even a breeze. The men all downed their seasick pills and put patches of something behind their ears to ward off seasickness. I abstained.

The day was hot. Harry and I traded off at the wheel; we swatted flies and swapped stories. John hung up his hammock and Jim and Fred charted the course. Hours passed.

Fourteen hours and 10,000 dead flies later we pulled into the harbor at Frankfort, Mich. Top speed motoring across the lake was 4.5 knots. Our radio went dead and the depth gauge wasn't working either so we decided to dock and make some repairs.

We approached the dock and Jim jumped off crashing full force into the dock with his chest, breaking a rib. He was in intense pain.

We managed to get Jim to a hospital located on top of a massive hill. We huffed and puffed our way up. The doctor in very short order told him what we already knew and said he would be in pain for about two weeks. The doctor offered Jim a large assortment of drugs. But Jim, being a pharmacist, declined, which made me wonder what was really in

Official school count up for first time since 1976

by FRAN MARTIN

The official statistics are in and the number of children in Charlevoix schools is up by 46 over 1985.

The official tally, done the fourth Friday of the school year for state assistance programs, shows most of the change came in the elementary grades where there was an increase of 33.

This year there were 1,349 students registered on the fourth Friday compared to 1,303 in 1985.

It is the first increase in school size since 1976 when 1,789 students were enrolled.

School superintendent Gordon W. VanWieren, said other schools in the area were experiencing a similar trend. "It could be attributed to the increase in the birth rate or to new people of child-bearing age moving into the area," VanWieren said.

Wieren was not sure if the trend would continue. "However, at the present time, we have hired qualified teachers as aides until a determination can be made regarding this trend," he added.

This year the elementary school has added two certified teachers as aides to the kindergarten classes.

A breakdown of the enrollment figures by schools shows an increase of 33 in the elementary school with the largest increase in the third grade (21) and in the kindergarten and fourth grade (11 and 9, respectively). The fifth grade had a decrease of 11 students.

There were 560 students in the elementary school in 1986 compared to 527 in 1985.

In the middle school the enrollment increased by 10, from 283 to 293. The seventh grade increased by 28 students, while the eight grade declined by 24.

At the high school numbers in the ninth and tenth grades remained fairly stable while the 11th grade showed a decrease of 14 and the senior class increased by 37.

The number of students enrolled in part-time or special education programs has not been calculated for 1986 but is included in the fourth Friday head count. In 1985 there were four part-time students and 13 in special education.

THE ENROLLMENT AT St. Mary parochial school dropped by 11 students to 70 in the first through sixth grades. While 12 students left last year's sixth grade to attend public school this year, they were replaced by the same number of first graders.

The difference is primarily in the fourth and sixth grades where there are eight fewer students and in the second grade where there are three less. The third grade showed an increase of seven.

BEAVER ISLAND Community School, which services kindergarten through the 12th grade, showed a decline of 10 students this year.

Kathleen McNamara, school principal, said she felt the decrease was probably due to smaller families and the instability of the population on the island.

"There is little industry here," she said. "Families come to the island they can't find work so they move away."

The enrollment in K-6 decreased by nine while the junior and senior group declined by only one.

The island school offers a full curriculum and is staffed with qualified teachers at all levels.

NEW NURSING HOME PLAN

Liberatore Health Care, Inc. of Columbus, Ohio this week released an artist's rendering of the planned Charlevoix Health Care Center. State approval of the health center proposal is expected on or before Oct. 29, Ralph McRae, local representative for Liberatore, said.

The nursing home, if approved, will be located on West Upright Street across from the medical building and near the Charlevoix Area Hospital. It will be a one story brick colonial design with semi-private and private rooms. All beds will be certified for Medicaid and Medicare participation. Each room will have individual call-alert systems and individual temperature control. Amenities will include a beauty-berber salon, physical therapy clinic, several lounges, activities room, inhouse laundry and chapel.

Hoffmann Park, fish display approved

by DOUG TRUAX

City Council approved plans Monday for a walkway and viewing platforms in Hoffmann Park between Park Avenue and the Pine River channel.

The land, donated by the late Walter Hoffmann, will be improved by the addition of a central concrete and brick walkway with three viewing and sitting areas.

Plans call for a semi-circular sitting space at the entrance on Park Avenue. Farther down the pathway there will be a circular sitting area with benches. A final deck will overlook the channel and have a seating-wall built with stone from the foundation of Hoffmann's former home which occupied the site.

City Planner Gerry Harsch told council Monday that the plans for the steps below the overlook deck had been revised after review by the Downtown Development Authority (DDA). The new plan calls for a system of steps and sitting areas built of treated lumber. The previous plan, which contained railings, was thought to protrude too much, Harsch explained.

Council authorized Harsch to obtain cost estimates and bids on the project.

It also approved plans for a commercial fishing display to be built on city property near the corner of the Pine River channel and Round Lake, north of the Beaver Island Boat Company office.

The display will include an interpretive display of commercial fishing in the Charlevoix area on a concrete pad. Next to it will be commercial fishing nets and reels donated by Cross Fisheries.

Council asked that the number of net reels be reduced from four to three.

The design and much of the construction of Hoffmann Park and the fish display will be paid for by a state Coastal Zone Management grant.

THE ISSUE OF toilets and a gazebo in the park north of Burnsides was raised again during the council meeting.

After hearing from several persons, council agreed to postpone any further discussion of the issue to its next working session in two weeks.

Gene Bridge, former resident and son of former mayor Robert Bridge, spoke against any structure in the park.

"Don't take one foot of the grass away after it was so hard to get," Bridge said. He urged council to hold off making a decision while other alternatives were weighed.

Bridge said people did not appreciate "the sweat and the tears" that went into acquiring the land for the park. Council should try to acquire more land on the west side of Bridge Street, he noted, rather than building anything to obscure the view.

Bridge said he was speaking for the oldtimers in Charlevoix who remembered the history of the park. His father, Bridge said, would have fought any man-made structure on the grass, but would probably not have objected to a rest room in the old sewage plant next to the Mesquite mooring.

IN OTHER ACTION, council approved a 30-foot by 40-foot addition to Wilmot Electric on Taylor Road.

–Authorized purchase of a new Ford plow truck from Delta Ford of Bay City. The new truck, which will cost $44,501, will be equipped with a Ford turbo diesel engine.

–Approved a change order of $472 to the contract for the Public Safety Building for additional costs in the purchase and installation of fuel tanks.

–Voiced no objection to the transfer of a liquor license from Crown Drug Center, Inc. to the Muir Company of Harrisburg, Penn.

–Discussed the lack of any attempt by Techlin Corp. to construct apartment buildings on Petoskey Avenue. Council approved a rezoning for the property on Oct. 7, 1985. City Manager Michael Wiesner said, and the authorization will run out on the same date of this year. City Attorney Jeffery VanTreese told council he would research the issue prior to the next meeting. Councilman Norm Probert and Mayor Hal Hill argued that the city should receive prepayment of sewer costs before construction is allowed to begin.

–Councilwoman Shirley Roloff questioned Robert Kern of the Rotary Club concerning the upcom-

Educating the Gifted

by DOUG TRUAX

This week the Charlevoix Courier begins a three-part series on educating "the best and the brightest" of today's students. While the disadvantaged and the handicapped and the problem student often draw the attention of educators and the public, the challenge of educating the gifted is equally important.

Many of the next generation's leaders, artists, scientists and businessmen will come from this group of talented individuals. How well we educate them could have an effect on how well we manage the future.

The series will look at ways the Charlevoix schools are coping with the education of the talented and gifted students and examine those solutions in the context of state and national programs.

Nancy Johnson has allowed her rather sizable frame to come to rest in front of the audience of teachers, administrators and parents.

Her rollicking, comedic style has brought the the crowd right where she wants it. They are following her every word, in rapt attention. Loose and happy.

Her voice falls to almost a whisper. "If we allow them, gifted kids will be a tonic and a cure for what ails us in education," she murmurs with all the charm of a bible-belt preacher, drawing on her southern Indiana drawl to give her words the right liquidity.

Johnson is an educational consultant, what they call in the business a motivator. Her specialty is the gifted and she does see salvation in her message – salvation for the

Courier given state awards

The Charlevoix Courier was given six awards in statewide newspaper contest, the Michigan Press Association (MPA) announced last week.

Results of the annual press contest were announced to coincide with National Newspaper Week, Oct. 5-11.

The Courier received first place in it's circulation class (5,000 or less) for local news reporting. The award was given for a series of stories done by editor Doug Truax on condominiums proposed for the Charlevoix area.

The newspaper also received second place among all weekly newspapers in the spot news photography category for a series of photos by Truax of a fire at East Jordan Plastics on July 4, 1985.

The Charlevoix Courier received third place in its circulation class for its editorial page of Feb. 12, 1986. The page included an editorial, "Charlevoix Township should say no to rezoning," urging voters in a township referendum to vote against the rezoning of Water's Edge for multifamily housing.

The newspaper was also given an honorable mention in the general excellence category, and it received two honorable mentions for special sections on the Charlevoix Industrial Fair and a Christmas receipe contest.

Earlier this summer the paper was given second place for feature photography in its circulation class in a nationwide contest sponsored by the National Newspaper Association. The award was given for Truax's photographs of the Charlevoix Apple Festival.

The Charlevoix Courier was also picked as a 1986 blue ribbon newspaper by the National Newspaper Association, an award reserved for the top community newspapers in the country.

"It is gratifying to receive recognition for our work at the Courier," Truax said. "We have a small staff, but they are all extremely dedicated to bringing the Charlevoix area the best product possible. This is confirmation of their fine effort."

Truax also said he was pleased that the awards recognized the newspaper's efforts to present objective news coverage and forceful editorials on the Water's Edge controversy. That coverage led to a limited boycott of the Courier by several advertisers last spring.

Winners of the general excellence awards for weekly newspapers in the MPA contest were the Birmingham Eccentric (class A), the Novi News (class B) and the South Lyon Herald (class C).

Daily newspapers winning the top award were the Detroit Free Press, the Port Huron Times Herald and the Sturgis Journal.

The judges, members of the Kansas Press Association, chose from among 1,562 entries submitted by 81 weekly newspapers and 44 dailies.

ing "Circus of the Stars." Roloff said, she had been approached by professional fund-raisers who said the Rotary would get only 10 percent of the proceeds of the advance ticket sales.

She questioned the propriety of using professional fund-raisers when advance publicity on the event suggested that local high school students would be selling tickets.

Kern explained that the professional fund-raisers were necessary because of the shortage of manpower. He said the circus was "a class act" and the local Rotary Club was assured of making at least $1,250 on it. The sale of tickets by the fund-raisers, Kern added, would assure at least 40 retarded children of attending the circus free.

Charlevoix Yesterday

This picture postcard of Charlevoix dates back to one-cent postage days. The building at the corner of Bridge and Antrim Streets was then the home of S. M. See Furniture Company. Charlevoix women speak their minds:

Women report career gains, family relationship losses

by PEG OHLE

American women today have more choices in their lives than ever before. They are freer to do what they want to do than were their mothers, making it possible for them to feel they are in control of their lives.

Changes of the last 20 years have brought more gains than losses in their relationships with men and in their jobs and careers. However, these changes have also brought more losses than gains in their relationships with children and family.

These are just a few of the views expressed recently by a group of Charlevoix women who replied to a questionnaire presented by Mary Frame, local marital counselor and family therapist.

But just because women have more choices, they are not necessarily happier than were women 20 years ago, the group believes. Just about half of them thought they were happier and the rest thought they were less happy. They also thought that women's lives were more complicated today but also more fulfilling.

So far as marriage is concerned, the women thought the attitude most women have toward marriage is realistic. When it comes to choosing a man to marry, they said they believed it is somewhat important to marry a man who makes a lot of money or has the potential to do so.

They also believe it is important or somewhat important to marry a man with the same leisure activities as they have. However, they overwhelmingly stated that it is important to marry a man of the same religious beliefs and values.

When it comes to sharing responsibilities, this group of women sees the ideal marriage as one in which the husband shares responsibility for earning money and taking care of home and children over one who supports the wife while she takes care of home and children, or the husband who, himself, takes care of home and children.

As to careers and marriage, those questioned agree that a young woman who marries without living on her own for a while misses out on an important stage of life. They also agree that it is a big mistake to see marriage as the main way to financial security. For women who have chosen a career and not marriage, they feel sympathy when she suddenly realizes there is more to life than a job.

Expectations for marriage differ among those questioned. They believe that women expect too little from men in taking care of home and children but they expect about the right amount of sex. On the other hand, men expect too much from women in taking care of home and children, as well as too much sex. All in all, these women agree that men have gained more than women in the last 20 years because women now help support families but men have not taken on comparable responsibilities at home.

The majority believe women have made some progress into well-paying jobs, but also believe that women sometimes have to play down their feminity to get ahead on their jobs.

With it all, they appear to be happy in their marriages. They say it was very easy for them to decide to marry, and they believe they married for the right reasons. Also, if they had to do it over again, most of them said they would marry the same man.

Perhaps because they were an older group, most of these Charlevoix women said they feel like they are their husband's partner (compared with lover, mother, sister, or housekeeper). Housekeeper was second. Their deference to their husband is indicated by saying they had often put aside their feelings to please their husband, even when they resented doing so. Their dependence on their husband is indicated by saying they would be barely able to support themselves if divorced.

Most women questioned said they had what they considered the ideal number of children, which was three. Others said they thought the ideal number was two, four or more, one, and none, in that order. Deciding to have children today is very complicated, they overwhelmingly agreed, because of the uncertainty of world affairs, the cost of having children, the lack of availability and poor quality of child care, the effect of having a child on a woman's career, and the difficulty of raising a child.

To make child-rearing easier, members of the group overwhelmingly agreed that men should take day-to-day responsibility of caring for children, but they realize most men are not willing to do so. In raising children, girls and boys should be taught to have the same goals, they also overwhelmingly agreed.

Addressing the problem of working mothers, the group said that women who stay at home to take care of their children are not more respected than other women – they are equally respected or, in some cases, they are less respected. They believe it is unfair to make working mothers of young children feel guilty, but they also believe that mothers of children under three should work outside the home only if financially necessary.

Taking a look back at women who want to "have it all" – children, successful careers, and good marriages – these Charlevoix women say such women are trying to do too much, but half are cheering them on and the other half believes the families of these super women are suffering.

The Charlevoix women were much divided on whether their job choices have been limited because they are women. However, the majority believe women have made some progress into well-paying jobs, but also believe that women sometimes have to play down their femininity to get ahead on their jobs. They feel that most men under-estimate women's abilities in the work place, and so do women under-estimate other women in the work place, but not by such a large margin. But, given a choice, they would rather have a man boss!

Employers have a major responsibility to provide opportunities for part-time work and flexible hours, but only a minor responsibility for day care programs, the women believe, adding day care should be getting the attention of public officials. Employers should also know that women need to earn as much money as men, they think.

The Charlevoix women who answered the questionnaire were a group of mostly middle-aged and older church women, according to Mrs. Frame. Almost all had some college education. The contradictions in answers which appear in some places are largely due to the transition period through which these women have lived and are living, Mrs. Frame says. "They have one foot in the traditional marriage and one foot in the modern marriage. Many of these women are in their retirement years, and at this stage in life a marriage can resemble the more modern ideal of shared household responsibilities."

Mrs. Frame adds that she believes the questionnaire because the answers are what she hears all the time from couples and families she counsels.

Coast Guard steps up drug enforcement work

The Coast Guard will be stepping up its law enforcement on the Great Lakes, Rear Admiral Arnold M. Danielsen, commander of the Coast Guard's Great Lakes forces with headquarters in Cleveland, Ohio, announced recently:

"We will be assisting other federal and local law enforcement agencies as we work to stem the flow of illegal substances across the Great Lakes and enforce all applicable federal laws."

Under federal law, vessels which are used or are intended to be used for transporting controlled substances, may be seized and held for disposition by the proper authorities.

"We will also need the help of the general public," Danielsen added. He said persons with information about illegal or unsafe activities on the Great Lakes should contact their nearest Coast Guard unit or call, toll free, 1-800-321-4400.

New learning center makes Charlevoix debut, high school completion classes for all ages offered

by FRAN MARTIN

A new concept in education for persons of all ages seeking high school completion has been established at the Veterans of Foreign Wars post home on U.S. 31 North.

To be known as the Community Education Learning Center, the facility will be operated under the Straits Area Community Education program. Sherry Black of Charlevoix is the coordinator for the program.

Classes for high school completion are being offered to people of all ages. Under the program, students will work at their own pace under a state-certified teacher, Black explained.

The classes are conducted from 9 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. and will offer math on Monday; English on Tuesday; History on Wednesday; Government on Thursday; and Psychology on Friday.

"There is still time to sign up for this program which we hope will be looked upon as an alternative education program in the Charlevoix area," Black said. "Any high school dropout, regardless of age, is encouraged to try this very different concept in learning. It finds escape from the routine classroom setting. Attainment of self-fulfilling goals and a more positive self-image will be the flavor of the environment."

Twelve area residents have already registered for the program. Interested persons are asked to call Black at the learning center at 547-5361 or at her home at 547-2790.

In addition to the high school completion program, a program designed for the senior citizens who attend the meal program at the same site is underway. It includes exercise classes from 11 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday with bingo and cards during the afternoon hours on those days; crafts from 1 until 4:30 on Wednesday and health during the same hours on Thursday. More information is available by calling Black.

Secretary of State urges voters to register by Oct.6

Secretary of State Richard H. Austin reminded Michigan residents that October 6 is the last day to register for the November 4 general election.

"Michigan can be proud that 87 percent of our residents are registered to vote - a higher percentage than in any other major industrial state," Austin said. He attributed this in large part to the Secretary of State branch office Voter Registration Program. Since 1975, more than 6 million residents have registered to vote or updated their registration at a branch office.

"However," Austin noted, "almost 855,000 adults have not registered."

Registration applications can be completed at any Secretary of State branch or at the local city or township clerk's office through October 6.

Veterans office closed Oct. 10

The Office of Veterans Affairs, located in the Charlevoix County Building, will be closed Friday, Oct. 10, Ronald G. Geer, veterans' counselor, has announced.

At that time he will attend conferences at D.J. Jacobetti Veterans Facility at Marquette.

The office will reopen at the regular hours on Tuesday, Oct. 14.

Stamp Act Revisited

BY DOUG TRUAX

THE RECENT PROPOSAL of the Lake Charlevoix Planning Advisory Committee to institute a boat stamp system for Lake Charlevoix is playing to guffaws wherever I have heard it mentioned.

One observer even went so far as to suggest that the proposal – which would produce one boat stamp for each of the over 17,000 acres of surface water – was a plot by the developers to completely discredit all future proposals from this committee.

What better way to make a mockery of their work than to have them endorse this hairbrained idea, he said.

I don't think anything so Machiavellian is afoot, but the committe may have to do some fast work to repair its reputation.

Opponents of the stamp system seem to be divided into two groups – those who don't want any controls on boats and those who think the stamp idea is unenforceable, a bureaucratic nightmare.

The subject of controls on boat numbers should be discussed and resolved by the committee. They are right. Someday the lake is likely to get too crowded. But issuing 17,000 plus stamps is the height of lunacy.

Better to control the problem at the source. Limit the number and size of new developments with proper zoning.

PERMIT ME to crow a little about our recent awards given by the Michigan Press Association in their annual newspaper competition. We have a small but incredibly determined staff and they seldom get the credit they deserve.

We have three full-time staffers including Ruth McKinney, who is chief bookkeeper, typesetter, accountant, receptionist; classified advertising person, coffee maker and fitness expert. You can see we don't hold much with specialization. And there is Anne Henderson, our new display advertising salesperson, without whom their would be no pages to fill with our editorial gems.

Our veteran reporter, Peg Ohle, works three days a week and outproduces many a younger person toiling all week. She has been at this game for nearly five decades, I believe (I hope I'm not giving away secrets), and manages to tolerate our rookie mistakes with aplomb.

Fran Martin, as nearly everyone knows (and should if they don't), is our chief correspondent who churns out copy at all hours of the day and night. Although she shuns a byline most of the time, her presence is felt throughout the paper.

And we are indepted, too, to an exceptional pool of free-lance talent which includes our columnists and such regulars as Anne Kelly, Tom and Sara Gay Dammann, Scott Richards and others from time to time.

Take a bow, folks.

Letters to the Editor:

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful thanks petunia helpers

Dear Editor:

Over 1,000 volunteers are involved in Charlevoix's petunia project so its impossible to thank each one individually. The board of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc. is gratified at the participation in planting petunias in May and so thankful for all those who organize and staff the community picnic which follows. They and many others also assist the Petunia Auction each August to help us raise the money to buy next year's supply of 50,000 petunias.

We're even more grateful for all the support for the car drawing to help fund a new or improved watering truck. The present one is 24 years old.

The petunia project is now in its fifth year. Some who have made it both successful and fun include Carl Miller, auctioneer, assisted by Pat McKeown and Tom Duke; Jasper's Tag-alongs, Wharfside, Oleson's Food Store, Coca-Cola Bottling Co., donors of auction items, the block captains, Dale and Marilyn Boss who water the flowers faithfully and last but by no means least, our board members who have spent countless hours over the years.

The increased community pride and spirit, we believe, is evident everywhere in town - more flowers on side streets, new handsome wood signs replacing plastic ones; and students conducting special planting projects at both the middle school and high school. Most heart warming of all is seeing entire families, even toddlers, working together to plant petunias.

Besides all this, KCB, Inc. is proud to have inspired a beautification contest by a national magazine.

Thanks to every one of you who has been a part of this project!

Bruce MacArthur
President, KCB, Inc.

Act 331 is a warning to leave 3 cent salmon alone

Dear Editor:

In response to my article in the Wednesday, August 27 edition of the Petoskey News Review, I spoke of Act 331 just passed by our legislators. But, if you don't know what Act 331 says, then you have missed the boat for sure.

Act 331 was made special just for salmon, and will remain that way until the DNR and TempoTech add another protected game or fish to its list for worldwide market, then it will also carry the same penalty as salmon.

Act 331 is a warning to fishermen to leave our 3 cent a pound salmon alone.

We are the law, and cannot tolerate anyone taking our fish before it reaches our weirs. The DNR says we have given you warning in Section 12A to leave our salmon alone as that is the fish they have a lush market for.

The DNR and our legislators have mandated our courts, and set fines. I'm not sure just what our prosecuting attorneys and judges will do, or what the DNR will do to them if they do not do what Act 331 mandates them to do.

First offense for taking a 3 cent per pound salmon from a river they have a weir on involves a $250 fine; second offense is a $500 fine and 90 days.

I claim it's discrimination to allow the DNR to sell Michigan's protected gamefish for 3 cents per pound to their private company, and by the same laws fine a fisherman $250 if he attempts to take the first salmon.

Our legislators should be proud of themselves for letting the DNR manipulate and control them. This to me is a most intolerable circumstance and one which I thought so impossible that I would have bet all my fish hooks on and lost. When the DNR started to brag that they had enough power and control over our legislators that they would have laws passed to make legal that which will always be illegal, I guess they had some foresight into the power they have over our legislators, and proved it.

This is the year for paydirt for the DNR and TempoTech.

Fishermen take notice this this creek is on private property, and "no trespassing" will be enforced, and you can also be arrested if you are less than 300 feet from the DNR weir.

I can't find any law enforcement agency who cares, and if they did care, they don't have the courage to take on the DNR.

Forum: The village and the garden

by JAMES OLSON

This article originally appeared in the Traverse City Record Eagle and is reprinted here with permission of the author.

A small village surrounded a large garden, large enough to keep the root cellars full with enough food for the families each year. Everyone in the village helped care for the garden in some way. Some turned the earth in spring. Others enriched the soil in autumn. Some planted. Others weeded. All harvested what they needed as each wave of vegetables and fruits reached summer ripeness.

Others from miles around heard about the garden and visited or moved to the village especially during the season of harvest. These people needed places to sleep, places to eat, places to shop; they wanted to enjoy the garden, but they also wanted the things they were used to in their own village. The people in the village were open and friendly and welcomed others to share in what they enjoyed. So much did they share that the pressure to provide for these others mounted. So more stores were built and more goods and services offered, while people come to harvest and enjoy the garden.

Part of the garden was needed for a public hall. Part of the garden was needed for a platform so people could stack the harvest or enjoy the view. Then a road was built through part of the garden to handle all of the traffic. There just wasn't enough room in the village. No one wanted to give up any of their own property or share in the cost of buying property from someone who didn't mind giving it up to meet these needs. So each time there was a demand, a little piece of the garden was used up.

At the same time, village stores grew around the garden. They got taller, fatter and there were more cars, more people and much less light or fresh air. One building was built right on the edge of the garden, and it was so tall and wide it blocked the sunlight in the spring over one-third of the garden. The villagers complained that there was no place to park because of all the stores and people, but they wanted still more people to harvest and enjoy the fruits of the garden. They had discovered that the people who visited spent enough money to use the garden; that they could buy what they needed for the winter from some other place. Many thought the garden wasn't necessary for survival; that they didn't need the garden anymore.

The villagers wanted more parking and stores, but there was no room. Some of the store owners said, "We don't need more stores, just parking; good parking near our stores." Others said, "You can't have good parking unless we build more stores." But no one wanted to spend the money to buy land for parking or a store. "There is always the garden," they said.

So it was decided that another part of the garden, the part were crops or flowers didn't grow anymore, would be sold. The light no longer reached the garden there and the exhaust from all the cars and flooding from all the concrete when it rained impaired the garden's natural capacity to grow. A huge store of tall, flat walls and a giant parking lot were built. The windows faced the existing stores, and the wall to the garden was solid cement.

One day, the young child of a villager stood with his grandparents at the edge of the garden. They told the grandchild, "This garden, this is what has fed us all these years. The food, the flowers all summer, the fruit, the exercise, the air, the water – take care of this." But the little grandchild asked, "Why is it so small? There's not much room for me to plant anything." The grandparents didn't answer. "Why doesn't anything grow over there?" They didn't answer. "Is there another garden?" the child asked. They answered, "No, this is the only garden here.

The child looked at the huge cement wall, then back at the now small garden, and then at the cars, trucks, people and buildings around and in the garden. "How will I eat if people stop coming here, stop buying things from the stores?" the child asked. The grandparents looked, too, and didn't answer.

James Olson, the father of three children, is an environmental lawyer and writer who has an office on Front Street in Traverse City. He has written several books of fables including "The Mound People" published by Neahtawanta Press.

Cruise trouble

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

Diners on the Star of Charlevoix got a longer trip than they bargained for Saturday night, thanks to a salmon-bisque fog that enshrouded the Charlevoix area for several hours.

North Side residents could hear the dinner cruiser bawling out on Lake Charlevoix long after she should have been safely tied up at her Round Lake berth.

From the dock, you could hear the engines rumbling as the ship inched through the upper channel and into Round Lake, but nary a light was visible until the Star was 100 yards from her moorings in front of Edgewater Inn.

But experience tells. The captain and crew brought the ship in flawlessly and the passengers on deck appeared unperturbed.

Only the deckhands and waiters let out a cheer when the Star was safely tethered.

SEPTEMBER'S wet weather has everybody talking.

One school of thought has it that if such heavy precipitation continues, Charlevoix will be up to its eyebrows in snow by Thanksgiving. Others believe that if we get all of our precipitation now, there won't be any left for winter.

The latter observation is somehow puzzling, since evaporation is a daily phenomenon around the globe and the atomosphere appears to have an infinite capacity for retaining moisture — at least until the clouds approach the Great, Soggy State of Michigan.

However, I can't help thinking back to our first year in Charlevoix — 1965. That September was the rainiest I had ever experienced, with precipitation on something like 24 out of the 30 days. However the following winter was one of the mildest in memory. We had a green Christmas and the temperature in Charlevoix hit 60 degrees on New Year's Eve.

The Charlevoix Courier invited members of the 1965 Venetian Queen and her court down to Depot Beach in their bathing suits to have their picture taken.

Skiing, of course, was a shambles. At the request of the Chamber of Commerce, the Clocks had agreed to put up some skiers from Chicago over the New Year's weekend. But the poor people called from Boyne Falls to ask if we'd mind terribly if they pursued their quest for snow into the Upper Peninsula.

Of course, we had no objection — but I rather doubt they found decent skiing even in the normally snowy U.P.

We did have a little snow later in the winter — maybe four feet in all. But the winter was so gentle that Charlevoix County didn't even qualify for state snow removal funds that year.

Could such a winter lie in store this year? Of course, no one knows for sure. Ski resort owners dread such unseasonal weather, which impacts their business unmercifully.

But Orval Cutshaw, engineer-manager of the Emmet County Road Commission, says that after a skein of long, hard winters, Northern Michigan is due for a breather.

He may be right. Then again, considering his position, he may be indulging in a little wishful thinking.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Philip G. Schairbaum
First Coogregational Church

We are living in a period of great change both inside and outside the church. It's almost as if there were a new renaissance taking place. As in every transitional period, we struggle with what is passing and what is lasting in the various institutions which support our society. Hopefully, we retain or return to the basics so that we can build upon their foundations for a better future.

As we look at the many changes that have been made in our churches in recent decades, some would say we have gone too far, too fast. Obviously others feel quite the opposite, yearning for still greater change and at a quicker pace. The bottom line, it seems to me, is that our churches will be exactly what each of us makes them.

Recently I came across a piece that offers a good perspective about the relationship of our individual lives to the life of the church:

Ours will be a friendly church if we are friendly, open, and inclusive.

Ours will be a growing church if we are growing people who seige opportunities for regular worship, study and witness.

Ours will be an accepting church if we are accepting of others and tolerant of differing viewpoints.

Ours will be an ecumenical church if we are truly ecumenical and respect others' religious preferences.

Ours will be a praying church if we are praying people, individually and corporately.

Ours will be a giving church if we are giving people who share generously of our time, talents, and assets.

Ours will be a spiritual church if we allow the spirit of Christ to work in and through our lives.

Ours will be a spiritual church if we allow the spirit of Christ to work in and through our lives.

Ours will be a model church if we are model people, working together with one heart, one mind, one love.

So let's not categorically reject all recent changes in the church. They're intended to be reflections of us and how we want to live. Instead, let's rally to the church of our choice and invest ourselves there, so that the church will become all we ever wanted it to be.

Family

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones

Healey-Jones

Kelly Marie Healey and Robert Ford Jones exchanged marriage vows at the First Presbyterian Church in East Jordan in a mid-summer ceremony. Dr. Donald Ferguson performed the double ring service before 250 wedding guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Healey of East Jordan are parents of the bride. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Jones of Charlevoix.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of chiffon and wedgewood lace fashioned with an off-the-shoulder neckline accented by a lace ruffle. The basque waistline featured a lace peplum and the skirt was tiered in chiffon and lace flowing into a cathedral length train. The bride's fingertip veil was attached to a tiara of lace decorated with pearls and crystals.

Wedding music was offered by Kenneth Boss, soloist, Frances Boss, pianist, and Robert Bryan, organist. Tony and April Peterson sang a duet.

Brenda Sulak attended the bride as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Linda Thorman, Beth Jones, Jeanne Healey, Julie Healey, Becky Laning and Trease Westcott. Each wore a pink taffeta off-the-shoulder gown and carried a single white rose with pink ribbon. Stacey Wildfong and Heather Miller were flower girls.

Mark Bernay attended the groom as best man and groomsmen were Mike Donnelly, Dudley Stevens, Rodney Stevens, Steve Healey and Doug Frye. Ushers were Tom Healey Jr. and Larry Houghton.

A reception followed the ceremony at the East Jordan Civic Center. Mary Gee prepared the buffet.

The newlyweds are residing in Charlevoix. The groom works for Site Planning & Development and the bride works at the East Jordan Iron Works. (Photo courtesy Jim Elzinga)

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gallant Jr.

Cornelius-Gallant

Cynthia L. Cornelius of Hialeah, Fl., and Richard L. Gallant Jr., of Charlevoix, stationed at Miami Beach, Fl., with the U.S. Coast Guard, exchanged wedding vows at a ceremony solemnized at the First Christian Church of Petoskey on Saturday, Sept. 20.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. L.H. Bothwell of Brandon, Fl., and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gallant of Charlevoix.

The Rev. Richard D. Eldridge officiated at the double ring service in the presence of 100 guests. Arrangements of carnations and button mums graced the altar for the service. A program of traditional music was played by Mrs. Eleanor Festerling.

Escorted to the altar by the bridegroom, the bride chose a tea length gown of champagne lace fashioned with a square neckline, short sleeves and a tiered skirt with a satin sash for her wedding. She wore a wreath of matching baby's breath and rosebuds in her hair and carried a bouquet of blue tipped carnations and button mums.

Catherine A. Belfy as her matron of honor wore a light blue satin tea length gown styled with a square eyelet neckline. Her bouquet was of white miniature carnations.

Marc S. Belfy assisted the bridegroom as best man. William Peebles and John E. Belfy seated the guests.

A reception followed aboard the Star of Charlevoix dinner boat.

After a wedding trip through northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula, the couple will make their home in Hialeah, Fla.

The bride is a medical secretary. The bridegroom is stationed aboard the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Dauntless at Miami Beach, FL.

Garden Club reschedules meeting

The October 14 meeting of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club will be held at the home of Mrs. Ray Wood, 302 Michigan Ave., at 1 p.m. This is a change from the originally scheduled meeting which was to be hosted by Mrs. Julius Gilbert. The change was necessary when Mrs. Gilbert, in company with Mrs. Gunnar Lundteigen, departed on a tour of China.

Mrs. Clifford Biddick Sr., will be the co-hostess.

The workshop will feature Mrs. Charles Bleha instructing members in making delightful wooden Christmas candle holders to be used as Christmas favors on patients' trays at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. This has been a club project for many years.

A large delegation of club members was scheduled to depart Wednesday, Oct. 1, for Crystal Mountain to attend the annual District V meeting. Mrs. James O. Lawrence of Williamsburg, Director of District V of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, presided.

The Lake Shore and Periwinkle Clubs of the Crystal Mountain area with Mrs. Albert Mix of the Periwinkle Club as chairperson planned the district meeting.

The local club has welcomed six new members: Hazel Harmeling, Mari Marshall, Lorna Miles, Sally Ochs, Mary Teasdale Siegwart and Reatha Trentham.

Mrs. John Lane, club president, and Mrs. James Block have returned to Kellogg Center in East Lansing to complete the fifth session in judging at the flower show school.

Kappa Sigma begins year with new slate of officers

The Kappa Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority has opened its activities for the year under a new slate of officers installed earlier. They are Stephanie Rafacz, president; Deenie Urben, vice president; Pat Gaskin, secretary; Lisa Winchester, treasurer and Glenda Wilhelm, extension officer.

A picnic at the Depot Beach opened the chapter's activities for the year. The new pledges and their spouses attended as guests.

The rush party held at the bed and breakfast owned by David Campbell and Kathy Engle, featured a bingo and pizza affair.

The chapter is now making plans for the upcoming Apple Festival when they will be selling chances on a Christmas basket.

The next meeting of the organization will be held on Monday, Oct. 6, at the home of Carol Hisey at 8 p.m. Glenda Wilhelm will be the co-hostess. Deenie Urben will present the program.

Library journal

by MARYBETH WALLICK

The New York Times best-seller list has lately included a number of pop psychology books. The Charlevoix Public Library has some of them.

One very popular title is "When All You've Ever Wanted Isn't Enough," by Harold Kushner. You may remember him as the author of the very popular "When Bad Things Happen to Good People" from a few years ago. In this book Kushner addresses the question of a life that matters: that there really was a reason and purpose for which we are put on earth. Are we fulfilling it? Does our life have meaning and purpose?

Judith Viorst, well known for her poems, fiction and children's writings, has come out with a new book about loss, "Necessary Losses." It is about a wide variety of losses beginning with separation from our mothers through loss of friends in life, our own expectations and hopes as we grow, to the final loss, death. She shows that these losses are necessary to allow more growth in life.

Robin Norwood has written an illuminating book entitled "Women who Love Too Much: When You Keep Wishing and Hoping He'll Change." It describes relationships in which love hurts and yet the relationship seems too strong to break. Her main hypothesis is that this is not love but rather based in fear and it is an addiction to be broken much as alcoholism is. The author is a psychotherapist specializing in marriage and family problems and she draws from her years of practice.

To end on a happy note, Josh McDowell, a Christian writer, has just come out with a new book, "The Secret of Loving: How a Lasting Intimate Relationship can be Yours. Do you want to know how to have a permanent, loving relationship? One that is mature? Fulfilling? Dynamic? Creative? Joyful? Giving? You may be married or single, young or old, male or female, Christian or non-Christian. You may have come from a loving family or from one that gave you deep wounds and broad scars. Whatever your situation, this book was written for you. It will change your thinking about yourself... about others... about relationships.. about love. You can't beat that!

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

The Michigan B.A.S.S. Federation anglers have come and gone. Many thanks to those who helped support the B.A.S.S. Federation banquet: Archway Motel, Blarney Castle Oil Co., Michigan Consolidated Gas, Jim Uhrick, Dan Miller, I. Lee Moerland, Lincoln Logs Motel, and an anonymous contributor.

Also thanks to the city for providing the tents, tables and portajohns, and to Juilleret's, J.R.'s and Judy's for opening very early for breakfast. Anyone who was not contacted and would like to contribute, contact the chamber.

The old-fashioned hayride tickets for Saturday October 11 at the Lake Charlevoix Farms are going fast. Advanced tickets are necessary and must be purchased at the Chamber. The whole family can enjoy an hour-long hay wagon ride through the countryside. Sign up times are 1, 2, or 3 p.m.

Attention all bicyclers, clubs and organizations: The Lake Charlevoix Bicycle Color Tour will be on Sunday, Oct. 12 starting at Ferry Beach. Pre-register at the Chamber. A $10 entry fee includes a box lunch and Applefest T-shirt. What a great way to spend the day getting exercise and enjoying the last of the beautiful fall color.

Again we ask that you contact the Chamber if you have special fall business hours, so we can better serve the public.

To enable the Chamber of plan, budget and forecast for 1987, the membership investments are now due. Invest in the community and its future. Support the Chamber, so it can better serve you.

Lake Charlevoix tour provides view of foliage and colorful local history

by WILLIAM OHLE

A number of Michigan counties can boast of large lakes within their borders, but none is more handsome than Charlevoix County when autumn foliage is at its peak.

Masses of sugar maple reds and yellows accent the intense green of pine and cedar, and the blue of the famous lake which sprawls across the county. On a windless sunny day in October, with lazy white clouds overhead, a color tour around Lake Charlevoix offers rich reward.

A 50-mile, around-the-lake trip, which includes brief side trips as you go, has a number of points of interest.

Start at the drawbridge on Bridge Street in Charlevoix, heading south there, then turn left on Belvedere Avenue as you reach the end of the business section at the foot of the "south hill."

This route skirts Round Lake, one of the finest natural harbors on the Great Lakes, as filled in summer with yachts, excursion boats, Coast Guard equipment and associated aquatica as any New England seaport.

ONCE UPON A time the shores of Round Lake, now filled with fine homes and condominiums, were lined with drying fish nets and wornout tugboats and small warehouses belonging to professional fishermen, including Booth Fisheries, which also owned and used tiny Whiskey Island, in the Beaver Island chain, as an offshore fishing station around the turn of the century.

Soon you pass Grey Gables, a well-known local restaurant, and enter the premises of the Belvedere Club, a famous summer resort association which has graced the Charlevoix area for well over a hundred years.

You bear right, past a long row of cottages perched on an elevated terrace known to geologists as the Nippissing Beach, actually the channel bank of a much larger glacial lake that preceded Lake Charlevoix.

Behind and above this terrace and about the same height in feet, another row of Belvedere cottages is situated. This is known as the Upper Terrace and represents the ancient bank of a still earlier glacial lake stage of an even bigger Lake Charlevoix, known as Lake Algonquin. These two terraces are defined more or less clearly all around today's lake.

ON PAST THE Belvedere Club you will see on the left a hotel, a transformation of an old boat company. Then comes Ferry Beach, a public marina and a swimming facility, prefered by many because the water of Lake Charlevoix tends to be slightly warmer than that of the Lake Michigan beach, a mile across town.

Next to the beach are the premises of a private marina now in the frantic throes of beaching private boats of all sizes and types at the close of the recent boating season.

Jogging right, then immediately left around the marina on Ferry Road you quickly come to highway M-66, about 2½ miles from your starting point.

Proceed left on M-66, past Castle Farms, a summer music theater built on a most unusual stage, originally part of the elaborate barn complex of Loeb Farms, a showplace estate of the 1920s.

Three miles beyond, you pass the entrance to the Ironton Ferry, which crosses the mouth of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix at frequent intervals. This ferry cuts off several miles of the automobile trip from Charlevoix to Boyne City.

FOR YOUR SCENIC tour, however, we suggest that you do not cross the Arm, but continue along M-66 toward East Jordan. Just over a mile and a half from the ferry, you come upon a small road to the left known as Holy Island Road, which leads to an island you can inspect in a matter of minutes if islands are of special interest.

This one consists of 11 acres, is in the middle of the South Arm and has a romantic history as a feasting place for the Mormon colony of Beaver Island in the mid-1850s.

These days it is a haven for several dozen cottagers, and only a lively imagination can visualize the presence of the tragic King Strang and his followers as they annually celebrated "the feast of the first fruit" during outings away from their Beaver Island home.

Further east, on M-66, you pass Phelps Road, on the right of which are located several big apple orchards which have been producing and marketing for more than a century.

Just beyond, you come on the left to Elm Pointe, a public picnic and cultural area that belongs to the city of East Jordan. Here you can go through a small but beautifully appointed Portside Art and Historical Museum, open 1-4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays, and well worth the effort.

Five miles beyond is the blinker light where you turn left from M-66 and follow M-32, which is also C-48.

A bridge crosses the Jordan River here at the head of the South Arm. Just before the bridge you pass Sportsman's Park, famous as the home of innumerable ducks and mute swans.

A "duck crossing" sign alerts you to give way when the birds decide to waddle cross the roadway.

Below the bridge is the headquarters of the East Jordan Iron Works, with an enormous American Flag painted on the side of the foundry.

PROCEED ACROSS the bridge and straight through town, watching closely in order to avoid following M-32. You go straight up the hill; M-32 branches off to the right. A prominent sign at the edge of town directs you toward Boyne City. Check your mileage here.

Just 4.8 miles from the city limits, turn left off C-48 on Pleasant Valley Road. This partly blacktop, well-maintained gravel road is hilly and winding for five miles through a hardwood forest to Boyne City, where you intersect with Front Street at the east shore of Lake Charlevoix.

Turn right towards the center of town, then left at the Lake Street stop sign.

You are now on the main stem of this pleasant little town, once a place of screeching sawmills and boisterous frontier activity, with historic old store fronts and indications of a renaissance all around you.

A new restaurant has bowed on Water Street and the old Wolverine hotel is completing a facelifting.

Lake Street bends around the head of Lake Charlevoix, passing the attractive building and grounds of Boyne City City Hall. At the far side of town you ascend once again the Nippissing Shelf you first saw at the Belvedere Club at the other end of the lake, 20 miles ago.

Two miles along the road toward Horton Bay and Charlevoix, you come upon a sign indicating Young State Park, a favorite of campers in Michigan, and worth your investigation.

Its beach is perhaps the finest on the lake and from it you can see endless stretches of color for miles, on both sides of the lake. It is a rare sight, especially on a bright forenoon with the sun at your back.

Continuing west on C-56 from the park along exceptionally colorful roads, you find yourself in the Village of Horton Bay, a century-old sawmill town.

A historical marker in front of the picturesque town hall briefly describes the community's Ernest Hemingway connection. Each summer a number of Hemingway fans poke around the little town, hoping some of its magic will somehow rub off on them as it did on Nick Adams.

Just beyond the little grove that was once a town picnic area you pass the Red Fox Inn, once a world-class eating place, now closed and forlorn.

Next to it is the Horton Bay General Store, once the sawmill company store and post office. It is worth a stop to see how lively it is today, its six-passenger coffee counter catering to neighbors in search of local news and nourishment in astonishing numbers. The post office closed in 1907.

Two-tenths of a mile along, you turn left at Charlevoix Corners and descend gently to Horton Creek which drains a big valley to the north, and is still the home of monumental quantities of brook and rainbow trout, very hard to catch because over- and under-growth, giant mosquitoes and deer flies beyond count.

ON THE FAR SIDE of the creek you ascend until you reach Pincherry Road. A tenth of a mile to the right once stood the summer home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles, the scene of "Three Day Blow," a short Nick Adams classic by Hemingway. Dr. Charles' nephew, Bill Smith, was young Hemingway's best friend; Bill's sister Kate became the bride of author John Dos Pasos.

A half mile further along you curve gently around Maplewood Farm, with its big blue silo, how headquarters for a veterinarian, but once The Danly Barn, a milking palace where pampered cows were milked to the strains of symphonic music.

Another mile down the road is the one-time location of the village of Undine, which had a store and a post office, but now featuring only a bucolic cemetery and a "Standard School," long abandoned.

A half mile from the schoolhouse, turn right on Maple Grove Road. Ascend its gentle, winding grade a mile and half, going strait, not right, when you reach the crest. Stop at a turnaround 100 years ahead, and park for one of the handsomest overlooks in Michigan.

There is the expanse of Lake Charlevoix far below, the City of Charlevoix in the distance, and the Manitou and Fox Islands 30 miles beyond in Lake Michigan.

This is the Charles A. Ransom Nature Preserve and there are well marked nature trails for you to explore, not to mention the sight of millions of maples stretching out before you.

Returning to Charlevoix Road, turn right for a mile, and you come upon a huge barn, once D'Ooge's Barn, where square dances were the rule on summer nights. It is now an antique and collectible shop known as Lake Charlevoix Farms. An inquiry there may find a hay ride about to commence.

Three miles beyond is Susan Lake, named for Native American Susan Greensky. It is a source of bass, pickerel and perch, and once was also a source of rather reedy natural ice for the family icebox.

Continue on past the Allen Schulhaus and the Argonne Supper Club, source of the largest shrimp this side of the gulf.

Take a left at the end of the road and in 2½ miles you are again in Charlevoix, city of Petunias, the place of your beginning.

Apple Fest returns to Charlevoix

by FRAN MARTIN

Indian summer days mean only one thing in Charlevoix.... the annual Apple Festival.

Charlevoix will host its seventh annual Apple Festival on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 11 and 12.

Sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with area orchardist and farmers, the event will turn East Park into a real Farmer's Market that will feature some 20 varieties of apples and other fall fruits as well as products made not only from apples but other area fruits and vegetables of every description including squash, potatoes, carrots, herbs and others harvested at this season plus colorful pumpkins for pies or jack-o-lanterns.

There will also be food booths and ...lers featuring such goodies as ap...le pie, apple cider, apple butter, caramel apples, donuts, not mulled cider and various tasty treats.

There'll be fun things too, for all the family such as an old-fashioned hayride at the Lake Charlevoix Farm on the Boync City Road at 1, 2, and 3 p.m. on Saturday. Tickets will be sold at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce for $1 for children; $2 for adults and for tots under five, no charge.

While all this is going on, local crafters will be presenting their annual Christmas Bazaar in the Market Mall where you'll find a host of gift ideas from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday.

On Sunday you'll be able to start your day with a hearty maple syrup and pancake breakfast at the American Legion post home at 106 E. Garfield. Prices are $2.50 and $2 for hot pancakes, maple syrup, eggs and sausage, orange juice and a beverage, coffee or milk. Legion volunteers will be manning the griddles from 8 a.m. until noon.

There'll be a special event for outdoor enthusiasts on Sunday, the return of the Lake Charlevoix Bicycle Tour. The 100-mile Century ride will leave Ferry Avenue beach at 7 a.m. A 38-mile tour will depart the same site at 10 a.m. There will be a registration fee of $10 which will include a box lunch and a souvenir T-shirt. Riders are encouraged to register by Oct. 6. The registration cost will go up to $12 the day of the tour.

For information and tickets contact the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce at 408 Bridge St. in Charlevoix, 547-2010.

The annual Apple Fest offers visitors a chance to stock up on fresh produce as well as the abundant stock of apples.

Runners deliver impressive showing at Petoskey

"Charlevoix had good team races today," coach Pete Spieles said of his Charlevoix Rayder cross country teams which ran in the Petoskey McDonald-Optimist Invitational at Petoskey Saturday.

The boys varsity topped the defending state Class C champions, Benzie Central, by a score of 39-56, with first place runner, Doug Bergmann, remaining undefeated for the season; the girls varsity came in second behind Benzie Central with 86 points to Benzie's 74 and the boys junior varsity was third behind Benzie Central and Kingsley with 91 points to Benzie's 82 and Kingsley's 70.

In this invitational, junior and senior runners participate as the varsity team and freshmen and sophomores as junior varsity in the boys events. As a result, the Rayder varsity team ran without one of its regulars, Scott Miller, a freshman. Teams also run in the classes.

Spieles had only praise for his runners who, he said, had their best team races of the season. "This was probably our best overall race days with each team doing well. They had great times. They have reached a point where they are very confident. What the girls did today is very encouraging. I can see us qualifying for state.

"Doug (Bergmann) had tremendous pressure in today's race. He knew and came through with a great race. Jeff Thomas of Mancelona (who finished in second place) and three all-staters from Benzonia were out to beat him. That's pressure," Spieles said with great pride. "All the others did a good job by backing him up with good times to let us take the meet," he added.

Commenting on the girl's team, he said "Betsy (Haggard) ran her usual consistent race, Heidi (Olinger) was back and made a great showing, her best to date. The others ran very well making this an excellent team race. In fact, everyone did very well. That is why I can see the girls qualifying for the state as a team for the first time," he said.

The younger runners also did well. Scott (Miller) and Gehry (Wiesner) ran well and the others are showing improvement.

In the Class C-D varsity division, Bergmann who paced the race, had a time of 15:44; Pat Rajewski, sixth, 16:02; Joe Simpson, ninth, 16:42; Tom Merta, 10th, 16:44; Kevin McLenon, 13th, 17:09.

Other Rayder runners were Sean Henne, 16th, 17:18; Harold Herriman, 21st, 17:31; Marty Joy, 24th, 17:38; Mike Dohm, 31st, 18:09; Jeff Skeel, 40th, 18:37; Hal Chase, 49th, 20:39.

In the girls C-D varsity event, Betsy Haggard placed 10th in 21:23; Heidi Olinger, 15th, 21:57; Michelle North, 18th, 22:11; Stephanie Agnew, 21st, 22:34; Barb Haggard, 22nd, 22:34.

Shelly Ferguson came in 36th in 23:43 and Maria Parsons, 45th in 24:45. The top time for this division was 20:09 set by Lisa Popa of Suttons Bay which placed third behind Benzie Central and Charlevoix.

In the JV C-D division, Scott Miller came in second with a 19:57 behind Kingsley's Jared Glover who had a time of 16:48. Gehry Wiesner placed 5th in 17:27; Dylan Stewart, 16th, 18:32; Tim Henne, 33rd, 19:59; Mike Stargardt, 35th, 20:04; Jerry Thayer, 36th, 20:07.

Sixth and seventh runners were Jon Terry, 39th, 20:18; Jake Smith, 49th, 22:21.

Traverse City took the Class A-B division with 28 points followed by Petoskey with 67 among five teams. Gaylord won the JV division with 50 points. Petoskey was second with 53 points.

Charlevoix will host the Claire Martin Invitational Saturday.

Rayders win on 2nd half surge

by DOUG TRUAX

Forget the ball control offense.

Never mind that old three yards and a cloud of dust business. Bo Schembechler, look the other way please.

The Charlevoix Rayders found a better way to win Friday night against the Boyne City Ramblers.

It was more like a blitzkreig. Three plays and 18 points was all Charlevoix needed to wrap up an 1-6 win, its second of the season.

The first half was a lackluster affair until the Rambler's Pat Weeks sneaked over from the one with 10:15 to go in the second quarter. The conversion failed and Boyne City was up 6-0, the first time it had led a football game in two years.

The Ramblers didn't have long to savor the feeling, however, as Jim Gibbs took the kickoff following the touchdown and raced 80 yards to tie the score. A pass for the conversion was incomplete.

The remainder of the first half bogged down in punts and turnovers and the last five minutes of the half were played in a torrential rain storm.

"We didn't play a good first half," Charlevoix coach Roger Gowell said, "but we came back and played a better second half."

THE RAYDERS wasted no time in gaining the winning margin. Boyne City fumbled the second half kickoff and Charlevoix recovered on the Rambler 26. On the next play, Mike Thompson broke loose off tackle and charged into the end zone for the score. The conversion was no good again and Charlevoix was in front to stay, 12-6.

Charlevoix's defense took control of the game at that point and kept the Rambers at their own end of the field.

The final Rayder score came with the same lightning quickness as the first two. Steve Hopkins intercepted a Boyne City pass at the Rambler 37. On the first play from scrimmage, Thompson struck again, breaking loose on a jaunt to the end zone.

"Three plays killed us," Rambler

The Rayder defense was able to keep Boyne's running game in check.

Golfers beat Mackinac, fall to Soo

The Charlevoix Rayder golfers played in four meets last week. On Wednesday and Thursday they dropped games to Harbor Springs and Boyne City after splitting with the Soo and Mackinac Island earlier in the week.

On Wednesday, the Rayders bowed to Harbor Springs by a score of 173-198 and the following day to Boyne City 167-186.

At Harbor Springs, where Brian O'Neill was the medalist with a 39, the Rams had scores of 45 by Rick Shepherd and Jamie Walker and a 44 by Eric Allerding.

The Rayders scores were: Scott Wise 45; Scott Crain 49 and Pat Anderson and Dan Bickersteth 52 each.

In the JV meet, the Rams Greg Garver was medalist with a 49. Chris Benson had 50 and JD Armand and Bob Otevos 51 each.

Wes Cumberland was low for Charlevoix with a 50; Chris Premble had 54; Dan Cox 58 and Bob Jess 58.

At Boyne City on Thursday, Troy Fall with a score of 40 was medalist; Pete Smith and Bill Casper carded 41s and Dan Dunlop 45 for the Rambers.

For the Rayders Scott Wise scored a 41, Scott Crain 47, Dave Clark 48 and Pat Anderson 50.

In the JV division Tim Jervis came through with a 48 for Charlevoix, Matt Gibbons 50, Randy Wurst 55 and Dave Loder 63.

Keith Harvey with a 46 was medalist for the meet Teammates Mike Knight, Justin Kelts and Dean Alger had 49s for Boyne City.

The Charlevoix Rayder golfers won their meet with Mackinac Island Tuesday by a score of 183 to 235.

To give all his players an opportunity to play, Coach Glen Taylor fielded "B" and "C" teams with the former carding a score of 221 and the "C" team a 207.

In the regulation meet played at the municipal course, Scott Wise was the medalist with a score of 41. Other team scores was Scott Crain 44 and Pat Anderson and Wes Cumberland 49 each.

For Mackinac the scores were: Milt Bazinou 53; Bobby Horn 58; Dennis Badley 61; Stan Guson 63.

Scores for the "B" team were Charlie Wittboeft 52; Mike Wise 54; Randy Wurst 56; Bob Jess 59.

"C" team scores were: Dave Loder 49, Tom Herriman 51; Matt Gibbons 52; David Phul 55.

On Monday, the Rayders dropped a meet to Sault Ste. Marie by a 173 to 186 score.

Rich Dalimonte of the Soo was the medalist with a 42.

Scores for the Rayder golfers were Scott Wise and Dave Clark 45 each; Scott Crain 47 and Dan Bickersteth 49.

Other scores for the Soo were Alan Bouschor and James Lambros 43 each and Corey Metro 45.

The Charlevoix JVs took their meet with a score of 208 to the Soo's 223.

Rayder Tim Jervis was the medalist with a 51 score. Wes Cumberland and Mike Wise had like scores of 52 and Tom Herriman 63.

Rob Proffitt carded a 53; Carl Atkins and Mike Poliski 56 each and Todd Dennario 58 for the Soo.

Charlevoix will entertain Harbor Springs Wednesday, Oct. 1 and host the Michigan-Huron Shores conference meet Monday, Oct. 6.

Girls add pair of victories

The Charlevoix Rayder girls basketball team chalked up wins over Boyne City and Ellsworth last week, defeating the Ramblers 50-27 and the Lancers 41-37.

A second half surge by the Rayders gave the team their win over Boyne City after trailing 12-9 at the quarter and 18-17 at halftime.

As the second half got underway, the Rayders outscored Boyne 16-2 to go ahead 22-21 going into the final period.

Charlevoix outscored Boyne 21-11 from the floor and had eight of 22 free throws while collecting 17 personal fouls.

Amy Pischner had 19 points. Cindi Boss had only seven points but 15 rebounds. Barble Boss and Stephanie Martin were outstanding on defense, Wagner said.

Kerry Harvey had nine points for Boyne City.

Boyne City took the JV game 42-29 with Stacy Gebott scoring 20 points.

In the non-league game with Ellsworth, the visitors trailed 10-6 at the quarter and 21-18 at the half before closing the gap 31-30 at the Pischner had 14 points and Cindi Boss 11 for the victors. Barble Boss had a fine defensive game. Andrea Doctor and Kathy Wynsma shared scoring honors with 13 points each for Ellsworth.

The JVs finally posted a win, a 39-25 victory over Ellsworth after leading 18-13 at halftime.

Paula Thorp had 14 points, Gebott 12 and Melissa Boss 11 for Charlevoix. L. Ruis had nine points for Ellsworth.

three-quarter mark. At that point, the defense tightened and the Rayders held the Lancers to six points while pouring in 11 points for the win.

The Rayders had 17 field goals and seven of 17 from the line and 12 personal fouls. Ellsworth had 16 field goals and five of 14 free throws. The team had 18 personal fouls.

Charlevoix will host Cheboygan Thursday and travel to Grayling on Tuesday and Rogers City on Thursday.

The Rayders now have a 6-0 overall record and 2-0 in league play.

Safety produces victory

A safety with 12 seconds remaining in the game gave the Charlevoix JV football team an 8-7 victory over the young Boyne City Ramblers Thursday.

Both teams had scored early in the game with the Ramblers protecting a 7-6 lead in the defensive battle.

Boyne City was deep in their own territory when they were forced to punt on the fourth down with 12 second on the clock. A bad pass from center sent the ball into the end zone from the 5-yard line for an automatic safety and a victory for the Rayders.

Boyne City had scored early in the game on a 1-yard plunge by Mark Harris following a series of ground plays. Curt Holley booted the conversion for a 7-0 lead.

The Rayders came back to score on a 57-yard pass play from Jason Corwin to Shawn Putman. The attempted pass for the two-point conversion failed and the score stood at 7-6 until the final minute of play.

Coach Brian Certa cited Matt Cunningham, Putman, Jason Whitley and James Holm for their outstanding defensive play and Jason Corwin, Mike Picha and Scott Novotny for their play on offense.

Charlevoix will play at Cheboygan Thursday.

Dolphins remain undefeated in flag football

In flag football action last week, the Dolphins edged the Raiders 13-2 to remain the only undefeated team in the Charlevoix Flag Football League. In a second game, the Panthers defeated the Bears 25-12.

In the Dolphin-Raider game, the first quarter was scoreless. However, as the second period got underway, Ryan Smith scored from the 5-yard line and Luke LaBlance added the conversion to give his team a 7-0 lead at halftime.

Raiders got on the board in the third period with a safety by Jason Parrish. The Dolphins then put the game on ice late in the final period when Dan Terryberry hit Brian Darrah for a scoring play that covered 13 yards.

In the second game, the Bears scored early and held a 12-6 lead going into the second half before the Panthers broke the game wide open, scoring 19 points for the win.

Wayne Joy scored on a 35-yard run for the Panthers only to have the Bears score in the first and second periods on passes of 17 and 30 yards from Scott Campbell to Jarrett Moreno to take the lead at halftime.

Corey Ostrum scored from the two yard line and Guy Gengle passed to Gabe Brock for the conversion to put the Panthers ahead by one point in the third period.

Runs of 14 and 30 yards by Gengle added another 12 points for the lopsided win late in the game.

The Raiders will meet the Bears on Wednesday at 6 and the Panthers and the Dolphins will clash in the nightcap at 7 p.m.

Basketball, volleyball meetings planned

The Charlevoix Recreation Department has called organizational meetings for independent basketball and volleyball programs which will get underway late next month.

The meeting has been scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 8, at the council room of the city hall.

Volleyball players are asked to attend at 7 p.m. Representatives (players, managers and sponsors) of men's, women's and co-ed teams are urged to attend so initial plans can be made.

Those interested in the basketball program are asked to attend a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Dwight Boss, recreation director, said there would be two leagues in their division. Out-of-town teams are invited to join.

Again, players, managers and sponsores are urged to attend this important meeting.

Charlevoix tries Petoskey in soccer

The Charlevoix Soccer Club played the Petoskey JV Club to a 2-2 tie in action Wednesday night.

Charlevoix goals were scored by Bob Sell with an assist from Jamie Spenceley and by Spencley with an assist by Heath Moore.

Coach Tom Sitkavitsa said that there had been good midfield play by David Phul, F.L. Dammann, and Tonya Rostar and excellent defense by goalie John O'Brien and fullbacks Dave Eakes, Don O'Brien, Rick Sell and Eric Richardson.

The Charlevoix Club will be at Northport on Wednesday.

Charlevoix is a member of a league that includes teams from Northport, Elk Rapids, Petoskey, Gaylord and Harbor Springs.

Rayders beat Boyne City

coach Irvin Smith said. "At least we played a whole complete ball game."

THE TWO TEAMS went scoreless in the fourth quarter. Boyne City threatened at one point when Weeks hit Scott Beebe with a 35-yard pass to the Rayder 27. Two plays later, Roger Smith intercepted a Weeks pass at the two to end the Rambler drive.

The game ended with the Rayders at the Rambler three.

Thompson led the Charlevoix offense with 132 yards on 18 carries and two touchdowns. Mark LaBlance carried nine times for 41 yards and Gibbs had a net 75 yards on the night.

Charlevoix had 285 yards rushing on 42 attempts and went two of six passing for 15 yards.

They picked up 10 first downs, nine rushing and one passing. The Rayders held Boyne City to 65 yards rushing on 26 attempts. The Ramblers completed two of 16 pass attempts for 34 yards. Charlevoix intercepted the Ramblers three times and picked up one of their three fumbles.

Obituaries

Jane Petter

Funeral services for a former Ellsworth resident, Miss Jane Petter, 90, of Allendale, were held Wednesday, Sept. 24, at the Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth. The Rev. James Evenhouse of the Atwood Christian Reformed Church officiated. Interments was in the Atwood Cemetery.

Miss Petter died Monday, Sept. 22, at the West Michigan Care Center at Allendale.

Born in the Netherlands Dec. 26, 1895, Miss Petter came to this country with her parents who settled in Banks Township in 1908. She was a practical nurse and for many years was employed at Pinerest Hospital in Grand Rapdis and later at the Clark Memorial Home in Grand Rapids until she retired. In 1979 she returned to Ellsworth to live and in 1985 went to Allendale. She was a member of the Atwood Christian Reformed Church.

Surviving are two brothers, William Petter of Ellsworth and the Rev. Andrew Petter of Grand Rapids and a sister, Mrs. Dena Otte of Jenison.

Nita M. Newman

Graveside services for Mrs. Nita M. Newman, 96, of Charlevoix were held at Brookside Cemetery Friday, September 26. The Rev. Casimir J. Zawacki of St. Mary's Church officiated.

Mrs. Newman died Thursday, Sept. 25, at the Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Born at Bluffton, Ind., July 18, 1890, the former Nita M. Craine came to the Grand Traverse area as a young girl. She was married to Dolphus F. Newman at Traverse City and, in 1910, shortly after their marriage, came to Charlevoix to make their home. Mr. Newman preceded her in death in 1943.

Surviving are a son, Warren B. Newman of Warren; two daughters, Mrs. Drew (Jean) Young, Sr., of Charlevoix and Mrs. Marjorie Crain of Traverse City; 15 grandchildren and several great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

The Winchester Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Louie O. Sharrow

Funeral services for Louie O. Sharrow, 67, were held Wednesday, Oct. 1, at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. David W. Yingling of the United Methodist Church and Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F & A.M., officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Sharrow died Monday, Sept. 29, at his Norwood Road home.

Born in Charlevoix Dec. 26, 1918, Mr. Sharrow graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1937. He later went to Detroit where he was employed at the Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. for 31 years, retiring in 1975. In 1970 he married the former Lamey L. Berry at Charlevoix. They returned to Charlevoix to make their home in 1977. He was a member of Charlevoix Lodge No. 272, F & A.M.

Surviving are his wife, Lamey L. of Charlevoix; a son, Richard Lee Berry of Washington, D.C.; three grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; one brother, John F. Sharrow and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Dixon, both of Charlevoix.

Irene M. Callender

Funeral services for Irene M. Callender, 74, of Eastport, were held Monday, Sept. 22 at St. Mary's Church in Bay City. The Rev. Charles Ganley officiated. Interment was in St. Patrick's Cemetery.

Mrs. Callender died Thursday, Sept. 18, at Bay Medical Center in Bay City.

Born in Bay City, May 11, 1912, the former Irene M. Budnik was married to Edward O'Shea who preceded her in death in 1965. In 1974 she was married to Russell E. Callender at Bay City. They had made their home in Bay City and Eastport in recent years. She was a member of St. Mary's Church and Daughters of Isabella in Bay City and a charter member of the Central Lake Lioness Club.

Surviving are her husband, Russell E. Callender; a son, John O'Shea of Bay City; six grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; a brother, Arthur Budnik of Fort Meyers Beach, Fla; a stepsonnephew, Gerald Callender of Livonia and a stepdaughter-niece, Mrs. Michael (Jeanne) Seymour of Charlevoix.

BOARD MINUTES — SEPTEMBER 9, 1986

Regular meeting of the Eveline Township Board was held on September 9, 1986 at the township hall. All board members were present along with several guests.

One correction was made to the minutes of the August meeting and then they were approved.

The bids for repair on the township hall were opened. Motion then was made, supported and carried to close bids.

It was voted that payment not be made to the contractors for the dry hydrants until the specs are met. It was also decided that the contractor be notified to get an estimate on the cost of finishing the job which the board will discuss at the next regular meeting in October.

Further information is being sought before signing a contract with the Jordan Valley District Library giving them penal fines. It is thought that we should divide the penal fines between the three libraries.

Letters were read to the board concerning their support of the board's action against H&D Trucking and requesting intervention into the lawsuit.

The bid for electrical repairs at the hall was awarded to Charlevoix Electrical Service ($1,918.00) and the roofing, siding and masonry repair bid was awarded to Roger Lisk, Builder ($6700).

Approval was given to transfer $5,000 from the Federal Sharing Fund to the General Fund for salaries. Approval was given to make payments totaling $17,823.24 for September bills.

Adjournment was at 12:02 A.M.

July drifter

Yachting Notes

BY A. NONY MOUSE

Double awards were given in spirit at the CYC clubhouse Wed. Sept. 24, following a night which began with such promise and quickly melted away in a fall mime of a July drifter.

The first award, which the mouse will call the "I'll never quit" award will go to (the envelope, please) Mr. John Gaskin, in sloop Sandpiper who perservered and took 2 hours and 44 minutes and 28 seconds to sail a one-mile leg of a wisely shortened race.

The next award, which the mouse prefers to call the "Job" (for patience) award goes to (quiet, please, in the last rows) Race Committee Phil who sat out there in his open pontoon boat cheering on John as he skulled across the finish line 94 minutes after the sun set and the temperature dropped 15 degrees.

So, you can understand that we didn't have much of a race. Mother Nature, in this instance, failed to live up to her fall billing. But mariners have really never needed much of an excuse to get out on the water, so we're really not complaining too much.

Well, here are the race results for the four completed Fall races.

Field ready for first home game

by FRAN MARTIN

Charlevoix Rayder football fans will have an opportunity to see the first home game of the season at Kipke Field with the completion of the first phases of the renovation of the athletic field, the installation of a new lighting system.

The Rayders will host the Cheboygan Chiefs in a game at Kipke Field at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

At that time, fans will see the new lights mounted on four 80 foot poles. They are 1500 watt metal halide lights producing 34 foot candle power at a uniformity ratio of 1.01 to 1.0 which should virtually eliminate all shadows, Vincent Olach, business manager said.

The poles themselves are bolted to a base three feet in diameter and 20 feet deep filled with reinforcement bars and embedded in more than 11 tons of concrete per unit. They are constructed to withstand winds up to 120 miles per hour, Olach explained.

The lights were installed by Charlevoix Electric Co. They are set 75 feet from the sidelines of the playing field. Ballast is on the lower portion of the poles to facilitate maintenance. Four speakers have been mounted on the poles on the west side of the field. Wiring to all facilities is underground.

Fans will find that spectator stands, which are four feet higher than before, have been moved to the west side of the field; the press box has also been moved and the concession stand and toilet facilities relocated.

A new and larger scoreboard, donated by the First State Bank of Charlevoix, has also been erected and a new flag pole and flag, donated by John and Doris Pearl, are also in place.

Bleachers from the city softball field will be placed on the east side of the field for use by visiting spectators, Olach said.

Entry to the facility will be via the former alley at Wood Street, through the gate at Green Street or on the east side of the field. Those entering from the east side must walk around the outer perimeter of the old track to reach the stands.

"A lot of work remains to be done. However, this will allow Charlevoix to play its scheduled home games at Kipke Field. Only one game with Petoskey had to be played elsewhere," Olach said.

Workshop for parents of talented scheduled

The Charlevoix Emmet Intermediate School District is presenting a workshop series of guided discussions for parents of gifted and talented children on Tuesday evenings beginning Oct. 7 and running through Dec. 2.

The support group workshop will be held from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Char-Em Service Center on Mercer Blvd in Charlevoix. Facilitators will include Ron Moore, school psychologist; Barb Martin, Boyne City counselor; and Kathy Martinchek, consultant for the gifted.

The first session is free and parents can register at that time or can contact Martinchek at Char-Em for a registration form. Call 547-9947 for further information.

Educating the gifted

school system.

"One way of keeping quality people in the field is to get them involved in gifted kids," she says, driving home the point with more vigor.

"I don't want gifted to be a bandwagon. 'Cause if it is, it will roll in and it will roll out." She has picked up the pace. If this were church the audience would be shouting amen by now. "I don't like the title 'gifted program'," she adds. "I like 'gifted education.' Gifted programs are one or two people's jobs. Gifted education is everyone's job."

One whose job is indeed education of the gifted is Kathy Martinchek, consultant for gifted and talented programs for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. She puts the matter bluntly. "It's hard to feel sorry for the gifted."

Martinchek was one of those who help bring Johnson to last weekend's "Bright Beginnings" conference in Petoskey. The conference brought together a dedicated band of advocates of gifted education for two days to address everything from the emotional needs of the gifted to strategies for dealing with them in the regular classroom, the theme of the meeting.

Why should the school pay particular attention to those who seemingly can best fend for themselves.

Martinchek reels off some of the reasons. The gifted tend to drop out of school at alarmingly high rates. They are prone to use drugs. Many suffer from emotional problems associated with their extreme sensitivity. Suicide rates are high.

For some children, being gifted can be a curse.

"We create a great deal of stress in these children by our heightened expectations," Martinchek comments.

The percentage of gifted children in distress is higher than the normal population, she adds. "They key is to remember they are kids first and they need all of the things kids need."

Gifted children also suffer among their peers, particularly during the their early teens, says Tom Sothard, who directs the middle school's Future Problem Solving team.

He says that children will defer to their parents if they are supportive of the child until about the seventh grade. After that point the child's intellectual talents are almost guaranteed to create diminished status among peers, Sothard says, at least until the upperclass high school years.

"Gifted boys are more isolated, more picked on by their peers," he adds.

Nor is the gifted child the only one at risk. Experts say the teachers of the gifted face their own challenge. "The vast majority of the teachers in the state wouldn't get near a gifted program," Martinchek notes. There is a higher burnout rate among teachers of the gifted. "You have to know your act or you won't stay in the room with them. Consequently the stress level is very high," says Sothard.

CHARLEVOIX has a variety of programs for the gifted that begin in the elementary school and continue through graduation. They include what educators call enrichment programs (programs which supplement classroom work), pullout programs and accelerated academic studies.

No single approach can do the job, the experts say. "Any gifted program should be a combination of acceleration and enrichment," says Carol Elliott who teaches the gifted students in the elementary school.

Next week, a look at the programs.

New building inspector on the job

Tim Whippo

Local residents who are building residential, commercial, or industrial structures now have the daily services of inspectors for plumbing, mechanical, electrical, and construction aspects of their projects.

Up to now, only electrical and construction inspections have been made from the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection. The plumbing and mechanical inspections have been made from the state office by an inspector who was in Charlevoix County only one day a week.

Tim Whippo of Charlevoix started to work for the County Department of Building Inspection recently as plumbing and mechanical inspector.

He joins Russ Gecek and Howard Carson in serving individuals and contractors who are planning building projects.

Carson, who is head of the department, reminds everyone that permits should be obtained before a project is started. His office has all the necessary instructions about what should be done.

Whippo moved to Charlevoix from Lake Orion three years ago when he married the former Cheryl Hoffman and has been operating the Advanced Plumbing and Heating Company, which he is now shutting down. He is a licensed Master Plumber and a Licensed Mechanical Contractor.

Batik artist at McCune Arts Center

A collection of fine art batiks by Terri Haugen will be featured during a Limited Engagement Exhibition in the Art Tree Sales Gallery beginning Saturday, Oct. 4.

Haugen, whose work is featured on the cover of the October Readers Digest, works from her studio-gallery in Benzonia to create paintings using an age-old process of waxing and dyeing fabric.

Batik is a Japanese term meaning "wax writing." The technique involves covering fabric with hot wax to resist the application of dyes. The process is repeated for each color used in the piece; sometimes more than two-dozen waxings and dyeings occur in the creation of a single work.

Characteristic in batik are the veinings of color that appear as cracks when the dye ruptures the waxed fabric. Haugen controls this part of the process by rupturing only the areas which will enhance the composition of the work.

Once the batik process has been started, it is impossible to correct mistakes in waxing and dyeing, so the artist must visualize the entire composition before taking the first steps.

Haguen is self-taught in the art of batik, and maintains the purity of traditional methods while bringing in a sophistication of subtle coloration and composition. A string of juried show awards and solo artist exhibitions attest to her success with the medium.

She recently issued a series of limited edition lithographs based on her award-winning batik originals, many of which represent scenes from Northern Michigan.

The Haugen collection may be viewed in the sales gallery Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and during "Art After Hours," Monday evenings from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

The Art Tree Sales Gallery is located in the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center, corner of Mitchell and Division streets, downtown Petoskey.

Ostling fund-raiser planned

There will be a reception and fund-raiser for Republican state Rep. Ralph Osling on Monday, Oct. 13 at the Grey Gables restaurant, 308 Belvedere Ave., from 5-7:30 p.m.

Ostling will be present for the event. There will be hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar. Tickets are $15 per person or $20 per couple. The reception is sponsored by the Committee to Elect Ralph Ostling.

Tickets may be obtained by calling Dot Gilding at 547-9520, Walt Hufford at 547-6310 or June Cross at 547-2532.

Ostling represents Charlevoix County in the 103rd state legislative district. He is being opposed by Democrat Ellen Addington in the November election.

Ostling, of Roscommon, is serving his seventh term in the legislature and is vice-chairman of the appropriations committee.

Four Generations

Interlochen faculty offer music lessons

Rosemary Malocsay, instructor of strings, and Peter Brockman, instructor of brass, will visit the Virginia McCune Arts Center in Petoskey this fall to offer private lessons to interested students and adults in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

Both teachers are members of the permanent full-time teaching staff at the Interlochen Center for the Arts.

The visiting teacher project is sponsored by Crooked Tree Arts Council. Mrs. Malocsay offers lessons in the violin (non-Suzuki method) for students and adults beginning at age 7. Mr. Brockman offers lessons in brass instruments, including trumpet, trombone, baritone horn and tuba. The lessons are offered at the Arts Center on Monday afternoons and evenings beginning October 6, to continue every other week.

Students are required to enroll for a minimum of four lessons. A $12 fee per half-hour lesson applies. All students must obtain an instrument.

To register or inquire, call the Arts Center at 347-4337 Monday through Saturday, 10 am. to 5 p.m. Lesson times are arranged individually through the Arts Center staff, and are assigned on a first-come, first-served basis.

One shot at an insulator can drop a city in its tracks.

Some thoughtless people, "just for the fun of it," use insulators for target practice. In fact, this happens a lot. I know because I'm a Consumers Power lineman, and it's my job to search for the cause of a power failure.

People who shoot out insulators forget that a single shot can bring down a house, a factory, a hospital or even an entire city.

That's why Consumers Power offers substantial rewards for information resulting in either the arrest and arraignment of persons responsible for damage to our property.

So, if you have information concerning such an incident, please contact a local police agency or call Consumers Power.

I know just how important stamping out this crime is: my home is just as vulnerable as yours.

Hayes Township wants stricter lake controls

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission last week generally approved several proposed changes in Section 5.13 of the Hayes Township zoning ordinance, which, if they become law, will make the ordinance more restrictive than it is at present.

The changes were referred to the County Planning Commission for its comments, which are given only in an advisory capacity. Final approval or disapproval of the changes rests with the Hayes Township Board.

Section 5.13, the "Shoreline Protection" portion of the Hayes Township zoning ordinance, was the basis for a lawsuit filed in January, 1985 by a Hayes Township landowner, Fox & Associaties, who proposed to build a condominium development on the 338 acres and 2,800 feet of shoreline it owns along the north shore of Lake Charlevoix in Hayes Township.

The Township told Fox it could not issue a permit for the development because the development plans did not meet with requirements of its zoning ordinance, which limits shoreline development to one dwelling for every 100 feet and dockspace to one powered boat for every 100 feet. Fox had proposed 126 condominium units and 56 boat slips on the property.

The lawsuit, Fox & Associates vs. Hayes Township, will probably be heard by the Michigan Court of Appeals early next year. A preliminary hearing was held in Cheboygan County Circuit Court (transferred from Charlevoix County Circuit Court) in October, 1985. In that instance, Judge Robert Livo ruled that the Hayes Township zoning ordinance was constitutional because it was rooted in state law and dealt with a matter of public interest. Following this decision, Fox & Associates asked the Court of Appeals to hear the case.

No change in either of these shoreline use regulations is now proposed. However, the minimum setback from the lake for any kind of structure would be increased from the present 50 feet to 100 feet, and the Township Planning Commission could place a minimum of up to 150 feet for any cluster of dwellings or multiple family dwellings, including condominiums.

In addition to this setback, a strip of land 35 feet wide from the normal high water mark bordering the body of water must be maintained in trees

Apartment complex begins construction just under deadline

by DOUG TRUAX

Bulldozers moved onto a piece of property on Petoskey Avenue Tuesday and began stripping the land for a new apartment complex one day before the deadline set by city council.

Techlin Corp. of East Lansing began clearing land for the 24-unit complex next to Chez Charlevoix condominiums following Monday night's discussion with council.

City Attorney Jeffery VanTreese told council the company had until Oct. 8 to show that construction had begun on the project or the rezoning for it would lapse.

In January 1985, council rezoned the property to permit the project after a long and controversial discussion which included objections from some of the neighbors of the apartments.

A site plan was approved by council on Oct. 7, 1985, giving the company one year to commence construction or lose its authorization.

Techlin Corp. Vice President Mike Niedzielski told council Monday that construction had begun on the project earlier. In any event, he said the project would be started immediately to retain the authorization.

"All contracts have been let on the job," Niedzielski said.

He said the contract with the building contractor required the work had to be completed within seven months. As soon as the site was cleared, he added, survey and foundation work would begin.

Bud Gebeau, a neighbor who led opposition to the project, objected to the development firm's attempts to slide in under the deadline. "I think it's a real shame that anybody's given the liberties that have gone along with this," he added.

VanTreese told council it was powerless to take any action until the Oct. 8 date. "I think we're a little bit premature," he said.

COUNCIL ALSO discussed the fate of a large maple tree located in the parkway in front of the new Public Safety Building.

City Manager Michael Wiesner told council he and Fire Chief John Martin had reviewed the situation and come to the conclusion the tree must be taken down to make way for the fire trucks and traffic in the alley to the north of the building.

Wiesner said it was their original plan to leave the tree, but he saw no way around its removal.

Mayor Hal Hill and council agreed that the tree should be removed for convenience and safety.

Bruce MacArthur, president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc., objected to the plan strenuously.

"That tree is essential to the beauty of that building," MacArthur said. "You need that tree to soften the impact of the building. Every effort should be made to save it."

MacArthur said afterward he would try to get his executive committee to approve court action to get a restraining order to stop removal of the tree until other options had been studied.

Educating the Gifted

School programs aim at more than academics

This is the second in a three-part series on educating the gifted and talented in Charlevoix. The Charlevoix schools were among the first in northern Michigan to take on the challenge of the gifted. This week we look at how the elementary and middle schools have structured their programs and at some of the issues surrounding the gifted curriculum.

by DOUG TRUAX

America has, at least until recently, taken justifiable pride in the broad base of its educational system. The very heart and soul of our democracy is premised on the education of the masses.

And yet American school system has recently come under attack for failing to prepare the vast majority of its citizens. "The educational foundations of our society are presently being eroded by a rising tide of mediocrity that threatens our very future as a Nation and a people," the National Commission on Excellence in Education reported in 1983.

"If an unfriendly foreign power had attempted to impose on America the mediocre educational performance that exists today," the report concluded, "we might well have viewed it as an act of war."

At the same time the schools were being challenged for their performance in educating the ordinary student, they were also being asked to perform more and more for the extraordinary. Society was demanding more attention for the gifted and for the socially, emotionally and intellectually disadvantaged.

Education of the gifted and talented, like other special segments of the school population, grew in popularity in the seventies, but with it came a swirl of controversy.

Is gifted education elitist?, some questioned. Is it compatible with the democratic basis of our educational system. Is it worth the cost to concentrate on a very small population? Will it produce any real social benefits? Does labelling the gifted hurt them as well as the many students who are relegated to the "normal" population?

Along with the philosophical questions was a very real dilemma. Who is gifted and talented and who is not? And what is the price of mistaken identification?

THE CHARLEVOIX school system, a pioneer in gifted education in northern Michigan, has had to deal with such questions as it has developed its programs over the last seven or eight years. What has emerged is a program that attempts to challenge the brightest academic students, while providing room for children with talents in a variety of areas.

The Charlevoix School Board recognized the need for special attention to gifted students when it adopted a policy in 1979 that supported "the concept that it is the responsibility of educators to recognize and develop the special gifts that each child may possess whether the child be talented academically, artistically, creatively, vocationally or athletically."

The board recognized the need to treat the gifted differently. "We believe that the initiative and creativity of these children can be crushed by the required conformity to programs inappropriate for them," the policy stated. "There is a popular belief that the gifted can manage without provisions being made for them. However, we believe that these unattended gifted are often bored and can be rated 'deprived,' and may suffer psychological damage and impairment of their special talents."

TODAY, SOME 7½ years later, those involved with the program believe it is succeeding admirably. "When we began, the challenge was to provide programs for kids that were listless," recalls Tom Sothard, middle school librarian and an instructor for the gifted and talented. "But we won't hear that again."

Sothard says that now the problem is the competition between all of the options available to children and the limited amount of time.

"We are challenging these kids all over the place," he says.

Charlevoix's program for the gifted and talented begins in the first grade with the Program for the Academically Talented (PAT). In school parlance this is a "pull-out" program where the top 5 percent of each class is allowed to leave the regular classroom and meet with teacher Carol Elliott in a special class.

The program is based on enrich-

TempoTech workers, under the supervision of the DNR, prepare to remove the first salmon from the weir at Medusa Creek.

Salmon harvest underway as chinook return to Medusa Creek

Chinook salmon, planted by the thousands for the last three years in Medusa Creek, made their attempted spawning runs last week and were harvested in the weir constructed by TempoTech Industries.

TempoTech, under the guidance of the Department of Natural Resources, made the first harvest Friday morning. Approximately 180 fish were taken and the run appeared to be coming in full force. Biologists had been a little nervous the previous week as the fish schooled off shore but failed to show up in the weir.

TempoTech, under contract with the DNR, had constructed a holding pond and harvest operation beside the Medusa Creek which carries water from the Medusa quarry to Lake Michigan a short distance below.

"It looks like what we are doing is successful, we're just talking numbers," said district fish biologist Steve Swan as he watched the harvest operation.

Swan said the DNR planted 500,000 chinook fingerlings in the Medusa Creek in 1984 and has planted 250,000 each year since then. He said the annual spawning runs bring 1 percent of the 2-year-old salmon; 2 percent of the three year olds and 3 percent of the four year olds.

This year's run at the Medusa trapping station should include only two and three-year-old fish. Swan said next year should produce twice the harvest.

Swan said if not enough fish return to the Medusa Creek site, he may experiment with keeping the fingerlings in the holding pond longer or with the use of chemical imprinting solutions in the water. The salmon return to the stream where they were planted guided by the unique smell of the water.

Swan also said the weir at the Jordan River had been completely ineffectual in keeping fish out of the river this year. He blamed the problem on high water which allowed the fish to swim over the weir. The water eventually washed out the weir completely.

More fish were reported to be in the upper Jordan than ever before.

Swan also revealed that assistant fisheries chief Dave Borgeson has come up with what may prove to be a new design for a lamprey barrier at the M-32 bridge in East Jordan. The structure would use wood rather than steel as a base for an electronic barrier.

The structure could also be used to block salmon runs in the fall, Swan said.

A chinook finds it has reached the end of the road as it attempts to move out of the holding pond and into the water diversion from Medusa Creek.

Salmon are packed in boxes awaiting shipment to Cross Fisheries which bought the fish from TempoTech.

School Board sets tuition fees; middle school receives beautification award

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education set the tuition for the 1986-87 school year, accepted a resignation and took action on a large number of other issues at its regular meeting Monday.

Tuition in the kindergarten through the eighth grade was set at $1,445 and for high school students, $1,600. The rates are high because the school district is out of formula because of its state equalized valuation, it was explained.

Dennis VanGuilder, present principal at the middle school, resigned as girls' track coach effective at once. He has served as the coach for the past 10 years. The board commended him and thanked him for a job well done.

In other action, little time was given to the matter of foreign trips by clubs because two students present said they did not think trips were planned for this year.

Approval was given two requests for trips. The first was an overnight trip for the cross country team which will be participating in the Shepard Invitation meet this weekend. The overnight was requested because the meet begins at 8:30 a.m. The second was a request for the annual third-grade field trip to Beaver Island scheduled for the week of June 1-5.

The bid for the disposal of garbage was awarded to Charlevoix Garbage whose bid was for $390 per month. The only other bid was for $495 submitted by North Country.

Vincent Olach, business manager, gave an update on the renovation of Kipke Field, outlining the time schedule for the remaining work.

VanGuilder, middle school principal, introduced Andy Peters, of the Char-Em staff who is in charge of the HIP program at the middle school. Peters is a 1967 graduate of the Charlevoix High School and has been with Char-Em for 10 years. There are 14 students in the program from an area that extends from Levering to Central Lake. Pat Miller of the Char-Em staff commended the board for allowing a room for the special program.

Vane Smith, K-5 principal, advised the board that Friday had been designated as "Grandparents Day" at the school. In 1985, 290 grandparents attended the event.

Dennis VanGuilder advised the board that the sixth grade at the middle school had received a Distinguished Service Plaque at the annual awards meeting of Keep Michigan Beautiful held in Muskegon. The award was given in recognition of the planting program at the school last spring. The program will be continued by the sixth grade during the present school year under the supervision of the Charlevoix Garden Club. VanGuilder, Jim Jurnski and Allen Dhaseleer were in Muskegon to receive the award.

The next meeting of the board of education is scheduled for Oct. 20.

Opinion

Mission accomplished

Round Town BY EDITH GILBERT

MISSION ACCOMPLISHED! Why people want to recall scenes of their childhood, I can't fathom. Maybe it's one of our creature instincts like birds nesting, or smelt running upstream in the spring.

Whatever the reason, I, for one, was more than eager to search out my youthful "roots" in Shanghai. My parents and I had lived there and I was sent to the German Kaiser Wilhelm School for the first three grades.

The problem was, all I had to go on were hazy memories. Besides having no addresses, the hitch was that all street names have been changed after the Communist Revolution in 1949. However, with the willing help of a friendly contact at the Hoover Institution of War, Revolution and Peace at Stanford, I was provided with a few clues before leaving home.

Edith Gilbert had only this old photo to use as identification in finding her former home in Shanghai.

A CITS (China International Travel Service) guide called for me at the Shanghai Hotel. Miss Wang graduated as a tour guide from the Shanghai Tourist Institute - a three year program including the study of history, geography, politics, food and English.

How lucky for me that this nostalgic trip was made just in the nick of time. Next year would have been too late.

I WISH OUR HANDSOME Chief of Police, Jack Mol, had shared my white knuckle ride from the garden in the middle of a city of 12 million people.

FRANKLY, I WOULD not have recognized the building, but, oh, that beautiful little Chinese garden! A big lawn surrounded by tiny landscaped trails, where I found my first caterpillar and a tiny rock-lined pond where I collected baby toads and frogs, much to my mother's dismay.

Within a stone's throw stands a large building. It is called the International Club. I was told this old remodelled building was undoubtedly the house where I used to live. The inside stairs looked very familiar.

The driver informed me that all this is to be torn down soon to make room for another skyscraper. He saw the plans. The shadow of an unfinished 40-story Hilton Hotel already falls across the courtyard.

Edith's former home, now the International Club, as she saw it recently.

WHEN I FIRST posed my desire to Miss Wang, she nodded politely, but I sensed she didn't grasp my fierce determination to find my former home and school. Our driver, Shi, Miss Wang and I cruised lackadaisically up and down the Old French Concession. Gradually, our young driver got the message. With growing determination, he made a few significant stops, talked to some friendly old-timers and showed them photos and addresses.

Suddenly the whole venture became a glorious game with much waving of arms and pointing gestures. Quickly Shi leaped into the car and off we went, pulling right up to my old school. I couldn't believe it!

It was like finding the proverbial needle in a haystack to find this small building with a beautiful Shanghai Airport to the hotel. At night.

Of the 12 million people traveling the streets each pedestrian, cyclist, and car driver firmly believes he or she has the right of way. Always. In addition, none of the bicycles have lights and few have reflectors.

My daring young driver, Shi, in a new air conditioned Toyota, skillfully played "King of the Road." We only clipped one cyclist who made an unexpected turn to the left in front of our car.

The three major problems in Shanghai, according to my guide, are traffic, pollution and a shortage of housing.

Are you listening to this familiar ring, George Lasater, Howard Neilson, Dick Georgi?

Letters to the editor:

Rest rooms are needed at both ends of town

Dear Editor:

Regarding the article on the front page of Sept. 24 issue - The rest room situation:

I grew up in Charlevoix. At that time I knew of only one rest room at the Chamber of Commerce. I returned here for my retirement a few years ago. As far as I know, there is still only the one rest room available to the public.

During special events they set up portables. Those sites mentioned as available rest rooms in the article - how many visitors are aware of these? There are no signs to this effect.

City Hall, County Building and library are not always open.

I feel the site chosen in the north park area is very appropriate. An open air viewing deck would not really block any more view than the boats docked there.

I used the rest room in the Beaver Island Boat Co. when I was here for Apple Festival and color tour one year. Believe me, I was shocked at the condition.

A rest room located on both ends of town would be a convenience to visitors and shoppers.

Time to recall importance of this country's free press

Dear Editor:

It is sometimes easy to overlook the obvious – especially when we enjoy the benefits everyday.

The obvious in this case is the annual observance of National Newspaper Week. It's a time to remind ourselves and each other of the importance of the free and uninhibited flow of news – one of the crucial needs our founding fathers foresaw as critical to the success of government "by the people."

We at the State Chamber of Commerce, like so many others who are interested in public affairs and reporting by the media – recognize that the democratic process gets better over the years. This is particularly true as more and more of our citizens – constantly made aware by the media of our challenges and opportunities – become involved in our democracy and work to improve the system.

In recognition of the efforts by newspapers, as well as radio and television, let me take this occasion to salute your efforts and urge you to keep up the good work of reporting, advising, educating, and entertaining.

Nicholls' ghost revisited

Dear Editor:

I noted with interest Bob Clock's story on Nicholls' ghost in the Sept. 24 Courier. With Halloween nearly here, the ghost may be closer than what Fran Martin and Mr. Clock realize. Not only did the telephone company spell the name incorrectly but old John Nicholls spelled it wrong himself (or did he?).

The Charlevoix Historical Society Museum has the original steel safe from his lumbering mill dating back to 1878. On the door of the safe the following words are yet legible:

"John Nichols & Sons" (note one L!)

Our next society meeting is November 4 at 8 p.m. in the museum. We invite you all to come and see for yourself - maybe ghost John will show up to straighten us all out!

Election frustration

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

With Nov. 4 less than a month away, I am suffering a bad case of election frustration.

I am convinced that American system of government is the best going, but even our system of electing folks to represent us in Washington and Lansing is so badly flawed I sometimes feel a complete overhaul is in order.

Take the cost of campaigning, for example.

A candidate should not have to pander funds from special interests in order to finance an election campaign, but that has become the name of the game. Of course, as soon as a candidate accepts a dime from any Political Action Committee (PAC), he is no longer an independent agent, free to vote his own conscience. He is so indebted to the textile industry, labor unions or the education lobby that he must vote as he is told.

So much for representative democracy. The candidate can proclaim his objectivity from the top of the Washington Monument. But we all know his vote already has been paid for. All that remains for him to do is convince voters that their interests are identical to those of General Motors or the UAW.

I have long had the idea that candidates for public office should enter a kind of priesthood under which they would be housed, clothed and fed until the election is over. Each would alloted a certain amount of money by the government to campaign — and that, my friends, would be it. Anyone caught accepting a free lunch from Joe Gotrocks or a pair of trousers from the Amalgamated Clothing Workers would be disqualified automatically from running for public office.

Such a system would introduce a measure of equality into the election process that has been lacking almost since Day One.

I also think that the number of terms one person should be allowed to serve in one elective office should be sharply curtailed. We already have imposed a limit of two four-year terms on the president. Yet we allow old Gen. John Senile serve until he can no longer find his way to the men's room.

Perhaps one six-year term for congressmen, senators and their equivalents on the state level is in order. If you can't accomplish what you want to accomplish in six years, chances are you'll never get it done. You might as well step aside and let someone else have a crack at the job.

I'd never let anyone stay in public office long enough to collect a pension.

Longevity in public office has another major disadvantage: Public servants seem to burn out more rapidly than the rest of us. Too many times I have seen bright, clear-eyed, idealistic young people win election to public office and hustle off to Washington or Lansing to leave their mark on the world.

Yet within a few years — sometimes months — the system gets to them. They learn to do what is expedient rather than what is right. Idealism goes out the window as they scramble for campaign funds to secure another four years of "the good life" for themselves and their families. They learn it is easier to follow the party line than to vote their own consciences.

As a result we have otherwise sensible people voting for such immoral boondoggles as $100 million in aid to the enemies of Nicaragua.

Election time is never easy for those of us who care about our country.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

THOSE LITTLE THINGS
by Rev. Robert H. Piller
Bethany Lutheran Church

A man who had hitchhiked from coast to coast, and who had walked many miles in the process, was asked what he found the hardest to endure. To the surprise of his questioner, it was not the steep mountains or the dazzling sun or the scorching desert heat that had troubled him most, but – in the words of the traveler – "it was the sand in my shoes."

Frequently it is the little things that make our lives most difficult. Somehow the great trials of life-moments of critical illness, of death, of bereavement–have a way of raising us to higher levels and bringing us closer to the only Source of spiritual strength.

But those smaller trials! How they plague us. And how they succeed again and again in causing us to fall and stumble. Those little irritations in the home, those endless vexations at the shop or office, those petty quarrels with those we know–those are the "sand in our shoes" which wear us down and which frequently wear us thin.

But they really should not. St. Paul wrote some words to the Christian people who were living in Rome. He said, "We glory in tribulation also, knowing that tribulation works patience, and patience, experience, and experience hope" (Romans 5:3-4).

In these words, Paul is talking about those "sand in our shoes" experiences that fall on every person. But he says that these very troubles should lead and help us to grow in Godly patience, and therefore help us to grow and endure. It is when we cultivate a closer walk with Jesus Christ that we will be able to take our daily irritations in stride.

Have we permitted the little things in life (the sand in our shoes) to get us down, to destroy our personal and family happiness? Then pray for pardon and ask for the grace of quiet patience in every circumstance of life.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ranger

Mast-Ranger

Lisa A. Mast of Bay City and Robert W. Ranger of Richwood, Tx., exchanged their wedding vows Saturday, Oct. 4, at Immanual Lutheran Church in Bay City.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Earl J. Mast of Bay City and Dr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Ranger of Charlevoix.

Arrangements of freesia, bachelor buttons, miniature carnations and larkspur in shades of pink, blue and purple and a unity candle graced the altar for the double ring service performed by the Rev. Leslie D. Tyvela in the presence of 200 guests. Fresh greens and white bows marked the pews. A program of traditional music was played by the church organist. Solos were "The Wedding Song", "The Lord's Prayer" and "You Came as Two Before the Lord".

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a gown of white satin and Alencon lace for her wedding. Fashioned with high wedding band neckline, long fitted sleeves with lace insets and basque waist, the gown featured a chapel length train with lace appliques and a large bow at the waist. A Juliet cap secured her fingertip veil with appliques and finished edge. Her cascading bouquet was of white cattleya orchids, stephanotis and ivy.

Debra K. Rooke was her sister's matron of honor and bridesmaids were Katharina Nowlin, Susan Revesz, Krista Mast and Corinne Ranger. They wore identical ankle length gowns of light magenta polyester taffeta styled with long fitted sleeves and bodice, very full skirts and pleated cumberbunds and carried crescent bouquets of freesia, bachelor buttons, larkspur and miniature carnations in shades of pink, blue and purple.

Maegan Elise Rooke, as flower girl, wore a white taffeta ankle length gown made with a Peter Pan collar and elbow length sleeves with a magenta sash and a bow at the back.

Arthur R. Ranger assisted his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Paul Rooke, Paul Wilkins, Mark Mast and William Ranger.

A reception followed at the Bay City County Club.

After a wedding trip to the Cayman Islands, the couple will be at home at 400 Timber Creek Drive, Apt. 931, RichWood, Tx. 77531.

The bridegroom is a chemical engineer in polycarbonate with the Dow Chemical Co. The bride is a registered nurse.

The rehearsal dinner was held at the Bintz Apple Mountain Steak House in Freeland, Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Russell Jr.

Clark-Russell

Glenda Susan Clark and Jerry Russell, Jr. were united in marriage in a double ceremony on Saturday, August 16, at the Ironton Congregational Church. They shared their wedding day with Jerry's sister, Cathy, and her bridegroom, Larry Holecheck.

Glenda is the daughter of Mrs. Pat Clark, and Jerry is the son of Jerry Russell, Sr., and Mrs. Linda Webster, all of Charlevoix.

The Reverend Harold Kruse officiated at the double-ring rites, in which the bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, Richard Clark, Sr.

Approximately 200 guests attended the ceremony, for which the church had been decorated with lighted candles and lavender and white roses.

The bride wore a Victorian style gown with long fitted sleeves of Chantilly lace. Ruffles accented the V-shaped yoke, and tiers of ruffles trimmed the hemline of the pick-up skirt. The bride's fingertip veil was attached to a headpiece of silk flowers with lace and sprays of pearls.

Ronda Clark, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor, and Patti Brannon, another sister, was bridesmaid. They wore rose-colored gowns with Basque waistlines, off-the-shoulder sleeves, and ruffled hemlines. Each carried lavender and white roses.

Aaron Sue Brock, sister of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a lavender dress and carried a basket of lavender roses. Jared Clark, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer.

Randy Russell served his brother as best man, and Jim Russell, another brother, was groomsman. Jeff Smith was usher.

A reception, hosted by the brides and grooms, was held at the American Legion Hall following the wedding ceremony. Mable Hoffman and Theresa Lanterman assisted.

Following a wedding trip to Mackinac Island, the newlyweds are at home in Charlevoix.

Cheboygan overcomes determined Rayder defense

The Charlevoix Rayders played it tough Friday against an explosive Cheboygan team but failed to come up with enough offensive firepower to knock off the favored Chiefs.

Cheboygan (5-0) used the big play when it needed it and came away with a 21-7 victory.

Two second-quarter touchdowns were all the Chiefs needed to remain atop the Huron-Michigan Shores Conference while Charlevoix fell to 2-2 in league play and 2-3 overall.

It looked for awhile as though Charlevoix would get on the board first after the two teams went scoreless for the first 12 minutes. Cheboygan gave up the ball on a fumble at the end of the first quarter with the Rayders recovering on the visitor's 22.

Fullback Mark LaBlance opened the second period with a run to the Cheboygan 15 but the play was called back on a holding penalty. The Rayders failed to advance the ball more than few yards on the next few plays and with third and 17 at the Chiefs' 28 quarterback Jim Gibbs threw a pass that was intercepted by Chris Harden.

"That first intereception killed us," assistant coach Hal Evans said. "It was a timing pattern and they read it well. Their safety read it as an option, but he was in the right spot. We were moving the ball really well."

Charlevoix regained possession after the Chiefs were unable to move the ball. A poor punt gave the Rayders the ball on the Cheboygan 37, but on third and eight, Harden intercepted a second Gibbs pass. On the next play, Cheboygan quarterback Pete Maybank found McNitt all alone for a 30-yard touchdown pass. Derek Woodgate's point after made it 7-0.

Cheboygan held the Rayders on their next series and an errant punt gave the Chiefs the ball on the Rayder 38.

On second and long a Maybank pass was nearly picked off by Steve Hopkins, but the Chiefs took advantage of the break and Maybank connected on a 13-yard pass to Scott Brandau on fourth and eight. Then on third and five on the 17-yard line, Maybank found Brandau in the endzone for the TD.

Woodgate's extra point made it 14-0.

Cheboygan threatened late in the half after Henry Grondin blocked a punt at the Charlevoix 20. After Jason Grondin carried to the 6, David Miller intercepted a pass in the endzone and returned it to the Charlevoix 34 with :17 remaining.

Cheboygan drove to the Charlevoix 17 at the start of the second half on the running of Grondin and McNitt. On a fourth and third, Maybank rolled out but the pass was incomplete and the Rayders took over.

The offense failed to move the ball and the Chiefs took over until John Jaskierski picked off Maybank's pitchout in the backfield.

The Raders held the Chiefs in check for the early part of the fourth quarter. With 3:33 left in the game, McNitt ripped off a 51-yard dash to the Charlevoix 1-yard line. On the next play he scored and the extra point made it 21-0.

Charlevoix got on the board when Gibbs faked a handoff on the ensuing kickoff and ran it to the Cheboygan 34. Hopkins then took the ball on a reverse and passed to DeYoung for the Rayders' first and only TD. Terry Bonar made the kick and the score was 21-7.

LaBlance had 42 yards rushing in nine carries for Charlevoix. Gibbs added 34 yards in eight carries and Thompson 23 in 10 carries. Gibbs had a team-high 13 tackles. Jason Fettig had 12, Batdorff and Seymour each had 10 and Quint Walker nine.

McNitt lead the Chiefs' attack with 121 yards on 11 carries.

Girls lose a pair

The previously unbeaten Charlevoix Rayder girls basketball team dropped two games last week, the first to Gaylord by a 52-38 score and the second to Cheboygan 52-36.

At Gaylord the Rayders were undone by a third period in which they scored only four points.

The Rayders got off to a good start leading 16-8 at the quarter and 22-19 at halftime only to trail 40-26 going into the final period when they poured in 20 points to cut the margin to six points after trailing as much as 16 points early in the period.

The Rayders had 18 field goals and 10 of 17 charity shots for the game while Gaylord and 22 field goals and eight of 17 from the line. Charlevoix had 18 personal fouls and Gaylord 19.

Amy Pischner had 23 points and Ann Kroll nine for Charlevoix.

The Gaylord JV's also won 46-22. Stacy Gebott had seven points for the young Rayders.

In the Cheboygan game, Cheboygan led all the way 13-19, 25-22 and 44-26 by quarters.

The Rayders were outscored 23 to 13 from the floor and had nine of 15 free throw attempts. Cheboygan had six of 14 free throws and 15 personal fouls. Charlevoix had 14 personal fouls.

Pischner again led the scoring with 19 points.

The Cheboygan JV's chalked up a 52-22 win. Paula Thorp had seven points for Charlevoix.

Charlevoix will host Boyne City Thursday and travel to Petoskey Tuesday.

Golfers finish season, tourney in fifth place

The Charlevoix Rayder golf team finished fifth in the Michigan Huron Shores Conference meet played at the Belvedere Golf Course Monday and finished in the same position in league standings for the season.

Medalist for the seven team meet was Bruce Bach of the title team, Cheboygan, who had an 81 (42-39).

Named to the All-Conference team were Bach; Rich Dalimonte (81) of Sault Ste. Marie; Jeff Gronda (84) Cheboygan; Kirk Shanley, (84) Petoskey; Eric Steinorth, Rogers City and Pete Smith, (85) Boyne City.

Cheboygan finished first in conference standings with 20 points followed by Boyne City with 16; Petoskey 15; Sault Ste. Marie 11; Charlevoix 8; Gaylord 6, and Rogers City 2.

Cheboygan finished first in the tournament which climaxed the six-game schedule with a score of 341 followed by Boyne City 366, Petoskey 366, Sault Ste. Marie 378, Charlevoix 400, Gaylord 404, and Rogers City 407.

Charlevoix's scores for the meet were Dave Clark, 44-50 94; Scott Wise, 48-50 98; Pat Anderson, 50-51 101 and Scott Crain, 57-50 107.

Coach Glen Taylor who hosted the event said the tournament went well. "The scores indicated the toughness of the course. The weather cleared." He went on to say that his players did not have a good day as their score shows. "We finished (in the standings) about where we expected to finish. The tournament results were about where everyone thought they would be," Taylor said.

The Rayders will lose only two members by graduation, Wise and Clark. Anderson is the only junior. All other team members are freshmen or sophomores.

JVs fall to Chiefs' onslaught

The Charlevoix JV football team fell victim to a strong Cheboygan team by a score of 39-18 in a game played on the Chiefs' turf Thursday.

Cheboygan, on its first possession, scored on a 40-yard run up the middle and kicked the conversion to take an easy lead.

On the ensuing kick off, Shawn Putman ran 70 yards to put the Rayders on the board. They then tried for a two-point conversion which failed.

The young Chiefs rounded out the quarter by scoring on runs of 25 and 5 yards and completed the half by adding two more TDs on runs of 15 and 3 yards. They also scored two conversions for a 33-6 halftime lead.

As the second half got underway, the Rayders put together a long drive to the 1-yard line from where James Corwin scored on a quarterback sneak.

In the last period Jason Corwin passed to Jamie Montieth who scored on the 32-yard play.

Cheboygan added one more scoring play, this one on a 6-yard run for the final score of the game.

Coach Brian Certa gave credit to Jason Whitley, Matt Cunningham, Montieth and Tony Warchol for outstanding play on both offense and defense.

Jason Corwin had 113 yards on offense.

Charlevoix will host Gaylord in its first home game on the season Thursday.

Emily Heck rated tops by NASTAR

ASPEN, Colo. – Charlevoix skier Emily Heck, 4, finished first in the country in the season-end Coca-Cola Junior NASTAR National Rankings Program.

Emily Heck

Competing in the female 1 to 4-year-old category, Heck recorded a season-best average handicap of 62.0 while racing at Nubs Nob.

More than 100,000 boys and girls participated at 140 ski areas across the country, and the top 10 juniors in each of six age categories were determined by the average of their two best handicaps from the 1985-86 season.

All national leaders will be listed in the December issue of SKI magazine and will appear on the Coca-Cola Junior NASTAR rankings poster, which will be distributed nationwide.

"Consider the enormous number of skiers who are participating at NASTAR areas across the country, Emily's first-place finish is quite an accomplishment," said Bob Beattie, NASTAR Commissioner and former U.S. Olympic ski team coach. "There are also some very competitive junior NASTAR racers and someday I hope to see a few of them in the Olympics."

Harriers defend Invitational crown

The Charlevoix Rayders successfully defended their Division I title at the Claire Martin Invitational cross country meet Saturday.

Mancelona edged Elk Rapids as Division II champions while Traverse City replaced Petoskey as winners of the A-B Division and Charlevoix retained its title as C-D champions of the girls division.

In the meet the best eight times among 10 runners were counted in the team totals in the Division I race; the conventional five of the top seven were used in Divisions II and III

"The weather was not conducive to good times in the meet. The course was wet because of the continuous rains. It rained during part of the meet and gusty winds 10 to 15 miles an hour were blowing," coach Pete Spieles said.

"Despite the weather, the teams ran well. I was pleased with my teams. All in all I think it was a good meet," Spieles added.

The Rayders placed first in Division I with 85 points followed by Gaylord with 200; St. Mary's (Soo, Ont.) 217; Petoskey 228; Bawating (Soo, Ont.) 269. Traverse City was entered with six runners.

Mancelona took Division II with 49 points followed by Elk Rapids 56; Charlevoix B 57; Bawating B 121; St. Mary's B 159; Boyne City was entered in this division with four runners; Gaylord with three and East Jordan with one.

In the girls' A-B race (Division III) Traverse City took the title with 30 followed by Gaylord with 103 and Petoskey with 114. Mt. St. Joseph (Soo, Ont.) was entered with four runners.

Charlevoix took the girls C-D division with 63 points; Mancelona was second with 110. East Jordan with three runners, Boyne City with two and Beaver Island with one also participated.

Doug Bergmann remained undefeated in Division 1 with a time of 16:08. Jeff Thomas of Mancelona won in Division II in 16:04 and Anne Mudgett of Traverse City led in 19:14 in Division III. The boys and girls course records are 15:39 set by Charlevoix's Bill Taylor in 1983 and 19:02 set by Anne VanDam of Petoskey in 1984.

Medals were awarded to the top 15 runners in all three divisions and top 10 in the junior high division. Trophies were awarded to the champions and the runners-up in Division I and II and to Division A-B and Division C-D in Division III.

Six teams of 53 runners were entered in Division I; eight team of 47 runners in Division II and eight teams of 50 in Division III.

The top 15 medal winners in Division I were:

1. Doug Bergmann, Cx, 16:08; 2. Jeff Linger, Traverse City, 16:13; 3. Pat Rajewski, Cx, 16:19; 4. Erik Dickerson, Gaylord, 16:21; 5. Kevin LaForge, Bawating, 16:35; 6. Dereck Barg, TC, 16:39; 7. Youth leagues planned

Bowling leagues for high school and middle school kids will begin this Saturday at the Paul Bunyan Lanes, John Fiedorek announced recently.

The middle school leagues will start at 11 a.m. with the high schoolers bowling at 1 p.m.

Middle school youngsters can bowl two games for $2.55 including shoe rental. The fee for high school students is $3.65 for three games, also including shoes.

All area youth are invited to participate and Fiedorek urges parents to get involved as scorekeepers, instructors and the like.

The youth bowling will be held every Saturday through the beginning of March. Anyone wishing to help or wanting more information should call 547-2848.

Cheboygan beats freshmen

The Charlevoix Rayder freshmen were defeated by a score of 64-14 by a strong Cheboygan eleven Wednesday night.

The Rayders scored first on a 9-yard pass play from Greg Lewis to Chris Seymour. Lewis then passed to Bill Sherman for the two-point conversion.

The Rayders only other score came in the third period on a 38-yard touchdown pass to Chad DeYoung. The conversion attempt was cut short.

The young Chiefs scored almost at will, scoring nine touchdowns on a variety of passing and running plays including two on 54-yard runs. They also scored five conversions, three on runs and two on pass plays.

"We learned a lot but it was tough," coach Erik Lundteigen said.

Charlevoix will host Gaylord at Kipke Field at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Educating the Gifted

Schools offer varied approaches

ment, or horizontal development, rather than acceleration into other grade levels of work. Children in the program stay with their age group and work on activities in the language arts, dramatics, humanities, and sciences. In the fifth grade, the PAT students work on an animated film project and begin on a program called Future Problem Solving.

Elliott devotes half of her day to the PAT program, teaching each class for one hour four days a week. fn the afternoons she teaches a regular fifth-grade classroom.

She says the emphasis in the PAT program is developing higher level thinking skills with projects that range from independent study to small group projects and games.

Entry into the program is determined by an identification matrix which factors in the Otis-Lennon Mental Ability Test, Metropolitan Achievement Tests in math and reading, and parent and teacher evaluations.

THE GIFTED cannot be adequately served by only two hours a week, Elliott says, noting that there is always a need to work with the teachers of these kids outside the gifted classroom. "I have them for a maximum of one hour a day, but they are gifted 24 hours a day," she observes.

Elementary school principal Vane Smith worries about the identification of the gifted and talented. "The younger the child is, the more difficult it is to identify (giftedness)," he says. "I don't think it is easy to identify the math gifted at an early age."

Smith points out that children that come from homes where there has been a lot of parent involvement and attention to reading and books tend to appear more gifted at an early age. But what do you do, he questions, when the child becomes more like the average as his classmates catch up in abilities. How do you tell mom and dad that the child that last year was rated as gifted is this year just one of the kids.

It may be an ego boost to the parents to tell grandma and grandpa that Johnny was accepted into the PAT program, but what do you say when he is no longer there?

Under the guidelines set up at the elementary and middle schools children are evaluated each year for the program. Being in one year is no guarantee of staying in.

High school principal David Smith has a similar concern. "If we label someone as a gifted kid, how does he handle it when he is not gifted in every area?" He notes that at the high school level it is often as important to provide relief from the academic pressure cooker as it is to challenge the gifted. "Sometimes a kid gets caught up in it and he can't get out. A lot of kids can handle it for awhile, but at some point there has to be an escape."

IDENTIFICATION OF THE academically talented requires careful testing and evaluation from multiple sources, the experts say. They disagree as to whether this group should comprise 2 percent of the students or 5 percent or 10 percent. And how many people should be included when all types of giftedness – including the artistic and creative – are included?

Elliott says the program for the academically talented must not be too broad in its approach. You can't force kids into the program and expect them to do well, she says.

Vane Smith believes that onus of identifying children for the program is relieved in the Charlevoix schools because children are already divided into ability groupings in reading, math and special subjects. "We don't have the problems that a self-contained classroom has because of ability groupings. ff you have a bright kid, he is being challenged anyway," Smith says.

The Program for the Academically Talented was easy to put in place, he notes, because classes in art, music, physical education and the like allow kids gifted in those areas to accelerate as well.

Smith likes the elementary school's horizontal approach – keeping kids together with their classmates while still giving them a chance to work at a faster pace.

AT THE MIDDLE SCHOOL the approach to gifted education changes. Children in the PAT program spend eight hours a week in special programs. Five hours go toward the accelerated math program and an additional three hours of after-school time are spent on enrichment, primarily the Future Problem Solving teams.

Carol Elliott works with Dan Jackson, right, and Jeff Joy on material for the fifth-grade PAT animated film project.

The accelerated math program allows students to take algebra In the eighth rather than the ninth grade and, if they continue in the program through high school, to complete a calculus course in their senior year.

Kay Fiedorek teaches the advanced math classes in the sixth and eighth grades. Torri Fisher has the seventh-grade classes.

Sothard, who coordinates the PAT program at the middle school, says the advanced math classes began some seven years ago at the request of students. "They all said math was the least challenging," Sothard says. The math program accelerates the upper 10 percent of the class, not just those who have been accepted into the PAT program.

He defends the math acceleration, pointing out that "when we teach children to read we don't require them to stay at the third-grade level just because the rest of the class is there. Why should we do it with math?"

Sothard says PAT and other programs for the gifted and talented have "helped foster an acceptance of academic achievement throughout the whole system." Before the PAT program, he notes, the school tried to organize an advanced math class but could not get any takers. "They didn't want to be singled out."

The situation today is radically different, he says. "Now we have kids accepting challenge in many different programs."

Next week, a look at the high school programs and the special enrichment programs including Future Problem Solving and OM (Olympics of the Mind). Also an exploration of the views of parents and students toward the gifted program.

Mr. S brings soccer to Charlevoix

Club sport is growing in popularity among local high school students

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

Soccer has been second nature to Tom Sikavitsa - best known as "Mr. S" - since his early youth. Now he reflects, as he coaches Charlevoix's fledgling 18-year-olds-and-under team, "so many people put a lot of effort into my soccer, especially my coaches, f want to pay some of that back."

The result: Charlevoix's high school aged soccer team is becoming a threat to the more established varsity teams in Petoskey, Harbor Springs and Elk Rapids. Charlevoix's team, however, is not school sponsored like the others. Nor is Mr. S a paid coach. He volunteers at least four evenings a week to his team.

Almost a rag tag group, the Charlevoix players are following a training and practice regimen worthy of a true varsity team. They began the season in September with only nine players, less than enough for a team. The second week, after daily training, racing up and down Suicide Hill behind Mr. S, three more high school students asked to join. The team was beginning to take shape.

Meanwhile Mr. S was drilling hard, "Positioning, ball control, passing, the fundamentals."

The first game with Petoskey, Sept. 17, was tough, a 4-2 defeat. "If we had the number of games under our belt that Petoskey then had, it would have been different," Mr. S reflects.

A match with Harbor Springs came the next evening. It was a 6-3 defeat for Charlevoix, but the Rayders were beginning to play like a team: passing, setting up plays, using Mr. S's techniques – "Bring it down the wings, draw out the defense, switch sides of the field if necessary, then pass into center."

At Elk Rapids, Sept. 22, Charlevoix suffered a 7-2 drubbing; but another high schooler joined the team just prior to the return match with Petoskey, Sept. 24. The game was a near win, but one of Charlevoix's goals was eliminated in a reconsidered referee's opinion, the score was 2-2.

Practice continued nightly, rain or shine. An hour and a half of running, conditioning, dribbling, passing, penalty kicking, heading, game strategies. A compact, athletic man, Sikavitsa played hard with his team, teaching, sharing the nightly drenchings. Three more players asked to join. A sense of team was developing.

"What's amazing," he reflects, "is that these kids would not necessarily socialize or even be friends in school, yet they are really working together."

When Harbor Springs came to Charlevoix Oct. 2 for a rematch, they were shocked. Charlevoix won 9-4.

Coming up are rematches with Petoskey and Elk Rapids, as well as a soccer tournament on Beaver fsland this weekend involving Beaver Island, Elk Rapids, Harbor Springs and Petoskey.

Charlevoix's challenge to the region's school-sponsored soccer teams took off when, as Sally Sikavitsa recalls, "Anne Kelly asked Tom if he would help Dave Knight with a team. f've never forgiven Anne," she jokes.

But it all comes naturally. Born in Kastoria, Macedonia, northern Greece, Mr. S grew up playing soccer, first in Greece, then Chicago. "In Greece every kid's ambition was to see his town's club team go to the Greek Cup and then be selected to play on the Greek team for the Europe Cup."

Chicago was the same. "We played for local clubs. My junior year, we won the National Championships, playing at Boys Town in Omaha," he remembers. Tri-State University in Angola, Indiana, offered Sikavitsa a soccer scholarship. He played soccer and studied prelaw and civil engineering.

Several years into his engineering career, and after one tantalizing trip through Charlevoix to Beaver Island, Sikavitsa was offered a position as civil engineer at Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant by Consumer's Power Company. All of which led him to volunteer to help Charlevoix develop its soccer program for older students.

"We're getting steadily better," he reflects. "We have a range of talent and, with the kids' time and effort, we have molded and switched kids into positions they can play best. This is the first year we have had high school level competition and it's tough.

"f'd like to see soccer develop to where it will achieve high school recognition as a varsity sport," he adds. Warming to the concept, Mr. S continues, "Soccer is a great endurance sport. ft involves 90 minutes of running. It would be terrific training for the basketball players." He pauses, takes a breath and clearly ls prepared to extol the virtues of soccer for as long as he has an audience. "When the ball moves, the team is constantly moving, shifting, supporting..."

The Charlevoix high school-aged team roster includes: Mike Bean, fullback; F.L. Dammann, forward-halfback; David Eakes, fullback; Karl Erber, forward; Chris Groves, fullback; Nick Mellios, forward-halfback; Heath Moore, forward-halfback; John Norman, fullback; Don O'Brien, fullback; John O'Brien, goalie; David Puhl, halfback; Erik Richardson, halfback; Tonya Rostar, halfback; David Salmonson, halfback; Bob Sell, center-forward; Rick Sell, halfback, Jamie Spencley, forward.

Jamie Spencley evades the Harbor Springs defense.

Soccer Club gets victory over Harbor

The Charlevoix soccer club defeated the visiting Harbor Springs club 9-4 in a game played Wednesday at the Charlevoix Township field.

The Charlevoix offense was led by Bob Sell who scored five goals, Jamie Spencley three and Don O'Brien one as the result of a penalty kick. Heath Moore had three assists and Dave Puhl, Karl Erber, Spencley and F.L. Dammann, one each.

Coach Tom Sikavitsa said there was excellent midfield play by Moore, Puhl, Tonya Rostar and Nick Mellios and very good defensive play by Dave Eakes and Don O'Brien.

Tinh Nguyen scored three unassisted goals for Harbor Springs and Scott Ellis added one with an assist from Dany Noggle.

Charlevoix will host Elk Rapids in a game at the township field at 5 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 9.

Vital Options aids Muscular Dystrophy

Just as apples and the Apple Festival in Charlevoix bring to mind good health, so will the Vital Options benefit for muscular dystrophy.

This Saturday, October 11, Vital Options will offer a series of lectures and exercise classes at its studio on US-31 South, next to Brumm's studio.

The first lecture will begin at 8:30, with Terry Crawford, dietician at Northern Michigan Hospitals, giving information on low cholesterol, low fat diets. An hour-long total body exercise class, the main event, will begin at 9:15, followed by information on Wellness Behaviprs from Dr. Thomas J. McKeon.

The non-aerobic "Hips, Thighs, and Abdominal" program will be offered at 11 a.m., again followed by a half-hour lecture, this time from Ann Shannon, a certified massage therapist.

Another total body workout "Headed for the Future", will start at approximately 12:15. Linda Moore, R.N., head of Adult Education Cardiac Care at Northern Michigan Hospitals, will talk about "Your Heart and How ft Works" at 1:30.

Aerobics, plus "Hips, Thighs, and Abdominals" will be addressed in exercise format at 2 p.m., followed by a 3 p.m. drawing for free classes, T-shirts, or massage.

Tickets for this Muscular Dystrophy benefit may be purchased at the door, or from a Vital Options instructor, for $5, with all proceeds going to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. The $5 donation permits those attending to participate in the drawing and a chance to participate in any or all of the exercise classes and lectures.

There will also be other exercise classes and lectures following the 3 o'clock drawing. Interested persons may come and go as they please. Further information may be obtained from Candy Smith, 547-5358.

New pastor at Christ Episcopal

The Reverend Richmond Thweatt has taken over as interim pastor of Christ Episcopal Church In Charlevoix.

Reverend Tbweatt came to Charlevoix from Trinity Episcopal Church in Grand Ledge, where he served as rector for 17 years. He is a graduate of the University of Oklahoma School of Journalism and Seabury-Western Seminary In Evanston, Illinois, from which he received a master of divinity degree.

Before going to Grand Ledge, Reverend Thweatt served several churches in Oklahoma, and also worked in the newspaper field in Washington, D. C. and Hammond, Louisiana. He was born in Norman, Oklahoma and raised in the Army, where his father was a 30-year career officer.

Reverend Thweatt's wife, Josephine, is also a native of Oklahoma. They have two children, Jason and Jennifer.

Reverend Thweatt says his assignment in Charlevoix is "to listen, to re-affirm, and begin a healing process where necessary; to lead church members to the point where they can again define where they are, and to search for a permanent minister to take them into the future". He thinks he will be in Charlevoix anywhere from six months to two years.

When not attending to church duties, 'Reverend Thweatt enjoys collecting stamps and reading, especially science fiction and adventure stories. On vacations, he likes camping and portage canoeing on the border waters of Canada.

"I'm having a really good time in Charlevoix and meeting fantastically good people", he says of his last three weeks.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

As you know, for the past six months the Chamber has been working with Robert Bouldrey, dean of Continuing Education, and two students from NCMC, to devise and execute a retail market survey.

The three-page survey had 17 questions which were designed to indicate the purchasing behavior of local residents and their perception of the Chamber. Residents from the city of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Township, Norwood and Marion Townships were included in the survey. Out of the 1,500 surveys mailed in the Charlevoix area with an 18-day cut-off we enjoyed a 41 percent return. Of the 587 returned, 60 were disqualified for inconsistancy.

In summary, out of twelve items listed, consumers indicated they purchased over 50 percent of their clothing, appliances and furniture outside of the area of Charlevoix. The strongest influence affecting the consumer's decision on purchasing were: the cleanliness of the shopping environment, the quality of the product and the appropriateness of price. The respondents were also heavily influenced by finding adequate parking in the summer season.

Local residents, as a whole, believed that no new business should be added to Charlevoix. They shopped equally the downtown district and Captain's Corner. They received most of their shopping information by newspaper or by word of mouth.

The majority of the residents surveyed had lived in the area for 20 years or more, were 55 years or older, and belonged to families of one to two members. They indicated their income to be $25,000 or more and were college graduates.

The people who completed the questionnaire, as a majority, perceived the Chamber as a promoter of tourism. There did seem to be a considerable amount of unsure responses concerning the Chamber's function in the community, something that might be addressed in the future, but out of 587 responses, 59 percent had a positive attitude about the chamber's involvement in promoting commerce and industry for the betterment of the community.

Type-a-thon benefits charity

The Muscular Dystrophy Association is holding a Type-a-Thon at the Petoskey Holiday fnn on Saturday, October 18.

There will be two big prizes as well as several smaller ones. The person obtaining the most sponsorship money for Muscular Dystrophy will be awarded a weekend at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island. The person typing the most words accurately in three minutes will be awarded a weekend stay at the Brookside Inn in Beulah.

The contest will begin at 11:30 a.m. and continue until all contestants have finished. Electric typewriters will be furnished.

Those desiring to enter the contest should call Pauline Beaton at 347-3377 to obtain an entry kit.

Area Business Aides of Petoskey is hosting the event and will furnish refreshments for contestants.

Child care center needs more kids

The Sunshine Club, headquartered at the Community Reformed Church at Petoskey Avenue and Meech Street, has a limited number of vacancies to be filled, director Julie Smith has announced.

The Sunshine Club was established at the beginning of the school year as a "stopping off" place for children of working parents from the time school is dismissed at 3:30 p.m. until a parent can pick them up at 5:30 p.m.

"The service was established for the benefit of working parents with school-age children who must leave them alone at home until the parents arrive at the close of the work day," Smith said.

The Sunshine Club provides a full program of games, puzzles, crafts and toys for the benefit of the children. There is even a piano so a child may practice piano lessons.

On Wednesday, the Community Children's Choir rehearses at the church and children may join them if they prefer, Smith said.

There are volunteers who work with Smith in supervising the children who also are allowed a free time. They also have a snack during the time they are there.

The fee is $5 per week (five days) or $1.50 per day for those who do not attend every day.

Children at the Sunshine Club take part in some informal after-school card games.

Market Mall plans Christmas Bazaar

by FRAN MARTIN

The Christmas Bazaar, featuring the handcrafted originals of a dozen local artisans, will again be a feature of the annual Apple Festival.

Located in the Market Mall from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday the bazaar will feature a host of beautifully crafted items that lend themselves to everyday use in the home as well as gift giving.

The 12 craftsmen have been selected with care to offer diversity to this one-day event.

New to the annual show this year are Mary Lee Huber and a twosome Gary Spencer and Michael Webb.

Huber will concentrate on delicate herbs which she nurtured in her garden and used to produce sachets, bath potpourri, fragrant herbal hotpads, pressed flower note paper and wreaths. Just follow your nose and you'll find her fragrant display with no trouble.

Spencer and Webb whose showing is entitled "Frames and Photos" have combined Spencer's talent with wood and Webb's with the camera to produce beautifully framed pictures of local scenes and Mother Nature at her best. They work together in making custom oak and pine frames and matting for a variety of subjects, mostly nature and wildlife scenes.

The remaining 10 artisans will be returning with many new items as well as old favorites.

Among them will be Chuck and Kay Britton with their line of functional stoneware which is glazed (leadless) in the soft shades of the popular country blue on white and are microwave, oven and freezer safe; Cara Hochhalter who had added the subtle shades of watercolors to a new collection of cards and pictures. She will also feature her delicate pen and ink drawn notecards.

Dawn Fletcher, who has shown Norwegian Rosemaling and decorative country painting, has added Schrenschnitte (German paper cutting) grapevine wreaths and heart-shaped necklace holders to her growing display. Another popular exhibitor is Sue Miller with her delicately painted and personalized porcelain and wooden Christmas ornaments.

Shirley Lusk (left) and Judy Crook are pictured with some of the handcrafted items they will be showing at the eighth annual Christmas Bazaar in the Market Mall during the annual Apple Festival on Saturday. Lusk is shown with the lovely dried flower arrangement she will be showing while Crook holds the woven straw ornaments.

To this she has added porcelain earrings and decorated chalk boards; Rex Supernaw, who is returning with his handcrafted wood products, now includes clocks in a wide variety of styles, napkin holders, recipe boxes and, new this year, hand-carved ducks.

Peggy Spang is another "old-timer" with the bazaar. During the years she has displayed a variety of crafts. This year she has chosen to use oils and acrylic on woods primarily for wall plaques. Christmas ornaments and candleholders to which she has added painted 1900 rag dolls and whimsical soft-sculptured doorstops and air-freshner dolls. Joan Wagner with her realistic nature scenes burned into natural wood has also returned.

Also a favorite at the bazaar with her delicious homemade cookies and quick breads will be Delora Richardson who will also be offering numerous hand-crocheted items.

Two others, Shirley Lusk and Judy Crook, round out this group of talented crafts people. Lusk has chosen to take dried flowers from her garden and grasses, flowers and weeds from the wild and combine them into lasting year-around bouquets in cleverly crafted containers to brighten the house, especially during the dull days of winter. Crook has utilized her interest in fabrics to create a line of the popular calico prints into quilted chairpads, table runners, table squares and delicate fabric-covered band boxes for home decor. She has joined with Leona Winchester to produce straw woven ornaments and quilted sweaters which combined the former's quilting with Crook's knitting.

Preparations ready for expanded Apple Festival

Downtown Charlevoix will take on a festive atmosphere this weekend as the community celebrates the seventh annual Apple Festival.

There will be a farmer's market featuring fruits in season, including as many as 20 varieties of apples and fresh vegetables galore. In addition, there will be booths selling the produce of the orchards and the berry patches in the forms of jams, jellies and butters as well as pies and candied apples.

On Saturday, the eighth annual Christmas Bazaar featuring the handcrafted articles of a dozen local artisans will be available from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. in the Market Mall.

The Chamber of Commerce sponsors the Apple Festival in cooperation with area orchardists and farmers.

Grandparents' Day planned for elementary school

Friday, October 10, is "Grandparents' Day" at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

Grandparents of children in grades one through five are invited to eat lunch with the children. Since there are three different lunch hours at the school, grandparents should know the name of their grandchild's teacher, so they can plan to eat during that teacher's lunch period.

The first lunch hour, from 11 a.m. to 11:45 a.m., is for the classes of Mrs. Bentley, Mrs. Britton, Mrs. Hoffman, Mrs. Mellon, Mrs. Austin, Mr. Martin, and Mrs. Miller.

The second lunch hour, from 11:45 to 12:30, is for the classes of Mrs. May, Mrs. Tillotson, Mrs. Carland, Mrs. Raecke, Mrs. Silberhorn, and Mrs. Wilson.

The third lunch hour, from 12:30 to 1:15, is for the classes of Mrs. Chew, Mr. Glynn, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Smith, Mr. Cox, Mrs. Gowell-Elliott, Mrs. Seymour, and Mrs. Tallberg.

Grandparents should obtain their lunch tickets, at $1.50 each, no later than today (Wednesday). They are available at the school, or grandparents may send ticket money to school in an envelope with both the grandparents' and child's names listed, along with the child's home room teacher's name. Tickets will then be sent home with the child. Those unable to purchase tickets in advance but who plan to eat with their grandchild may phone the school office at 547-3215 and reserve a ticket.

According to Vane Smith, Elementary principal, Grandparents' Day has become a very popular annual tradition. Last year, 276 grandparents attended the event. In cases where grandparents are unable to attend, substitute grandparents are welcome. For those who have more than one child with whom to eat lunch, it is suggested the grandparents have lunch with one and perhaps have coffee with the other(s).

The lunch menu will consist of tender sliced roast beef, au gratin potatoes, mixed vegetables, and fresh homemade rolls with butter, or pizza. Both entrees will be served with a salad bar and a dessert of "Grandparents' Welcome Cake", chocolate or white milk, or coffee.

Light air again

Yachting Notes

BY A. NONY MOUSE

Would you believe two light air races in a row in the CYC fall series?? Wednesday, October 1st saw a shortened course again with only about half of a normal race being completed.

The night was not without its high points however as places changed back and forth in fleet one with Gary Gleason helming Charlie Brown to a first place finish, his fourth bullet in a row locking up number one in the fall series with one race to go. Traveller was second followed by Plastic Fantastic, Gotcha, Pygmalion, Flying Machine, Reckless and Tigger. With only one race to go Pygmalion holds a slim 1½ point lead for second over Gotcha for the series while Dave Irish's Traveller maintains an outside chance for a flag.

Fleet two again was won by that little hot shot Wingnut. She also placed second overall with only Charlie Brown being able to save her time. Word has it that there may be more J 22's on the lake next year to challenge Bill Babel's supremacy.

Bandit, Merry Hell and Mud Duck completed the scoring. It's good to see the Duck carrying a chute this fall though I still insist she must have some of that comely weight forward for better balance.

Nulli Secundus captured first in fleet three and we may see a run on Coronado 25's as well if this keeps up. However, the talk of the fleet has to be Cygnus being skippered to a second place by Jim Stewart's son Dylan ahead of those Guru's of the P26 world, Karl Jurries and Mike Carland. Nice start though, Mikey but you got those light air blues too.

The jib and main fleets continue to have excellent racing as well with Flash, Ribit, Mint J, and Kittiwake drifting to the finish in fleet four.

Phonecia won fleet five after placing second the two previous weeks to mark her as a definite threat for the series. Maureen was second followed by Stalworth, Jim Mielke's Sabre 28, Sandpiper, and Coolwhip. With one race to go Stalworth and Phoenicia are unofficially tied for first place with 9.25 points while Norm Tolman's Maureen lurks only .5 points behind in third place.

This week's last race holds some real excitement in determining the final results for the fall series and I for one can envision a real race with wind and everything as I.....

watch the western skies
(for some sign of wind)

Used Car Loans For People Who'd Rather Spend Less On A Used Car And More On Themselves.

9.75% APR on any 1982-1986 used car.*
The only problem with most used car loans is that they usually come with pretty high interest rates.

Which usually means a bigger monthly payment than you'd like.

So now until October 31 is the time to see us at First of America Bank. Because our used car rate is our lowest in years.

And since it's good on any 1982-1986 used car, you can buy the car that suits your budget.

Just make your best deal with a dealer or private seller. Then talk to us.

You could end up getting a better deal than you bargained for.

Obituaries

Gregory A. Shadko

Funeral services for Gregory A. Shadko, 88, a veteran of World War I, were held Sunday, Oct. 5, at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. David W. Yingling of the United Methodist Church officiated. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Born in Kvasbikovka, Samorska, Russia, Nov. 26, 1897, Mr. Shadko came to the United States in 1912 with his parents who settled in Chicago. He attended Milton College in Wisconsin and in 1923 graduated from Michigan Agricultural College (now Michigan State University) with a BS degree. During World War I he had served with the U.S. Army.

He was a professional engineer for the Michigan Highway Department and for many years with the Public Fishing Site Division of the Conservation Department of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, retiring in 1967. Early in his career he had been a camp supervisor for four years at the Pigeon River Forest CCC (Civilian Conservation Corps) Camp. He was instrumental in developing Bell's Bay Park, now a part of Fisherman's Island State Park, and the Mt. McSauba Ski Area.

He was a member of the National Society of Professional Engineers, a life member of the Michigan Society of Professional Engineers, Michigan Society of Registered Land Association, Michigan Association of State Retirees and the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion.

On Jan. 16, 1972, he was married to the former Mrs. Mildred Shearer at Charlevoix.

Besides his wife, Mildred, he is survived by one son, Warren J. Shadko of Memphis, Tenn.; five stepsons, John E. Haggard and William J. Haggard of Charlevoix, George O. Haggard, Jr. of Morristown, Tenn., James J. Haggard of Newport Beach, Calif., and Gordon Mummert of Holland; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Gary (Frances Mummert) Wolfe of Lansing; four grandchildren; 15 stepgrandchildren; four step-great-grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Waldo (Pauline) Elliott of Leesburg, Fla., and Mrs. Albert (Sally) White of Kerrville, Tex. and two brothers, Harold Shadko of Bloomfield Hills and John Shadko of Troy.

The family suggests memorials to the Michigan Wildlife Foundation (Endowment Fund of the MUCC). Envelopes for this purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Joseph John McDonough

Funeral services for Joseph John McDonough, 33, of St. James, Beaver Island, were held Thursday, Oct. 2, at the Beaver Island Christian Church. Phillip Gregg officiated. Interment was in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Mr. McDonough died at his St. James Township home.

Born in Waukegan, Ill., May 31, 1953, Mr. McDonough grew up in that city. He was a 1971 graduate of Mt. Carmel High School in Mundelein, Ill., and a veteran of service in the U.S. Air Force from 1973-1976, having served in England. He came to Beaver Island in October 1979 to make his home.

Memorials to the Beaver Island Christian Church have been suggested.

The Winchester Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Anne Ratigan Ferrarese

A memorial service for a former Charlevoix resident, Anne Ratigan Ferrarese, 44, of Delray Beach, Fla., was held Monday evening at the Jordan-Fannin Funeral Home in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Mrs. Ferrarese died Wednesday, Oct. 1, at Boca Raton Hospital in Boca Raton, Fla.

The former Anne Ratigan was born in Denver, Colo., to William and Eleanor Ratigan Nov. 29, 1941, and came to Charlevoix with her parents in 1946. She attended the Charlevoix schools and, in 1958, graduated from Mount St. Gertrude High School in Denver, Colo. She later attended the University of Tennessee for two years. For the past two years she had lived in Florida where she was employed as an insurance underwriter. Iler most recent employment was with the Service Insurance Agency in Boca Raton. On July 23, 1976, she married Nicholas Ferrarese.

Surviving are her husband; three sons, Shannon L. Ratigan of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Gregory Pelton, stationed at Pearl Harbor with the U.S. Navy, and Timothy Pelton of Fort Lauderdale; two daughters, Mrs. Denise Webster of Portland, Me., and Cathleen Pelton of Fort Lauderdale; one grandson, Kenneth Webster of Portland, Me., and a sister, Mrs. Arthur A. (Patricia) Ranger of Charlevoix.

The family suggests memorials to the Anne Ratigan Memorial Fund at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Reed A. McVay

Funeral services for Mr. Reed A. McVay, 72, who passed away Sept. 20, 1986, were conducted recently at the Hernando Church of the Nazarene in Inverness, Fla., with Rev. Lamar Guyton, officiating. Cremation followed.

A native of Medina Mich., Mr. McVay moved to Inverness years ago from Charlevoix. He was a retired Maintenance Supervisor for Consumers Power Company, with 40 years of service.

Survivors include his wife, Margaret A. McVay, Inverness; one son, Phillip McVay, Portage, Mi.; three daughters, Patricia Slater, South Lyon, Janice Clark, Mendon, and Coneen Dewey, Vicksburg; three step-daughters, Lois Robinson, Birmingham, Al, Loretta Sweers, Green River, WY and Sharon Frisch, Flint; two sisters Gertrude Sprague and Norine Blaker both of Hudson; 18 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. Memorials can be sent to the Hernando Church of the Nazarene.

Hilda M. Crowe

Funeral services for Mrs. Hilda M. Crowe, 76, of Ironton, were held at the Winchester Funeral Home Tuesday. The Rev. Harold E. Kruse of the Ironton Congregational Church officiated.

At 11 a.m. Thursday a service will be held at the Haley Funeral Home in Southfield. Interment will be in Roseland Park Cemetery in Berkley.

Mrs. Crowe died Saturday, Oct. 4, at the Little Traverse Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals.

Born in Camborne, Cornwall, England, Feb. 5, 1910, the former Hilda M. Wilcox came to Highland Park, Michigan, with her parents at the age of nine. On Sept. 15, 1928, she married William C. Crowe at Highland Park where they lived until coming to Ironton in 1963. She was a member of the Ironton Congregational Church.

Surviving are her husband, Harold C. of Ironton; a daughter, Mrs. Shirley A. Kemp of Ironton and three grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the Ironton Congregational Church or the American Cancer Society.

Hayes Township seeks stricter controls and shrubs in their natural state. The vegetation and the soil must not be altered or disturbed within the shoreline protection strip. However, trees and shrubs may be pruned to afford a view of the water.

The special treatment of multiple family dwellings as noted above is new in the zoning ordinance, as are the regulations by which property owners may apply for permission to clear a section of the lakefront for recreational purposes:

–The cleared area must not exceed 25 percent of the total frontage, on the lake, and consist of no more than 50 linear feet and maximum depth of 35 feet per parcel.

–A shoreline protection strip or greenbelt of 35 feet in depth must be maintained or planted, if none exists, behind the area to be cleared.

–In areas of wetlands, no sand or fill may be used, but boardwalks or platforms may be constructed.

–In areas where steep grades are evident, access paths to the body of water shall meander or curve to maintain erosion control.

–The lowest elevation of any part of any structure must be a minimum of 590 feet above sea level. For lakes with no established high water mark, a minimum elevation of five feet above the existing water level is required.

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission also approved another proposed addition to the Hayes Township zoning ordinance:

In an effort to educate landowners about the Goemere-Anderson Wetland Protection Act of 1979, the Township is proposing to add a section to its zoning ordinance on that subject.

The proposed new section defines a wetland and explains restrictions on the use of wetlands as covered in the Wetland Protection Act.

Hayes Township has designated major wetland areas in its comprehensive and long range plan and map, noting these wetlands are not exclusive and others could be designated by the Department of Natural Resources.

"The areas indicated are likely to show the physical and biological characteristics of wetlands", the proposed addition to the ordinance states. "The zoning administrator will notify each wetland owner that applies for a zoning permit of the need to contact the Michigan Department of Natural Resources concerning a wetland determination, and, where necessary, the need to obtain a permit prior to the commencement of the proposed construction activity".

The Hayes Township zoning administrator may require a DNR wetlands permit prior to issuing a zoning permit.

The County Planning Commission did not act on a proposed addition to the Hayes Township zoning ordinance regarding sand and gravel extraction. It was sent back to Hayes Township for further work.

Accident claims life of Tiger star Norm Cash

Norm Cash, former Detroit Tigers Star, died in a drowning accident on Beaver Island Saturday night, according to acting Charlevoix County Medical Examiner Dr. Thomas McKeon.

McKeon said an autopsy ruled out foul play and showed no evidence that Cash, 51, suffered either a head injury or a repeat of a stroke he suffered in 1979.

Cash's body was recoverd at about 11:15 a.m. Sunday approximately 100 feet offshore in 15 feet of water behind the victim's 30-foot cruiser which was docked at Beaver Island opposite the King Strang condominium.

The accident was reported early Sunday morning to the Beaver Island Fire Department by Brendan LaBlance of Charlevoix who had accompanied Mr. Cash and his wife Dorothy to Beaver Island on the Cash's cabin cruiser.

According to LaBlance, Cash was last seen at 11 p.m. Saturday evening.

"We had dinner together at the King Strang Hotel and then had gone to the Shamrock. Norm left at 11 p.m. Mrs. Cash and I returned to the boat at midnight. It was raining and I was put on the cover when she called to me, 'Norm is not on the boat.'

"It was raining miserably," LaBlance recalled. "We looked in the King Strang Hotel and around the shore, but decided Norm had probably joined other friends. When he didn't show up in the morning I talked with Bill Welke, a former sheriff's deputy. He got the fire department."

LaBlance reported that due to the rain and high water the dock was "very slippery and in bad shape. The boat was difficult to board because the aft end was beyond the dock. We had to pull the boat in and climb on the diving platform first. Norm was wearing cowboy boots. He could have slipped," LaBlance said.

"I have lost a very, very good friend," the distraught LaBlance commented.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department was notified at 9:15 a.m. Sunday. In the interim, the Beaver Island Fire Department initiated a search of island motels and had checked the beach around the bay.

At this point Fire Chief Tim McDonough, called in his divers, Dick Burris and Bill McDonough who started the underwater search

Council to rest on gazebo issue

Jim Mabee was back again. But this time you could tell he meant business, he pointed out, because he was sporting a tie.

The casual but always dapper Downtown Development Authority member has been a regular visitor to council meetings, particularly in recent months as the issue of rest rooms and a gazebo at the north edge of downtown have been debated and re-debated.

Mabee was giving it one more shot at Monday's working session of council, directing testimony from various experts like a defense attorney trying an important criminal case. The tie was his symbol of purpose.

The message was the same as it had been in previous meetings: the DDA strongly recommends the construction of rest rooms and a gazebo in the park area north of the Burnsides store.

But the support that Mabee hoped to muster was not there and before the session was out only one staunch proponent of the site remained.

Ellsworth cleanup gets underway, owners, DNR battle over progress

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

The hazardous waste has been removed, the other barrels, steel shavings, old machinery are being scraped for junk and the buildings are coming down at the controversial site of the International Disc Corporation, according to Maurice Taylor, one of the owners of the several companies that have operated at the site.

The Department of Natural Resources, however, is not satisfied with the procedures, calling it "Haphazard and without much planning or safety precautions," according to Dan Darnell spokesman at the Cadillac office.

"There is still hazardous waste on site. There are old steel plating lines and some heat treat salts and miscellaneous drums," Darnell reported.

International Disc owns some 27 acres along the shore of Ellsworth Lake. Under several different corporate names, including Morweld Steel, a variety of steel products were fabricated at the site. The plants have been out of operation for several years, with the exception of a small tool shop operated by Brent Taylor, son of Maurice Taylor.

Last year the Department of Natural Resources raised the alarm that hazardous materials, improperly stored at the site, were threatening Ellsworth Lake and had contaminated some of the soils where barrels of wastes had deteriorated.

This September the DNR authorized $950,000 to clean up the toxic wastes at the plant, because the owners of the defunct businesses had not responded to previous cleanup orders dating back to January. The DNR said that if the property owners did not perform the cleanup the DNR would and then take action to assess the costs.

In response, International Disc announced they would conduct their own cleanup program. According to an undated "Progress Report and Work Statement" filed on behalf of International disc Corporation with the Department of Natural Resources, the hazardous material was to be labeled and removed, the soil was to be sampled for contamination and the buildings and property secured.

"Our master plan calls for the construction of low income rental properties for senior citizens here," said Arthur Reibel of Charlevoix, former attorney who acts as a spokesman for Taylor. Reibel explained that he had a "vested interest in the property." Taylor explained he was a part owner.

Nelson Industrial Services of Detroit confirmed they had received a shipment of six barrels of cyanide for processing, according to Norman Levitin, plant manager. However, Levitin added, "We were not given everything that was there. We gave a quote on processing 40 boxes of heat treat salts as well as the barrels of cyanide, but we did not receive them. We have no idea of the status of these. We assume they are also hazardous waste."

Ellsworth officials are watching the project closely, but with skepticism, according to Ron Hext, village president. Hext also expressed concern about lack of DNR oversight on the cleanup. He added that the Village Council had not been told about the plan for senior citizen housing.

Reibel told reporters that the intention is to have all the buildings, including the currently operating small steel workshop, removed in 90 days. Taylor said the cleanup was being conducted so it would pay for itself through the resale of scrap steel.

Don't like your taxes? Here's what you voted

by PEG OHLE

The allocation of taxes is largely determined in the voting booth.

The truth of this statement is supported by a review of the Charlevoix County Apportionment Report, prepared by the Equalization Department and just released. The report shows the tax rate for every taxing unit in the county, and how it was arrived at.

To begin with, in the August primary election, county-wide, voters approved an allocation levy of 4.70 mills to operate county government, .25 mills to operate the County Transit System, 9.10 mills for each school system, .20 mills for the Intermediate School District, and 1 mill to operate each township, for a total of 15.25 mills. In addition, there is a boldover voted millage of 1.80 mills for special education in the Intermediate School District.

Of the 15 townships in the county, seven of them have voted separate millage in addition to the 1 mill allocated to them. Charlevoix Township has voted an additional 2 mills for operation costs; Peaine Township has voted an additional 7.59 mills for operations, landfill, fire protection, road maintenance, airport operation, and township hall; and St. James Township has voted an additional 7.20 mills for the same purposes as Peaine Township.

Elsewhere in the county, Boyne Valley Township has voted an additional 1.25 mills for fire protection and landfill operation; Evangeline Township has voted an additional .5389 mills for fire protection; Hudson Township, an additional 1 mill for fire protection; and Melrose Township, an additional 2.30 mills for its library and township operation.

The City of Charlevoix has voted, by charter, 10.50 mills for operation, 1.62 mills for debt retirement, and 1 mill for sewer improvements; Boyne City has voted 17.75 mills for operation and .50 mills for city hall costs; East Jordan has voted 14.60 mills for operation, .50 mills for fire department, .96 mills for its street bond, and 3 mills for its harbor debt.

Charlevoix County children attend school in eight different school districts, each one of which has its own voted millage in addition to its allocated millage.

The Charlevoix School District has voted millage amounting to 18.13 mills for operation and debt retirement; the Boyne City School District has voted millage of 23.50 for operation and debt retirement; the East Jordan School District has voted millage of 27.20 for operation, debt retirement, and its library.

Also, the Ellsworth School District has voted millage of 28.90 for operation and debt retirement; the Beaver Island School District has voted millage of 9.40 for operation and debt retirement; the Boyne Valley School District has voted millage of 23.50 for operation; and the Vanderbilt School District has voted millage of 21.75 for operation and debt retirement.

So, with the City of Charlevoix's voted county operation millage of 4.7, its Transit System millage of .25, its Intermediate School District millage of 2, its school district millage of 27.23, and its city operating millage of 13.22, Charlevoix property owners will pay taxes based on a total mill rate of 47.40. This means that the owner of property with a state equalized valuation of $30,000 (one-half of its assessed valuation) will pay a tax of $1,422. Last year, the taxes on this same piece of property were $1,438.80.

In a similar fashion, adding up allocated and voted millage, taxes on a $30,000 property in Charlevoix Township this year will be $1,115.40, compared with last year's $1,120.80.

There is another element besides millage rates involved in computing taxes. That is assessing, over which taxpayers have less direct voting control. However, many township assessors are also township officials, duly elected by township residents. Those assessors who are not officials are hired by their township board or city council, again duly elected and answerable to the electorate.

As to where the tax money goes, the Allocation Report shows that 69.56 percent goes to local schools, 14.36 percent goes to local units of government, 11.48 percent goes to county government and the County Transit System, and 4.60 percent goes to the Intermediate School District.

A short-lived bettle over e 75-yeer-old maple near city hall wes resolved Wednesday morning when city crews cut the tree down to make wey for the alleywey end drive et the city's public sefety building. City Manager Michael Wiesner ordered the tree cut down, with the consent of city council, efter he hed determined it would make entry to the alley at the north of the new building difficult and would cut down on the turning radius from one of the fire engine driveweys.

The tree cutting wes protested vigorously by several residents including members of e city ed hoc tree committee including Nancy Murrey end Barbere MacArthur. Bruce MecArthur, president of Keep Cherlevoix Beeutiful, Inc., also fought to heve the tree retained.

Capt. John Cosgrove of the Michigan State Police post in Treverse City last week presanted citations for professional excellence to members of the Charlevoix Police Department, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, the Michigan State Police end the Fedarel Bureau of Investigation for their work in solving a recent string of bank robberies.

The police work honored by the awards led to the arrest and conviction of Charles Bennett for five bank robberies lest fall, including a theft from the Charlevoix County State Bank, M-66 brench, on Oct. 18, 1985.

Capt. Cosgrove said the case wes ona of the best examples of interdepartmental cooperation he had aver seen. "It was a very difficult case to bring to a successful conclusion," ha said.

by PEG OHLE

The Hayes Township Board last week adopted new rules and regulations for sand and gravel extraction as an amendment to its zoning ordinance, as well as two additions pertaining to shoreline development and wetlands.

As reported in last week's Courier, the County Planning Commission had approved the latter two amendments but returned the sand and gravel regulations to the Township with the suggestion they give them more thought.

However, members of the Township Board felt they needed some kind of an extraction ordinance, at least on an interim basis.

The sand and gravel extraction amendment, as passed by the Township Board, reads:

–All mining operations shall meet a fifty (50) foot setback from non-mining property owner.

–A minimum two to one slope shall be maintained on all slopes adjacent to non-mining properties.

–A permit of mining will be granted for a period of no longer

Cops and robbers

BY DOUG TRUAX

At the current rate Charlevoix should have its next bank robbery in about the year 2039.

Until last fall, this town had not had a bank heist since 1932, during the Great Depression.

Seems a chap was intent on getting his grandmother's money out of the beleaguued bank. He succeed, at least in part, but in the process dropped his hat with telltale initials inside the brim. The jig was up.

The case against Charles Bennett, accused and convicted of prepetrating Charlevoix's latest bank robbery along with four others in the state, was not so easy.

State police and FBI agents were in town last week talking about some of the details of the case after making citations of professional excellence to local officers. The work of the Charlevoix Police Department and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department came in for high praise.

It was not an easy case to solve, FBI Special Agent Keuneth T'Kindt said. After four robberies in various parts of the state, "all of us were scratching our heads," he said. They might still be scratching if the robber hadn't decided to try again, this time at the Charlevoix County State Bank, M-66 branch.

The stickup fit the pattern – a ski mask, shotgun, and a getaway on a motorcycle. Except this time bits of circumstantial evidence began aceumulating.

The case was finally solved and proved to the jury by an accumulation of all these little pieces and a great deal of cooperation among agencies.

The first break came when Charlevoix officer Pat Martin, working on his off hours, found a motorcycle on Ferry Road, just east of Marion Center. A man digging trees in the area had seen it.

Pat Avery of the sheriff's department began tracing the vehicle through the Law Enforcement Information Network (LEIN) computer. He found it registered to a Vassie Bennett in Texas in 1982. The birth date was checked against Michigan registrations and voila – Bennett showed up. Her husband was Charles Bennett of East Jordan.

The FBI showed up at his door and asked for a consent search. He agreed and they came away with three ski masks, a jacket and jeans. The clothing was sent to Washington, D.C. and models were photographed wearing it in exactly the same positions as bank surveillance photos. The lab concluded that the clothing could only belong to robber.

More circumstantial evidence was gathered. Bennett, under surveillance, was seen parking his car in a woods in Antrim County. Armed with a search warrant officers returned later and found four food jars stuffed with $3,500 in bills, including some "bait" money – money marked and registered at the Charlevoix bank.

Fingerprints on the jars also matched the suspects.

Piece by piece the various police agencies built a case. When it was over they were justifiably proud of the work that had been done.

"It was the finest cooperation I've ever seen between local law enforcement agencies, state police and the federal government," T'Kindt said. Police Chief Jack Mol seconded that. "The cooperation was terrific. There was no empire building."

Capt. Cosgrove of the State Police had special praise for our police chief. "Your're not only a good law enforcement officer," he said, "you're a good person."

While Chief Mol may well be content to let the next 53 years pass without a bank robbery, it's nice to know the force is equal to the task when needed.

Greg Shadko

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

Greg Shadko, Charlevoix's "resident engineer," will be a hard man to replace.

A resident of Charlevoix for several decades, Shadko was a familiar figure at Charlevoix City Council meetings whenever a topic touching on his area of expertise came up for discussion.

Although he was hired from time to time to engineer various city projects, Shadko also gave unstintingly of his time and talents toward development of such areas as the Mt. McSauba Ski Area and the Bell's Bay Campground, which eventually became Fisherman's Island State Park.

A native of Russia, Shadko immigrated to the United States when he was 15 years old and never completely lost the accent he brought with him from the Old World. He served in the U.S. Army during World War I, graduated from Michigan Agricultural College (now Michigan State University) in 1923 and spent the Depression years as a camp supervisor for the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) in the Pigeon River State Forest – an assignment that brought him in contact with the Northern Michigan wilderness that he eventually adopted as his home.

Protection of the environment was always one of his main concerns.

Over the years Shadko served as a professional engineer with the Michigan Highway Department and later as an engineer with the Public Fishing Site Division of the Michigan Conservation Department (now the Department of Natural Resources.)

When it came to engineering problems, Shadko, who died suddenly Oct. 2 at age 88, had a rare ability of coming up with solutions that were both practical and economical.

His wise counsel will be sorely missed.

CHARLEVOIX Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud was surprised last Saturday morning when he received a telephone call saying his elephant had killed a deer.

A driving force behind the Republican Party in Charlevoix County for many years, Stroud counts among his proud possessions a large, gray plastic elephant, mounted on a trailer. The elephant has been a star attraction in dozens of area parades and at most GOP functions in the area.

Some fearless Republican campaigners have even straddled the elephant to wave to spectators along the parade route.

When not actively employed, the elephant is parked near Stroud's home on Petoskey Road.

Sometime overnight Friday a motorist struck a young deer crossing the highway and the badly wounded animal made it as far as Stroud's elephant before it collapsed and died.

The next morning, the scene of the deer's demise looked as though there had been a terrible fight — and Stroud's elephant had won.

This being an election year, political pundits are wondering if the deer actually were a donkey in disguise.

Letters to the editor:

Defeated incumbents have not accepted their loss

Dear Editor:

It has been with interest and some regret that I have read and listened to reaction to my winning the primary election as candidate to represent the city of Charlevoix on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

Regret because of the seeming inability at all levels of government for the incumbents to accept the fact that they did not win, therewith circumventing the primary system of electing candidates to represent us in the general election.

Regret because, in anger, some people would question my right to fill this office.

Regret that people who are running for an office should think they have superior wisdom and be able to tell the people who have voted that they are not capable of understanding the issues and forming their own opinion.

It is with great gratitude and anticipation that I look forward to the opportunity to serve in this office as the representative from the City of Charlevoix.

With humility, I will try to serve the people to the best of my ability.

I am, and always have been, fiscally conservative. I believe an elected official should use public funds in the same way that he would use his own. I believe this trust is an absolute for every elected official.

Therefore, I will commit myself to a policy of austere but adequate budgets for all departments and of staffing according to need.

I would like to again thank everyone for their support in the primary election and ask for your support in the general election.

Your Republican candidate for County Commissioner from the City of Charlevoix.

Moerland's Independent candidacy challenged

Dear Editor:

In his letter to (absentee) voters (not dated), Mr. I. Lee Moerland has stated that he is running as an Independent candidate due to some "misleading and inacurate statements." This type of statement from people as reason for defeat are as old as the hills. When I read the vote tally, I thought his running as an Independent was because he didn't get enough votes as a Republican candidate.

As far as "the record —these past years" is concerned, the County Board did not even, in 1986, print the minutes of these meetings in the local newspaper until it was brought to their attention by Bud Heeres, the Republican candidate; then from what was printed (five or six months brief synopses in one Courier issue) anyone would have a difficult time knowing what it was all about.

They spent $10,000 on a salary schedule and didn't let department heads even see it until Bud Heeres started to ask questions.

The question of benefit from Mr. Moerland's employment by the Belvedere Club (as he has stated) is one of the points in question. There are a lot of people who think that this may very well be a detriment, and from the record of the tax appeal on their assessment in 1979, we believe that feeling is correct.

In his suggested instructions to the voters on how to use the ballot, it almost seems like an insult. I am sure that people do not need the candidate telling them how to use the instruction book.

Why the rush to destroy beautiful maple

Dear Editor:

You may call me "yet another voice in the wilderness" – for it both grieved and shocked me to learn from my near neighbors, the Bruce MacArthurs, that a beautiful maple tree was needlessly destroyed on downtown property. The fact that the MacArthurs, two of Charlevoix's most sincere and community dedicated people, asked for a delay and re-evaluation of this tree's removal was in itself an important reason to comply with this request.

Why not endeavor to keep the tree and if it eventually proved a safety hazard to the area, it could always be removed. Why the rush to destroy? One would almost feel malicious intent.

What with traffic and condo overcrowding, it would seem soon only the negative discontents will inhabit these shores and thus they will be beautiful no more!

Nicholls a poor speller?

Dear Editor:

Nicholls vs Nichols: It is most appropriate that the Nichol(l)s' safe should find a permanent home in the Charlevoix Historical Society museum since Mr. Nicholls, like Mr. Orlowski, has graced the office of President of that group.

Incidently both "The Traverse Region", 1884, and "Northern Michigan", 1905, support the two "L" version. Can it be that Mr. Nicholls was a poor speller?

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Richmond F. Thweatt, III
Interim Pastor
Christ Episcopal Church,
Charlevoix

Having difficulty choosing a topic for this column, I sought suggestions from my family. My son, Jason, gave me the salt shaker saying, "Write on this!"

How appropriate! Once we used to store salt gathered off the ground in porous clay containers. The humidity in the air would gradually cause the salt to melt, to pass through the clay and leave behind only the impurities brought in with it. The salt had lost its savor, and the remainder was truly worthless, to be cast out on the ground.

Today we have highly refined salt, sealed boxes and glass or pottery containers that are impervious. The worst inconvenience we suffer is lumpy salt, a condition easily corrected with a few grains of rice mixed with the salt.

An image gone? Not really. We have only to suffer a medically ordered bland diet without salt, and we experience virtually the same image in reality... even today. The zing, the zip is all gone! The food, if that is what is really on the plate, is worthy to be trod underfoot!

Our life can be full of this same loss of savor when we lose contact with challenge, when routine or rut gains too much sway. For a full, interesting life, we need the challenges that call us to use our very best. From the second World War comes a motto, "The difficult we do immediately; the impossible takes a little longer." Its framer and those who followed it know well of what I speak!

We may be physically at peace in the world, but our spiritual battle with evil is never ending. The motto, the challenge remains. Men and women throughout our communities gather together to seek and touch the sources of the confidence, the assurance behind the motto to face the challenge. The creator of the salt, the giver of the teaching still calls us forward to meet the many challenges of modern living, unafraid. He still remains unchanged, unchanging in a bewildering world of little but change.

Is your life bland and blah? Does it seem as if the seasoning has gone out of living? Find some faithful friends in your nearby place of worship and reach out to recover that zest! Find again the meaning and purpose for human living by rediscovery of your faith in God.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifick
Executive Director

The seventh annual Apple Festival was bigger and better than ever. Special thanks to the Apple Fest committee chairman Betsey King and her helpers: Phyllis Elzinga, Wendy Friske and Stella Otto. Also thanks to Corky Price and his team for providing old-fashioned hay rides to over 45 people. Unfortunately there was not enough interest for the bicycle tour as scheduled, but the pancake breakfast at the American Legion Hall was well attended. Thanks Lotiis McKenzie and crew for the great breakfast!

People attending this years Apple Festival were asked to fill out a short questionnaire. The Apple Fest committee hopes to get an indication of where people are coming from, how they heard about Apple Fest, and what they thought of it. A future column will summarize their findings.

Thanks to the efforts of Jacqui Merta the Star of Charlevoix does a terrific job of promoting Charlevoix and bringing bus-loads of people to town. The Chamber salutes Don Dannecker and Mayor Hal Hill who volunteered as step-on tour guides for more than 20 scheduled tours of Charlevoix. The groups came from all over Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Illinois.

If you haven't already been contacted see a Rotarian to get tickets for the European Circus, Tuesday, Oct. 21 at 7 p.m. at the Charlevoix High School gym.

Family

Weddings

Gill-Schwandt

In a wedding solemnized at the First Baptist Church, Bennie Jane Gill became the bride of Myron E. Schwandt. Both are from East Jordan.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin S. Gill of Charlevoix and the late Mr. and Mrs. Myron E. Schwandt.

The Rev. Thomas Black officiated at the single ring service in the presence of 50 guests on Friday Sept. 26. Arrangements of white daisy mums formed a setting for the service. Elaine Dvoracek, at the organ, played a program of traditional music and the wedding march and processional.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a steel blue floor length satin gown fashioned with a cowl neckline and worn with a matching long sleeved jacket. She carried a bouquet of white daisy mums, peach carnations and baby's breath.

Mrs. Jeffrey Pines, as her sister's only attendant, wore a light blue floor length crepe gown styled with a jewel neckline and long sleeves. She carried two long-stemmed peach roses and greens tied with matching peach ribbon.

Richard Schwandt of Conway assisted his brother as best man. Joshua Strzyzrewski, nephew of the bride, seated the guests.

A reception, hosted by the bride's parents, followed at Fellowship Hall of the church.

The couple will make their home at East Jordan.

A rehearsal dinner at Fellowship Hall Thursday evening was hosted by the bride's parents.

Fashion show approaches

The deadline for purchasing tickets for the annual October 28th Holiday Fashion Show and Dinner at the Grey Gables Inn is Saturday, Oct. 25, Mrs. Ivan Witthoeft, president of the sponsoring organization, the Charlevoix Women's Club, has announced.

The dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 28, following a social hour which will begin at 5:30 p.m. The holiday fashion show has 10 local shops modeling fashions for everything from a trip to the market to formal dinner wear. There will also be fashions for kids.

"We have stream-lined the show which will be interspersed with some surprises," according to Mrs. Robert Tollas, assistant co-chairperson with Mrs. Ray Wood.

Music for the show will be by Al Breeze, perrenial favorite at the piano, and special vocal selections by the Pine River Four (Robert Martin, Robert Tollas, John Lignell all of Charlevoix and Tim Russell of East Jordan).

Mrs. Lignell will be the commentator.

Tickets for the fashion show and dinner are $15 and include the gratuity and tax. Reservations for tickets may be made by calling Mrs. Witthoeft or Mrs. Wood, or by mailing a check, naming a choice of entree to either of the above. The choices are stuffed pork chop or whitefish.

The Charlevoix High School Performing Arts team will be raising funds for their debate and drama contest expenses with the sale of plastic leaf bag beginning Oct. 16 from 5 to 8 p.m. when the students go door to door in Charlevoix. The bags, purchased through Petoskey Plastics, are 30 gallon, two-ply heavy duty bags and will be sold at the bargain price of $10 per 100.

Some of the performing arts group are shown above during their recent performance at the state school superintendents annual meeting.

Literacy training workshop planned

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program will be sponsoring a literacy training workshop for tutors on Oct. 14, 16, 21 and 23, from 6 to 9:30 p.m. at the Charlevoix High School. Tutors will be trained in the Laubach method of teaching adult non-readers to read. The Laubach method is a total language approach, teaching reading, spelling, writing and grammer.

It is estimated that there are approximately 23 million U.S. citizens that are functionally illiterate. Over 32 million more persons who border on being illiterate.

The cost to the students is based on their reading material as the trained tutors work on a volunteer basis.

Betty Potter, a certified tutor trainer and a member of the Charlevoix Literacy Council, will be conducting the workshops. The workshops are open to the public and preregistration is required, as the class enrollment is limited. Twelve hours of training are required to become a certified tutor trainer.

More information may be obtained by calling the RSVP office, 347-5070, or by stopping in at the RSVP office, 316½ E. Mitchell, Petoskey.

Diabetics classes scheduled

Newly diagnosed diabetics and diabetics of longstanding are invited to participate in a three-session educational class to start Tuesday, Oct. 21, at the East Jordan Family Health Center.

The class, co-sponsored by Charlevoix Area Hospital, is also open to families and friends of diabetics interested in helping people with diabetes live their lives to the fullest.

Classes will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday evenings in the community education room on the lower level of the East Jordan Family Health Center. They will start Oct. 21 and continue on Oct. 28 and Nov. 4.

Participants are asked to arrive about 15 minutes early at the first session to register. All sessions are free.

Speakers will include Dr. Mitchell Carey of the Health Center medical staff, nurse clinician Michelle Bonneville, R.N. and Charlevoix Area Hospital dietitian Julie Dalrymple.

Subjects to be covered include medications, hygiene and self care, diet and exercise, how to shop for food, complications of diabetes and feelings related to the disease.

BIDS REQUESTED

Bids are requested for snow removal, Charlevoix Public Schools for the 1986-87 school year. Area to be cleared includes Bus Garage, High School, Elementary School, Middle School and Central Office.

For further information, contact the Business Manager, 208 Clinton Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720, phone 547-3200.

Bids must be received at the above address not later than Friday, Oct. 31, 1986.

Girls regain winning ways

The Charlevoix Rayder girls basketball team got back on the victory trail last week, defeating Grayling 42-37 on Tuesday and beating Rogers City 52-44 on Thursday. Both were road trips.

In the Grayling game, Charlevoix led 6-3, 16-7 and 32-15 by quarters before Grayling poured in 22 points in the final period to cut the Rayder winning margin to five points.

Ellen Pearl, playing a fine defensive game, held Grayling's top scorer to five points for the game.

Amy Pischner scored 18 points for the Rayders. S. Denton had 16 points for Grayling, 14 of them in the final period.

The Rayders outscored Grayling from the floor 16-13 and had 10 of 20 free throws. Grayling had 11 of 14 from the line. The Rayders had 15 personal fouls; Grayling had 18.

Grayling won the JV game 31-20 with Stacy Gebott scoring 10 points. Pat Tremble had 12 for the Vikings.

In the game at Rogers City on Thursday, the teams played to an 8-8 first period tie before the Rayders pulled away for a 25-18 halftime lead and a 35-30 advantage going into the final period.

Coach Henry Wagner said Pischner played probably her best game of the season, scoring 27 points and collecting 15 rebounds. Barbie Boss had 10 points. Pearl and Cindy Boss had excellent defensive games, Wagner added.

Daniels had 12 points for Rogers City.

The Rayders scored 22 field goals and eight of 19 from the line. Rogers City had 18 field goals, hit on eight of 17 from the free-throw line and had 20 personal fouls.

Rogers City won the JV game after leading 18-10 at the half.

Paula Thorp had 10 points. Ann Furtaw 15 for the Hurons.

The Rayders are now 8-3 for the season and 4-2 in league play.

Suttons Bay will be here on Thursday and the Rayders will travel to Cheboygan on Tuesday.

Amy Pischner turned in one of her best games of the year against Rogers City, scoring 27 points and collecting 15 rebounds.

Rayder miscues lead to defeat

Charlevoix turned the ball over six times Friday against league leading Gaylord and paid the price.

The Rayders fell to Gaylord (6-0) 41-7 in Michigan-Huron Shores Conference play. The Blue Devils have now won 15 straight games.

Charlevoix (2-4) stunned Gaylord early when tailback Mike Thompson broke loose for an 82-yard TD run with Terry Bonar converting.

Gaylord came right back with an 11-yard TD pass play plus two-point conversion to go ahead 8-7 and before the period was over the Blue Devils had scored two more times, both coming after Charlevoix fumbles. Gaylord led 21-7 at the quarter.

In the second period Gaylord used two more Charlevoix fumbles to score touchdowns, opening a 34-7 lead.

Gaylord brought the score to 41-7 after scoring on its first possession of the second half. After that the Blue Devils substituted freely.

Thompson led the Charlevoix rushing attack with 103 yards in six carries. The Rayders had 190 total yards with Gaylord collecting 310 yards including 255 on the ground.

The Rayders lost four fumbles and had two passes intercepted.

Playing a strong game for the Rayders were Darrin Batdorff, Jim Gibbs, John Jaskierski, Bill Marquardt, Marv Witthoeft and Thompson.

"Thompson probably played his best game both offensively and defensively," coach Roger Gowell said.

Middle School girls open with losses

The Charlevoix Middle School girls basketball teams dropped two games to Harbor Springs Monday night. The eighth graders lost by a score of 33-16 and the seventh graders 21-14.

In the eighth-grade game, the two teams played to a 12-12 halftime tie before the visiting Harbor Springs five pulled away for a 33-16 win.

Sandy Fershee had six points for Charlevoix. Jackie Flynn scored 12 for the Rams.

The Harbor seventh-graders held a 9-4 margin at halftime and outscored Charlevoix 10-8 in the second half for the win.

Gina Webster had six points for Charlevoix. Kathy Walsh scored 10 for the visitors.

Charlevoix will host Cheboygan at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday and Petoskey at the same time the following Monday, Oct. 20.

Harriers victorious again

It was a successful trip to the Shepherd Invitational cross country meet Saturday for the Charlevoix Rayders.

The boys team, running without its top runner, Doug Bergmann, took first place with 47 points while the girls team, running without regular Barb Haggard, placed second with 81 points.

Pat Rejewski, with a time of 16:08, came in third in the boys run; Joe Simpson was fifth in 16:21; Scott Miller, 11th, 16:39; Sean Henne, 13th, 16:42 and Tom Merta, 15th, 16:46.

Kevin McLenon and Harold Herriman, the sixth and seventh runners on the team, placed 18th (15:48) and 23rd (17:08) respectively.

"They ran a good race. With only 32 seconds between our first and fifth runner, it shows that they really gave it their best," Spieles said of his runners. "Pat (Rajewski) ran his usual consistent race; Joe (Simpson) really improved and was able to come in fifth; Scott (Miller), Sean (Henne) and Tom (Merta) also did a good job for us. They were running without Doug (Bergmann) who has a sore knee so they knew it was up to them to make the difference and they did." All five received medals.

The pace for the run was set by Bill Arnold of Beaverton who had a time of 15:54.

Rogers City placed second behind Charlevoix in the meet with 81 points. There were 11 teams in the meet.

In the girls meet, Charlevoix with 81 points, was second among eight teams. Carson City won the meet with 45 points. Julie Allen of Shepherd placed first in the time of 19:43.

Betsy Haggard came in sixth in 20:22; Michelle North, 9th in 20:34; Heidi Olinger, 17th, 21:27; Stephanie Agnew, 19th, 21:32 and Shelly Ferguson, 30th, 22:23. Maria Parsons, the sixth runner placed 35th in '22:38.

"The girls all had good races with all of them giving consistent performances. Betsy (Haggard) and Michelle (North) showed improvement, Shelly (Ferguson) helped out at the bottom and filled in well for Barb (Haggard) who is nursing an injury," Spieles said. "They had to run well to come in where they did."

In the JV division, Charlevoix's Gehry Wiesner finished first among 56 runners with a time of 17:23. Marty Joy placed sixth in 17:45; Dylan Stewart, 8th, 17:57; Jon Terry, 23rd, 18:43; Hal Chase, 29th, 19:00 and Tim Henne, 31st, 19:13.

In the open race Jerry Thayer had a time of 20:11 and Jacob Smith, 21:22.

Charlevoix teams will be at the Elk Rapids Invitational meet on Thursday, the Michigan-Huron Conference meet at Rogers City on Saturday and the Gaylord Invitational on Tuesday.

Golfers 5th in season finale

The Charlevoix Rayder golf team, coached by Glen Taylor, closed out its 1986 season Friday by placing sixth among 11 Class C teams in the regional meet at Houghton Lake Friday.

"It was a tough course. One hole in particular gave our players a hard time as it did the majority of contestants," Taylor said of the tournament.

Houghton Lake placed first with a score of 346 with Ken Meigs the medalist for the day with a score of 80. Elk Rapids in second place with a 351 was followed by Boyne City with a 361. All three teams qualified for state competition to be held at Burr Oak this weekend.

Katkaska finished in fourth place with a 364; Clare, fifth, 374; Charlevoix, sixth, 381; Traverse City St. Francis, seventh, 390; Roscommon, eighth, 396; Benzie Central, ninth, 404; Rogers City, tenth, 406, Tawas, 11th, 416.

The Rayders' scores for the day were: Dan Bickersteth, 46-45 91; Scott Wise, 46-47 93; Dave Clark, 53-54 97; Scott Crain, 49-51 100.

Leagues have openings

There are openings in all basketball and volleyball leagues sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation Department, Dwight Boss, recreation director, has announced following an organizational meeting held recently.

"There are enough teams to form all the regular leagues. However, there is room for others. The deadline will be Friday, Oct. 24, which is also the deadline for entry fees," Boss said.

Out of town teams are still being accepted in the basketball "A" league Boss added.

Action in all leagues is scheduled to open Monday, Nov. 3.

There are presently five teams in the basketball "A" league with out-of-town teams still being accepted and four teams in the "B" league.

In the volleyball leagues there are six teams in the men's league, nine in the women's league and 10 in the co-ed league.

Teams interested in joining any of the leagues or persons with questions may contact Boss at 547-9098.

MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF NATURAL RESOURCES
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

TAKE NOTICE That the Michigan Department of Natural Resources proposes to hold a hearing in the Charlevoix High School Gymnasium, 108 East Garfield, Charlevoix, Michigan, at 7:00 p.m. Wednesday, the 29th day of October, 1986.

The purpose of this hearing is to secure the views of interested persons concerning the following application for permit.

Applications for Permit #85 212 and #85 213 under the Inland Lakes and Streams Act 1972 Public Act 346, as amended by the Water's Edge Limited Partnership, c/o First Centrum Corporation 5000 Northwood Drive, Suite 140, East Lansing, Michigan 48823, to construct a sand lined steel sheet piling dock breakwater; construct ten per pile supported wood docks and finger piers for 68 boat slips; dredge 17,000 cubic yards from marina basin; construct 135 condominium units and associated roads, parking and utilities; construct wetland enhancement mitigation ponds and other mitigation measures located on Lake Charlevoix and in adjacent wetlands at 133N, R8W, Section 2, of Charlevoix and Marion Townships Charlevoix County, Michigan.

The application may be reviewed in the Division of Land Resource Programs Office, DNR District 5 Headquarters, 1732 West M-32, Gaylord, Michigan 49735, during normal office hours.

The hearing will be held pursuant to Section 161 of the cited statute. The hearing will not be a court type proceeding, witnesses will not be sworn, and there will be no cross-examination. Public hearings are primarily informational and are held to encourage the expression of views and presentation of facts.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources will, upon written request, provide a copy of the hearing transcript and/or advise of the Department's decision on this application.

Council puts off rest room decision councilwoman Shirley Roloff, despite the fact that council was still officially on record as advocating the site.

BUT MABEE GAVE it the old college try anyway. "The DDA still feels strong public support for the location in the center of the park," Mabee said. "We feel that the structure will enhance the park rather than detract from it."

He called on architect Jack Begrow to explain a new drawing of the gazebo, located farther back in the park, closer to the water. Begrow said the 24-foot diameter, 485 square foot structure would cost in the neighborhood of $58,000. "I can't personally see any better location than this," he concluded.

Claudia Kenifeck, executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, was also firm behind the location. She brought the endorsement of her board of directors. "We feel that there is a real need for a northside location," she said. "Not just for tourists, but for people who live here."

Long a supporter of the idea, Bruce MacArthur once again spoke for Keep Charlevoix Beautiful. He also proposed naming the park the Robert Bridge Memorial Park in honor of the late Charlevoix mayor who worked to clear the land on the east side of Bridge Street.

Even Nancy Burnsides, owner of the adjacent clothing store, spoke for the plan. She said she objected at first, but "the more I thought about it the more I liked it."

There were others who liked the site, too. But in the end, few on council wanted any part of it. Several said they had been hearing from constituents who objected to any construction in the park.

Councilman Earl Muma, who has opposed the site all along, was leaning toward it now, he said, if the costs could be reduced. He said he would favor the site if the gazebo cost no more than $15,000 above the $35,000 already in reserve for a rest room facility.

Mayor Hal Hill took a staw poll of the council. Four against the plan as presented (Wood, Bellows, Probert and Muma), one in favor (Roloff) and one leaning (Timms favored a site closer to the Burnsides building).

Council resolved to drop the matter for several months – as Mabee had requested if the issue was defeated.

Jim Mabee loosened his tie and headed back to the drawing board.

Official Notice

AMENDMENT TO THE HAYES TOWNSHIP, CHARLEVOIX COUNTY, MICHIGAN ZONING ORDINANCE

Ordinance # 86-1
NOTICE OF ADOPTION

IT IS ORDAINED that the Hayes Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, Zoning Ordinance, adopted July 2, 1979, as amended thereafter, shall be further amended as follows

Article V
Section 5.13
A. Shoreland Protection Strip
No building or structure, except boardwalks, docks and launch ramps shall be erected closer than one hundred feet (100) feet from the shoreline at normal high water level of any lake, stream or creek within the Township. In addition, a strip of land thirty-five (35) feet wide from the normal high water mark bordering the body of water shall be maintained in trees and shrubs in their natural state. The vegetation and the soil shall not be altered or disturbed within the shoreline protection strip, as herein described.
trees and shrubs may be pruned, however, to afford a view of the water.
Any cluster of dwellings or multiple family dwellings, including condominiums, must be approved by the Planning Commission through a site plan review and the shoreline setbacks may be increased up to 150 feet, or more, to compensate for the increased density and impact on the shorelines.

Article V
Section 5.13
K. – Property owners may apply to the Zoning Administrator for permission to clear a section of the lakefront for recreational purposes under the following conditions:

1. The cleared area does not exceed 25% of the total frontage on the lake, and consists of no more than 50 linear feet and maximum depth of 35 ft. per parcel.

2. A shoreline protection strip or greenbelt of 35 feet in depth shall be maintained, or planted, if none exists, behind the area to be cleared.

3. In areas of wetlands, no sand or fill shall be used, but boardwalks or platforms may be constructed.

4. In areas where steep grades are evident, access paths to the body of water shall meander or curve to maintain erosion control.

5. The lowest elevation of any part of any structure shall be a minimum of 590 feet above sea level. For lakes with no established high water mark, a minimum elevation of 5 feet above the existing water level shall be required.

Article V
Section 5.20 WETLANDS
Wetland property within Hayes Township that is contiguous to waters of the state i.e. Great Lakes, rivers, streams, lakes and ponds, and connecting waters of the Great Lakes or otherwise regulated by state law cannot be drained, filled, dredged or destroyed without a permit from the Michigan Dept. of Natural Resources under the Goemaere-Anderson Wetland Protection Act, 1979 PA 203, and, if required, the United States Army Corps of Engineers under Section 10 of the Federal River and Harbor Act of 1899 (Agriculture and some mining activities are partially exempted.)

The Michigan Wetland Protection Act (Act 203) defines a wetland as "land characterized by the presence of water at a frequency and duration sufficient to support and that under normal circumstances does support wetland vegetation or equatic life and is commonly referred to as a bog, swamp or marsh", and the land is contiguous to Lake Michigan, or any inland lake, river, stream or pond, or is greater than 5 acres in size (may apply only to certain counties); or the Michigan Department of Natural resources has determined that protection is essential.

Major wetland areas are designated on the Hayes Township comprehensive and long range plan or map. These area are not exclusive and there could be other areas designated Wetlands by the DNR. Although not official designations by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, the areas indicated are likely to show the physical and biological characteristics of wetlands. The zoning administrator will notify each wetland owner that applies for a zoning permit of the need; to contact the Michigan Dept. of Natural Resources concerning a wetland determination and, where necessary, the need to obtain a permit prior to the commencement of the proposed construction activity.

Zoning Administretor may require a DNR Wetlands permit prior to issuing a zoning permit.

Article IV
Section 4.15 SAND AND GRAVEL EXTRACTION CRITERIA

The following criteria shall be met for Sand and Gravel Extraction in Hayes Township:

1. All mining operations shall meet a fifty (50) ft. setback from non-mining property owner.

2. A minimum two to one slope shall be maintained on all slopes adjacent to non-miping properties.

3. A permit of mining will be granted for a period of no longer than one year, with renewal upon approval of the Planning Commission.

4. A minimum of 12 gauge wire mesh fence of four feet in height is to be constructed around the perimeter of the pit until completion of the project.

5. A letter of approval from the Health Department or Dept. of Natural Resources may be required stating that the ground water aquafers will not be disturbed by the mining operations.

6. Upon completion of the mining operation the entire project, including the bottom of the pit shall be restored consistent with the original vegetation and top soil cover and in accordance with Soil Conservation Commission of U.S.D.A recommendations.

7. Upon completion of the project there will be three (3) months to complete the criteria of the above item # 6.

8. The Planning Commission shall require deposits, bonds, or certified checks to be deposited to the account of the Township. The amount to be determined by the Planning Commission at time of approval to insure completion, compliance and possible damages.

9. In addition to the above criteria provisions and procedures of Sec 6.03 and 6.04 of Township Ordinance shall apply.

Adopted at a Regular meeting of the Hayes Township Board October 6, 1986.

Hayes Township Clerk

Tiger star Cash drowns

shortly after 10 a.m. The body was recovered about 11:15 a.m.

The body was taken to the Medical Center where Dr. Leonard Siudara pronounced Cash dead, by apparent drowning. Sheriff George Lasater confirmed Monday that he had been advised there was evidence that Cash might have fallen.

The body was taken to the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix where an autopsy was performed. The body was then taken to the Vasu, Rodgers & Connell Funeral Home in Royal Oak.

Cash a popular figure in the Charlevoix-Boyne City area, maintained a condominium at Foster Boat Works. He had won the hearts of local residents with his willingness to be part of the lite-beer spoofs during the last two Horton Bay Parades. He was also a regular in the Charlevoix Venetian parade.

Horton Bay Parade organizer Jon Hartwell remembers, "Norm was willing to do anything. He was a wonderful guy who enjoyed life to the fullest. I didn't know him very well but he was the sort of person who made you feel you were his friend. He contributed a lot to our small community.

Born Norman Dalton Cash in Justiceburg, Texas, he played football and baseball at Sul Ross State College and was drafted by the Chicago Bears as a running back following his graduation in 1955.

Cash played his first full major league season in 1959 with the Chicago White Sox, a team that won the pennant that year. He was traded to Detroit in 1960 and spent the rest of his career in a Tiger uniform.

Cash's best season came in 1961 when he hit 41 home runs and batted for a .361 average, winning the American League batting crown, the last Tiger to capture the honor.

Over 17 major league seasons, Cash batted .271, averaged nearly 80 RBI and hits 377 home runs, second only to Al Kaline on the all-time Tiger list.

He was named to the All-Star team in 1961, 1966, 1971 and 1972. Cash hit 25 home runs during the Tiger's 1968 World Championship season and batted .385 in the World Series.

Cash is most often remembered for his bursts of hitting power. Four times, the left-hander sent balls soaring over the roof of Tiger Stadium.

After a down year in 1970, Cash, then 35, sprang back in 1971 under the direction of Manager Billy Martin. He chased the American League home run title, finishing with 32, only one behind league-leader Bill Melton of Chicago, and breathed new life into his career.

He helped the Tigers to the league playoffs in 1972, but was cut from the team in August of 1974. Cash went into business in Detroit as a manufacturer's representative and television baseball commentator, and also tried his hand as a professional softball player.

Asked to assess his career, Cash once said, "For the job I did here, I thought I was a little underrated – to say the least. But as long as I can say to myself that I did my best, I'm happy."

Choir to rehearse

The Community Chorale will begin rehearsals Tuesday in preparation for the annual Carol Festival that ushers in the holidays, Ellen Addington, choir director, has announced.

The first rehearsal is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 21, at the First Congregational Church located at State Street and Park Avenue. The time is 7:30 p.m.

Vocalists from throughout the area are invited to join the chorale which is tentatively scheduled to present the annual Carol Festival at St. Mary's Church on Dec. 7.

Fire prevention stickers available

The Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors is once again providing free fire rescue stickers to all area residents who request them.

The stickers are put in bedroom window to help firemen locate children and invalids during an emergency. The "C" sticker is used for children and the "I" sticker for invalids.

This is the third year the board of realtors has been purchasing and distributing the stickers. Over 2,000 of them have been given out.

Anyone interested in receiving the stickers should contact a member of the Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors.

Fall series completed

Yachting Notes

BY A. NONY MOUSE

The 1986 Fall Series and sailing season was completed Wednesday, Oct. 15 amid whitecaps, 25-knot gusts, grey, rain-streaked skies and the memories of the season of which we had all been a part; the Traverse-Leland Race; the first George LaBlance Memorial Cup to Beaver Island; the Little T Regatta; the Best Damn Skipper Series; the Ladies Race; the Budweiser and the Red Fox.

They are now all but memories, trophies, flags and battlescars as we make arrangements to pull our boats, sand the hulls and secure the rigging before winter winds blow. Each of us, in our own way, plans our winter escapes, whether it be with paperbacks, videos or watching the return of the cup while the snow comes back for its yearly encore.

1986 went out with a whirl. With strong winds and shortened sail, Fleet I closed with Traveller, Pygmallon, Plastic Fantastic, Reckless, Gotcha and Flying Machine.

Fleet II: Wingnug, Merry Hell II, Bandit and Mud Duck.

Fleet III: Tireless, Blasen III, Cygnus, San-Sue-She and Nulli Secundus.

Fleet IV: Flash, Mint Julip, Kittiwake and Ribit.

Fleet V: Apothecary, Sandpiper, Cheemaun, Maureen, Phoenicia, Stalworth and Sabre.

For the Fall Series, the totals (with one throw-out) are:

Fleet I: Charlie Brown (3.75), Pygmalion (11), Traveller (15.5), Gotcha (16.0)...pretty close! Flying Machine (22.5) and Plastic Fanstatic (24.25).

Fleet II: Wingnut (1.25) - five firsts! Merry Hell (7.5), Bandit (11.25), and Mud Duck (18.75).

Fleet III: Blasen III (6.25), Tireless and Cygnus (8.75) - Tireless awarded second place, Nulli Secundus (15.75) and San-Sue-She (23).

Fleet IV: Ribit (6.25), Flash (9.75), Mint Julip (14.5), Kittiwake (16.25).

Fleet V: Maureen (13.75), Phocnicia (14.25), Sandpiper (14.5), Stalworth (15.25)—pretty close also!

Apothecary (17.5), Cheemaun (21.25), Coolwhip (21.5) and Sabre (28).

The CYC Board of Directors welcomes back Commodore John Coolman and Vice-Commodore Karl Jurries for a second term of office. The newly elected members of the Board of Directors include Craig Tallberg, Wes Dilworth and John Friedly. The mouse would like to express to Josh Barnes, Bill Price and Bob Schofield the gratitude that the club believes you deserve for the years that you have each served on the board.

Big Rock designated nuclear training site

The training department at Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant has been designated as a branch of the National Academy for Nuclear Training. The designation follows formal accreditation of five employee training programs a the plant by the Institute of Nuclear Power Operations (INPO) of Atlanta, Georgia.

Accreditation of the programs and acceptance of Big Rock Point into the Academy are the result of a lengthy evaluation and review process to certify that the training programs meet a set of stringent standards set by INPO for commercial nuclear power plants.

INPO was established in 1979 by the nuclear power industry to assist in achieving excellence in the safety of nuclear power operations. The National Academy for Nuclear Training was created by INPO as part of an effort to establish and maintain a set of industry-wide training standards.

The five programs receiving INPO accreditation at Big Rock Point cover training for reactor operators, senior reactor operators (shift supervisors), non-licensed operators instrument and control technicians, and on-call technical advisors. Five additional training programs are being submitted for accreditation after this month.

The accreditation process at Big Rock Point was begun approximately two years ago with an evaluation of the training programs by Consumers Power Company personnel using INPO objectives and criteria. Later, an INPO accreditation team came to the plant to observe training activities, inspect facilities and classroom materials, review instructor qualifications and examine training program content. Members of the team also observed training of plant reactor operators, senior reactor operators and on-call technical advisors at a control room simulator in Morris, Illinois.

After the accreditation team prepared its report on the plant programs, a final review was conducted by the accrediting board for the Academy. That board is made up of heads of major university engineering schools, senior executives of non-nuclear industrial training organizations and senior executives from INPO-affiliated utilities. Final approval of Big Rock Point's programs was given by the accrediting board on September 24.

Juvenile Court adds two youth workers

by PEG OHLE

Mary Fattal

Charlevoix County Juvenile Court, which has been under fire because of the high cost of caring for its wards in foster care, has added two persons to its staff. They will devote their time to activities aimed at keeping young people out of the court system.

Mary Catherine Fattal, presently head of the Social Services Department at the Petoskey Geriatric Village, has accepted the job of Youth Diversionary Worker.

In her new job, Miss Fattal will take a full case load of children who are first time offenders and do basic case work and social work to keep them at home rather than in foster care.

In her present job, Miss Fattal is working in a social worker's capacity to help families adjust to having a loved one in a nursing home. Before that, she was Activities Director at the Geriatric Center. She has had experience working with young people through her association with Big Brothers-Big Sisters in the Marquette area.

Miss Fattal has also done volunteer work for the Red Cross, Planned Parenthood, and United Way. She is a member of the "Building Ties Committee", an organization of area citizens committed to meeting the needs of the elderly.

Miss Fattal holds a bachelor of science degree in health education from Northern Michigan University.

County Juvenile Officer Brad Campbell is looking forward to working with his new Diversionary employee. "I am excited that she is going to work with us", he said. "She was at the top of the list of applicants from the very beginning".

The Reverend William Shumaker of Petoskey will also join the Juvenile Court staff as a part-time Supervisor of Volunteers.

In this capacity, Shumaker will recruit the Volunteers in Probation and Victim Offender Reconciliation programs to work with children under court jurisdiction. Specifically, he will assist the volunteers and children in making consistent contacts with each other to carry on rehabilitation programs. This, too, will help keep young offenders at home.

"Trying to arrange and keep up with these contacts has been a headache for us", Campbell said. "Now we will have someone else to take over the job".

Earlier this year, it was pointed out that Charlevoix County spent $312,000 on foster child care during 1984-1985. County officials have concluded that the only way to cut this expense is to keep young offenders at home and work closely with them in a casework and diversionary setting.

Parents to screen film

A very important meeting for the parents of sixth-grade students in the Charlevoix Middle School has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 23, at the middle school library, Dennis VanGuilder, middle school principal, has announced.

Purpose of the meeting is to view a film on Human Growth and Development to be used in the class for sixth-grade students.

All parents are urged to attend the showing of the film so they will be aware of the subject matter to be taught in the class.

Boy Scouts gather

Boy Scout Troop 11 and Charlevoix's Webelo troop were among the troops of the Northern District of the Scenic Trails Council who participated on the fall camporee at the Otsego County Park on Otsego Lake near Gaylord recently.

The theme of the camporee was the "Old West." All scouts competed for ribbons in a series of 15 events including first aid and Scout-related events. Both Troop 11 whose scoutmaster is Louis Edwards and the Webelo troop whose leader is David Phillips were awarded blue ribbons.

Troop 11 members who attended were Pat McKay, patrol leader, Gary Arnold, Joshua Strzyzewski, Herbert Pines, Steve Knlat and Tracy Meadows. Bill Burns and James Gaskin of the leadership Corps also attended.

Webelos who participated were Harry Houlden, Matt Miller, Jesse Beatty, Charlie Meier, Richie LaVole, Dan Dobulis, J.H. Heck and Greg Holmes.

Downtown post office site under consideration

by DOUG TRUAX

A downtown site for the new Charlevoix post office is being evaluated by the U.S. Postal Service's Chicago regional office, according to a postal official.

The site under consideration is at the northeast corner of Hurlbut and State streets, property now occupied by a car wash.

The Postal Service had previously identified the site for the new post office as a one-acre parcel of property on M-66 near the corner of U.S. 31. Postal officials notified Tom Erber, owner of the M-66 lot, of their intent to purchase it for the post office.

"We are considering an alternative site to determine whether it is acceptable," Tom Aggen, of the U.S. Postal Service's real estate division said.

The new site was one of two submitted to the Postal Service by City Manager Michael Wiesner at the request of an ad hoc group formed to keep the post office downtown.

The other site submitted, 108 Clinton Ave., was rejected by Aggen as being too small. He said it was approximately the same size as the current location on Mason Street which the post office has outgrown.

The Hurlbut and State location, owned by Oleson Food Stores, is roughly 164 by 214 feet, Aggen said, smaller than the M-66 site.

He said the Hurlbut and State street site would be evaluated by the Postal Service's design and construction section. "If they are acceptable, then we have to whether it is better than the one (site) we already have," Aggen added.

The opinion of the design and construction section should be ready in about one week, Aggen said. "A major factor in the acceptablity (of the new site) will be the physical characteristics of the site itself," he noted. Of particular concern will be the steep banks and the fact that the site was once occupied by a dry cleaning business.

Aggen said the Postal Service wants to make sure there is no chemical contamination of the ground. Such precautions are routine, he said, adding that he had not known of Charlevoix's problems with chemical contamination of the groundwater from trichloroethylene and perchloroethylene.

Aggen said that if the design and construction section rules against the site, the post office will go on M-66 as originally planned.

"The primary focus is to put the facility on a site that is operationally sound – to move the mail," he said.

The Postal Service orignally planned to put the new post office downtown. It was to go on State Street at the location now occupied by the new public safety building, and the public safety building was to go where the current post office is.

City Council, however, changed its plans and voted to put the public safety building on State Street, leaving the post office without a downtown site.

The Postal Service put out new bids for a site and decided in August on the Erber property.

The ad hoc committee to keep the post office downtown had been working on other locations since the spring of 1985 and recently submitted the two downtown sites through City Manager Wiesner.

School Board passes $4.9 million budget

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night adopted a budget of $4,984,027 for the 1986-87 school year, approximately one percent less than the 1985-86 audited budget of $5,022,419.

On passing this budget, Vincent Olach explained that the renovation fo the K-5 school had taken more than 1.25 mill voted millage and therefore it had been necessary to take funds from the general fund.

He said the budget had been trimmed because of retirement of teachers and support staff at the top of the salary scale, with replacements being hired at the bottom of the salary scale, and the closing of the vocational education auto shop and sending the students to Petoskey.

"This budget does not allow for any major breakdowns or emergencies. If they should occur, we will have to draw on reserve funds," Olach said.

Funds to support the budget will come from local sources including $4,495,609 in property taxes, $245,000 industrial facilities taxes, and $72,250 in earnings from deposits and investments and other sources for a total of $4,840,397; state sources including $34,560 membership aid and $87,330 for transportation less $13,129 membership aid totaling $86,267; federal sources and $87,650 in incoming transfers and other transactions including $22,450 for state placed children which will give the school district $4,984,027 as compared to $4,817,983 in 1985-86.

A recap of the expenditures shows $2,711,191 for instruction compared to $2,659,910 last year; support, $2,230,580 ($2,253,247); other (outgoing transfers) $42,256 ($109,262) and $94,849. The expenditures will balance out the revenues or $4,984,027 as compared to 1985-86 when the expenditures totaled $5,022,419 or $204,436 over the budget.

This, as explained earlier, was due to the cost of the K-5 renovation over the 1.25 mill voted millage to underwrite the project.

In other action, the board approved a debt retirement payment of First of America in the amount of $9,373 for bonds dated Aug. 1, 1979 (high school addition).

After hearing a detailed report from Richard Swenor, assistant high school principal, regarding the proposed athletic league, the board voted to become a part of the league that will include four Class B schools, Cheboygan, Gaylord, Petoskey and Sault Ste. Marie and four Class C Schools including Charlevoix, Grayling, Rogers City and St. Ignace. Boyne City did not wish to be included in the league.

The next meeting of the board is scheduled for Nov. 3.

Addington stresses social issues

Ellen Addington of East Jordan, Democratic candidate for State Representative in the 103rd District, is campaigning on a platform of social and economic concerns.

"I am running because I want to have a part in what happens in our area," Addington says.

Of special concern are:

-Retired people on fixed incomes ("We need some kind of sickness insurance for the elderly because Medicare shuts off after a while and people must spend what they have down to their last $1,700").

-Farmers who have to sell off part of their land to pay property taxes. ("Some have to compete with absentee landowners who use the land as a tax write-off and dump milk and other products on the market to compete with other farmers").

-People whose taxes have skyrocketed ("Land should be assessed at its true value, not its speculative value. The value should not go up when someones builds a hotel nearby.")

-Ground and water contamination ("We need a plan for solid waste disposal that could co-generate energy. We have to have a plan to get rid of hazardous waste and all ground and water contamination. The funding could come from some of the trillions being earmarked for missiles and Star Wars.")

Ellen Addington

-Better transportation ("We need better roads–and we should bring back rail transportation– so industry will come our way. We need industry to provide jobs for our

Ostling seeks 8th term

by DOUG TRUAX

Ralph Ostling, Republican incumbent, is seeking his eighth term in the 103rd District of the state House of Representatives this Nov. 4.

The main issue, he says, is the same as it has always been – taxes.

And along with the general problem of keeping taxes down while maintaining essential services has come an increased problem with funding schools. Ostling, a former teacher, says that 20 of the 21 school districts in his legislative area are funded out of formula.

"I've been there (in the legislature) 14 years, and the problem of school financing is still there," Ostling says. "I think in four or five years we will move away from property taxes and toward income or sales taxes (as a way to finance local school districts)."

The incumbent legislator says he is proud of the job the state has done to meet the needs of senior citizens, a major constituency in his district. "The state has done a very good job in providing services for the elderly," he says. "I don't think we have deprived them of anything they have legitimately asked for."

Ostling, whose district includes six northern Michigan counties, says that it is important to strike a balance between jobs and the environment. "I think sane minds will prevail," he says.

He is complimentary of the job being done by new DNR Director Dr. Gordon Guyer and his reorganization of the department. "I think the reorganization – giving regional people more decision-making status – is going to really help, not only from a public relations standpoint, but for communications," Ostling

Water levels rise after September rains

by DOUG TRUAX

The expected seasonal decline in the water level of Lakes Michigan and Huron came to an abrupt halt in September as abnormal rains raised the lakes 6 inches above August, according to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The Corps reported that 7.4 inches of rain fell on the lakes in September, 119 percent above normal precipitation.

"As a result, we are looking at breaking all-time records through March," said Dave Schweiger, hydraulic engineer for the Corps' Detroit District office.

The lakes are brim full, he said, and fall or spring storms could cause serious problems. "We've been awfully lucky during the last spring and fall," he added, "but I don't

It is thought this picture of East Park was taken sometime in the 1940's B. C. (before condominiums). It shows part of the west and south shores of Round Lake and the shuffle board courts, which received much pley in those deys. At the end of the welk in the center of the picture is a smell dock, on which Venetien Queen candidates of some year posed, es seen in the smaller picture. The object to the far right in the picture is apparently a houseboat, but no present resident of Charlevoix seems to remember it. Do you? And cen you identify the Venetian Queen candidates? Heeres and Moerland square off for County Commission seat

by PEG OHLE

There are only three contests for County officials in the General Election:

Bud Heeres vs. I. Lee Moerland to represent the City of Charlevoix on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners. This contest is a re-run of the August Primary election, in which Heeres defeated Moerland by 51 votes.

While the campaign is quiet on the outside, it is noisy on the inside, as many recipients of personal letters will testify.

Both condidates have used the mails to dissemlnate their messages. Moerland has concentrated on his 21 years of service as a county commissloner (including four years as chairman) and his 27 years of experience in management and financial matters as an employee of the Belvedere Club, which he presently serves as warden and assistant secretary.

Stressing "fair, reasonable government", Moerland has noted that Charlevoix County has had one of the five lowest tax milliage rates in the state and no voted millage for general county operations. He calls himself a fiscal conservative and says he wants to continue to make his time and efforts available to county government.

In his letters, Moerland has taken a positive approach and consistently ignored charges made by his opponent concerning poor employee morale in the county building blamed on Moerland's personnel policies, and an apparent conflict of interest in a lawsuit filed by the Belvedere Club against the county to appeal its taxes.

While this is Heeres' first venture into the field of government, he has many relatives who have been or are county employees, and who are lending their expertise to his campaign.

They have been active in letter-writing, not only to the Editor, but to the general voting public.

In a Courier Letter to the Editor last week, Heeres himself criticized Moerland for running as an Independent in the General Election after being defeated by Heeres in the Republican Primary.

Moerland is 58 years old and has lived in Charlevoix for 34 years. Before being elected to the County Board, he served four years on the Charlevoix City Council. Presently, he is also serving as chairman of the 10-County Northwest Michigan Council of Governments, a state-appointed commission that fosters employment end job training. Locelly, he is a founder and member of the Economic Development Corporation, a member of the board of District Health Department No. 3, and a licensed emergency medical technician serving with the Charlevoix Fire and Ambulance Departments.

Heeres is 63 yeers old. He was born in Charlevoix County and has lived in the City of Charlevoix for 40 years. Earlier this year he retired after serving for 17 years as bus transportation supervisor for the Charlevoix School District. Before his job with the School District, Heeres worked as a mechanic for the Charlevoix Oil Company, and for Brown Motors. He calls himself "fiscally conservative" and says he will "commit himself to a policy of austere but adequate budgets for all departments and of staffing according to need".

A quieter campaign is being waged for the County Commission seat in District No. 5, made up of Charlevoix Township, western Evellne Township, Marion Township, Norwood Township, Peaine Township, and St. James Township. There, incumbent Don Smith is being challenged by Lee Arnold, who lost to Smith in the Republican Primary. Arnold is now running as an Independent.

In a letter to his constituents, sent out before the Primary election, Smith told them he believed that effective and efficient county government calls for a "common sense" approach to decision making, and that he has tried to be objective and conscientious in doing what is best for the residents of the county during his two terms in office.

Arnold has based his campaign on criticism of the Charlevoix Garbage Service landfill near Ironton, where he lives. He has accused the operators of the "landfill" with polluting the ground, water, and air of the area and charged that the County Board of Commissioners has not done its duty in seeing to it that the landfill is properly operated. At the last meeting of the County Board, he threatened to file a lawsuit against them.

Smith, 39, grew up in the Charlevoix area and teaches economics and history in the Petoskey High School. Before being elected to the County Board in 1982, he served for six years on the Charlevoix Township Board and for three years on the Charlevoix County Planning Commission. Smith's duties on the County Board include liaison responsibilities with the three court systems, the Department of Social Services, and child guidance and youth programs. He and his wife, the former Pamela Miller, have two sons, Ryan, who is 14, and Jason, who is nine.

Arnold has lived in the Charlevoix area for 13 years. He is a self-employed carpenter and serves as Zoning Administrator for Eveline Township. He has never held elective office.

The other contest for County Commissioner is in Boyne City, where Republican incumbent Oral Sutliff is being challenged by Democrat Rudolph Florenski. Sutliff was first elected to the County Board in 1976 and presently serves on several boards and commissions, including District Health Department No. 3, Commission on Aging, County Parks & Recreation, Northwest Michigan Area Agency on Aging, and representative to the Northern Counties Association and Michigan Association of Counties, and to the Michigan Townships Association. His campaign is a quiet one, preferring to let his record speak for itself.

Sutliff drives a bus for the Boyne City School District and acts as guardian for several older and handicapped persons through Charlevoix County Probate Court. This latter job brought fire from Florenski, who charged conflict of interest because Sutliff was being paid for this service by Probate Court and at the same time voting for supplements to the Probate Judge's salary. The State's Attorney General has since ruled there is no such conflict.

Florenski, a Boyne City native, served one term as County Commissioner in 1975 and 1976. He has held no public office since then but has devoted much time to "digging into" the activities of both the County Board and the Boyne City Council.

An original watercolor painting of Round Lake harbor was added to the Charlevoix Elementary School's collection of fine art last week. Given in memory of Carolyn Rader, one of the founding members of the Waterfront Art Fair Committee who died in an automobile accident this summer, the painting by Grand Rapids artist Kathleen Chaney-Fritz was presented to the school by the art fair committee.

As part of the presentation Ms. Chaney-Fritz conducted a question and answer session about art with fourth and fifth grade students.

The Round Lake harbor scene was an especially apt gift in memory of Mrs. Rader, "because this was the view of Round Lake from Mrs. Rader's living room when she lived in Charlevoix," committee member Sally McNamara told the students.

County Commission is big business

by PEG OHLE

Despite what many people may think, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, for which three seats are being contested in the November General Election, is charged with many responsibilities and duties other than levying taxes.

The County is big business. Its 1986 budget is $3,382,100, which the County Board had to allocate for many state-mandated services as well as many public-demanded services.

The budget shows 65 different expenditure categories under 10 broad department categories: Legislative, judicial, general county government, public safety, health, welfare, libraries, recreation, and "other". Throughout the year, the County Board has been trying to provide needed services within the cost guidelines of the budget, a process which often entails much discussion as to ways and means.

The responsibility for spending funds carries with it the responsibility of authorizing operations in many ways, a procedure which calls for constant watchfulness and action.

So far this year, the Board has passed 105 resolutions covering such actions as authorizing payment for installation of the county's new telephone system, accepting the proposal of a Traverse City auditing firm for a three-year audit contract, opposing moving the County Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Service office from Boyne City to an out-county location, assisting Northern Michigan Mental Heath Services in purchasing a house for mentally handicapped persons in Charlevoix, requesting boaters to maintain a "No Wake Zone" within 500 feet of the shoreline of Lake Charlevoix, agreeing to include $15,000 in its 1987 budget for the Straits Area Narcotics Enforcement organization, approving contracts for finishing soil maps of the County, and authorizing the Emergency Services Director to purchase 10,000 sandbags to be sold to residents for shoreline protection, to name a few.

At almost every meeting of the County Board, an elected or appointed official appears to make a report or present a request. At other times, representatives from other agencies or business establishments may appear with a message.

The subject matter at any meeting may range from child care to house numbering to data processing, to animal control, to the Medical Examiner, to veterans' affairs, to the Ironton Ferry, to jail operations, to Probate Court, and on, and on.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners was changed from a 15-person body to a six-person body in 1982, due to re-apportionment bas-

In Beijing

'Round Town

BY EDITH GILBERT

BEIJING China - Caroline Dexter and her two children live in Beijing. Husband, John Mann, is the Head Bureau Chief here for the L.A. Times. As often as possible the family visit Grandma and Grandpa Dexter in Charlevoix on Belvedere Avenue.

I walked into Caroline's Beijing apartment, which was hung with navy blue and white pennants. The message was, "Oh no, Four O!" "Where did you get those?" I asked. "At Shorter's in Petoskey," Caroline laughed. "Last night was John's birthday party and we celebrated until three in the morning."

FOREIGN DIPLOMATS and correspondents who live in China's capital are segregated in walled-off compounds protected by soldiers. In her spacious, first floor apartment, Caroline served us a delicious dinner of party hors d'ouevres, rice, beavenly filtered water, and homemade brownies. During dinner, I asked Elizabeth, age 11, what she liked best about her Charlevoix summer vacations. "I like Charlevoix because nothing ever happens!" was her immediate response, meaning her mother added - time stands still.

I know exactly what she means! This morning several members of my tour group became involved in a long discussion. "Is it Saturday or Sunday? Is it Oct. 4 or 5 today?" Finally a woman pulled out a copy of our itinerary and said, "We're in Chungquing so it's Sat. Oct 4," and that settled the matter.

BEING A FUDGIE in China is very similar to being a fudgie in Charlevoix. Fudgies everywhere shop a lot, snack a lot, and gawk a lot. Instead of watching the bridge go up and down, or boats passing through the channel, we stroll through the Empresses' summer palace and take a floatboat ride across the picturesque little lake.

But there is also a big difference in being a fudgie in China! What you can't do is make your own reservations in a hotel. Rooms are allocated to foreign tour groups by the government travel agency to which there is no appeal. Because there is a massive shortage of first class hotels in major cities, visitors play Russian roulette for accommodations. This government does not promise "no surpirses!" Ours have ranged from the sublime - the new, glitzy, Sheraton in Shanghai, with a three story mirrored lobby, punctuated by two long escalators - to the ridiculous - a small hotel in mountainous HeChuan, with a three-foot tiled bath tub and a tiled one holer toilet.

NOR CAN ONE make airline reservations. If CAAC (Civil Aviation Administration of China) is booked solid, you're shifted to a military plane, taking off and landing at a military airport. On these flights, refreshments are served, and souvenirs handed out to all passengers. It's surprising how smoothly this systems works here.

Throughout your travels, a local and national Chinese guide acts as your intermediary. For instance, when we visited Mao Tse Tung's tomb, the national guide cut us in ahead of a three block line of waiting Chinese tourists, standing four abreast, and no one seemed to mind.

Often the guides will go out of their way to be helpful. When the handle of my suitcase broke off, the national guide was Johnny-on-the-spot with a screwdriver and made the necessary repairs.

BEING SICK away from home is no fun no matter where you go. Almost everyone in our group has come down with a sore throat, due to the heavy pollution, especially in Chungquing. You can't imagine how bad it is until you've suffered through it! We've been advised to take Chinese herb pills, that look like sesame seeds, instead of our own well-touted stand-by drugs. And by George, they work!

Last night, we celebrated the birthday of one of our group. Our local Chinese guide proposed this traditional birthday toast, which is just as appropriate in our neck of the woods: "May your life be as long as the evergreen pine tree on the south mountain, and your happiness as long as the endless water of the eastern sea."

City Gardens

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

Gardeners are drawing deep sighs of relief as one of the best growing seasons — and one of the worst harvesting seasons — in years draws to a close.

All in all, the pluses outweighed the minuses, which is the name of the game.

The weather was fine for gardening right from the start, with rain coming in the proper amounts just when it was needed. The traditional July drought never materialized.

Then came September and the rain didn't stop for six weeks. Oh, you could still bring in the sheaves, if you didn't mind wallowing around in the mud.

Of course the wet weather wasn't too good for such crops as carrots, which tend to get so big they crack. Or cabbage, which also will crack if you don't pick it early enough.

But the potato crop was excellent and commercial growers in Northern Michigan stand to make a bundle, particularly since so many potato fields in south-central Michigan were ruined by floodwaters. Potato farmers who received $3 or less per hundredweight last year are getting $6 and up this year. If they delay selling until spring, the price probably will go much higher.

Well-informed sources say potato chip factories in the Saginaw-Bay City are crying for spuds and it appears that for the first time in years Michigan will be a potato importer instead of a potato exporter.

Of course, Michigan has quite a reputation as a prime potato state around the country, right up there — almost — with Idaho and Maine. But no one in these parts goes into a grocery store and asks for Michigan potatoes. After all, that's the house brand.

I WISH THE CITY would take steps to better publicize its city gardens, one of the pioneering self-help projects in Northern Michigan.

The number of gardeners is dwindling every year, and I am afraid the gardens will be abandoned unless more interest is shown.

The gardens were launched in 1974 and have provided Charlevoix families with literally tons of fresh produce — and hours of healthy outdoor exercise over the years. But the road into the property has become almost impassable and fewer gardeners are showing up every year.

As a city gardener, I think the allotments are an excellent use of otherwise fallow city-owned land.

So think about it. The plots (about 25 feet square) rent for $5 a season and you won't find a better bargain anywhere.

EVEN IF YOU aren't a football fan, you should stop by Charlevoix's new Kipke Field to see where your tax dollars are going.

The home stands, refreshment booth, restrooms, press box and other facilities have been moved to the west side of the field so that the setting sun will no longer blind spectators attending early evening events.

The stands also are higher, offering a better view of the field. The number of light poles also has been reduced to four — one at each corner — so that everyone has an unobstructed view of the action.

When the track is completed next spring, Kipke Field will bring Charlevoix into the 1980's, insofar as high school athletics is concerned.

Letters to the editor:

Is this belt tightening?

Dear Editor:

On the front page of the Petoskey News Review, Oct. 2, was an article entitled "Sharing the Wealth Ends." I see no element of surprise in this, as we have frequently been forewarned by both newspaper and TV.

What did surprise me, however, was the article on page 3 of the same issue, where Mr. 1. Lee Moerland, chair of Charlevoix Coundy Board of Commissioners, advocated "belt tightening." Just a few months ago (July 16, 1986 issue of Charlevoix Courier, p. 1) a change in salary schedules was announced just before the August primary election. Stating that the starting wage was now to be lowered from $5.38, to only $3.35 hr. for hourly employees; and the start for Grade I employees lowered from $8.06 to only $7.78 per hour, this appeared, indeed to be an effort in "belt tightening," however, when the actual wage changes are examined, it does not reveal any "belt tightening:" 13 people received wage increases totaling $28,723, ranging from $1,000 to $4,000. Another group of 12 people received raises ranging from $35 annually to $1,000. (Another $4,574 notch in the 'tightening'?) 60 employees received no change.

Amounting to a total of $33,819, coming just before an election, and in the middle of the year when budget had been set at the first of the year and is supposed to leave a zero balance between revenue and budget: where will the money come from next year for these raises! It makes me wonder: is this belt tightening?

CROP walk raises $5,300

Dear Editor:

We wish to thank the many people who made this year's Charlevoix County CROP Walk for world hunger so successful. On the morning of September 13, 162 people from Boyne City, East Jordan and Charlevoix walked to Ironton, where they were fed lunch and then transported back to their respective communities.

All ages participated – from elementary children to octogenerians. Receipts from pledges totaled over $5,300, one-fourth of which will remain in Charlevoix County for use by our local food distribution centers.

A special thanks to the Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions Clubs for their support services; to Glen's in East Jordan for supplying food; to The Clothing Company, VIP and McDonald's for giving incentive donations; to the local arrangements and publicity people for their careful planning; to all who sponsored the walkers so generously; and to everyone else who in any way contributed to this year's effort. What a fun and effective way to help the hungry.

The tentative date for next year's CROP Walk is Saturday, Sept. 19, 1987.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

Each year the Chamber of Commerce membership continues to grow. Not only is that an endorsement that we must be doing something right, but it is an indication that businesses here want to make this an even better community.

The 1986 Fall Membership Drive is being conducted by some of the best ambassadors the Chamber has... the Chamber Board of Directors.

A letter has been mailed to fifty potential members (you know who you are). Each Board member has been assigned four businesses to contact by November 3. If our ambassadors can successfully solicit four new members each, this could be the best Chamber Membership Drive ever.

Be a part of the team that is helping to make Charlevoix even more beautiful and an even better place to live, work and play. Join the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. We work for you.

Family

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Simonsen

Beesley-Simonsen

Karen Ann Beesley and James Larry Simonsen were married Sept. 6 on the grounds of the Spiritualist Church on old US-31. Sixty relatives and friends attended the outdoor wedding on a site marked with potted flowers, pink ribbons and bows.

Parents of the couple are Virginia Ann Beesley of Novi, Eugene W. Beesley of Southfield and Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Simonsen of Charlevoix.

The Rev. Elsie Beesley, 92-year-old grandmother of the bride, performed the double ring service.

The bride and groom were given in marriage by their respective parents. The bride wore a cotton ballerina length gown with a high lace collar and cap sleeves. The gown featured a yoke of lace and matching lace edged the hemline. The bride wore a strand of pearls belonging to her sister, Cindy Armstrong. She also wore a brooch belonging to her grandmother Beesley and she carried a handkerchief given to her mother by a great-aunt. In her hair, the bride wore a halo of baby rosebuds and blue statice with baby's breath and white ribbons. She carried a bouquet to match her headpiece.

Mrs. Edward Beesley, aunt of the bride, played accordion music for the wedding.

Jodie Armstrong, niece of the bride, was flower girl and wore a yellow floor length dress with a hooped skirt. She carried a basket of flowers to match the bride's bouquet.

Ushers were Jason Armstrong, nephew of the bride and Jeremy Simonsen, nephew of the groom.

A gourmet picnic luncheon followed the ceremony on the church grounds, hosted by the bride and groom and their parents.

The newlyweds traveled to the Upper Peninsula and Canada for their honeymoon and are now residing in Charlevoix. The bride has a bachelor of science degree and is a registered nurse at Northern Michigan Hospitals. The groom is a gourmet cook at the Perry Hotel in Petoskey. Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Burke

Lewis-Burke

Debra Marie Lewis and Jeffrey Scott Burke were married Sept. 20 at the Boyne City First Presbyterian Church. White and lilac mums decorated the church for the afternoon double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Milton G. Walls.

Mr. and Mrs. Jason R. Lewis Sr. of Boyne City are parents of the bride. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest G. Burke of Charlevoix.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of chiffonet and chantilly lace with a Queen Anne keyhole neckline. The bodice and bishop sleeves were molded in venise lace and medallions. The bouffant skirt and sweetheart cathedral train featured cascading ruffles of chiffon and lace. The bride wore a fingertip veil and blusher edged with lace and attached to a headpiece of silk flowers and simulated pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, lilac mums, baby's breath and greens.

Traditional music was played by organist Dava Mast.

Nellie May Lewis was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Janette Denike and Susan Peterson. They wore lilac off-the-shoulder gowns of dotted swiss with accents of chantilly lace. Each carried a bouquet of white carnations, lilac mums, baby's breath and greens.

Alan Burke was best man and groomsmen were Todd Russell and Jimmy Clark. Ushers were Bob Lewis and Brian Burke.

A reception, given by the parents of the bride and groom, followed the ceremony at the VFW Hall in Charlevoix. On Sept. 19, the parents of the bride hosted the rehearsal dinner.

The newlyweds honeymooned on Mackinac Island and will reside in Naples, FL. (Photo courtesy Impressions Studio)

Anniversaries

First half attack leads Rayders past Onaway

Playing at home for only the second time this season, Charlevoix hit winless Onaway with a four-touchdown barrage in the first half and went on to post a 27-0 decision Friday night.

The victory moves the Rayders to 3-4 overall with a 2-3 mark in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference while the Cardinals fell to 0-7.

The Rayders broke into the scoring column when Mike Thompson went 30 yards with a punt return and Terry Bonar kicked the conversion.

Still in the first period, Chad Thorp intercepted a pass at midfield which evcntually led to a Dan Drury two-yard scoring run on a keeper.

In the second quarter Drury passed 10 ards to Paul Anderson and then Drury hit Scott DeYoung for the conversion and a 21-0 lead. The TD was set up by a fumble recovery on the 45.

A Dave Miller pass interception at the Onaway 20 put the Rayders in line for their final score as Thompson went over from the 2-yard line.

Replacements played a good share of the second half for Charlevoix.

The Charlevoix defense held Onaway without a first down as the Cardinals ended up with a net 19 yards on the ground and 8 through the air. Onaway has scored only 14 points in seven games.

Charlevoix had 200 yards rushing and 51 passing as Drury hit five of six attempts. Mark LaBlance carried 19 times for 80 yards and Thompson 19 for 75. Miller, a sophomore, had two interceptions while Jason Fettig, Thorp and Quint Walker recovered fumbles. Kent Seymour and Walker led the defense with 12 tackles while John Jaskierski had 10.

Friday Oct. 24, the Rayders will host Grayling for homecoming.

JVs defeat Onaway

The Charlevoix Rayder JV football team posted a 12-8 win over Onaway at Kipke Field Wednesday night.

The two teams played to a scoreless first half though the Rayders had three touchdowns called back because of penalties, Coach Brian Certa said.

The Rayders launched second half action by getting off a long pass to put the team on the board. James Corwin passed to Jamie Montieth in a play that covered 40 yards to score the team's first touchdown.

The second scoring play came in the last period when Onaway, on the 5-yard line in a fourth-and-one situation, had the ball stripped from the Cardinal player by James Holm who dropped the ball. It was then scooped up by Jason Corwin who ran 95 yards to score. Again the conversion failed and the score stood at 12-0.

With two minutes remaining, Onaway launched a drive that moved the ball to the 5-yard line from where they scored and added a two-point conversion.

Coach Certa credited Holm, Matt Cunningham and Jason Whitley with fine defensive play

Middle Schoolers suffer defeats

The Charlevoix Middle School girls basketball teams dropped games to Petoskey and Cheboygan last week.

On Wednesday, the eighth-graders lost to Cheboygan 31-18 and the seventh-graders 33-14.

The eighth-graders had a 13-12 lead at halftime but fell behind when three of their regulars got into foul trouble, Coach Becky Gengle said.

Stacy Skeel had six points for the home team. Isard had 10 for the visitors.

The seventh-graders trailed 10-8 at halftime before losing by 19 points.

Becky Martin had four points for Charlevoix. Kitchen had 14 for Cheboygan.

In the game with Petoskey earlier in the week, Gena Webster and Martin shared scoring honors with six points each, according to Coach Jan Ertleben, as the seventh-grade team trailed Peoskey 18-6 at halftime before going down 26-18. Keiser had 10 points for Petoskey.

The eighth-graders dropped their game to Petoskey by a score of 16-11 after trailing 10-6 at halftime.

Tracee Smith had three points for Charlevoix. Wozniak had nine for Petoskey.

Charlevoix will be at Boyne City Oct. 27.

Soccer club places second

The Charlevoix High School Soccer Club returned home recently from the third annual Soccer Tournament hosted by the Beaver Island Community School Club with a second place trophy, Coach Tom Sikavitsa reports.

Elk Rapids took first place honors, Harbor Springs finished in third and the host team in fourth place.

Charlevoix dropped its first game to Elk Rapids 4-1 and then won 9-3 over Beaver Island and 5-2 over Harbor Springs.

Charles Morrow and Jamie Spencley posted six goals each for the local team while Bob Sell accounted for two and John Norman one. Nick Mellios, Heath Moore and Bob Sell had three assists each and Spencley and David Puhl, one each.

Sikavitsa said he had excellent midfield play from Puhl, Tonya Rostar, Moore, Mellios and F.L. Dammann, equally strong goaltending from John O'Brien and strong defensive play by David Eakes, O'Brien and Rick Sell.

The visiting teams had traveled to Beaver Island via the motorship "Beaver Islander" on Friday and were housed at the Central Michigan University Biological Station on the Island.

All the food was donated by island residents and seved at the dining room of the station except for lunch on Saturday. On Saturday evening, the host team, assisted by residents of the island, provided a dance for the visitors with music by Tom Pluister, disc jockey from Station KHQ.

Girls post two wins

The Charlevoix Rayder girls basketball team posted wins over St. Ignace and Boyne City during the week, bringing its record to 10-2.

On Thursday the Rayders downed Boyne City 51-21 and on Tuesday beat St. Ignace 56-20.

In the Boyne City game, Charlevoix outscored the visiting Ramblers 22-8 from the floor and connected on seven of 15 charity shots to Boyne City's five of 13 free throws. Charlevoix had 13 personal fouls and Boyne City 16.

Boyne City pressured the Rayders top scorer, Amy Pischner forcing Cyndi Boss and Ann Kroll to take over offensively to score 12 and 11 points respectively. Ellen Pearl held the Ramblers' top scorer to one point.

Charlevoix had lead throughout the game 13-3, 32-10 and 42-16 by quarters as everyone played.

In the JV game, Stacy Gebott led the scoring with 20 points as the Rayders won 36-32. Cynthia Boydston added eight.

In the game with St. Ignace on Monday the Rayders led the Saints 14-6, 26-13 and 40-15 by quarters as they rolled to an easy victory.

Amy Pischner had 23 points and 15 rebounds and Stephanie Martin had 13 points. On defense, Barbie Boss and Pearl had fine games Coach Henry Wagner said.

The Rayders had 22 field goals and 12 of 15 free throws. The Saints had eight field goals and four of eight charity shots. The Rayders had 10 pesonal fouls and the visitors 12.

In the JV game, the Saints won 46-28. Gebott had 18 points.

Suttons Bay will play here Thursday and Charlevoix will travel to Cheboygan Tuesday.

Harriers sweep conference; boys take 7th straight

by FRAN MARTIN

Saturday was a great day for the Charlevoix Rayder cross country teams as the boys team captured its ninth Michigan-Huron Shores Conference title in 10 years and the girls team its first league title in the four years Charlevoix has boasted a full team.

"They all did a good job. They're all running well" Coach Pete Spieles said. "They're ready to run," he said of the boys team. "We're ready for the regional. Joe (Simpson) should be back after being out all last week and not running in the conference meet. The others were unbellevable.

"Saturday was the first time Doug (Bergmann) has run in two weeks because of his knee. Joe was ill all week and didn't practice but he's better. Wiesner, a freshman, did a good job of filling in. We're ready."

He was equally enthused about the girls performance. "Barb Haggard was back and did well. Betsy's time improved. We had a good race from the others. We're all very happy," Spieles added.

The Rayder boys team placed first with 36 points; the Rayder girls team took top honors with 49 points and the Rayder JVs had 36 points. Eric Dickinson of Gaylord set the pace for the boys team, Monica Beck of Gaylord for the girls team and Harold Herriman of Charlevoix for the JVs with a time of 17:50.

The Rayder runners and their times follow: 2. Pat Rajewski, 16:21; 3. Doug Bergmann, 16:43; 5. Scott Miller, 16:45; 7. Sean Henne, 16:49; 8. Kevin McLenon, 16:55. Tom Merta finished 10th in 16:58 and Gehry Wiesner, 13th in 17:26.

The girls team and their finish and times were: 5. Betsy Haggard, 21:06; 6. Michelle North, 21:08; 10. Heidi Olinger, 22:01; 12. Stephanie Agnew, 22:12; 16. Barb Haggard, 22:31. Maria Parsons finished in 20th place in 23:47 and Shelly Ferguson, 21st, 23:55.

The JVs results include: Harold Herriman, 1st, 17:50; Marty Joy, 3rd, 18:12; Dylan Stewart, 7th, 18:50; Jon Terry, 11th, 19:28; Roger McBride, 14th, 19.50.

Tim Henne, 15th, 19:56; Mike Stargardt, 16th, 20:02; Hal Chase, 17th, 20:23; Jerry Thaycr, 22nd, 21:48; Jacob Smith, 23rd, 21:58.

The Rayders will be at the Gaylord Invitational meet Tuesday and the Class C regional meet at West Shore Community College at Ludington Saturday.

Ken Plude is assistant Rayder cross country coach.

Junior runners place well

The Charlevoix Rayder JV cross country team placed third in the Elk Rapids Invitational Thursday.

Entered in the C-D division of the meet, Gehry Wiesner placed sixth in a time of 16:44. He was followed by teammates Harold Herriman who came in seventh in 16:49; Marty Joy, 14th, in 17:20; Jon Terry 41st, 18:52; and Mike Stargardt, 47th in 19:05.

Hal Chase finished in 50th place in 19:07 and Tim Henne, 54th in 19:27.

Entered in the JV Open were Roger McBride who finished the course in 18:28; Jerry Thayer, 20:36 and Jacob Smith in 22:20.

Dophins, Raiders share title

Teams of the Charlevoix Flag Football League, sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation Department played out their season last week with the Dolphins and the Raider sharing the 1986 title.

The scores for the final week of play found the Dolphins trouncing the Panters 30-12 and the Raiders defeating the Bears 27-7 on Wednesday and the Raiders upsetting the Dolphins 20-12 and the Bears winning their first game of the season 21-20 over the Panthers.

On the final night of play, the Panthers got off to a good start, scoring early on a Gabe Brock to Vince Voisin pass for 20 yards and a touchdown. The lead was short-lived as Dave Hunter tied the score with a 9-yard run.

Dan Terryberry then took over and passed 12 yards and later 6 yards to Luke LaBlance to give the Dolphins an 18-6 lead at halftime. As the second half got underway, Brian Darrah became his receiver on scoring plays of 5 yards in the third period and 18 yards in the final period. Corey Ostrum scored on a 1-yard plunge for the Panthers but too late to help his team.

Paul Wakulat passed two yards to Ben Whitley in the first period, scored on a 1-yard plunge in the second quarter and on a 4-yard run in the fourth period to give the Raiders an impressive lead before the Bears got on the board with a 26-yard scoring play by Scott Campbell in the final period. Ken Olinger scored the Raiders final tally on a 21-yard run. Joe Prevo scored two conversions and Wakulat one as the Raiders pasted its 27-7 win.

Two pass plays in the first period gave the Panthers a 12-0 first period lead. The determined Bears, however, fought back to a 21-20 win.

Guy Gengle passed to Wayne Joy for scoring plays of 15 and 6 yards each before the Bears scored on a 7-yard run by Scott Campbell who also scored the conversion to trim the halftime Panther lead to 12-7.

Gengle passed 37 yards to Joy to open second half action for an 18-7 lead before Seth Arnold intercepted a Panther pass and romped 13 yards with Campbell adding the conversion. The Panthers managed a safety by Gengle to open the final period.

The Bears, however, snatched the win in a last ditch effort by Campbell who scored on a 3-yard run and then passed to Jarrett Moreno for the victory.

The Raider-Dolphin game turned into a defensive battle in the second half after the Raiders had taken a 20-12 lead at halftime.

Dan Boss assured the Raiders the upset win with a 1-yard scoring play and a conversion point by Prevo.

young people so they can remain in the area.")

A former teacher of young people with behavioral problems in the inner city of Detroit, Addington is especially interested in providing the best possible education for everyone, "Education is the basis for our whole economy and our society in general," she says.

One morning last week, Addington spoke to 150 students of government at the Boyne City High School. "Some of them disagreed with what I had to say," she reported. "I told them that is good because an important part of education is to become a critical thinker and a discriminating voter."

Along with education, Addington believes that good nutrition programs are necessary to raise an intelligent, healthy generation: "It's hard to believe that the mortality rate of infants in the inner city of Detroit is the same as the mortality rate in Honduras."

Addington's answer to funding sources for social programs is to take the money from our huge defense budget. "The time has come to say that if we want to solve our problems, we will have to pay for them or our prisons will overflow."

Since retiring as a teacher, Addington has spent much time traveling and working for world food and peace programs. She was formerly hunger coordinator of the Grand Traverse District of the United Methodist Church, for which she visited Africa and studied the Church-supported projects in Senegal, Kenya, and Egypt.

This year, Addington has made two trips to Nicaragua as a member of a Witness for Peace short-term team. While there, she interviewed opposition leaders as well as supporters of the present government and business, political and religious groups. "Most of us can't imagine what's going on down there because we're comfortable here and don't have to fight just to stay alive."

This is Addington's first campaign for public office, although she is a descent of Antrim County (Republican) officeholders and says she has really been a politician all her life. Her opponent, Ralph Ostling of Roscommon, has held the state house seat for seven terms.

ed on the 1980 census. Up until its 110th year, in 1978, the Board met only once a month, and in its early years, only a few times a year. In 1978, the body began meeting twice a month, on the second Wednesday for a daytime session, and on the fourth Wednesday for an evening session.

In 1984, with six men doing the same work that 15 had previously done, the County Board added two Committee of the Whole meetings to its schedule, on the first and last Thursdays of the month.

With the many liaison and representative duties assigned to each member of the County Board, there are also several other meetings during the course of a month. However, County Commissioners are well paid for attending all their meetings. To begin with, they receive a salary of $165 a month for attending the two Wednesday meetings, and are paid whether or not they really attend.

Middle School beautification project gets high marks

by ANNE KELLY

It started with the seed of an idea. In the summer before assuming his present position as Charlevoix Middle School principal, Dennis Van Guilder recalls walking around the outside of the building and thinking, "I'd like somehow to provide a new look for this building, it's really in bad repair. I wanted people who came into the middle school to say, 'Hey, I like this building, I'm proud of it.'"

Van Guilder took his beautification idea to the student council and presented it as a school-wide fund-raising project. News got out, and soon Bruce and Barbara MacArthur became involved, as Keep Charlevoix Beautiful members, and Barbara, as a member of the Garden Club.

Finally, in January 1986, Van Guilder contacted the Garden Club officially, to co-ordinate a landscaping project for his building. Under the direction of Derith Lane, Garden Club president, a committee including Marie Sloan, Jolyn Hall, Anna Belle Webb, Inge Ledahl, Lois Lewis and Joanne Curtis, met and formulated a plan for the project, giving it direction and goals.

Ineffective existing plantings needed to be removed, new plants and shrubs purchased and planted, students involved and, of course money raised.

Student involvement turned out to be one of the most rewarding aspects. Science instructor Jim Jinsky was asked to allow his sixth-grade science classes to participate in the project.

"When they approached me about the idea, there was nothing to accomodate this project in the curriculum," Jinsky admitted. "I felt, however, that this was a perfect example of how we as teachers need to be flexible and willing to implement the curriculum. It turned out to be a real fun program from which we all learned a lot."

Everyone got in the spirit. Custodian Allan Dhaseleer laid railroad tie boundaries to enclose the landscaping close to the building. A sign was produced by the Boyne City Industrial Arts class. The new look was christened in the spring when the committee members, Van Guilder, Jinsky and Dhaseleer all planted annual marigolds, geraniums and petunias around the sign and the front of the building. But the most contagious participation involved the sixth-grade science classes.

Armed with the master plan, visual aids and their combined talents, the committee of Garden Club volunteers, shared their expertise with these young horticulturists, along with their love for growing things. Once a month for six weeks last spring, students learned about basic landscaping and the master plan - about perennials and annuals, bulbs, when to plant, zoning and climate. They also learned about shrubs and trees - about how to plant and the importance of soil content.

Fund-raising was done through door-to-door sales in order to defray the costs not covered by donations from the Garden Club and area businesses. Finally, on May 12, all members of the sixth-grade class took part in the active planting.

All participants in the project agree – it was a face lift long needed. It will keep an old building looking younger and more beautiful for a long time to come.

But beautification is an ongoing concern. It's a continuing project for Jinsky's science classes. This year a whole new crop of sixth graders is learning about pride in its school through landscaping. They recently planted perennial bulbs that will be a source of beauty when they appear in the spring.

On Friday, Oct. 3, Van Guilder, Jinsky and Dhasleleer traveled to Muskegon for an awards luncheon hosted by Keep Michigan Beautiful. At the event, Charlevoix Middle School students were awarded the "Distinguished Service Award" for their efforts in the beautification of their school. It was one of 16 given in the state, and the only one awarded in northern Michigan.

A new sign and flower beds helped spruce up the front of the Middle School.

"It's been a very rewarding experience seeing the total community involved in a worthwhile project," Van Guilder beams. "I think because we've all had a hand in beautifying the grounds, we all treat them differently now."

Jinsky agreed. "Best of all," he added, "I think it's a real plus for the kids. They can say 'I did something, and it's going to be neat to see it grow.' I see this as something we can keep in our program for a long time. When we're done here, maybe we'll look around the community to see if we can help elsehwere."

"We learned a lot, especially how to make our school prettier. It looks a lot better now," said seventh-grade student Jennifer Gregory.

"It shows people that you can really accomplish something. The Garden Club gave us a little pine tree to plant at home. I'm still trying to decide where to put mine," Herbie Pines commented.

Middle School students work on putting in new plantings around the school grounds.

Ralph Ostling

adds.

As vice-chairman of the House of Representatives' Appropriations Committee, Ostling says he keeps a close eye on the dollars headed for northern Michigan. It is not true, as some charge, Ostling counters, that Detroit and the Upper Peninsula are stealing all the appropriations. Northern Michigan is getting its fair share, he believes.

Ostling's opponent, Ellen Addington, has hit hard at the United States' support for military spending and aid to the Contras in Nicaragua. She has charged that such spending cuts into the money available for state programs. Ostling disagrees, saying that, with the exception of the Gramm-Rudman bill, such national issues have no effect on state programs.

Among the most recent programs of which he is proud, Ostling says, is his sponsorship of a bill to compensate farmers hurt by the PBB crisis in Michigan. Some $6.7 million in low-interest loans given to the farmers in the mid-1970s is coming due; Ostling's bill waives those loans still outstanding.

With Gov. James Blanchard running well in front of his Republican opponent, William Lucus, Ostling was asked if a Blanchard landslide would hurt his chances for re-election to the House in November. "I think I'll get the same amount of votes I always have," Ostling predicted.

know how much longer we can count on that."

Schweiger said now that the rain has abated, the lake levels are once again resuming their seasonal decline.

The elevation of Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of September was about 13 inches above what it was one year ago. The September monthly mean level was some 32 inches above the long-term average and 6 inches above the all-time monthly mean high for September set in 1952. The level was 64 inches above the all-time September low set in 1964.

The Corps' six-month forecast of levels for Lakes Michigan-Huron predicts that the lakes will be above the long-term average during the next six months. At the end of October, the Corps said, the lakes will be some 4 inches below what they were at the end of September. They are expected to complete their seasonal decline in February.

At the end of March 1987, the lakes will be 3 inches above the record for that month set in 1986, the Corps predicts.

For mariners, the end of September level was 58 inches (147 cm.) above chart datum. The September level for the two lakes was at 581.62 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec.

Escape from Isolation

Therapy group helps forge new personal bonds

by DOUG TRUAX

Nancy LaCroix has been fighting for life most of her 28 years. Until recently it has been a lonely battle.

Born with severe spina bifida that left her paralyzed and malformed, she has consistently beaten the odds. Doctors did not expect her to live more than 24 hours, let alone 28 years.

Last year in a Courier article, we described how Nancy was up against the biggest challenge of her young life. A pressure sore, the direct result of here paralysis, had reached the point of being inoperable. Seventeen operations of skin flaps and grafts failed to correct the problem.

Nancy, through personal counseling, had decided "to live deliberately." Despite medical advice that if the sore reappeared it could claim her life, she was determined to go about the business of living.

IN PARTICULAR, she had one dream remaining in a life where dreams have been often left unfulfilled, hopes crushed under the limitations of her physical being. She dreamed of being part of a personal growth group that would bring together others like her who had to cope with isolation, disappointment and depression.

Through the help of Pat Gaskin, counselor at the CHIP Counseling Center, Nancy helped set up the group to be called "Coping with Limitations."

"I have always felt there was a reason for my being born the way I was," Nancy said at the time, "that something good would come from this."

It did. The group Nancy and Pat envisioned last November became a reality and its four members have met regularly at the East Jordan Family Health Center.

Now they hope to expand, to move the group to Charlevoix where it will be accessible to more people. "The primary focus is giving people a network they can connect with in which they can make a contribution to others and rely on receiving some concern for themselves," Gaskin says.

FOR NANCY the group in East Jordan has made all the difference. After her 17th and supposedly final operation her sore began to deteriorate again. She became feverish. "I could actually see myself dying," she said.

"I literally could feel that if I gave an inch to that fever it would have taken me right then," she recalled.

She did not expect that anything could be done, but about three months ago she went to Dr. Carpenter at the Burns Clinic. He offered a radical surgery that would remove the entire sinus tract, surgery that would be performed by Dr. Shanahan of Toledo, Ohio.

The sore, she says, had become like an alien being within her body, trying to take possession of her. "Before going in the hospital the last time, I realized that the sore could take my physical body without my permission, but it could only take my spirit if I allowed it.

"I realized there was no way I could lose. Even if I lost my life, the one thing it couldn't possess was the beauty of the things I had experienced. Either way I would win. If it took my physical life the only thing it would win would be the part of me that wasn't worth a plug nickel."

SHE FOUND the support group critical to her decision to go through with the surgery, to give it one more try. "I personally have felt a lot of strong support. That is what has made it easier to go through this experience – having the support of other people."

The surgery was apparently successful, although Nancy says she lives day by day, minute by minute. Her physical and spiritual rehabilitation has been helped greatly by two additional people – Cara Hochhalter, who has been teaching her watercolor painting, and Jane Sooy, who has been working with her on breathing and body imaging.

Their help of these two women has been such a balm and a release that Nancy and Pat hope to incorporate their work into the new group sessions.

"It's a way to get out of yourself, to find things locked inside." Nancy says. "In putting them on paper you kind of have to forget what's here and now. It is literally a way of escaping."

She was also buoyed, as she had been for the last year, by the camaraderie of the group. "We all feel that we are friends, not just people who get together once a week. I forget that it's supposed to be therapeutic.

"We all have one thing in common," Nancy says, we suffer from an isolation in being able to openly discuss our thoughts and feelings. I feel a real okayness in being able to do that now."

She is also pleased about the prospects for a new, expanded group. "I am excited about the new members coming in and about the new dimensions coming from the creativity."

Anyone interested in joining the new group can contact Nancy LaCroix at 536-2168 or the CHIP Counseling Center at 547-6551.

Model examined

Students at the Charlevoix High School drafting class of teacher Jim Mills will be assisting city council with drawings of the proposed rest rooms in the waterfront park on Bridge Street. the students will prepare saverel different options for public display and comment and review by council.

Drafting students Curt McCandless (left) and Scott Kelly examine a three-dimensional model of a project called the "Viking Lodge" which was proposed for the land now occupied by Edgewater Inn and the Lodge. The three-story hotel and cottage resort was proposed about 1940 and this model was prepared by Birmingham architect J. Robert Swenson.

The model, which came with its own leather case, showed up one day on the doorstep of the Charlevoix Historical Society. Lou Orlowski, president of the society, brought it to the drafting class for them to study.

The project was apparently proposed by Mrs. Robert Bridge.

Free food distributed

The Department of Social Services will conduct its monthly free food distribution on Oct. 29 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Commodities distributed will include cheese, rice, milk and flour.

Sites for the food distribution are the VFW Hall in Charlevoix, the civic center in East Jordan and the Holy Cross Church on Beaver Island.

Obituaries

William "Bud" Gebeau

Funeral services for William "Bud" Gebeau, 66, will be held at the Winchester Funeral Home at 1 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. David W. Yingling of the United Mehtodist Church will officiate. Interment will be in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Gebeau died Sunday, Oct. 19, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Born in Charlevoix Dec. 26, 1919, to Harry and Alice (Gordon) Gebeau, he graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1939. On Jan. 7, 1943, he married the former Virginia L. Taylor in Lansing. During World War II he served with the U.S. Army from 1942-1946 having served in the European Theatre. He graduated from Lansing Business University with a degree in accounting and was employed as business manager at the Midland Hospital for the next eight years.

He then became assistant administrator at the Central Michigan Community Hospital in Mt. Pleasant for two years before being named administrator at the Rogers City Hospital in 1957, a position he filled until retiring in June 1982. The following year they returned to Charlevoix to make their home.

Gebeau served on numerous committees, among them Governor Milliken's Statewide Emergency Medical Services Advisory Council. He was a member of the American College of Hospital Administrators and the American College of Nursing Home Administrators. He had also done graduate work in hospital administration at the University of Houston.

An avid golfer, Gebeau enjoyed living near the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course.

He was a member of the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix; member and past master of the Rogers City Lodge No. 493, F. & A.M., held dual membership in both the Rogers City and Charlevoix Lodge No. 228 F. & A.M., member of the Consistory in Bay City, member and past patron of the Rogers City Chapter No. 501, Order of the Eastern Star, member of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild as a volunteer switchboard operator, Charlevoix City Golf Course Men's League, American Association of Retired Persons and president of the Chez Charlevoix Condominium Association.

He is survived by his wife, Virginia; a son-in-law and daughter, Keith and Sheri Miel and two grandchildren, Erik and Christine Miel, all of Edmore.

The family suggests memorials to the Charlevoix Area Hospital, Charlevoix United Methodist Church or the Rogers City Hospital. Envelopes for this purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Grant A. Hastings

Funeral services for Grant A. Hastings, 78, Ellsworth civic leader and dean of area morticians, were held Friday Oct. 17 at the Belltower Reformed Church in rural Ellsworth. The Rev. Merlin K. Delo of the East Jordan United Methodist Church and the Rev. James B. Heneveld of the Belltower Reformed Church officiated. Interment was in Ellsworth Cemetery.

Born in Central Lake Township Sept. 18, 1907, Mr. Hastings graduated from Boyne City High School in 1928 and the Worsham College of Embalming in Chicago in 1931. On May 5, 1939, he married the former Opal Tatlock at Salem, Ind. They made their home in Petoskey where he was associated with the former Henika Funeral Home until 1941 when they moved to Sault Ste. Marie. In 1942 they came to Ellsworth where he established and operated the Hastings Funeral Home until 1976 when he went into semi-retirement.

He was a member of the United Methodist Church in East Jordan and had been active in civic affairs, having served as a member of the Village Council for 17 years including a term as village treasurer; the Banks Township Fire Department for 30 years; Banks Township Chamber of Commerce; Ellsworth P.T.A.; chairman of the Antrim County Red Cross Chapter for many years, life member and past master of the North Star Lodge No. 354, F. & A.M. and worthy patron of the F.J. Lewis-Mark Chapter No. 213, Order of the Eastern Star, for 23 years.

He had been a school bus driver for the Ellsworth School District for 20 years. He also had been a member of the former Banks Township Rifle Club and the Banks Township Sportsman's Club.

Surviving are his wife, Opal; a daughter, Mrs. Thomas (Margaret) Newhouse of Kalamazoo; one son, John W. Hastings of Ellsworth; four grandchildren; a brother, George of Fremont and many nieces and nephews.

The family suggests memorials to the East Joran United Methodist Church, Banks Township Fire and Rescue Department or the organization or charity of one's cholce. Envelopes are available at the Hastings Funeral Home which was in charge of arrangements.

Dorotha Vliet

Funeral services for Dorotha Vliet, 65, were held Wednesday, Oct. 15 at the Govette Funeral Home in Clarkston. The Rev. Lynn Tucker officiated. Interment was in the Lakeview Cemetery at Clarkston.

Mrs. Vliet died Sunday, Oct. 12, at her Hayes Township home.

Born in Michigan April 29, 1921, the former Dorotha Tower was married to Emerson Vliet who had preceded her in death. She was a retired interior decorator. She had lived in southern Michigan until moving to Hayes Township 10 years ago.

She is survived by six children, Kay Vliet of Sulphur Springs, Tex., Georgina Miller of Ortonville, Betty Ellen Smith of Linden, Virginia Radtke and Doloras Vliet of Waterford and Emerson Vliet, Jr., of Clarkston; 23 grandchildren; 10 great-grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Ellen Tanquay of Clarkston and Mrs. Betty Storm of Ortonville and three brothers, Frank Tower of Comins, Mi., Ralph Tower of Ortonville and Floyd Tower of Clarkston.

George R. Majors

Funeral services for a former Charlevoix resident, George R. Majors, 42, of Bellingham, Wash., were held Tuesday, Oct. 14, at Salon Springs, Wis. Interment followed in a Salon Springs Cemetery. A memorial service will be held at Bellingham on Saturday.

Mr. Majors died Thursday, Oct. 9, at his Bellingham home.

Born in Ypsilanti May 11, 1944, to the Rev. George L. and Marie Majors, he came to Charlevoix in 1952 when his father accepted the pastorate of the Community Church of God. He gradutated from Charlevoix High School in 1962 and from Anderson College at Anderson, Ind. in 1966.

Following graduation, he served in Turkey with the Peace Corps for two years and remained there as a teacher for another two years at the invitation of the Turkish Government. He returned to the United States and lived in the midwest and in Fairbanks, Alaska, where his parents had gone in 1969. He then returned to Bellingham, Wash., where he had taught in the elementary grades for several years.

He is survived by his wife, Diane; two children, a son and a daughter; his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. George L. Majors of Fairbanks; a sister, Mrs. David (Marilyn) Buchanan, also of Fairbanks, and a brother, Howard of Connecticut. A sister, Bonnie, preceded him in death.

The address of his parents is: P.O. Box 865, Fairbanks, Alaska, 99707.

Homecoming court picked, school ready for festivities

It's homecoming time at the Charlevoix High School.

Homecoming royalty will be named this week and announced at the time of the coronation at halftime of the homecoming game between the Charlevoix Rayders and the Grayling Vikings.

"The senior class nominated the candidates for king and queen last week," Lori Gleason, president of the senior class, said. They are Darren Batdorff, Terry Bonar, Jim Gibbs, Mike Thompson and Quint Walker, candidates for king to succeed Sean Ferguson.

Candidates for queen to succeed the 1985 queen, Chaya Moore, are Cyndi Boss, Stephanie Martin, Maria Parsons, Jayne Scharenbroch and Jennifer Sell.

The 1986 reigning king and queen will be elected this week by the student body of the high school and will be crowned during the halftime festivities when the Charlevoix High School Marching Band directed by Terry Isenbarger, assisted by Drum Major Wendy Voisin, and the flag corps pay tribute to the reigning royalty.

Queen Chaya and King Sean will return from their studies elsewhere to officiate at the coronation said Val Barnes, president of the Student Council which is in charge of homecoming events.

Karl Erber will serve as master of ceremonies for the halftime program.

The homecoming dance will be held at the Charlevoix Middle School gymnasium with music for dancing by Karl Erber as disc jocky.

Meanwhile, classes are busy decorating their floats for the homecoming parade scheduled to get underway at 6:30 p.m. Friday from the middle school on Grant Street. The parade route will take the parade via Mason Street, State Street and Garfield Avenue to Kipke Field. At halftime, the floats will be paraded around the football field followed by the reigning king and queen and the 1986 royal courts prior to the coronation in front of the Rayder stands. All participants are to be at the Middle School at 6:15 p.m.

Ghost Ship returns for Halloween

The Ghost Ship, better known as the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite, has returned to Charlevoix and the crew, in command of Lt. Cmdr. Thomas F. Conlan, is readying the ship for the annual Ghost Ship Festivities scheduled for Friday, Oct. 31.

On that date, the crew and the members of the Coast Guard Wives Club will become ghosts and goblins, witches and werewolves as they host the children of the Charlevoix area at the Halloween party aboard the ship which, for one night in the year, becomes a Ghost Ship.

There'll be skits and refreshments and fun galore made possible through contributions from local merchants. Anyone wishing to assist in this special event may call the Mestquite for more information.

The Mesquite will be open from 6 until 8 p.m. The crew and wives of the Mesquite dare and invite everyone to "enjoy" the thrills and chills offered by this once a year transformation.

Court rebuffs city's challenge to boat pilings

Candidates for the three city council seats up for election are all running unopposed Nov. 4.

In the First Ward William Haggard is running for the seat currently occupied by Raymond Wood who is retiring from council. It is Haggard's first political race.

William Bellows is seeking re-election to his Second Ward council seat. He was appointed to fill the seat in 1984 and was later elected to it.

Shirley Roloff, who has been on city council for eight years, is seeking re-election in the Third Ward.

A legal battle between the City of Charlevoix and the Lundy-Heck Co., developers of the Northwest Marine condo-marina, has been decided with mixed results in a recent ruling handed down by Judge Richard M. Pajtas in Charlevoix County Circuit Court.

The city lost in its efforts to get Lundy-Heck Co. to remove two clusters of wood pilings it said were in the city's riparian right-of-way.

The city gained a minor victory, however, in the court's affirming its riparian rights to the property at the end of Eaton Street.

In November 1985 the city filed suit against Dennis Heck, Brad Lundy and their firm Lundy-Heck Co. and others, alleging that wood pilings placed in Lake Charlevoix at the end of Eaton Street violated the city and public's riparian rights, or rights to the water.

Atlantic salmon planted

Lake Charlevoix got 24,000 landlocked Atlantic salmon fingerlings Friday as part of a gift from the State of Maine to Michigan.

The fingerlings, which were transported in special fish planting trucks, made a 31-hour cross country trip from two hatcheries in Maine. One truckload of fish was planted in Lake Charlevoix at Advance. Another truck with 14,700 fingerlings was planted in Torch Lake.

DNR fisheries biologists say the Atlantic Salmon fingerlings, 6 to 7 inches long, will grow into fish up to three pounds and provide and supplement the open water fishery.

This planting of 38,700 fingerlings follows an earlier gift of 46,000 surplus Atlantic salmon fingerlings from New York State on Oct. 4. The New York salmon were stocked in Higgins Lake (Roscommon County)

Political veterans vie for mayor

by DOUG TRUAX

City voters will have a choice between two veterans of local politics when they go to the polls to elect a new mayor Tuesday, Nov. 4.

Seeking to replace incumbent mayor Hal Hill, who chose not to run for re-election, are Ralph A. McRae and Samuel C. Supernaw.

McRae, the top vote getter in the Aug. 5 primary with 39.7 percent, served on city council from 1974-76. He is also past president of the city Housing Commission.

Supernaw was a member of council from 1971-74 and mayor from 1978-81.

MCRAE, a retired building contractor and former owner of a building supply company in Pellston, will not reveal his age, saying only that he is "over 49." He has lived in Charlevoix since 1946 and was instrumental in forming the Housing Commission and establishing a charter commission which presented a new city charter to voters in 1978.

He has recently been active in planning a nursing home for Charlevoix.

McRae is a Pellston High School graduate who also attended Albion College. He was married to the late Dorothy McRae, an elementary school teacher, for 35 years.

SUPERNAW, 44, is a native of Charlevoix and runs his own accounting and tax business. He was formerly an accountant with Hill, Woodcock & Distel of Petoskey and Price, Waterhouse & Co. of Detroit and San Francisco.

Supernaw has two children and his wife, Mary Lou, is a nurse at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. He is a 1961 graduate of Charlevoix High School and received a BA degree from Michigan State University in 1966.

THE CANDIDATES agree on one thing – the most important issue facing the City of Charlevoix. They both say it is the new industrial park and the creation of year-round jobs for the city.

McRae is critical of the promotion the park has received. "We have over one-half million dollars invested in the industrial park and we need some returns on that," he says.

Ralph McRae

He advocates hiring someone, perhaps on a commission basis, to go out and sell the park. McRae also mentions forming a regular commission to work on the promotion of the park.

Supernaw also cites the park as his number one priority. He is less critical of the job done so far in promoting the park. "I would like to continue the efforts of the present administration," he says. "They have done a tremendous job."

Supernaw says the city can begin to promote the park more thoroughly now that sewer and water have been completed to the area.

MCRAE HAS DRAWN the most attention in the campaign, including notice in the downstate media, with his proposal for a moratorium on the construction of condominiums on the Charlevoix lakefront (Round Lake) and in the downtown area.

"I'm not against condos, by any means," McRae says, adding that he would like to see more moderately priced condominiums in the city's north and southside neighborhoods designed for local residents not downstate summer resorters.

McRae also credits the condos with contributing some 32 percent of the city tax revenue. He commissioned a survey on Charlevoix condominiums last summer and reported that the city had 503 condominiums built, proposed or under construction.

McRae said his survey sparked a great deal of anti-condo sentiment among voters.

Supernaw says a condo moratorium is a non-issue in Charlevoix. There is not much land available for condos, he says, and no one is applying to build them at this time.

He believes council will have to decide each proposed new development as it is proposed. "I would not call for a moratorium," he concludes. "Let council take a position if it arises."

His campaign brochures state "Let's design our growth, not stop it!"

THE LAND ASSOCIATIONS, the Belvedere and Chicago clubs, are not paying their fair share, McRae charges. "The Belvedere Club is still assessed at $300,000 less than LaCroft, which to me is ridiculous," he says.

He also contends that the 18 units at the Harbour Club condominiums are assessed for more than the entire Chicago Club. "When some people pay less, some people have to pay more," he adds.

The imbalance can only be addressed by public opinion, McRae says. He also charges that the land associations "discriminate against the majority."

SUPERNAW COUNTERS that "council is now working on getting those assessments where they should be." Any imbalance, he says, is likely to be corrected by the current administration in the near future. One of the chief reasons the land associations have been assessed less, Supernaw adds, is that their shorelines have been zoned scenic reserve rather than residential.

"It is an issue I don't think is relevant to the campaign," Supernaw says. "I don't think the mayor can say 'I'm going to raise your taxes.'"

NEITHER CANDIDATE wanted to commit himself to a specific location for new public rest rooms, a subject which has received a great deal of attention in council meetings of late.

"We need another rest room," McRae says, noting that he would poll at least 50 people in each ward before advocating a site. "That's a question on which I'd have to go with the people," he says.

Supernaw opposes construction in the park area north of Burnsides store. "I'm not really for building anything in the park that would hinder the view from the park," he says.

Samual Supernaw

"I agree that they need some rest rooms at that end of town," Supernaw adds. He believes the city should investigate the old wastewater treatment site on Round Lake as a possibility.

AMONG MCRAE'S other campaign proposals is the creation of a mayor's advisory committee. Such a committee would be composed of two citizens from each ward, McRae says, and would meet regularly with the mayor.

He would also like to create a day care center in Charlevoix for working couples and single parents. "We need an affordable, safe, convenient and healthy day care center," he says.

SUPERNAW SAYS the public must decide if services are adequate and or if they want to eliminate some services to lower taxes.

He believes the city should return to a regular program of street repair and maintenance. Dixon Avenue, in particular, he notes, is in need of immediate attention.

County swamped with flood insurance requests

by PEG OHLE

High lake levels and a long rainy spell have combined to make many property owners worry about flooding.

According to the Charlevoix County Planning Department, they are receiving daily inquiries about flood insurance and how to obtain it. Such insurance apparently is not "pushed" by insurance brokers, and some property owners do not even know it is available.

There is a National Flood Insurance Program, administered by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, which permits people living in "participating communities" to buy federally subsidized flood insurance. Participating communities are those which have adopted flood hazard regulations designed to prevent future losses.

Generally, the easiest way to qualify for a participating community designation is for local cities and townships to sign an Intergovernmental Agreement with Charlevoix County, which enforces the State Construction Code throughout the county. (The Construction Code requires that buildings be constructed in a manner to best minimize interior flooding).

The Intergovernmental Agreement is a simple statement by representatives of both county and local government to the effect they understand that to maintain eligibility in the National Flood In-

Charlevoix Yesterday

Two weeks ago, we ren e picture of the headquarters building of the old Charlevoix Lumber Company, taken in the early part of the century. The building appears egein in the center of the above picture, surrounded by sawmills, kilns, logs, and lumber in various steges of treatment. One or two houses on the south side of Dixon Avenue ere barely visible in the picture, just enough to tie the pest with the present. (Picture from collection of P. R. Ross, courtesy fo Mrs. Devid Cole).

About the picture of the shoreline of Round Lake we ren last week, an anonymous celler told us that whet we thought was e houseboet enchored in the herbor wes instead e Corps of Engineers berge on which the work crew lived while working on shoreline improvements.

The Courier hes e request from the new owners of the Weathervane Inn to try end find some old exterior end interior shots of the Inn. Anyone heving such shots should teke them to the Weathervene Inn.

Some Benefits of Age

If you want more house for your dollar, you have good cause to look over older houses. But there are other good reasons for shopping the old ones too.

For one thing, there are simply more old houses than new ones. For every new house that will go up this year there are some 45 existing homes already on the market.

Many older homes, especially those built before World War II, offer more abundant space than new homes do — a special attraction if you have a large and growing family, but a limited budget.

Most old homes are in well-established, well-developed neighborhoods. There will be no waiting for streets to be paved, sewers to be connected or schools to be built. All that is going to grace the neighborhood is probably already there, so that worrying about the future will have been done for you already.

Weathervane hopes to recapture elegant past

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

The Weathervane Restaurant is back and not just in name.

Planked whitefish surrounded with duchess potatoes, a Weathervane tradition for decades is one centerpiece of an eclectic and interesting menu. Linen and candle light, shipwreck furniture and historic photos have purposefully evoked the old Weathervane ambience.

In 1954 the flamboyant Charlevoix developer Earl Young cut the top two floors off the original four story grist mill on the Pine River channel. First named Charlevoix Roller Mill then Argo Milling Co., the original building, built in the late 1800s included a dock for grain carrying schooners.

Young used the same style of stone work in redesigning the Weathervane that he employed in the development of Boulder Park. The enormous glacial boulder hearth fireplace, Young's large 1904 translit photo of schooners in the harbor, the massive bar top and original mill and shipwreck furniture have always been part of the Weathervane.

New owners Jon Hisey and Bill Martin are searching for leads on more of the original shipwreck furniture, which was dispersed around the state when the restaurant went through financial problems and eventually closed. Hisey and Martin are also seeking old Charlevoix nautical photographs for the walls.

The two men purchased the Weathervane this June, motivated, according to Hisey, by the need for a good restaurant near Hisey's Edgewater Inn. For the past several years Ricciardi's of Eastport and Traverse City had operated the restaurant under the name Ricciardi's of Charlevoix.

"It made sense to go back to the Weathervane," Hisey explained.

Hisey moved to Charlevoix two years ago as a businessman-developer from Canton, Michigan. His first Charlevoix project was the six-unit condominium Lake House overlooking Lake Michigan. Later he took over the Harbour Club condominiums on Round Lake and then he began the Edgewater Inn on Round Lake.

Martin, who is in the box making business in Flushing, opened Elizebeth's, a gift shop, in Charlevoix two summers ago. Martin bought Hisey's first unit in the Harbour Club.

The Weathervane's first night in its latest incarnation was not intended to be an event, according to Hisey. "We wanted to start low-key and to sure of our act."

By 8 p.m. there was not an empty table.

Head Chef Mark Neill was ecstatic Monday reflecting on the weekend. "This is going to be good. It has been going so well. We had e great weekend."

Neill, a Petoskey native, came to the Weathervane by way of Birchwood Farms Country Club, California Cafe Bar and Grill in San Francisco, Spenger's Fish Grotto in Berkeley, California, Ricciardi's and Stafford's Bay View Inn. His cullnary education began at Petoskey High School's Commercial Foods Department and includes the California Culinary Academy in San Francisco.

"We're trying to do a lot of innovative things," the 25-year-old chef says. "We have different elements in our menu. There is an element of nouvelle cuisine in our mandarin style vegetables and shoe string potatoes. There's a lot of international influence. We took our menu ideas from many sources, chosing dishes we felt were interesting."

The fish side of the menu includes: blackened whitefish, Cajun style; almond shrimp; fresh lake perch, walleye en papillote; as well as the planked whitefish and lobster.

Other entrees include pasta primavera; seafood fettucini; veal marsala; chicken Monterrey, with fresh vegetables and hollandaise sauce, stuffed pork chop; cashew chicken; and steaks.

"We will feature one or two off-menu specials nightly. The waitresses will bring a tray of dessert specials to your table," Neill said.

The food and service was worthy of the tradition Friday night. Neill works with fresh herbs. Subtle escargot were served with slivers of slightly toasted bread. A rich and fresh mushroom soup and an equally interesting whitefish chowder were served.

There was a subtle Oriental influence to the almond shrimp, rolled in crushed almonds, as well as the cashew chicken, with crisp cashews and Mandarin-style vegetables. The Chicken Monterrey smothered with hollandaise and vegetables is very rich. Both the planked whitefish and a Cajun-style blackened whitefish are prepared and presented with style.

Neill said he has worked training his staff of 15 for six weeks. It paid off. Courses came promptly but without rushing; the wait staff was on hand but not intrusive; water glasses were quickly refilled.

Prices range broadly, with light entrees beginning under $5 and rising to $22 per entree. The lunch menu, with a focus on salads, sandwiches and light entrees, is all under $6.

Out-of-town candidates stump in Charlevoix

by PEG OHLE

Not many candidates for statewide offices find their way to Charlevoix or to the office of the Charlevoix Courier.

However, several weeks ago, Elizabeth Hardy, Republican candidate for the Wayne State University Board of Governors, stopped by to introduce herself and ask our support in her candidacy.

While the Courier does not endorse candidates, it was good to meet this refreshing young lady, who is a lawyer with one of Detroit's large law firms and who now wants to serve her alma mater. She grew up in Traverse City and began her political career as a 10-year-old (Bob) "Griffin Girl".

Bob Anderson, a tax attorney from Marquette who is Democratic candidate for Congress from the 11th District, visited the Courier twice during his campaign. He is articulate, hard-hitting, and has developed a platform based on a five-point plan "to improve the economy of northern Michigan".

Ralph Ostling, Republican from Roscommon, who has represented the 103rd District in Lansing for seven terms dropped by one day for an interview. The Courier then invited his opponent, Ellen Addington, Democratic candidate from East Jordan, to tell us what her platform is. Both interviews were run last week.

The Courier has also covered in detail the contest between incumbent I. Lee Moerland and Bud Heeres for the City of Charlevoix seat on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners as well as the contest between incumbent Don Smith and Lee Arnold for the adjoining townships seat on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

This week, the Courier ends its political campaign coverage with interviews with Ralph McRae and Sam Supernaw, candidates for mayor of Charlevoix.

Mesquite ready for buoy season

by FRAN MARTIN

The U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite, skippered by Lt. Cmdr. Thomas F. Conlon, returned to its homeport recently after an absence of 50 days at a Wisconsin shipyard where it underwent major improvements and repairs in preparation of the annual fall aids to navigation season scheduled to begin early in November.

Again this season, the Mesquite will be working aids to navigation in the southern and western sections of Lake Michigan in addition to its own northern area. The additional areas will bring the ship's total number of aids to more than 250, Conlon said. The ship has assumed the responsibilities of the USCGC Acacia, stationed at Grand Haven, which is scheduled to have new engines installed during the winter months after being out of commission for more than a year.

While in drydock at the Bay Shipbuilding Corp., at Sturgeon Bay, Wisc., the Mesquite had its original shaft replaced with a new thrust bearing and shortened shaft; its manual boat lowering system on the port side replaced with a hydraulic single-arm davit; blasting and repainting of the hull and improvements such as the re-tiling of the decks in living areas, Conlon said.

The ship was drydocked at Sturgeon Bay from Aug. 24. It spent two weeks prior to that at Sault Ste. Marie's Twin Cities Marine where difficulties were experienced in attempting to place the ship in drydock. At that point, the decision was made to take the ship to Sturgeon Bay.

The extended work hours and separation from families were broken up with numerous moral boosting activities with the Sturgeon Bay area crew members at the local YMCA, Conlan said.

Building A Better Future

Dear Friends,

Serving you in the Senate is a privilege and challenge that I greatly enjoy. During the past eight years, we have made much progress, but much more needs to be done.

Cindy, Mitch and Jeff

We must work together to keep and create more new jobs. We must work to conserve our natural resources. We must work to reduce our reliance on property taxes for school finance and increase state funding to improve our schools. We must work to ensure quality and affordable health care for all of our people. And we must be sure Northern Michigan stays as special as it is today.

I appreciate your past support and I thank you for your confidence. I ask for your vote on November 4 so we can continue our work together to build a better future.

Sincerely,
Mitch

Letters to the editor:

Fasters register opposition to Contra aid

Dear Editor:
Their's not to make reply
Their's not to reason why
Their's but to do and die....

As young men go off to war, the bands play, the flags wave, the crowds cheer. But, once in uniform, they are expected to close their minds, keep their mouths shut and do as they are told as in Tennyson's poem. If they are exceptionally brave on the battlefield, they are awarded medals and if they die in action they are given a hero's burial.

But if they survive the war and begin "to reason why", they are looked upon askance and if they begin "to make reply," they are told that the Government knows best. However, if they go on a hunger strike because they see the same drift toward war all over again, they are kooky, they are suicidal, their countrymen seem not to care.

So it has been with the four veterans who are on "A Fast For Life" in Washington, D.C. - two of them since Sept 1. and two since Sept. 15. All serve in the military with distinction: one of them, a chaplan, received the Congressional Medal of Honor, another the Purple Cross.

It was the passage of the Contra Aid Bill which was the catalyst - they see it as another Gulf of Tonkin Resolution which, as we now know, was based on a lie, something which they believe is also true of the hundred million dollar appropraition for aid to the so-called "freedom fighters."

They say that just as our Government is lying about the non-involvement of the CIA in ferrying weapons to the Contras (as currently forbidden by our own law as well as International Law) it has been lying about the make-up of the Contra forces and their manner of fighting which is not to engage the Sandinista Army but to make sneak and run attacks on the Nicaraguan civilians, children and women and old men.

As the veterans grow weaker on the steps of the Capitol Building, there are those who say their fast is ghoulish and the media have all but ignored them. But the men think of it as a prayer and a plea to stop the killing by proxy. They are trying to get their message to the American people who have already registered strong opposition to sending our own sons to Central America - now we must also oppose the sending of weapons to the Contras.

The hour is late but if we act now, if we write letters to President Ronald Reagan, The White House, Washington, DC 20500, insisting that the shipment of weapons be stopped, there may still be time to save the lives of those four courageous veterans. And do it now before there is a death because of what is being done in our name.

New zoning approaches offered

Dear Editor:

Some thoughts on rezoning - maybe they might not be legal, but it could be looked into.

To start, appoint all members for three years. No members could be an elected official to any branch of government.

Only allow rezoning once every three years. At the end of 2½ years all rezoning applications would have to come before the commission. After they had acted on them, the commission and township board would vote on the board's recommendations. Approval for a change would need a two-thirds vote. This could be accomplished in three months easily. The first week after this meeting, publish the changes in the local paper. This would give everyone a change to oppose the changes, or as a last resort put it to a vote by the people in the effected township.

If the rezoning was turned down it would be three years before it could be changed for that area, no matter what changes were made in the plans. This would allow everyone to know where they stand before too many big plans are made.

This might sound anti-development, but then again it might put some continuity in the system.

The times might be too long but it could be someplace to start.

Maybe a combined commission for all or Lake Charlevoix could cover all new or present building, within say four miles of the waters edge. But all present towns or communities to be excluded.

Or maybe there should be a ¼ mile buffer zone on each township boundaries that couldn't be rezoned to adversely effect the zoning of the next area.

Elections are not to pursue personal vendettas

Dear Editor:

The purpose of elections in a free society is to allow people to vote for candidates who represent their views on issues of mutual concern. Elections are not intended to be used to pursue personal vendettas against individual candidates. Unfortunately, the County Commissioner race in the City of Charlevoix has become just that: an expression of Mr. Heeres' personal dislike of Lee Moerland.

I find it very interesting that the letters to the editor opposing Lee, both now and for the August primary, have been written by Mr. Heeres or members of the Potter "clan" directly related to Mr. Heeres.

It is also worth noting that one of Mr. Heeres' sisters-in-law is Charlevoix County's elected treasurer and one brother-in-law is Charlevoix City assessor, while two other brothers-in-law and a sister-in-law are retired employees and-or elected officials of Charlevoix County. There is certainly as much, if not more, potential for conflict of interest in Mr. Heeres' family connections as in Lee Moerland's employment with a summer home association!

Lee Moerland has served as County Commissioner for the City of Charlevoix for more than 20 years. During that time, he has worked hard to represent Charlevoix fairly and honestly. I am proud to know him and to have this opportunity to express my appreciation for his efforts in behalf of the residents of the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix County as a whole.

Tax abatement causes suckers to pick up slack

Dear Editor:

Forty some years ago I sat on the Board of Review for the City of Charlevoix. We tried to assess everyone fairly; with one exception.

We had a handful of old, poor people who did not qualify for social security. We put a value of $100 on these homes to keep these people from losing their homes for property taxes. We would put a "P" behind these names denoting "poor". Although this was not kosher, so to speak, it worked pretty well keeping these people in their homes.

Today, we still have the "P's" and the "P's" being outfits like Medusa, Consumers Power Company, etc., and also the Chicago Club and the Belvedere Club with their million dollar beaches and boathouses. Only now, it is called tax abatement and the rest of us suckers pick up the slack.

Thank you and have a nice day.

Moerland has brought county regional influence

Dear Editor:

I have worked closely for a number of years with one of Charlevoix County's candidates for County Commission: Mr. I. Lee Moerland. Lee is one of the most dedicated public servants I have ever known. Being from a neighboring county, I want to make sure your voters are aware of the numerous and outstanding contributions Lee Moerland has made on a regional scale during his many years as a Charlevoix County Commissioner.

For the past 12 years, Lee has been well-recognized as the leader in regional government for the 10-county area of Northwest Michigan. Over the past several years, while federal government spending has been drastically reduced, Lee Moerland has led our region in managing local resources so that the most essential and effective services have been retained and even improved.

As Charlevoix County's representative on the regional level, he has brought your county into a position of true influence and leadership. Lee is a fair-minded person who is able to see many sides of each issue before making the decisions which he thinks are in the best interests of his county and the region. He combines sound financial management with a sincere concern for people and the quality of their lives.

Lee devotes a vast number of hours to his work in local government. He has the experience it takes to see beyond the sometimes immediate conflicts and problems to take into consideration the long-range effects of present decisions.

Our local counties need more people like Lee who combine strong management and leadership skills with a humanitarian spirit.

I strongly encourage the people of Charlevoix County to return Mr. I. Lee Moerland to a position on your County Board.

Vindictive and vicious letters from Heeres supporters

Dear Editor:

I am a reader from afar and I am appalled that you would print letters to the editor that are election issues - anything to sell papers!

I have never read such vindictive and vicious letters and ads as you have printed from Heeres supporters.

What is their personal gain in all this?

Campaign posters Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

How much can you tell about a political candidate from his campaign posters?

Probably not much, but it is fun to see the sometimes colorful placards blossoming on lawns about town.

For some reason, Charlevoix's two candidates for a vacancy on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners — Bud Heeres and Lee Moerland — have chosen "generic," no-nonsense posters — with black lettering on a white background.

They are not particularly attractive, and they could bespeak of a new austerity in county spending regardless of who is elected.

Charlevoix mayoral candidate Sam Supernaw has taken advantage of the similarity between his name and "Superman" of comic book fame. Sam has had "Supernaw" emblazoned across his posters — Superman-style.

The same logo appears on T-shirts and have become the most noticeable indication that Supernaw is, indeed, a candidate.

The city's other mayoral candidate, Ralph McRae who ran away with the August primary, has adopted green as his campaign color. McRae's posters feature white lettering on a green background. When they stand side-by-side on a lawn with Ellen Addington's white-on-red posters, the total effect is rather Christmasy.

Ellen also wears an attractive red blazer during her campaign appearances, a good way for a political newcomer to stand out in a crowd.

A week from now, Campaign '86 will be history. But it has been fun while it lasted.

A FEW WEEKS ago I mentioned the "Charlevoix Work Ethic" and what an important role our energetic young people play in a tourist-based economy. Stop at any motel or restaurant and you'll find school-age kids cleaning rooms, making beds, serving food and washing dishes.

Last Tuesday, we joined Village Inn Pizza's 10th anniversary celebration and I was struck by the hustle and industry displayed by the young folks who kept the buffet line stocked and the tables cleared.

One of the busboys was seventh grader David Hunter, son of Kathy Hunter. David seemed to be a thousand places at once as he scurried between the kitchen and the dining room.

When the long evening was over, David hurried home and went right to bed, Kathy reports.

"Oh, mama," he sighed as he burrowed under the covers. "My feet are so sore!"

Kathy could only smile.

"David," she said, "welcome to the real world."

IS VILLAGE INN PIZZA really 10 years old? It can't be.

It seems like only yesterday that the Bridge Street location was where customers of the First State Bank made their deposits and took out their loans.

And VIP wasn't the first tenant after the bank left. As I recall, the building was occupied by a French restaurant and a gift shop before VIP took over.

Don't miss the Haunted House aboard the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite, Friday, Oct. 31 at 6 p.m.

The Charlevoix Hospital Gift Shop will host a two-day Christmas Bazaar on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 7 and 8.

Plans are now materializing for the Charlevoix Community Christmas Celebration Saturday, Dec. 6. Many community groups will help to stage this day-long celebration. The Merchant Association is trying to establish this as a new tradition for Charlevoix. Promotional brochures will soon be distributed.

As we all enjoy the Indian summer days of late fall, It is easy to look back on the recent hectic summer. While local business reported a "busier than ever" atmosphere, most hotel-motel owners were up just slightly over last year and many local gift stores felt that there were more lookers than buyers.

It has been generally reported that due to the increased length of season for the Star of Charlevoix and due to increased popularity of the Apple Festival and Lake Charlevoix Trout Tournament, "shoulder season" activity is making an economic impact in our area.

Winter in Charlevoix is perhaps one of our best kept secrets. The Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau and the Chamber continue to explore more winter activities: dog sled races, snowmobile trail development, ski tours, etc. We welcome your ideas and comments at the Chamber with regard to increasing the business climate in Charlevoix during the winter months.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. David Stebe

Baldwin - Stebe

Laura Ann Baldwin and David Scott Stebe exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, October 11, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix.

The Reverend Casey Zawacki performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar decorated with arrangements of Sonia roses, pink gladioli, white carnations, and fresh greenery.

Approximately 200 guests watched as the bride was escorted down the aisle on the arm of her father. She wore a Schiffli organza gown with a beaded silk Venise lace and seed pearl overlay. The gown featured a Basque waist, leg-o-mutton sleeves, and a chapel-length train. The veil of illusion was attached to a pearled halo with sprays of pearls and silk flowers. The bride carried a bouquet of white sweetheart roses, miniature white carnations, and baby's breath.

Beth Shields and Catherin Mohan, sisters of the bride, served her as matrons of honor. Victoria Renaud and Karen L. Taylor were bridesmaids. They wore identical tea-length gowns of jade silk taffeta with jewel necklines and bubble hems. Each one wore matching lace hand mitts and carried cascading bouquet of Sonia roses and miniature white carnations with greenery. Kathleen Shields, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a white lace dress accented with jade ribbon and carried a basket of Sonia roses and white carnations.

Barb DeVries assisted in the ceremony as a reader, and Dorothy Saunders served as the bride's personal attendant.

William C. Brodin served as best man, and Gary Stebe and Robert Stebe, brothers of the bridegroom, and George Baldwin, Jr., brother of the bride, were groomsmen.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Sally Saunders, organist, and Tom Pluister, vocalist.

The bride's parents hosted a reception at the Weathervane Inn following the wedding ceremony, and the bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at their home.

The newlyweds traveled to Petaluma, California, where they will live until moving to Exmouth, Australia in January. The bridegroom is an electronics technician serving in the United States Navy, attached to Mare Island, California. (Photo by Aartvark Studio)

Martin - Saigeon

Maria Martin and George Saigeon exchanged wedding vows in a private ceremony on Saturday, October 18.

The bride is the daughter of Norbert and Shirley Martin of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Lois Harris of Grand Rapids. The double-ring ceremony was performed by Probate Judge (by assignment) David Fershee.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, carried a bouquet of white spider chrysanthemums, pink roses, and white carnations with baby's breath.

Teri Lyn Wojan served the bride as maid of honor. She wore a corsage of white carnations and pink roses with baby's breath. Tracy Kroft served the bridegroom as best man.

Following the marriage ceremony, a reception was held at the American Legion Hall, with Jillane Giesin and Sherry Lynn Berry assisting.

The bride is employed by Glen's Market in Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is employed by Steel Case in Grand Rapids.

Church of God sponsors salad luncheon, bazaar

The Women of the Church of God will sponsor their annual hot casserole and salad luncheon and Christmas bazaar at Friendship Hall of the church at 202 W. Hurlbut, on Thursday, Nov. 6, Marian Hand, general chairperson, has announced.

Serving will begin at 11 a.m. and continue until 1:30 p.m. Featured will be a wide selection of home-prepared casseroles, tasty salads, rolls, dessert and choice of beverages. The price will be $3.50 for adults; $3 for senior citizens and children under five years free.

The Christmas bazaar will offer handcrafted and other items suitable for gift giving. The bazaar will continue through the afternoon.

Chairing the various committees will be Linda Hamilton, dining room; Agnes Warner and Helen Cunningham, foods; Peg Wells, kitchen; Sally Whitley, beverages; Shirley Lusk, decorations and tables and Jane Sarasin, bazaar.

The event is open to the public.

Art classes begin at public library

A six-week series of classes in visual art begins Monday, Nov. 3, at the Charlevoix Public Library. Enrollment in the classes is open to the public and the program is sponsored by the Community School of the Arts, Crooked Tree Arts Council.

Art for Children in grades 1 through 4 will be offered by Instructor Eileen Heck on Monday afternoons from 4 to 5 p.m. Teacher Barb Steele will offer watercolor for students in grades 5 through 8 on Thursday afternoons, from 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. Students are required to provide some of their own supplies. Cost of the children's art class is $23 for six weeks, and cost of the watercolor class is $35.

Area artist Janis Glass will offer a four-week class in watercolor, with exploration of color theory and composition. Some knowledge of watercolor use is necessary for enrolling students. Glass' class will be held Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. beginning Nov. 6 at the library.

Crooked Tree Arts Council offers classes at the Virginia McCune Arts Center in Petoskey on a year-round basis. The Charlevoix classes are held on a trial basis to see if there is enough interest for a year-round program here, according to Director Sean Ley.

Students wishing to register for any of the classes should call the Arts Center at 347-4337 Mondays through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Fall session begins at McCune Arts Center

A series of six-week classes and lessons in music, art, dance and creative writing begins Monday, Nov. 3 at the Virginia McCune Arts Center in Petoskey. The Arts Center is also sponsoring classes in Charlevoix and East Jordan during the Fall 11 session.

New this session is a class offered by writer Deborah Heath in Creative Writing, focusing on John Gardiner's "The Art of Fiction." The class will include in-depth discussions about the nature of fiction as an art form, as well as the many facets of creating Gardiner's ideal of the highest form of fiction. Heath's class will be held on Wednesday evenings, 7-9 p.m. at the Arts Center.

Visual art classes will include a continuation of Pottery for all ages by potter Suzanne Hoppe, offered on Wednesdays; Children's Art at the Arts Center with Eileen Heck, on Tuesdays and Thursdays; and classes in Watercolor and Painting offered by returning faculty member and artist Stephen Kendall.

A limited number of scholarships to the Community School's classes are available to qualified students up to 12th grade. Applications for scholarships must be submitted by 5 p.m. Friday Oct. 31.

For information and to register for any of the Arts Center's classes, or for specific schedule times, please call the Arts Center at 347-4337, Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. A tuition fee based on the length of a class applies to all classes. Students must supply materials for some classes.

Rayders down Vikings

The Charlevoix Rayders pounced on a blocked punt in the end zone for a second quarter touchdown and went on to take a slim 7-0 homecoming victory over Grayling Friday night.

The Rayders won their second straight game in a hard-fought defensive struggle.

The victory also allowed Charlevoix to go into the season-home finale Friday, Oct. 31, with a trophy at stake. If the Rayders (4-4 overall) can defeat the St. Ignace Saints they will end up in a first place tie for Class C division honors in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference. The Saints are currently 4-0 and Charlevoix 3-1.

Friday's biggest play came after Charlevoix missed a field goal attempt. Grayling then could not move the ball. On fourth down at the Grayling 15, Marv Witthoeft blocked a punt attempt with Quintin Walker falling on the ball in the end zone. One play earlier a successful Grayling punt was nullified by a penalty. Terry Bonar added the conversion kick.

Other than that score the game was a defensive battle marred by 22 penalties worth 105 yards. Late in the game Grayling reached the Charlevoix 20 but that turned out to be the Vikings' only major threat of the night.

"The defense did a pretty good job," Rayders' coach Roger Gowell said. "Offensively we had problems and made too many mental mistakes."

Grayling had just 69 yards rushing and trailed the air route 27 times, connecting on nine passes.

"Our defensive secondary did very well," Gowell said.

Charlevoix had 168 total yards with 145 on the ground as Mike Thompson carried 17 times for 74 yards and Mark LaBlance 11 for 44.

Defensively, LaBlance and Dave Miller had pass interceptions and Kent Seymour and Derek Dutcher recovered fumbles. Darrin Batdorff had 10 tackles and Seymour and Walker nine each, with Chad Thorp, Scott DeYoung and LaBlance adding six each.

Harriers take regional title

by FRAN MARTIN

They've done it again...the Charlevoix Rayder cross country team regained the Class C regional title at Ludington Saturday for the first time since 1983 and are on their way to the Class C state finals at Cass City Saturday.

The Rayders, running without Doug Bergmann who is out with a knee injury and with Sean Henne limping badly, took the meet with 53 points edging the defending regional champs, Benzie Central which had 63. Muskegon Oakridge was third with 120 points. East Jordan placed 19th among the 19 team entered.

"I like our chances at state," coach Pete Sieles said. "I think Doug will be ready to run again by then. Sean, however, is questionable. I will have to make my decisions about them later in the week," he commented.

Sieles was happy about winning the title Saturday. "Pat (Rajewski) ran his best race ever to come in second; Joe (Simpson), back for the first time in two weeks, ran an exceptional race; Scott Miller and Kevin McLenon ran their usual good races. They were consistent. Gehry Wiesner came in and did a good job filling in for Sean Henne. Tom Marta did not run as well as he usually does. It was great though we did it under a handicap," he added.

Adam Norman of Kalkaska posted the best time at 15:51.

Rajewski came in second in 16:06; Simpson 9th in 16:41; Miller 13th in 16:50; McLenon 14th in 15:53 and Wiesner 15th in 16:59 to account for the team's points.

Marta finished 26th in 17:29 and Henne in 41st in 17:52.

The Charlevoix Rayder girls cross country team finished fourth in the Class C regional with 96 points.

Calvin Christian of Grand Rapids took the meet with 56 points. Mason County Central came in second with 86 points and Benzie Central in third place with 88 points.

Deanne Spitler of Montague set the pace with a time of 19:01.

Two runners qualified for participation in the state meet at Cass City Saturday. They are Michelle North who finished ninth place in 21:03 and Betsy Haggard who took 16th in 21:35.

Out of the money was Heldi Olinger in 20th place with a time of 21:39; Stephanie Agnew, 27th in 22:19 and Barb Haggard, 29th in 22:38.

Maria Parsons finished in 37th place in 23:27 and Shelly Ferguson in 38th place in 23:28.

Coach Spieles said the girls race was disappointing. "They didn't have their best race. Michelle (North) and Heidi (Olinger) ran well. Betsy (Haggard) was running with a sore muscle. The other two got off to slow starts and never caught up," he said.

The Charlevoix boys cross country team took class C regional honors Saturday and also qualified for the state finals. Team members include, front row, left to right: coach Pate Spieles, Gehry Wiesner, Pat Rajewski, Scott Miller, Kevin McLenon and assistant coach Ken Plude. Back row: Tom Marta, Sean Henne, Doug Bergmann and Joe Simpson.

Girls win again

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Rayder girls basketball team playing heads up ball, edged a strong Suttons Bay quintet 42-41 on Thursday after winning by a decisive 43-28 score over Petoskey earlier in the week.

It was a team effort all the way, coach Henry Wagner said of the win over Suttons Bay, with Amy Pischner having her best night of the season with 30 points and 15 rebounds. Also playing an excellent game and feeding the ball to Pischner when she was open were Ellen Pearl, Ann Kroll, Cyndi Boss and Barbie Boss.

Suttons Bay led 10-8 at the quarter before the Rayders took a 22-16 lead at halftime and held on 34-16 before the visitors went ahead 41-0 with 38 seconds on the clock.

Kroll was fouled and made two free throws to give the Rayders a 42-41 lead. Charlevoix then tried to stall. In the melee that resulted, Cyndi Boss was fouled but missed both shots and Suttons Bay took possession and went in for a shot but missed. The ball hit a Suttons Bay player and went out of bounds as the game ended.

The Rayders had 19 field goals, six of 11 shots from the line and 12 personal fouls. The visitors had 17 field goals, seven of 15 free throws and 14 personal fouls.

Angela Petroskey had 17 points for Suttons Bay.

Suttons Bay won the JV game 36-32 with Stacy Gebott scoring 19 points. Ginny Send had nine for the visitors.

In the game at Petoskey, it was Charlevoix all the way as they led 9-7, 20-13, and 28-20 by quarters. The Rayders outscored Petoskey 19-12 from the floor and had five of 12 while Petoskey had six of 13 from the three-throw line. The Rayders had 12 and Petoskey 14 personal fouls.

Pischner had 11 points and 16 rebounds for the game. Jill Matthews had 15 points.

Petoskey took the JV game 46-24. Gebott and Melissa Boss had eight points each. Cammy LaValley had 10 points and Jill Breicheisen 11 for Petoskey.

Charlevoix will host Rogers City on Nov. 4.

Charlevoix now has a 12-2 record.

JVs lose to Grayling

The Charlevoix Rayder JVs dropped their game to the Grayling Vikings by a score of 23-8 on Thursday.

Shawn Putman took the opening kickoff and romped 72 yards to put the Rayders on the board in the opening minute of the game. James Corwin passed to Eric Moore for the conversion to give Charlevoix an early 8-0 lead.

Before the period was over, however, Grayling drove the length of the field to score from the 2-yard line and ran for the extra point to tie the score.

The second period was Grayling's as the Vikings blocked a Rayder punt for a safety and, later in the period, scored on a 16-yard run following a long ground drive to bring the score to 17-8 at halftime.

The third period was scoreless. In the final quarter, the Vikings initiated another long drive which resulted in a scoring run from the 3-yard line. The conversion kick was blocked.

Coach Brian Certa said the offense moved the ball well but lacked the punch to move it in to score. They were held on the 1-yard line three times and had a pass intercepted in the end zone once.

Outstanding on defense were Matt Cunningham, Jamie Montieth, Dean Jones and Jason Whitley. Jason Corwin, Putman and James Corwin ran well on offense, Certa commented.

The team will close out its season at St. Ignace Thursday.

Eighth-graders get victory

The Charlevoix Middle School girls basketball teams split with Petoskey in games played Monday with the eighth-graders posting their first victory by a 17-12 score and the seventh-graders dropping their game 19-16.

The Charlevoix five held a 7-2 halftime lead over Petoskey before taking the game 17-12.

Tracee Smith had eight points for Charlevoix. Karen Wozniak had six points for Petoskey.

The seventh-grades trailed 11-8 at halftime in their game before losing 19-16.

Dorothy Perrault had four points for Charlevoix. Nikki Shomin had five points for Petoskey.

The teams will be at Harbor Springs Monday, Nov. 3 for games at 6:30 p.m. and at Cheboygan the following Wednesday for games at 6 p.m. to close out their season.

Charlevoix children get a taste of the 'Big Top'

Charlevoix area youngsters, and not a few elders as well, enjoyed a real live circus last Tuesday as the Galaxy Circus of Stars set up in the Charlevoix High School gymnasium.

Complete with clowns, a ringmaster, Sir Harry James and his balancing act, the amazing Stevany on the trapeze, leopards, juggling, and trained birds, the circus brought a taste of the big top to Charlevoix.

The event was sponsored by the Charlevoix Rotary Club which will use the proceeds to help outfit the Rotary Park next to the Charlevoix ball fields.

Kids, waving Confederate flags and circus ballons, seemed to enjoy the show.

and Crystal Lake (Benzie County).

"Good sized fish (up to 3 pounds) from this plant should be seen by anglers in 1988-89," said Bill McClay, DNR fisheries biologist. "Our purpose is to provide a diversity of fishing opportunities in each of our inland lakes. These Atlantic salmon, a close relative of the brown trout and likewise, an exceptionally good sport and eating fish, should do well in our larger lakes because of their ideal depth, coldness and clearness," he added.

The fingerlings, hatched from a wild or lake-raised strain of Atlantic salmon in Maine's Sebago and West Grand Lakes, were surplus to the needs of Maine's Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife. The gift was made to assist Michigan in expanding its Atlantic salmon fishery, and in its desire to create a fishery from lake-raised stock, rather than hatchery-raised stock.

The first attempt to introduce Atlantic salmon into Michigan waters in 1873 was unsuccessful. Modern introductions were begun in 1972 and since the mid-1970s, Michigan has kept a brood stock of Atlantic salmon at the DNR's Wolf Lake Fish Hatchery in Kalamazoo. Unfortunately, adult Atlantic salmon reared in a hatchery environment have a tendency to be disease prone, according to DNR fisheries biologists, and Atlantic salmon production at Wolf Lake has been highly variable.

To adjust for that variability, a lake-raised stock of Atlantic salmon, which the DNR planted in Gull Lake (Kalamazoo County) this past spring, will now serve as the new brood stock for Michigan's Atlantic salmon. Eggs will be taken from Gull Lake salmon in 1988 and raised to yearling size at the Wolf Lake Hatchery, then released into inland lakes. The Atlantic salmon in Higgins and Crystal Lakes will serve as back-up brood stocks to the Gull Lake salmon.

If the lake-raised brood stocks do well, the DNR plans to continue with annual plants of Atlantic salmon in selected waters in the state, while pursuing contact with other states for surplus Atlantic salmon. At the present time, Atlantic salmon provide a limited fishery to Michigan anglers, primarily in Lake Michigan and some tributary streams.

Atlantic salmon are native to the east coast and Europe (Michigan's transplanted stock are descendents of the land-locked Atlantic salmon from Maine). Normally a saltwater fish, they spawn and generally spend their first year in fresh water streams. Over the years, they have adapted solely to surviving in large bodies of fresh water. Atlantic salmon, unlike Pacific salmon, do not die after spawning, and generally live on for several years, reaching weights of 10 to 20 pounds. The current state record for Atlantic salmon is a 32-pound 10 ounce fish taken from Lake Michigan.

Flood insurance requested

surance Program, the State Construction Code must continue in effect.

Planning Department records show that the three cities and several of the townships bordering Lake Charlevoix have signed Intergovernmental Agreements, including Hayes Township, Eveline Township, and South Arm Township, as well as Norwood, Peaine, and St. James Townships on Lake Michigan.

After the county and city or township sign the Agreement, it is sent to the Federal Emergency Management Agency, which assigns a number to the city or township, which number property owners must use when applying for flood insurance. These numbers should be on file at the office of the city or township clerk.

A fact sheet prepared by the Federal Emergency Management Agency states that "flood insurance can be purchased through any licensed property-casualty insurance agent or through many private insurance companies which are now writing flood insurance under arrangements with the Federal Insurance Administrator".

The fact sheet further states that flood insurance may be purchased for any insurable property, even if it is not located in a floodplain. (Over a third of all flood insurance claims have been from outside flood hazard areas).

Almost any building with at least two walls and a roof may be insured if it is principally above ground.

Business establishments may also be insured through the National Flood Insurance Program.

While flood insurance may be purchased just for a property owner's peace of mind, it should be pointed out that it is often required as a condition of a mortgage. The average annual premium for flood insurance protection is $220, according to the federal agency.

Residents of Charlevoix, East Jordan, and Boyne City, as well as persons living in the above-mentioned townships who want to buy flood insurance should contact their city or township clerk to obtain their participating community number, which will be requested by the insurance company issuing their flood insurance.

Residents of townships which have not been designated participating communities may want to approach their township board with the suggestion that they sign an Intergovernmental Agreement with the county so they will be eligible for flood insurance under the National Flood Insurance Program.

Hospital offers cholesterol tests

Charlevoix Area Hospital will offer cholesterol-HDL tests to the general public on Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 11 and 12. Testing will be held from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Nov. 11 and from 7:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. on Nov. 12.

Tests will be conducted for persons 20 years old and over at the hospital laboratory. The cost is $5.

Those interested in having the test done should fast for 8 hours prior to the testing. Anyone unable to fast for that amount of time due to illness or physician instructions should follow their doctor's advice.

According to Chief Lab Technician Ralph Corwin, the test will show both the cholesterol level in the blood and the HDL, or high density lipoprotein. High levels of cholesterol in the bloodstream can lead to narrowing and eventual blockage of blood vessels. The result can be sever chest pain and eventually heart attack.

HDL is sometimes referred to as "good cholesterol" because it is thought to carry cholesterol away from the tissues.

Diabetes check given in Charlevoix

Free screening tests for diabetes will be conducted at Charlevoix Area Hospital on Wednesday, Nov. 5 from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The free tests are sponsored by Charlevoix Area Hospital in observance of Diabetes Detection Week, Nov. 2-8.

It is estimated that there are about 240,000 people in Michigan who have diabetes and don't know it. The purpose of this drive is to identify some of these in the Charlevoix area and alert them to the need for proper treatment. The earlier diabetes is detected the better.

Eligible for free testing on Nov. 5 are those 18 years old and over who have not previously been diagnosed as a diabetic.

To assure an accurate test, it is important to eat a high carbohydrate meal, one with large amounts of starches and sugars, two hours before the test.

The most common symptoms of diabetes are excessive thirst, frequent urination, blurring vision, constant hunger or the slow healing of cuts and scratches.

St. Mary's plans benefit auction

An auction sale will be held at St. Mary Parish Center Saturday, Nov. 8.

Funds from the sale will be utilized toward the purchase of a van for Albert Couturer, a young man who is a quadraplegis and who is preparing for ordination in the priesthood, and for the St. Mary Parish and School funds.

The sale will offer a wide variety of items that range from a cultured pearl found in an oyster shell by the second graders at the school to cords of wood and a sailboat.

The auction will be staged from 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. with Carl Mioller, a licensed auctioneer, in charge.

Concession stands will be open at the site during the sale.

Items for the auction are needed. Anyone wishing to donate items may leave them at the school building from 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. daily between now and the time of the sale. For pickup please call 547-6652.

Sponsors of the auction are the Knights of Columbus Council, St. Mary Parish Council, Parish Club, School Board and Altar Guild.

Obituaries

Arthur S. Edwards

Funeral services for Arthur S. Edwards, 91, were held at the United Methodist Church Saturday, Oct. 25. The Rev. David W. Yingling officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Edwards died Thursday, Oct. 23, at the Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Born in Charlevoix Sept. 10, 1895, Mr. Edward attended Charlevoix High School and studied telegraphy at Ferris Institute, now Ferris State College. He was employed as a telegrapher for the Great Northern Railroad in Minnesota until entering the U.S. Navy in 1917 during World War I.

He continued his study of telegraphy at Harvard University while in the U.S. Navy. He returned to Charlevoix in 1918 and on Dec. 10, 1919, was married to the former Rena Cram. They always made their home here.

He was associated with a family business, Edwards Florist, from 1938 until he retired in 1950. He was a railroad buff and had traveled via rail throughout the United States. He was a member of the United Methodist Church.

Surviving are his wife, Rena, of Charlevoix; two sons, Richard L. and Louis A. of Charlevoix; two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the United Methodist Church or Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

The Winchester Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

F. Barry Jontzen

F. Barry Jontzen, 55, of Westlake, Ohio, a frequent visitor to Charlevoix died Tuesday, Oct. 14.

Funeral services were held Thursday, Oct. 16, a the Saxton Golden Rule Funeral Home in Lakewood, Ohio. Interment was in a Lakewood Cemetery.

Born in Cleveland, May 29, 1931, Mr. Jantzen enlisted in the U.S. Coast Guard and was stationed at the Charlevoix Coast Guard station. On Feb. 12, 1955, he married the former Marilyn Blissett. Following his discharge from the service late in 1955; they returned to Cleveland where he joined the family business, the Jontzen Printing Co. They always made their home in the Cleveland area.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. David (Kathryn) Lemieux of Miami, Fla., and Karen Jontzen of Lakewood, Ohio, and a son, Bradley B. of Masillon, Ohio.

The family suggests memorials to the American Cancer Society or the Lakewood Hospital Foundation-Oncology Dept.

Hospital guild plans Pre-Christmas Showing

A brand new assortment of unique and interesting gift items will be featured at the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild's 1986 Pre-Christmas Showing Friday and Saturday, Nov. 7 and 8.

The showing is held each year in the hospital lobby next to the Guild's Showcase gift shop. Hours for this year's showing are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 7, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 8.

Of particular interest this year will be some creative pieces of "chainsaw art," according to Showcase gift buyer Elaine Tompkins. In this medium, familiar woodland figures such as deer and skiers are cleverly fashioned out of small logs and sticks with a chain saw. They make very attractive decorative pieces for any home, said Tompkins.

Also new at the showing this year are childrens books from a recently developed Golden Books series on child safety. Showcase co-ordinator Julia Leedy-Baer said that the books are a special edition printed to benefit the Adam Walsh Foundation for children.

A new line of aromatic potpourri's called Northern Essence and made by Pam Kantola of Charlevoix will be on display as will many colorful stuffed animals for the youngsters.

Tompkins added that the Showcase jewelry buyers made a special trip to a Grand Rapids mart to select many new pieces that will be displayed at the Pre-Christmas Showing.

Enjoying some of the items to be featured at the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild's Pre-Christmas Showing are, from left, Meagan Tompkins, Ian Tompkins and Elissa Wood. Besides the stuffed animals, the showing will feature some pieces of chainsew art including the deer shown here. The showing will be held Nov. 7 and 8.

Historical Society to discuss rails

Louis Edwards, a railroad buff, will be the guest speaker at the Tuesday, Nov. 4 meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society to be held at Harsha House, 103 State St. at 8 p.m.

Edwards will illustrate his talk with slides he has taken of railroads in this country and Canada as well as touch on the history of railroading in Charlevoix.

The Historical Society also suggests items offered as gifts at Christmas including historical metallic plaques of Charlevoix scenes at $20 each; a set of place mats featuring historic pictures of Charlevoix at $5 a set and Charlevoix 1907 Cookbooks at $5 each. These items may be obtained by calling 547-5518 or 547-6719.

CITIZENS OF CHARLEVOIX,

DO YOU REMEMBER —

BUD HEERES WON over incumbent Lee Moerland in the August primary election in Charlevoix, as City Candidate for County Commissioner?

BUD was cheered and encouraged then, not only by the majority vote, but by calls, letters and handshakes he received at that VICTORY.

DO YOU KNOW — the issue of the incumbents candidacy did not cease there? He filed, and is now on the Nov. ballot, against BUD, on the "Independent" ticket?

DO YOU WANT — to see BUD HEERES move from candidate to VICTOR in the election on Nov. 4th, to experience the reality of BUD'S early slogan:

TIME FOR A CHANGE

DO YOU CARE —

to help BUD win?

DO YOU CARE ENOUGH — to get out and VOTE NOV. 4.

TIME FOR A CHANGE!
AND BUD HAS THE TIME TO SERVE THE CITIZENS OF CHARLEVOIX
AS YOUR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

Many supported BUD in the Primary, now we're asking your VOTE Nov. 4.

Paid for by Friends of Bud Heeres

Charlevoix loses pilings case

Pajtas issued a 10-page decision on the case on Oct. 9.

He ruled that the pilings put in by Lundy-Heck were indeed in the city right-of-way – one group was 3.62 feet into the 66-foot easement, the other 3.53 feet. He found, however, that, "No evidence was presented that these piling clusters were interfering with any riparian rights of the Plaintiff (the City of Charlevoix) or members of the public."

He also ruled that the pilings did not create a public nuisance or the public's use of the waters at the end of Eaton Street. "The proofs simply do not bear this out," Pajtas wrote. "When the City consented to the development of the marina, they thereby limited their options as far as utilization of the property situated at the end of Eaton Street."

City Attorney Jeffery VanTreese, who brought suit for the city, said that although the city was unsuccessful in its request for the injunction, it can claim partial victory.

VanTreese said the city was successful in having the court rule on several issues: that the street is an established public street and is 66 feet wide, and that riparian rights are attached to the street for the city and the public.

Pajtas stated that the lawsuit can be grouped into two parts. The first part involved a determination as to the existence and nature of Eaton Street from Ferry Avenue to the shore of Lake Charlevoix. The second part dealt with whether the city had riparian rights.

The city presented testimony that the street was observed as a city street as long as 41 years ago and has been maintained by city crews as early as 1960, the judge said in his opinion.

The testimony established that the public had used the roadway as access to Lake Charlevoix for launching canoes, he said.

Pajtas noted that "Dennis P. Heck admitted that (Lundy-Heck Co.) does not claim ownership of Eaton Street and agreed with the city, when approval was sought to develop a marina at the end of Eaton Street, that the street would remain a public street and access to the lake should remain open to the public."

He determined, however, that the city had given up some of its riparian rights. "In this case, the city consented to allow the defendants to construct a large condominium which borders both sides of Eaton Street as extended into the waters of Lake Charlevoix. The (city) thereby limited and restricted its own riparian right," Pajtas ruled.

McRae wins Charlevoix mayor race

Ralph McRae, defeated two years ago in his bid for mayor, was successful in gaining the city post Tuesday as he easily outdistanced opponent Samuel Supernaw.

McRae received 765 votes, or 57 percent of the vote, to Supernaw's 574.

The new mayor ran ahead of Supernaw in all three of the city's wards. He outpolled Supernaw 265 to 231 in the First Ward, 252 to 143 in the Second Ward and 248 to 200 in the Third Ward.

Elected to city council were three unopposed candidates: William Haggard in the First Ward, William Bellows in the Second Ward and Shirley Roloff in the Third Ward.

Haggard received 385 votes, Bellows 297 and Roloff 358.

A RETIRED building contractor, McRae ran a campaign that called for opposition to further condominium building in downtown Charlevoix and advocated working toward high tax assessments for the Belvedere and Chicago clubs.

He also told voters he would set up a mayor's advisory committee and would establish promotion of the new industrial park as his number one priority.

McRae was a council member from 1974-76 and helped initiate the current city charter. He has been active in planning a nursing home for Charlevoix.

Ralph McRae

"IT TURNED OUT to be a lot closer than I thought it would be" McRae said. "I thought Sam did quite well."

He credited the victory to a strong organization and people's sentiments against condominiums. McRae said he called 150 people in the two days prior to the election. Opposition to condominiums, he said, was the only thing that was brought up.

The mayor-elect said his first priority with the city would be to promote the new industrial park. "I'm going to work real hard on that personally," he said.

Supernaw congratulated his opponent on the victory. "I think this campaign generated more interest than any in the past," he said. "It was a good campaign and a clean campaign and I congratulate him on the win."

McRae calls for investigation

In his first action as mayor-elect, Ralph McRae has called for an investigation of City Attorney Jeffery VanTreese's handling of the city's purchase of the Ferry Beach annex property.

"Before assuming the mayor's office, I will be requesting an investigation of our city attorney," McRae said. "It will be for a public disclosure of his misconduct and unethical actions in the Ferry Avenue beach property acquisition."

McRae charged that "because of his (VanTreese's) personal interests, the city taxpayers were not adequately served."

The city recently purchased property next to Ferry Beach, culminating a deal that has been pending for

Heeres defeats Moerland

First-time candidate Theordore "Bud" Heeres scored a major victory over veteran county commissioner I. Lee Moerland for the Charlevoix County District 6 commission seat.

Heeres received 58 percent of the vote, outpolling Moerland 782 to 554.

Moerland has been on the county commission for 21 years and serves as commission chairmain. He was defeated by Heeres in an upset during the August primary. Moerland then chose to run as an Independent.

Heeres won all three of the city's wards. He outpolled Moerland 286 to 221 in the First Ward, 253 to 135 in the Second Ward and 241 to 198 in the Third Ward.

"I was a little surprised that I carried it as well as I did," Heeres said after the election. He defeated Moerland by a margin of only 51 votes in the August primary.

Heeres said his campaign slogan of "Time for a change" was the deciding factor.

It was an intense campaign which included several personal letters mailed to voters and a flurry of letters to the editor. "I don't know that the accusations in the paper against (me) hurt or hindered him," Heeres said of letters supporting his opponent.

he said his top priority would be "to do the job with honesty and integrity to the best of my ability."

Heeres said he suspected Moerland was hurt by having to run as an Independent. "It may have looked rather strange that in midstream you can switch parties. I don't think that helped either."

Moerland agreed that his defeat was the result of "a big emphasis on change and the fact that I've been there 21 years."

He said running as an Independent hurt. Moerland ruled out a run for the office again but said he had a "whole bunch of challenges to tackle."

IN OTHER RACES for county commission seats in the area, incumbent Republican Donald Smith easily outdistanced his Independent challenger Lee Arnold. Smith received 78 percent of the vote, getting 830 votes to Arnold's 229 (results from Peaine Township were not available at press time and are not included).

Arnold also lost to Smith in the Republican primary.

Smith represents District No. 5 which includes the townships of Charlevoix, western Eveline, Marion, Norwood, Peaine, and St. James.

In the county commission seat for District 3 (Boyne City), Republican incumbent Oral Sutliff defeated Democrat Rudolph Florenski. Sutliff received 583 votes, 63 percent of the vote, to Florenski's 344.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY followed the pattern in the rest of the state in giiving Gov. James Blanchard a big margin over Republican challenger William Lucas. County voters went for Blanchard 4,411 to 1,925 for Lucas (excluding Beaver Island votes).

County voters gave the nod to Ralph Osling in his re-election to the state House of Representatives in the 103rd district, voting 3,420 to 2,541 for opponent Ellen Addington. They also gave incumbent Republican congressman Bob Davis a 4,473 to 1,873 margin over Democratic challenger Bob Anderson. Independent Phil Bellfy polled 82 votes in the county.

State senator Mitch Irwin got a boost from Charlevoix County in his re-election as well. He received 4,422 votes in the county to 1,981 for Republican challenger John Knorr.

Ed Oelschlaeger, president of First Centrum Corp., presents his condominium development plan to the hearing.

Water's Edge condo hearing attracts large audience

by DOUG TRUAX

Over 150 people turned out for a public hearing on the Water's Edge condominium project conducted jointly by the Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers at Charlevoix High School Wednesday, Oct. 29.

The audience, about evenly divided between supporters and opponents, heard from the developer and his team of consultants and from some 20 people who delivered statements for or against the project.

Ed Oelschlaeger, president of First Centrum Corp., and several of consultants outlined his company's proposal that includes 135 condominium units on 41 acres and tennis courts on an adjacent 10-acre parcel. The most recent plan, Oelschlaeger said, was the result of a mediation agreement between environmental groups, township officials and the developer which involved "an awful lot of energy, blood, sweat and tears."

Oelschlaeger said the condos would sell $150,000 to $250,000 and have from 1,350 to 2,000 square feet each. He plans for 27 buildings of five condos each with attached garages.

In addition the project calls for construction of two ponds and three

Community center

A group of Charlevoix area citizens have initiated an effort to create a community center complex. Sixteen representatives of various civic groups, the Charlevoix Ministerial Association and other interested parties met last week to brainstorm the idea.

The initial meeting was organized by Rev. Bruce Hamilton and Rev. David Yingling. The proposed community center might incorporate activities for young people and senior citizens. The group will also be discussing the possible inclusion of a swimming pool in the community center concept.

Hamilton says the group is eager to expand and is particularly interested in participation by young people in the Charlevoix area.

The next meeting is scheduled Wed. Nov. 12 at 6:30 p.m. in the Village Inn Pizza restaurant. Pizza will be served and the interested members of the community are encouraged to attend.

Hoffman Park bids delayed

City council delayed action on bids for the new Hoffmann Park at its regular meeting Monday after it was unable to resolve confusion and dissention on the bids received. Another meeting was scheduled for Wed., Nov. 5 at noon.

The city received incomplete bids on the project at the scheduled deadline of Oct. 29. The project was divided into four parts. Goodin and Bigelow Construction Co. provided the only bid on the concrete walkway and was low bidder on the installation of concrete pavers for the walkway.

Paul Osterberg of Charlevoix placed the only bid on the construction of a wood timber stairway and seating area. However, City Planner Gerry Harsch told council the bid was nearly twice the budget estimate. No bid was received for the stone masonry walls.

Harsch told council the completion date for the project was Nov. 30 in order for the city to receive the 50 percent matching funds from the Coastal Zone Management grant.

Band concert scheduled

The Charlevoix High School Marching Band will present its annual concert at the high school gymnasium at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 5.

Under the direction of Terry Isenbarger, the band will present a program of music performed at football games and parades during the fall season. Flag Corps routines will be featured and the percussion section will perform a selection entitled "Limus and Lucy" written for marching percussion.

Other selections to be played by the band will include "Toronado" by Paul Lavander, "Charleston" arranged by Paul Jennings, "Conga" by Enrique Garcia, the theme music from the "Cosby Show" by Stu Gardner and a special arrangement of Irving Berlin's "God Bless America."

In announcing the concert, Isenbarger said the concert promises to be entertaining for everyone. Admission will be $1. Preschool children will be admitted free.

A meeting of the Band Boosters will be held at 7 p.m. at the high school study hall prior to the concert. Parents of band students and everyone interested in the Charlevoix school band program are invited to attend the meeting.

McGoff faces federal charges

Federal prosecutors Friday filed criminal charges against Michigan newspaper publisher John P. McGoff for failing to register as a foreign agent for the South African government, according to a recent story in the Detroit News.

McGoff, whose Global Communications Corp. owns the Macomb Daily and several other newspapers, is accused of taking more than $11 million from the South African government to promote its position in the United States.

McGoff is owner of the Star Line Corp. which operates the Star of Charlevoix dinner cruise ship and owns Water's Edge on Lake Charlevoix where he maintains a vacation home. He has an interest in Water's Edge Inc. a partner to the proposed Water's Edge condominium development.

McGoff's office at Global Communications Inc. in Williamston, Mich. said he would have no comment on the charges.

If convicted, McGoff would face a maximum penalty of five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine. McGoff, who lives in Williamston, is scheduled to be arraigned in Washington, D.C. within the next week.

The charges came after nearly two years of unsuccessful negotiations between McGoff and the Justice Department. Federal officials attempted to persuade McGoff to register as a foreign agent, but he refused, officals said. He did agree, however, to waive indictment by a grand jury.

McGoff is alleged to have begun working for South Africa in February 1974, when South African officials secretly furnished him with more than $11 million to purchase the now-defunct Washington Star newspaper. The money was funneled through a subsidiary of a Swiss bank, court documents state.

The court documents state that McGoff sought to purchase the paper so that "positive material" relating to South Africa could be disseminated to "counter the perceived anti-South African position of the Washington Post" and "to enhance the political and media position and influence" of McGoff so he could more effectively promote that country's interests.

Between 1974 and 1979, McGoff allegedly concealed the source of the money through use of secret accounts and code words and formation of the Star Newspaper Co., later renamed Global Communications Corp., the court documents say.

Although McGoff did not acquire the newspaper, the documents claim he used some of the money to buy the Sacramento Union newspaper and acquire a 50 percent interest in UPITN Corp., an international newsfilm distribution company. Both properties have since been sold.

South African officials admitted in 1979 that the government secretly transferred more than $11 million to a Swiss bank account in an effort to purchase the newspaper. That disclosure created a scandal and forced resignations of former South African President John Vorster, former Information Minister Cornelius Mulder and other officials.

McGoff previously owned Panax Corp., which published a string of newspapers and was liquidated in 1981.

Ed Oelschlaeger, president of First Centrum Corp. which is planning to develop McGoff's property at Water's Edge for a condominium resort, said the charges would have no effect on the project. He said McGoff was involved in the development only as the owner of the land.

Charlevoixan home after working in Middle East

by PEG OHLE

Every once in a while, a son or daughter of Charlevoix returns home after studying and working in a foreign land.

One such person is Paul Martin, son of Dr. Robert and Lucy Martin, who is back in Charlevoix with his wife and daughter after spending several years working in the Middle East.

Paul, who graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1967, most recently has been serving as director of the American Institute for Yemeni Studies in the capital city of Sanaa, in the Yemen Arab Republic, located on the Arabian Peninsula. His wife, Leila, who was born in Lebanon, served the Institute as assistant director.

As Paul explains it, the American Institute for Yemeni Studies in a "non-government academic membership organization, made up of individuals and institutions having an interest in Yemen – its archeology, anthropology, history, or natural sciences". Most of the interest centers around the anthropology and archeology of Yemen, and the Institute works to pave the way for members to receive government permission to carry on research and other activities in their field. About 450 members of the Institute are students and professors and about 30 are institutions, mostly universities.

Both Paul and Leila have teaching backgrounds. In Yemen, he taught linguistics and she taught business subjects. Before going to Yemen, he taught linguistics and she taught English at the University of Saudi Arabia. Paul received his undergraduate degree from North Central College in Naperville, Illinois, and his master's degree in linguistics from the University of Michigan. He later taught at the University of Colorado Economics Institute and at the University of St. Joseph in Beirut, where he met Leila. She later came to the United States to study at the University of Colorado and at the American Graduate School of International Management in Glendale, California.

Yemen is a very foreign country by most United States standards. It is an Arabic-speaking country populated mostly by Muslims of the Sha'iaect. There are no synagogues or churches and missionary work is not permitted. However, the Yemeni do permit the practice of other religions in fellowship groups, which is how Paul and Leila expressed their Christian faith.

All children in Yemen have a right to go to school, although many, especially girls, do not take advantage of the opportunity. Public education is new to Yemen, since before 1970 there were only Koranic (religious) schools. Today, teachers are being imported from Egypt and the Sudan. Some young people receive a higher education, now that there is a new university in Yemen, and a favored few go abroad to school.

While religious and educational facilities may seem rudimentary to people in the United States, there is something that isn't so far behind: television. Paul explained, "There is television in all the cities, and even in the villages where there are generators they can turn their sets on in the evening". There are quite a few automobiles but few roads. The roads that there are were mostly built by foreign countries – the United States, China, and Russia.

The one link with the outside western world is the British Broadcasting Company radio, according to Paul.
